County Play Day Friday, March 13

Large Crowd Expected In Clanton; Gala School Festival Knocking At Our Door

Through the energetic efforts of the county school officials and the cooperation of the entire teaching staff of Chilton County, there will be one of the best days we have ever had in this county on Friday of this week. Patrons and children alike are looking forward to the day of educational exhibits, the county spelling bee, and complete enjoyment in organized play. Some of the interesting features of the day are the greasy pole climb for the boys and the sack race for girls and boys. That will interest and be a treat to the most pessimistic onlookers.

The parade from the high school through town led by the local post of the American Legion promises to be a feature of the day, according to Prof, L. C. Warr, of the Chilton County High School, who heads the parade committee.

Coach T. H. Walker, head of the athletic events committee, will be busy this week with the help of C. C. H. S. students marking off the athletic field in Clanton for the convenience of Chilton County schools and each school will have a definite part in play day.

The committee on exhibits, of which Miss Thomas of Clanton Grammar school is chairman, is hard at work this week with the problem of labeling each space for exhibits, and designing directions for each school, to display its work.

According to Prof. I. J. Quinn, principal of the Clanton Grammar School and chairman of the play day activities, the day will be completely filled with interesting, instuctive and constructive events.

Some school publicity men and newspaper folks are expected, and each performance will be observed and credited with its merits, and passed on by due authority to those unfortunates that will not be able to attend.

The interest is at white heat at the different schools, and according to reports, each student from each school is looking forward with eager enthusiasm to the promising eventful day.

According to the school census 6,000 students are expected to gather at the Chilton County High School for the red-letter day in school progress.

Teachers should and must bring their exhibits Thursday afternoon to the County High School in order that the exhibits committee will have time to space their exhibits.

Miss Jessie B. Garrison of the State Department of Education will direct the elementary games to be played through the day, assisted by the elementary supervisor, Miss Madge Scarborough and chosen aides.

Everyone is optimistic about the success of field day, and according to some of the teachers they are looking forward to and comparing the tentative gala festival with the civilized Roman lust for enjoyment stating that all is well if the bell rings and the drum beats.

MT. PLEASANT WINS OVER THORSBY INSTITUTE

The Mt. Pleasant Jr. High School basketball team hung up another victory last Tuesday afternoon by defeating the swift Thorsby Institute quintet, 12-8.

Littlejohn, the husky center for Mt. Pleasant team mates in scoring by netting the ball for 8 points. Curtis Traywick rung up the other 4 points by virtue of two nifty shots from the field.

The Thorsby boys displayed some swift, clever passwork, but were unsuccessful in making their shots count.

The game was played with a strong west wind blowing over the court, and the first half was played in a light cold drizzle of rain; all of which showed its effect upon the players of both teas.

This was Mt. Pleasant's seventh victory this season, out of thirteen games played.

BUSINESS PICKING UP IN BIRMINGHAM DISTRICT

Birmingham, Ala., Mar. 9.—Reflecting the spirit of recovery which all Alabama has shown during the first two months of 1931, Birmingham is moving forward with confidence into the new year.

Several thousands of men have returned to work in this district, with increased business activity noted in many lines.

Approximately 1,500 men returned to work January 1, when the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company announced resumption of work at Ensley rail mills. Since then, those men have been working steadily on orders for 50,750 tons of rail for the L & N Railroad, 30,655 tons for the Southern Railroad, 20,000 tons for the Southern Pacific Railway and 5,000 tons for the Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

Large orders for steel shapes and other fabricated steel forms received by the Conners Steel Company gave work to about 200 additional men. The Ingalls Iron Works put additional crews to work on manufacture of ten steel barges for the Warrior River, let by the Inland Waterways Corporation. The Alabama Dry Docks Company of Mobile also benefitted by that same contract.

Alabama limestone, structural steel and concrete will be used in the construction of the new state capitol building for Louisiana. Huge cement orders received here recently for highway construction in various Southern states has done much to aid the district. Also, the W. S. Dickey Clay Manufacturing Company, has resumed operations and returned about 200 men to work.

A recently adopted bond issue of $500,000 providing for repairs to city parks and playgrounds gives work to more 1,000 men, while the city is moving ahead rapidly with work on the $1,000,000 municipal airport. Work has been resumed, too, on completion of the $3,000,000 Jefferson County courthouse and the city has two underpasses for grade elimination under construction, part of a $4,000,000 improvement program.

All in all, prospects for continued industrial activity, all on the upgrade, are exceptionally good at this time, local industrial leaders declare.

FILING TAX EXEMPT ON DROUTH LOAN MORTGAGES

The Alabama Legislature has passed, and Governor Miller has signed a bill exempting farmers from paying privilege tax for filing the mortgages they give to obtain relief loans from the Federal Government. Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, has mailed copies of the bill to probate judges, county agents, and chairmen of drouth relief committees of the State. The bill reads:

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama; Section 1. That no filing tax as required by Section 4 1-2 of Act No. 172, approved August 2, 1923, shall be required or collected for filing for record any mortgage given to secure a loan or money to drougth, flood or storm suffers made under any act of Congress of the United States.

THREE JERSEY SOWS FARROWED 44 PIGS

Dudley Collins, ex-Sheriff, who is back on his farm near Clanton, and taking much interest in everything about the place, reports an interesting item about his hogs.

He has three Duroc Jersey (red) sows at his farm. A few weeks ago these sows farrowed a total of 44 pigs. Two of them had 15 pigs each; the other 14. Each sow had more than the number of pigs she was able to care for.

At present Mr. Collins reports that there are 29 out of the 44 pigs living, all with good prospects of surviving and making good hogs.

Years ago Mr. Collins chose the Red Duroc Jersey hog as his favorite, and he has held to them consistently. He plans to give special attention to the growing of hogs, and expressed himself as considering the ton litter contest which has been mentioned by the County Agent and the Kiwanis Club.

EX-SERVICE MEN TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

Every ex-soldier in Chilton County, whether he is a member of the American Legion or not, is urged to come.

Mr. Judson Snead, of Talladega, has been designated by the Alabama Legion headquarters to come here and explain to the ex-service men some important matters concerning adjusted compesation loans, dis ability allowance, and war risk insurance.

CLANTON COTTON MILL RUNNING NIGHT AND DAY

According to the way the Clanton unit of the Alabama Mills Company is running now, it looks like business is picking up. Mr. Cody, the secretary of the Clanton mill, stated Tuesday that they were working solid time night and day on several orders of jeans cloth. However, this cloth is exceptionally wide, which makes is necessary that all of it be run on just one hundred looms that are wide enough to carry it. If the whole mill could be turned loose on these orders it could handle them all right in day time hours. This jeans which the mill is now running is to be used in making emory cloth.

Mr. Cody stated that prospects look bright for the future of the mill. The question now is not orders, but what is worrying the mill operatives is how they are going to fill the orders on time. Most orders for cloth have to be out in a certain time, and if one mill can't fill the bill by then, naturally, the contractors seek elsewhere to get their orders. So you see, time is an important item in cotton milling, as well as in most other lines of business.

We are glad to see business brightening up for our cotton mill here, for when it prospers, it in turn helps everything in our community.

MRS. LONARD SMITH BURIED AT LIBERTY HILL ON FRIDAY

The remains of Mrs. Princella Smith were buried at Liberty Hill cemetery last Friday afternoon, following the funeral at the church by Rev. Homer Carroll. She died at her home near Liberty Hill Thursday night, March 5th. An infant son was buried with her. Mrs. Smith was the wife of Leonard T. Smith, who survives her.

The deceased was the daughter of James Castleberry, haing been born in Coosa County near Rockford in October, 1898. She was 32 years old at the time of her death.

NO PAY NO TALK

The above words were the verdict Saturday of the board of directors of the Peoples Telephone Company. People who have not paid their central fees are continually applying for central service, and Mr. Giles has been given strict orders not to let anyone through central who has not paid his or her fees.

It is not the intention of the board to be hard on anyone. They would like to give service to everyone who calls, but anyone can readily see that if one person is permitted to get by everyone else should be given the same right, and thus there would be no funds to operate on. We are sorry that we have people who just want to ride all the time and never pay, but such is the case. There are lots of people who would pay if they could, but that does not pay operators and buy wire and brackets and pay for electricty, batteries, etc. This takes greenback, and nothing else will suffice.

So, folks, do not call central for service if you have not paid your fees; and do not try and ride through on your neighbor who has paid. Pay up your fees and talk to whom you please.

WOMAN WOUNDED BY HUSBAND DIES

Jasper, Ala., March 7.—Mrs. Lonnie Shepherd, 26, died in the Walker County Hospital here this afternoon from shotgun wounds inflicted by her husband a moment before he turned the gun on himself, ending his own life yesterday afternoon.

The shooting took place at the residence near Parrish, and Shepherd killed himself by placing the muzzle of the gun against his forehead, and blowing off the top of his head. His wife was shot in the breast.

Domestic difficulties were said by Coroner A. B. Legg to have caused the shooting.

BANDED BLACKBIRD REPORTED

Mr. A. M. Jones, who lives near Mitchell Dam has brought to the Union-Banner a band taken from the leg of a blackbird which was killed near his place sometime back.

The band bore a number and a request to notify the Biological Survey at Washington. This notification has been sent to Washington. When we receive the report on this bird we will be able to give its history, where it came from, etc.

The Biological Survey appreciates reports on any birds that bear leg bands. The Union-Banner is glad to receive and send them to Washington, so if you happen to get hold of one bring it to us.

BIDS FOR TRUCK DRIVERS CALLED FOR BY CO. BOARD

Tuesday, May 12th, has been designated as the last day on which the county board of education will receive bids for the operation of school busses for the coming year. Official announcement, however, will be made at some date in the near future.

CENTRAL SINGING HELD AT PROVIDENCE SUNDAY

Another good singing was held at Providence last Sunday afternoon, this being the regular meeting of the Central Singing Society. As has been the case for the past few meetings, there were not so many present, but the singing could not have been better, had the crowd been doubled.

Prof. W. M. Devaughn, the president of the society, very ably presided. Prof. Devaughn called the singing to order by singing, and prayer was offered by Mr. S. M. Yates. The chairman proceeded to call out the directors for the afternoon; no fixed program was arranged, as only one member of the committee was present. The singing lasted until about 4 o'clock, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed it. The closing song was sung by Riley Robinson, after making a few remarks in way of encouragment to the young people in singing.

The society meets next Sunday afternoon with Maple Springs, beginning at 2 o'clock. Visiting singers as well as the public in general always has a cordial welcome.

Schools in County May Close Soon

According to superintedent of Education, B. Lawrence, the schools of Chilton County will be forced to close at a very early date, unless the teachers of the county agree to carry the schools on without pay until the state funds are turned over to the county board of education. The general school funds of the county now amount to $2,682.77, which is only enough to run the schols about two days.

However, 25 or 30 thousand dollars in school money is coming to the county from the state, but the date when it is coming is indefinite. This, of course, is not a county situation but a State situation. In fact, Chilton County is in much better shape than many other counties of the state, as two or three counties have already closed down their schools and others are expected to follow suit this week.

Mr. Lawrence states that he is calling the county board together this week to take the matter under advisement and see what solution can be made.

POLL TAXES LESS THAN HALF OF WHAT LAST YEAR TOTALLED

Superintendent of Education, B. Lawrence, gives the information to The Union-Banner that the poll tax collections in Chilton County this year amounted to $1.765.50 This is less than half of what last year's collections were, which amounted to $4,476.00. This money is used for school purposes.

Ex-Convict at Baptist Church Sunday Night

Mr. Alvern S. Allen, for fifteen years a prisoner, will speak to the young people of our town Sunday night at 7:30 at the Baptist Church. He was converted while in prison, and is now giving his life in lecturing to our colleges and High Schools. He comes highly recommended by Dr. Snavely of Birmingham-Southern and Dr. Harry Clarke of Judson, and by many of the leading pastors over the south. From the recommendations, the pastor would urge everyone who can to come to hear him.

THE UNDERGRADUATE PLAY

Jane Roberts as Judy, Uncle George's adopted daughter. Herman Harris as Donny Murphy, the cook "Maybe." Charlsie Pyron plays Pat Gilden, a friend of Judy's. Ethel Mae Jones as Eve Martin, another of Judy's friends. James Arnold, a cousin from New York is Jake Peters. Seth, the uncle from Maine, is played by Joe VanDerveer, and Uncle George's darky servant is played by J. P. Jones. Eddie, "The Wild Oats Boy," is played by Erle Ellis. He must be in bed every night by 8:00 o'clock in order to get his uncle's will of $50,000. Will he get the money? Be there and see!

Hoover Praised by G.O.P. Leader

But Democratic Leader Says 1930 "Tragic Year"

Washington—Extravagant praise and blistering critism of President Hoover and the first two years of his administration are contained in speeches and statements now being inserted in final editions of the Congressional Record for circulation during the summer as campaign material.

A statement by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, and the president's most dependable advocate of all times, has been put in the Record.

"The leaders of the Republican party, as a matter of fact, are tremendously proud of the record of accomplishment that has been made within the past two years," Senator Fess said.

He declared President Hoover has dealt "broadly, effective and successfully" with the unemployment situation.

Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the house appropriations committee, describes 1930 as a "tragic year" in which the nation sustained an economic loss approximating one-third of its total wealth.

He recalled that the president was advertised during the 1928 campaign as the "best equipped man ever offered for the presidency by any party" and that the president "lent himself, to this fiction."

But, continued Byrns, "the balloon had gone too high; it ran out of gas; the crash had to come. It did come and it brought with it, not merely agriculture and industrial disaster, but human hunger and woe to such an extent that 1930 will be referred to as the tragic year, the year during which a proud and prosperous people reached the bottom of the abyss of distress.

SINGING WILL BE OLD TIME AT FRIENDSHIP FIFTH SUNDAY MEET

The singing at the old folks and ministers meeting to be held at Friendship the fifth Sunday in this month, will be in the old Christian Harmony books, and will be in charge of Mr. J. N. Scott of Jemison. Mr. Scott writes that he will be more than pleased to attend this service, and that as many of his old-time singer friends as can will come out and help him.

Of course, this is not going to be an old time singing, but what singing there will be during the day will be the old time kind. There will be dinner on the ground at noon; some time during the day one or more sermons will be preachehd by someone to be designated later. The program will be strictly in the hands of the old people and ministers, and whatever they desire will be given them, so far as is physically possible.

At Sunday school last Sunday Mr. Henry Miller was elected teacher of the adult class. After being elected Mr. Miller entreated the help of the members of the Sunday School; and it is hoped that all will heed his call and lend him their full support. The matter of electing a teacher for the beginners, llass was postponed until regular preaching day—the fourth Sunday.

Rev. Bean will fill his regular appointment here at 11 a. m., and 7 p. m., on the fourth Sunday. His subjects will be announced in next week's Union-Banner. The Central Singing Society meets with us in the afternoon of the fourth Sunday. We are looking forward to a great day. Weather permitting, there will be preaching here nights during the week following the fourth Sunday by the pastor. And on the fifth Sunday comes the all-day service for older people and ministers. All have a cordial invitation to attend—especially the older people and ministers and the former members of the church who have moved away from the community.

Verbena is Aroused by A Noisy Burglar Alarm

Verbena, Ala., Mar. 5.—Robbery of the Johnson Mercantile Company of Marbury, Alabama, was averted about 1 a. m., today, when a burglar siren in the store aroused nearly every resident of the town. A man was seen running from the front door of the store. He fled to an automobile about a block away and sped south on the old Montgmery Highway. The burglar alarm which can be heard for miles, so frightened the maurauder that no loss was suffered except a broken door-lock.

Pale and Weak

"I THINK Cardui is a wonderful medicine, for I improved greatly after taking it," says Mrs. A. W. English, of R. F. D. 4, Roanoke, Va. "When I was just a girl of 13, my mother gave this medicine to me, and it did me a great deal of good. I was weak and run-down. After I had taken Cardui awhile, I felt much better.

"In 1924, my health was poor. I felt miserable, and hadn't enough strength to do my housework. It took all my willpower to keep up. I was pale and weak.

"I got Cardui again and took it. My improvement was wonderful. I can recommend Cardui to others, for my health was so much better after I had taken a course of the Cardui Home Treatment."

CHEVROLET SALESMEN NOW BEING HONORED

A group of 1,853 automobile salesmen, who in 1930 sold 122,819 new cars, and 192,589 used cars, an average of 170 cars per man, is being honored this month by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

They are members of Chevrolet's 100-car club, made up of salesmen throughout the United States, each of whom sold one hundred or more automobiles in the last fiscal year.

A medal symbolizing his achievement is being presented by Chevrolet to each members of the group, and additional honors are being given the 242 who were the leaders. Four have been named national officials of the club, 36 regional officers, and 202 zone officials of the organization. The presentation of medals and installation of officers will occur during the month at sales conventions being held in each region and zone in the country.

R. W. Wilson, Baltimore, sold an average of 1.44 new and used cars each day, including Sundays and holidays, in 1930 to lead the 100-car club, of which he has been named national president. His 1930 total sales were 353 new and 174 used cars, or 527 in all. This is said to be the largest number of automobiles sold at retail in 1930 by any salesman in the world. Charles A. Ceppi, Syracuse, N. Y., in 1929 proclaimed that year's world champion retail salesman, was second in 1930 with 321 new and 188 used cars, and becomes vice president of the club. R. M. Griffin, New Orlean, credited with 241 new and 15 used car sales, has been named secretary and J. P. Eden, Philadelphia, who sold 235 new and 157 used cars, was named treasurer.

Each of the nine regional presidents of the club sold an average of 170 new and 70 used cars during the year to take first honors in his section.

We hope and pray that we can copy her personality and that we will, some day, meet again.

Armed Possed Trailed Bandits

Deputies Shot Down By Four Men and Women Fleeing Across Florida

Dothan, Ala., March 5.—Officers throughout Southeast Alabama tonight kept watch for two men and two women who were believed to have fled into Alabama after wounding two deputies sheriff at Chipley, Fla.

Officers expressed the belief that the four were the bandits sought by Jacksonville, Fla., authorities for a series of holdups there.

The wounded deputies, Dan Brock and Gillis Malloy, were brought to hospitals here. Brock was shot through the leg and Malloy was wounded in the chest and left leg. Malloy's condition was described as serious.

Brock on arrival here said they had been informed by Live Oak officers that the quartet aboard a truck were en route here, and he and Malloy met them about a mile out of town.

The deputy said the bandits forced the driver of the truck to turn over the machine which they had commandered from a man named MacDonald at Welburn, and the battle ensued.

One of the men in the truck, Brock said, was armed with a riot gun and he forced a crew of 40 convicts working the road and their guards to lie prone upon the ground.

After wounding both deputies, the quartet halted a motorist, forced him from his machine and fled.

Reports reaching here several hours later were that the quartet had slipped through and probably had crossed into Alabama.

Chipley, scene of the battle, is 30 miles south of here.

20 Armed Deputies Trail Quartet

Capture of two bandits, who blazed a trail of shootings, kidnapings and holdups for more than 200 miles across the northern tier of Florida counties, was believed imminent by authorities here late today. They said the bandits were last seen 16 miles north of Panama City, headed for Panama City.

W. W. Cannon, chief deputy sheriff, said the bandits, armed with a machine gun, and accompanied by two women, headed southward from Cottondale on Highway No. 20, after shooting two possemen near Chipley.

Headed by the Sheriff here, approximately 20 deputies headed northward in an effort to apprehend the bandits, while other officers came south from Cottondale.

Northwestern Florida was on the alert tonight as search went forward for two bandits and their women companions who left a trail of shootings, kidnappings and holdups across the State today.

The robbers have wounded four men, kidnapped two, who later managed to escape, and held up several motorists, changing from car to car throughout the day.

Tonight they were reported heading toward Pensacola or Panama City, or perhaps into Alabama, and authorities massed possemen at strategic points along all highways.

The shooting started last night in Jacksonville when two officers recognized an Oklahoma license tag as belonging to a car used in a holdup of an ice company February 25. Officer Wilbur Blizzard was shot seriously and Patrolman H. V. Branch clubbed. The bandits sped westward, abandoning their car at Lake City.

Early this morning they reappeared at Wellborn, 20 miles west of Lake City, and on the pretext of getting aid for a disabled car, seized a garage truck and compelled two garage men to accompany them to Chipley, 200 miles further west.

Nearing Chipley, they encountered a posse and in the exchange of shots Gillis Malloy, posseman, was critically wounded and I. J. Brock, chief deputy sheriff, slightly shot. Both men were rushed to a hospital at Dothan, Alabama.

Abandoning the truck, the quartet escaped in a hail of bullets, halted a motorist, seized his car, and proceeded east. Seven miles away from the scene of shooting they stopped another motorist and changed cars.

Late reports on the robbers were conflicting. One report was that they proceeded to Cottondale and turned south toward Panama City. Another report was that they were nearing Pensacola, where a posse lay in wait. Officers in southern Georgia and Alabama were warned and radio broadcasts were requested from Jacksonville, Pensacola, and Montgomery, Alabama.

Dave McDonald, the Wellborn garage man, said he was positive one of the women was wounded when the party appeared at his garage.

Blood found on the truck abandoned at Chipley indicated some of the four had been wounded, and officers believed one of the men was shot during the exchange there.

Posses seeking two bandits and their women companions who engaged in a series of shootings and car thefts across North Florida today and last night, found an abandoned car containing blood-stained clothing at Mulat tonight.

They believed the bandits again had "traded" cars on the highway.

Milton residents informed police and deputies here the bandit car sped through that town and a futile attempt was made to halt it.

I Am Certainly Glad I Started Taking Ferrac

Mrs. Rose Belle Morris Says She Feels Almost Like A New Person Now

Taken from 20 feet from beneath the surface of the earth and impregnated with chemicals given to it millions of years ago by volcanic eruption, Ferrac is the most satisfying compound ever offered ailing humanity. Without alcohol, opiates, herbs, barks, or drugs of any kind, but truly nature's own prescription, it frequently embarks into such phenominal channels of relief as to be actually startling. Read the following statement recently made by Mrs. Rose Belle Morris, 906 Gordon Place, Birmingham.

"I certainly suffered with stomach trouble before I started Ferrac. I couldn't eat anything without dreading the misery I knew would follow. I lost weight; was terribly nervous; slept poorly and was so weak and rundown that I felt like I couldn't stand it much longer. As no medicines I tried seemed to do me any lasting good, I decided to leave off drugs entirely and try Ferrac, and what blessed relief came to me. I have gained almost 12 pounds; have a perfectly wonderful appetite without a trace of my old stomach trouble and my whole system is built up and strengthened. I hardly know I have any nerves now, and I sleep like a tired child. I will always thank the day I started this wonderful Ferrac."

Ferrac is on sale at all drug stores, or if your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 to the Greenville Products Co., Greenville, Alabama.

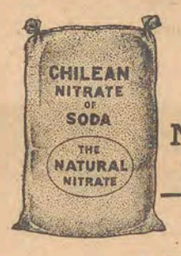
A WARNING

by your Fertilizer Dealer

No. 3



in a Series appearing in this newspaper

THIS is no year to take chances. If you are tempted to use "any old" fertilizer because it costs less, don't do it! Most of all, your crops need nitrogen—natural nitrogen—and that means Chilean Nitrate.

I've arranged for a big supply of Chilean Nitrate in new 100 lb. bags. It's cheaper than it has been for years. Better get your order in now, so you won't be sorry later on.

Your Fertilizer Dealer

CHILEAN NITRATE is original "Soda"—the natural nitrogen fertilizer that has been used for a hundred years in the South with best results. It increases yield and quality of every crop you grow. It's indispensable as a side or top dressing to insure against loss. And when you order your fertilizer, be sure to say Chilean Nitrate to your dealer. That one word, "Chilean," is your protection and your dealer's too. Chilean means the real thing—the nitrate all crop champions use. Remember the two kinds—Original Chilean (Crystalline) and Champion Brand (Granulated) both natural nitrate.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

The Thorsby people were shocked last Sunday morning to hear of the sudden death of Benjamin Dudley Thompson, in a Birmingham hospital, where he had been taken only a few days before, for treatment. On Friday of last week, his daughter, Ethel, who in company with her mother, had been with him, returned to their home in Thorsby, and reported that he was much better, and would probably come home in a few days. He did seem to be improved until Sunday morning, when he said he wanted to see his children, calling each by name. He then asked for a drink of water, which Mrs. Thompson gave him. turned to put the glass away, and when she looked at him again he had ceased to breathe.

Mr. Thompson was the son of Mrs. Mary Thompson (widow) of Clanton. He grew up as one of a large family of children on a farm near Clanton, and at the time of his death was 46 years old. He leaves a widow, three children, one son, Frank, and two daughters, Sallie and Ethel, all of Thorsby: two sisters, Mrs. O. L. Mims of Birmingham and Mrs. Charley Eiland of Clanton: six brothers, Arthur and John of Clanton, Lindsev and Daniel of Birmingham, Lake of Jemison and Hugh of Thorsby.

He was for many years a prominent member of the Walnut Creek Methodist Church, near Clanton, whose pastor was one of the officiating ministers at his funeral in Thorsby Monday afternoon, March 9th.

In 1903 he married Eliza Goodgame, who survives him. In January 1928 Mr. Thompson, with his brother, Hugh, came to Thorsby and started in busines as Thompson Brothers, who have been prominent business men and good citidens, creating for themselves a splendid reputation as enterprising, honest and reliable men of affairs, interested in needed industries, and civic and religious affairs.

Mr. Thompson was the kind of a man that a community was glad to have and sorry to lose.

The funeral, one of the largest ever attended in Thorsby, was in charge of Mell Martin, held at the Thorsby Baptist Church and was conducted by the pastor of Walnut Creek, Rev. J. W. Jones and J. E. Each of Thorsby. Burial was at the Clanton cemetery. There were many beatiful floral pieces.

A Card of Thanks

We the undersigned, desire to publicly express our deep appreciation of the many kindnesses and expressions of sympathy in our loss by the death of a loving husband, father and brother. We are exceedingly thankful for the many words of loving remembrance and tokens of respect for Benjamin Dudley Thompson who, "Though being dead yet speaketh." — Gratefully yours, Eliza Thomson and family; Hugh Thompson and family, Thorsby, Ala.

Full details of its plans and its purposes will be found in an advertisement in these columns next week.

The State Inspector of business places was in Thorsby Monday. After inspection of Leonard Lowery's Barber Shop he announced that it was the cleanest and best kept place of its kind he had ever seen.

Mrs. Gresham Lowery is spending a week with her parents in Marion.

The special meetings at the Thorsby Congregational church, under the direction of Rev. J. W. Davenport, of Tenn., are well attended and are greatly appreciated by all who attend. They will continue all this week except Saturday, each morning at 10 and each evening at 7. The sessions last one hour. Monday night Bro. Davenport delivered a strong sermon from the text, "What is thy Name." and dwelt on the fact that regardless of inheritance or environment, it is impossible to have a good name, for those who choose to follow the rules given in the Bible, because, "As many as are led by the spirit of God, are the children of God."

Next Sunday, March 15th, Mr. Davenport will preach at the 11 o'clock service hour, and close his series of meeting at the night service beginning at 7:15. Mr. Davenport comes to Thorsby without agreement as to compensation, other than voluntary contributions, by the people of Thorsby, who are interested in having him here. Envelopes have been prepared to receive these contributions. Thse envelopes may be had from Rev. Each in the vestibule, or from officers of the church, on request, and may be placed in the collection basket when passed at any service, or they may be given to Rev. Each or J. L. Mixon, or any other of the officers of the church. It is hoped that the contributions will be generous and prompt.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bice and children spent Sunday with relatives in Deatsville.

Considerable excitement was aroused about midnight Monday by the discovery that the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Collins was on fire. Mrs. Leonard Hayes, their daughter, got into a car and ran about calling neighbors to assist. Considerable of a company was gathered and while some carried Mrs. Collins, who is very ill, to the home of her daughter, others sought the out of the fire, which though filling the upper rooms with smoke, made no appearance in flames. It was finally discovered that the fire was in the woodwork behind the fire place on the ground floor, and was extinguished before much damage was done.

Will Modern Jazz Music Become Classic of the Future?

Singers Think Radio Performers Do Not Fully Appreciate Modern Method

New York City. — Will our grandchildren speak in awed tones of our jazz as classics? Lulu Quinn Weyant and Ethel Horton, nationally famous radio performers, think they will.

"I am sure that we here in America do not hold jazz any more lightly than Germany held Wagner in his youth," declares Lulu Quinn Weyant, who speaks with the knowledge of a music teacher. "There has never been a single innovation or great step in any art that the same thing hasn't happened and jazz must be an art or it could never have come the universal language it has," explains Ethel Horton, pianist of the team. "For the first time in history there is an international music. Not understanding its universal appeal we speak of it lightly and often razz it. Yet we are right in the midst of what is probably the world's greatest forward step, musically.

"True, many of the numbers are trivial, especially novelty songs, but they have their niche in the scheme of artistic development. 'Around the Corner,' new novelty song, is an exception and a distinct contribution. For one thing, it has a new type of lyric which is especially marvelous for singing. It is in the class of 'Pop Goes the Weasel,' which has existed since before the advent of the Pilgrims and which we think of as a real classic. Probably our generations to come will be singing 'Around the

Luther Palmer of Randolph in his life time said he had noticed that a majority of the people in each community would generally go to town on the same day. LOCAL CHEVROLET SALESMEN TO ATTEND SALES CONVENTION

Local participation in a move to bring business back to the level of previous years is to get under way today when Geo. C. Polk, local Chevrolet dealer leaves for Birmingham, Alabama with three members of his organization to attend a novel retail sales convention being held there for all Chevrolet retail salesmen in the Birmingham zone.

More than 450 are expected to attend the convention, which opens with a luncheon at the Tutwiler Hotel and consists of a full afternoon of instruction at the Erlanger Theatre. A feature of the luncheon will be the installation of officers of the "100-Car Club," a star salesmen's honorary organization.

A carload of special scenery, and other theatrical equipment including talking motion pictures has been engaged to put on the presentation, which is said to be the first and largest of its kind to be staged in the automobile industry for retail salesmen.

Mr. L. S. Costley, Chevrolet regional manager with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., Mr. P. Sever, zone manager, other members of the region and zone staffs, and a factory representative from Detroit will conduct the meeting, which will be attended by dealers and sales managers, as well as retail salesmen.

Business sessions in the convention will take the form of playlets, in which the factory officials will take the part of actors and show by actual demonstration the correct procedure in any given situation. Instead of lectures, the class of dealers and salesmen will have points under discussion emphasized by seeing them presented in a dramatic and effective manner. Every phase of the automobile industry as it affects the retail salesman will be included on the program.

The meeting is one of 52 to be held throughout the United States during the month of March.

"The object of the meetings," Mr. Polk explained, "is to give our retail salesmen a better appreciation of our product, which is better and priced lower today than at any time in our history, and to make them better and more energetic salesmen, which in turn will add to the good will of our business and our product, as well as increase our volume."

"By participating in this meeting we feel that we will be better equipped than ever to get a larger volume of business from this territory than it yielded last year. Already business is picking up, and by taking advantage of every extra means of adding to our volume we hope to make this spring one of the best years here that Chevrolet ever had.

"The move of our local field officials," he continued, "ties in with the aggressive policies adopted by the Chevrolet Motor Company to bring back business to normal. The automobile industry is the largest user of raw materials in the world, and by bringing out the 1931 Chevrolet nearly two months ahead of the annual schedule, the company was able to put mills to work which had lain idle for months, and to start the ball of general activity to rolling. The iron miner, steel worker, cotton picker and mill hand, the lumberman and glass blower, and the many other employes identified with industries which lean heavily on the automobile to use their products, felt the effects of the early announcement in greater employment and increased output."

CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL GETS HIGH RATING

Bidding for a place as one of the Class A elementary schools of the State, the Clanton Grammar School has been scored 942 points out of a possible 1,000 for a Class A school. Checking of points for the school was made upon consideration of the school grounds, buildings, equipment, teachers, pupils, and the community's interest in the school.

It is stated that less than one per cent of the elementary schools of Alabama can make the Class A rating. Therefore, it goes without saying that the community of Clanton is to be congratulated upon the high standing of its Grammar School.

The judges who determined the number of points awarded the school were: Superintendent Lawrence, Miss Madge Scarborough, elementary school supervisor, Mrs. Ward of Verbena, Prof. Peterson, of Jemison, and Prof. Quinn, principal of Clanton Grammar School.

The same judges also rated the Jemison Public School, which was making application for a B Class rating. Jemison and Clanton were the only two schools in the county to make application.

Reorganizing the State Tax Commission cutting the personnel from five men to one.

Reorganizing the State Board of Administration, cutting the personnel from two men to one.

Reorganizing the State Highway Department, cutting the personnel from three men to one.

Executive and departmental order lopping from the State payroll more than 420 State employes with a resultant saving of approximately $500,000 a year.

Passing of an act making an appropriation for a thorough audit of the fiscal affairs of the State.

Passing of an act making an appropriation for a complete survey of the various departments of the state government for the purpose of consolidation and reorganization in the interest of efficiency and economy.

Saving of approximately $100,000 a year out of a total expenditure of approximately $750,000 a year for gasoline and oil for automobiles by changing the system of State employes making such purpose and providing a check on such use.

Defeating efforts to raise up recess legislative investigating committees to sit through the recess at the State's expense with an approximate saving thereby of $150,000.

Abolishing the State Law Enforcement Department and tightening up on sheriffs and other law officers to see that the laws are enforced.

Abolition of the undercover force in the office of the Attorney General by order of the Attorney General.

Cutting down salaries of scores of State employes who were found to be drawing money entirely out of line with the services being rendered.

Abolition by executive order of the "temporary clerks" system in vogue at the Capitol after it was found that many such clerks had been holding positions from two to eight years as "temporary helpers."

Transferring convict road construction from the Convict Department to the Highway Department with the consequent abolition of over-lapping engineering and supervision work, saving in engineering alone more than $60,000 a year.

All Accomplished in 47 Days

The accomplishments outlined came in a period of 47 days with Gov. B. M. Miller at the helm of the State, and with a Legislature sympathetic to the Miller campaign promises and especially sympathetic to the Miller program of economy.

Efforts of a few members of the Legislature to defeat the will of the governor and the majority of the legislature, came to naguht at every turn. Attempts to embark on new expenditures and to continue in effect the system of government in vogue when Gov. Miller took office, were made several times by a noisy but impotent minority.

Harmony in Legislature

The short sestem of the Legislature was marked by few squabbles and in the main these were over matters which were not regarded as administration matters. The spirit of harmony which animated the legislative and executive departments at the incoming of the new administration continued until the Legislature recessed Saturday afternoon.

That Gov. Miller will face harder tasks in the forthcoming session is generally considered probable. Such tasks will be the submission of constitutional amendments providing for continuation of road construction and for paying in part at least, the pressing deficit left over for the present administration.

Another important task that will face Gov. Miller and the Legislature will be the drafting and enactment of a revenue bill that will continue to produce the money to keep the schools and all other State activities up to the standard they have achieved during the past administrations. That this will prove the most important task the present administration will face is known to the Governor and to every member of the Legislature.

MILLER PLEDGES ALL MADE GOOD BEFORE RECESS

Desire for Economy and Election Reform Found Legislature In Accord, Expense Slashed

(By Atticus Mullin)

The recess of the Alabama Legislature to March 31 finds every recommendation of the administration enacted into law and on the statute books and operative. Administration-legislative achievements so far include:

The majority primary law and abolition of second choice voting.

Reorganization of the jury system by abolition of the old and the creation of a new designed to take the juries from the hands of the Ku Klux Klan.

Authorization for the borrowing of $5,000,000 to help take care of the schools and the eleemosynary institutions of the State.

Relief of congestion in the office of the Secretary of State by transferring permit taxes to the tax department.

ISABELLA SCHOOL NEWS

The regular meeting of the F. F. A. was held Wednesday March 4th. The chapter voted on the application of Parnell Ratliff. After the program, which consisted of two talks, "How to select Good Laying Hens," by Luther Mims, and "Improvements of Farms," by R. C. Veazey. The chapter completed the plans for the father, son, mother and daughter banquet that was held Friday, March 6th.

A very large crowd attended the banquet. The tables were attractive. Plates were prepared for 131. The Home Economics girls had charge of the planning and preparation of the food.

The crowd assembled in a class room of the school and marched into the Home Economics department by a march played by Miss Betty Baldwin. Thanks were given by Bro. B. Lawrence.

Marvin Durbin, President of the F. F. A., acted as toastmaster. He presided very splendidly. The first thing on program was, "My Home Project," by Glynder Oden. R. C. Veazey played the club song on the Harmonica. "Accomplishment of the Home Economics Department," by Dorothy Manning. "Future Farmers Creed," by Marion Keen. "Accomplishments of the F. F. A.," by James Deason. Duet, "Old Folks at Home," by Elsie Conway and Clara Mae Calfee.

Both departmens were very much pleased to have Mr. R. E. Camack and Superintendent Lawrence present. They both made very good talks to us. Talks were made by Mr. Howard Oden, J. H. Griffin, Earl Thomas and Miss Cora Belle Maddox. Other distinguished visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon and Oliver Manning of Auburn. The latter is our ex-president of Isabella chapter and ex-secretary of the state F. F. A. Everybody enjoyed the program.

The F. F. A. and Home Economics classes are very much pleased with the outcome of the banquet. It helps to bring the parents closer to the children in their work at school. It kindles the childs desire to do better and greater work.

If all schools had these two departments added to them is would develop the ambition of many boys and girls for life's work. It would increase the interest of the parents in the child's work and it would inspire the boys and girls to do better work, and take more responsibility upon themselves, because there will surely come a time when these boys and girls will have to carry on the work that their fathers and mothers are doing now. They will have to take life's work on their own shoulders and carry it on. It will show them the importance of being prepared.

Evening School

An evening school is being taught at Isabella by Miss Maddox, for the benefit of the ladies of this community and surrounding communities. This evening school is on "Home Making Education." The women chose the food units for their course. All the women are interested in being taught how to plan, prepare and to serve their meals. The balanced diet is being stressed, also labor saving devices, saving of steps in the kitchen, etc. A great deal of interest is being shown by the women, regular attendance on meeting nights. The school is held in the Home Economics department from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. on Monday and Thursday nights of each week. An attendance of 35 women has marked our highest attendance on some nights. A great deal of fun and recreation is derived from the meetings as well as trying to practice the principles given at each lesson.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

MEMORY OF MRS. ALFA BAKER

She was a good Christian wife and other, who suffered a long time. She was in bad health for several years. She leaves to mourn her death, a husband, and four children and a host of friends and relatives.

She was laid to rest February 21, 1931. There was lots of flowers given to be placed on the casket for the last deeds that could be done for her on earth. Brother Lynch conducted the funeral with Martin in charge. Weep not dear friends and children all, for to that home she has been called, where some day we too shall go, there no pain nor heartache to know. We'll see her smiling face, and know that no one could take her place. What is a home without a mother? It is not much. It is much sweeter to have a kind loving mother. The children can love no one no more than a kind mother.—Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Baker and family.

This society cordially invites these visitors to be back with us again, and also we urge others to come and be with us. If you wish to help a society who needs your help, and where your efforts will be repaid with fine appreciation then come to Pleasant Valley every second Sunday afternoon.

WATCHING THE WORLD

By John McCready

Robinson vs. Raskob

Members of the Democratic National Committee, meeting in Washington last Thursday to discuss next year's convention, found themselves sharply divided over a plan submitted by John L. Raskob, chairman, whereby a new amendment would be added to the Constitution (without removing the 18th), giving to each state the right to determine its own solution of the liquor problem. Senator Robinson of Arkansas emphatically disagreed with Mr. Raskob, as did a number of other members from the South, while others supported him. One thing was plainly indicated—that next year some Democratic leaders will go to the convention determined that the party platform shall be at least moist; others equally determined that it shall not. It ought to be an interesting convention.

Music and Remembrance

Millions of music lovers throughout the world have regretted the passing of Mme. Nellie Melba, whose voice had delighted two generations. Her real name was Mitchell and she was the daughter of Scottish and Spanish parents—an unusual combination, to which her remarkable gifts were ascribed. Melba began singing at six and was thoroughly trained. Her talents were coupled with a personality which won universal esteem and brought forth tributes of many kinds—from the bestowal of a title by the British Parliament for service rendered in the war, to the naming of the "Melba" peach. The phonograph will preserve her voice and the peach will immortalize her name.

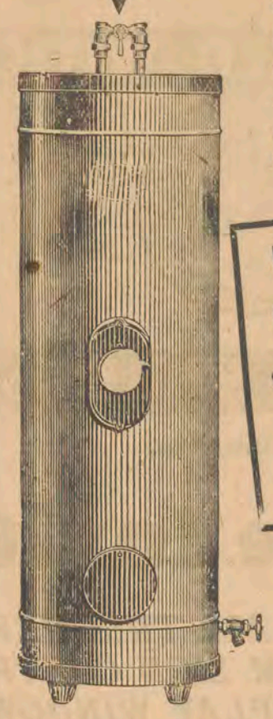
Tech. and the Text

Bishop Ernest M. Stires, a Virginian who is head of the Episcopal diocese of Long Island, has set a new precedent for preachers addressing college audiences, as regards the choosing of the text. Speaking at Hobart College in New York State, he took the six letters in the word "Hobart" and made each stand for some quality which students should cultivate—H for honesty, O for order, and so on. The bishop, who is an eloquent speaker, warmed to his subject as he proceeded, and spoke for over an hour. As the students were leaving chapel afterwards one was heard to remark to another, "Thank heaven he didn't do that with 'Massachusetts Institute of Technology'."

Better Boys and Girls

A judge in New York State thinks the economic depression a good thing for many young people today, compelling them as it does to exchange idleness for work. It is true, as some might reply, that the depression brings a scarcity of jobs; many who would like to work cannot find employment. There is, however, something of value in the very scarcity of positions. Bruce Barton says in a recent article that those who graduate from college in the "lean years" are to be congratulated. Difficulties confronting one at the start are an excellent preparation for life. An easily obtained job, on the other hand, especially if it be of the "soft" variety is usually the prelude to a career of insignificance.

Property and Personality



At an auction sale in Germany the other day the former Kaiser bought through an agent a watch once owned by Frederick the Great, at a price of 5,000 marks (about $1,200). One would think the relic would bring melancholy thoughts to its new possessor, reminding him of the difference between himself and the great monarch who originally owned it. Wilhelm sought to imitate Frederick, but succeeded only in externals. The difference between the two brings to mind a parallel case from a field far removed. A generation ago, when many young men were studying for the ministry under Dr. John A. Broadus, the leading American Baptist of his day—a man equally renowned for his scholarship and his eloquence, there were not a few of his students who were fired with an ambition to be second editions of the great preacher. So it was that they imitated even the slight stoop of his shoulders. And it was remarked that oftentimes that was as far as the resemblance went.

Farewell to the "Wolrd"

A distinguished newspaper has ended its career—the New York "World", founded half a century ago by Joseph Pulitzer. Though still published it will be under new management, with new editors and policies. The "World" that millions of Americans have revered was a paper of marked individuality, especially noteworthy for its courageous and outspoken editorials. Few utterances during the war were as forceful is its denunciation of Germany at the time of Belgium's invasion. It will be recalled that the German chancellor, seeking to induce Sir Edward Grey to persuade Great Britain to remain neutral when Belgium was invaded, alluded to the treaty guaranteeing Belgium's inviolability, as "only a scrap of paper." The "World" took those words as a refrain and pointing out that the Magna Charta was only a scrap of paper and so likewise the Declaration of Independence, denounced the German authorities in terms of terrific invective. The retiring editor, Walter Lippmann, noted as the author of "A Preface to Morals," quotes the words of Bunyan's Mr. Valiant-for-Truth in his valedictory. "Though with great difficulty I am got hither, yet now I do not repent me of all the trouble I had been at to arrive where I am; my sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage, and my courage and skill to him that can get it."

"SERVING FARM---FACTORY--FIRESIDE"

POULTRY

This spring is an ideal time in which to start with poultry. With a little care in selection, a well bred flock of chicks may be obtained from a reliable hatchery or breeder. Feed costs will be lower this season than in many years past. By the time the pullets are ready to lay, egg prices will be on the upgrade, poultry authorities advise.

Limited capital should not stop the prospective poultry-raiser or farmer from entering the field. A modest amount of money to invest in good chicks, a good brooder stove and a good brooder house, with enough to buy feed during the spring and summer, is enough.

Spring is an excellent time to start the flock for two reasons. First, the poultry-raiser has an opportunity to know his birds as they grow to maturity. By constantly checking their progress, he can have a fine flock of pullets in the fall and know all about his birds individually. Second, hatchery chicks offer the most satisfactory method of getting an early profit on the investment, since they can be raised in sufficient numbers to make a flock of pullets large enough to realize a good total income. The eggs from 11 pullets represent a definite daily income that can be measured in dollars and cents.

The prospective flock-raiser's 1st step should be to order his supply of baby chicks well in advance of the date planned for their arrival. Three hundred chicks is an excellent starting number. For 300, he should build a 10 by 12 brooder house or remodel an old building of about these proportions. Next a good brooder stove should be obtained, as well as six one-gallon fountains, three mash hoppers 36 inches long, with wide space on both sides, two grit and charcoal hoppers and a 10 by 12 foot length of 1-inch mesh poultry wire 1 foot high for the chick enclosure.

Flocks bred to lay and of high quality strain will be the most profitable this year, poultry authorities declare. Profitable flocks are easy to obtain, since leading hatcheries of the United States have been for several years operating together under the slogan, "Hatchery Chicks for Greater Profits," to raise the quality of American farm flocks and to insure birds that will bring a good return on the investment.

ALL MASH FOR CHICKS

(By Jos. H. Bodwell)

Did you ever notice the difference in temperament of a team of horses when worked and when idle? If they are worked steadily every day they are quiet and peaceful, but give them a lot of rest and they become uneasy, nip one another, paw and kick the stall they are in. In fact, sometimes they become vicious and actually bite one another.

This same principle holds with chicks. If they have a chance to become idle they will pick at one another and canibalism will develop much more rapidly than if they are kept busy at all times.

If they have access to scratch grains their crops become filled up quicker and it takes longer for the scratch grains to digest than it does for mash. Consequently, they will have many more idle hours during the day where scratch grains are fed than when the all mash system is used.

Another advantage of the all mash system is that there is more protein present and more different types of protein, and also the animal source of protein is present in the all mash, whereas in scratch grain there is no animal source whatever. In order for baby chicks to grow rapidly and to feather quickly, many sources of protein must be available for the chick and a much more economical growth will be had where both the animal source and vegetable source are present.

Again in the mash more mineral will be present than will be the case of scratch. Where dried buttermilk or skim milk is mixed in with the mash it enables the chickens to get their source of milk much more evenly than in any other way. This also is a wonderful source of vitamins for baby chicks and helps to give the succulence which would not be secured if only scratch grains were fed.

To sum up the advantages of an all mash system. It keeps the chicks busier throughout the day; it supplies the chicks with many sources of proteins; it enables a better distribution to the chicks of milk and the vitamins it contains and, furthermore, it insures a better disribution to the chicks of the minerals which are so essential for uniform growth.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. PRINCELLE E. SMITH

On last Thursday afternoon at about 6:00 o'clock the death angel visited the home of Mr. Leonard Smith and bore away his darling wife and baby. Princelle was 32 years old and was a member of Highland Baptist Church, of which she was a constant worker.

She leaves to mourn her loss a little daughter and son, and her husband.

"We loved her, yes we loved her,
But angels loved her more;
And carried her dear spirit,
To yonder shining shore."

Little children weep not for mother, she has gone on and is waiting just acress the shining river. Prepare and be ready so that when God calls you, you can meet her again, and be one happy family once more. Dear Leonard, you know that the jolly, good natured wife is gone. She said just a few moments before she died that she was not afraid to die. So trust in one who loves us all, and who says "I go to prepare a place for you, and I will come again to take you unto myself, that where I am, there you may be also."

The remains were laid to rest at Liberty Hill. Bro. Homer Carroll and A. L. Foshee officiated.

UNION GROVE

The United Singing Society met here Sunday afternoon with a few faithful singers. Had a faithful singing considering the bad weather.

The singing was opened with a song by Mr. A. H. Glasscock and prayer by Rev. Bean. Directors for the afternoon were Messrs. Posey Cleckler, E. L. Glasscock, A. H. Glasscock and Marvin Campbell. Organists were Miss Emma Adkins and Mrs. Belle Dorminey. The society will meet at Collins Chapel next Sunday afternoon. Everybody invited. We hope for better weather next Sunday.

POLK'S GARAGE GONE INTO AND NEW CHEVROLET TAKEN

The sales room of the Polk Brothers Motor Company was gone into last Sunday night and one new Chevrolet coach taken. The combination on the safe was worked and about $40.00 in cash taken. Also a complete set of mechanic's tools were taken.

The car was found parked on the streets of Tuscaloosa Monday morning. Police kept watch on the car all day Monday, but no one showed up to take. The car was in good condition when found. Polk brothers were notified, and they went over and got the car Tuesday and returned it to Clanton.

APPROPRIATE PICTURES WILL BRIGHTEN-UP THE HOME

Ability to select appropriate pictures for the home is an indication of culture and refinement that will go a long way in making the home attractive to live in. In most cases little care is exercised in this important phase of interior decoration, said Miss Margarite E. Odendahl, instructor of interior decoration at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute Auburn.

Appropriatness of the picture for the room in which it is placed is a guiding principle. The effect of a fine picture may be destroyed by placing it in the wrong room or even by hanging is in an unsuitable place in the right room. Blank walls are more resistful than the result of crowding a picture that requires space into too small a panel or to hang it with incongruous neighbors.

Today it is possible to secure excellent copies of the world's greatest masterpieces, but even those must be judiciously selected and placed in the home.

Etchings and engraveings are suitable for a man's room, the hall, or for any place where a decided contrast of black and white is neded. Etchings are best kept by themselves and should not be hung in a room with water color or oil paintings.

Decorative flower paintings will fill many needs in the modern home. They may be used in the halls, dining rooms and living rooms where color and dignity are required.

Old costume prints are best suited for bedrooms and boudoers. They are best used groups.

Japanese prints, having a quality unlike any other picture, may be used successfully in French or English rooms.

Family photographs should not be hung in the living room of the home because they are usually not interesting to anyone save members of the household. These should be hung in the more private rooms of the home.

Mighty Title Borne by Many Unworthy Rulers

Caesar was a title assumed by Octavianus, adopted son of the great dictator, Julius Caesar, and was by him handed down to his adopted son, Tiberius. It continued to be used by Caligula, Claudius and Nero as members, either by adoption or female descent of Caesar's family; but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained the name as part of their title, and it was the practice to prefix it to their own names, as Imperator Caesar, Domitianus Augustus. When Hadrian adopt-Aelius Verus, he allowed the latter to take the title of Caesar, and from this time, though the title Augustus continued to be confined to the reigning emperor, that of Caesar was also granted the second person in the state and the heir presumptive to the throne. After the death of Nero, his name was adopted as a kingly title by succeeding Roman emperors. This practice continued, and the same title was used in modern times, as in the case of kaiser and czar.

Barrack ballads and songs made famous during the World War will be revived when legionnaires attending the annual convention of the Alabama department at Montgomery, July 27, get together for a community sing.

A verdict of suicide was returned by the coroner's jury investigating the cause of the death of Mrs. Sam Sorrell, who was found dead near the tracks of the Central of Georgia Railway Company east of Trammels Station, June 21.

The Bank of Ensley, which closed its doors January 11, will pay depositors less than 10 cents on the dolla G. C. Lockhart, liquidating agent, announced following presentation of the auditor's report to the state banking commissioner.

Mrs. John Tilley, vice regent of the First White House Association, received a framed photograph of Brig. Gen. Leroy Pope Walker, secretary of war under Jefferson Davis, to be placed in the Confederate Museum of the First White House at Montgomery.

Iowa Brothers Set New World's Record in Ford

IOWA state officials and civic leaders witnessed the establishment of a new world's non-motor, non-wheel stop automobile endurance record recently, when Ralph and Rolland Davis, brothers, brought their Model A Ford to a halt at the east entrance of the state capitol in Des Moines after 2,775 hours and 46 minutes of continuous driving.

When Governor Hammill, standing with Walter Ferrell, executive secretary of the Iowa Chapter of the American Automobile Association, gave the signal to stop, the Ford had traveled a total of 47,138.3 miles over all sorts of roads in all sorts of weather and had exceeded by 33,680 miles and more than 2,335 hours the American non-stop endurance record which, theretofore officially recognized, was made by a much heavier car under almost ideal conditions on the Indianapolis speedway last year. In the course of the endurance run, the car, known as "The City of Des Moines," covered practically the entire state of Iowa.

Engineers who examined the Ford at the conclusion of the run asserted that neither engine nor chassis showed evidence of the gruelling strains to which they were subjected during the 116 days of continuous driving. Both apparently, according to the engineers, would have been good for another 50,000 miles or more.

THE COMMUNITY AND ITS BANKS

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

R. C. STEPHENSON

While upon the individual bankers there rests without qualification the direct responsibility for the prudent, honest conduct of their institutions, nevertheless the soundness of banking as a practical matter of fact is a community problem in which the public has a part to play as well as bankers and government officials charged with the supervision of banks.

In the first place, the assets of a bank, outside its government bonds, consist mainly of loans to business men and of investments in securities created by corporate enterprises. The deposits of a bank are not kept in the vaults as idle cash but are employed in these loans and investments to earn the money to pay the expenses of the bank so that it can render services to its customers and also pay them interest on such deposits as bear interest. If there were no such thing as unsound business men or enterprises there would be no such thing as unsound assets in a bank.

It is of course the unquestioned duty of the banker to choose only sound loans and investments, but the difficulty of such judgment, and human judgment is never infallible, is plainly increased in such times and under such conditions as we have been passing through, with many businesses not making expected earnings and therefore hampered in meeting their obligations. Unfortunately some investments and loans created by persons outside the banks which found their way into the banks in a relatively few instances have reflected the unwise business policies and conditions that became more than usually prevalent in our business activities and contributed to the difficulty of banking. The vast bulk of bank assets, however, are 100 per cent sound above all question.

"Hard Boiled" vs. "Easy" Banker

In another aspect the people of the community have a part to play in maintaining the soundness of their banks, and that is through the medium of patronage. The existence of a bank is dependent on public patronage. If only those banks were patronized in which the most careful policies were practiced and the most conscientious and able men in charge, it would go far toward maintaining the standards of banking. If business men in a community when refused loans by their banks for good and sufficient reasons because conditions are not favorable, thereupon withdraw their business to banks where less careful methods prevail, they clearly contribute to the creation of a less sound banking situation.

Also if, in the heat of competition, a banker offers higher interest rates or more free service to attract customers than the earnings of conservative banking justify, and is encouraged by the patronage of the public as against a more conservative bank, obviously the public is again playing a part in bringing about a less sound banking situation. It is an unfortunate fact that the banker who is strict, "hard boiled" if you please, is liable to be less popular than the "easy" banker, and by that same token the public itself has a voice in influencing the character of banking. Also it is the public in the end which pays the main part of the penalty if unfortunate results follow.

Still again the public can exert an influence in shaping the character of banking by supporting the purposes of bankers to maintain intelligent, independent, honest banking supervision by the public banking departments through insisting that this function of government shall be kept as free from political influence as the judiciary itself and shall be manned only by men of the highest ability and character.

In still another way can the people themselves contribute to maintaining the ability of their banks to meet their obligations, and this is by granting them the fullest possible confidence. As I said, the deposits are not kept as cash but are invested in loans and securities. Even the soundest assets of this type require some time to reconvert at full value into cash deposits. In many cases of bank troubles the only thing wrong with a bank was an unduly suspicious and apprehensive state of mind in its customers created by no act or condition of its own but by baseless rumors which sometimes led them to destroy the value of their own deposits by demanding them immediately, forcing a bank to sacrifice its assets and otherwise disrupt its financial operations.

Bankers Help

During the year 1930 the Bankers' Asscciation of Langlade County, Wisconsin, worked out the finances for a cooperative milk plant, which entailed the raising of $100,000, and also sponsored an active 4-H-Club campaign that culminated in an "Achievement Day" program, in which upwards of 400 young people participated. The increase in the number interested in this work was 200 per cent over the past two year period.

SAFEGUARDING OF BABY'S HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

The precious little tots require mother's constant care and attention in conjunction with the advice of a physician. Periodic visits to baby's doctor are recommended in all cases. Such visits will eliminate worries and help to detect any unfavorable condition in its early stages. It may only require a slight change in baby's diet, or the suggestion of some simple exercise.

Care of Nursing Bottles and Nipples

To the young mother, a mild harmless antiseptic such as pure borax, is practically indispensable in the nursery. A famous baby specialist, prescribes the following safe method for the care of nursing bottles. After the nursing bottles have been carefully washed with soap and water using a long-handled bottle brush, the bottle is then rinsed out, a heaping teaspoonful of pure borax is poured in and some water added. Shake bottle until all the borax is dissolved. Then fill the bottle with more water and let stand until the next feeding. The bottle should be rinsed once with clear water before filling with milk. This method makes it unnecessary to boil the bottles every day and so saves time and labor.

A new nipple should be boiled once. After each feeding, the nipple should be filled with pure borax and held under running water, while being rubbed between the thumb and fingers. Then placed until the next feeding, in a cupful of water containing one teaspoonful of pure borax. Finally, and just before using, rinse the nipple in clear water.

Baby's Bath

It is imperative that baby's skin be free from impurities. Two tablespoonsful of pure borax to each gallon of water for baby's bath will thoroughly cleanse his tiny pores of all foreign matter, leaving the skin sweet and fresh, and as soft as nature intended. The temperature of baby's bath should be at body heat or slightly above, that is, from 98 to 100 degrees farenheit.

Help the Railways to recover their Earning Capacity . . . .

The general public does not seem to realize, or fully appreciate, that the railroads are not earning what their investment calls for, or even what the law of the land permits them to earn.

Under this law they may earn 5¾ percent on the value of their property (there is no "guarantee"), but for the past ten years they have never reached this in any single year, and the average for these years has been only slightly above four percent—a return entirely inadequate for a vital industry. This has resulted notwithstanding the railroads have reduced their expenses by 22.7 percent.

Among the causes for this shortage have been reductions in freight rates (amounting to 15.6 percent) and a decline in traffic due to competing forms of transportation—pipe lines, waterways, highways—which are either subsidized by governmental aid or are not tied down by the same degree of restrictions as to regulation, supervision and taxation that the railroads are.

The public is entitled to the form of transportation it prefers, but that preference should be expressed only after all conditions are considered. At present the conditions are grossly inequitable.

The railroads, because of their large investments, their important payrolls, their heavy purchases, their enormous taxes, and their indispensible part in the development and progress of this country, have some claim to public patronage if they can give satisfactory service—which they are doing. They have a right to equal and fair treatment. They have a right to urge that competitors in the public transportation business shall not be unduly favored. They have a right to ask for equal conditions in the field of competition. This they are asking for—and nothing more.

You can help them by traveling and shipping by train, and by insisting that they be given fair and just treatment.

Making Home Happy—Sentiment isn't necessary to marital happiness. A well-regulated home can get along on a kiss in the morning, a smile in the evening and a newspaper between the partners at meals. Of course, in some homes they do nothing but kiss all day,—in fact, some husbands start with the children and end up with the maid.

LOOKING AHEAD

With the print cloth market showing much improvement, the automobile factories getting back into greater production and other signs showing a trend in the upward direction, it probably will not be long before everybody will be taking a more optimistic view of this old world of ours which is all geared to go when we turn on a little more steam.

We do not know just when it will be, never having qualified as a prophet, but we do not think the day is far distant when people generally will be looking back at this economic disturbance as definitely behind them. And a little later they will forget all about it as they have forgotten those that have preceded.

But with all our brains and ingenuity we ought to be able to guard against any such violent swings up and down of the economic pendulum.

It is with this thought in mind that governors of the great industrial states of the Northeast, including Governor Ely of Massachusetts, have been in conference in Albany, N. Y. Among other things they discussed unemployment insurance, which appears to have much to recommend it as a possible solution.

It is too big a question, of course to admit of snap judgment and experts are to be engaged to give it intensive study. This is progress in the right direction and something tangible should come of it.—Fall River Herald-News.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Once more the debt revisionists are with us. The depression in America has given them a new lease on life, and many of the internationalists are now urging that the only way to restore prosperity to the world is to have Uncle Sam cancel the European debts so that all nations can start over again. They are even seeking to tell us that the hard times in America as well as elsewhere are due to the fact that the allied nations are still paying their debts to the United States and collecting the money for the payments from Germany.

All of which may sound plausible to the unthinking, but will not bear close analysis. The depression in the United States is of course not due to any one circumstance, and most certainly not to the international debts. In speaking of the world depression and the debts, Mr. Irving T. Bush, president of the Bush Terminal Company, said recently, "It is even argued that all our troubles are due to the debts. I seem to remember a few other rather obvious causes for the world's depression. Are, for instance, the debts responsible for the prostration of India, China, and Russia? Did the debts produce a record crop of wheat? Did the debts cause our orgie of speculation?" The answer quite obviously is in the negative.

It might be added, of course, that the international debts did not cause the drought of last summer, which undoubtedly was a factor in prolonging the depression, and which had a bad effect on the public mind generally in addition to the misery caused in the drouth regions. And so many factors have gone into the making of the depression that it would take more space than is available here for recounting them.

The new movement, or rather the revival of the old movement for the cancellation of the war debts, is put on phase of the attack of the internationalists on the American sandard of living. Other bits of strategy include getting Uncle Sam into the League of Nations, by a back door or through the cellar window if necessary, the destruction of our protective tariff, under the plea that it has added to our depression by hurting our markets abroad, an argument fully as silly as the one about the international debts, and attempts to commit Uncle Sam to the European program by having him enter into some agreement or other which could be used to involve him in the mazes of European diplomacy whenever the time might come when his money and his resources would be useful.

Fortunately up to this time, these efforts to denationalize Uncle Sam have been unavailing although they are well financed and have the backing of international organizations which cloak their real purposes under guises of "pacifism," "international brotherhood" and the like. But it will pay the American people to be continually on the guard. The barrage of internationalism shows no sign of diminishing. No sooner are the internationalists repulsed on one front than they start a drive in some new direction. If Uncle Sam can keep his fundamental principles and his sound nationalism intact during the next ten years he will be indeed fortunate. Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty.

WAR THROUGH WEAKNESS

Some fifteen years ago the late William Jennings Bryan was being loudly applauded by American audiences when he declared that preparedness for war was the cause of war, and that unpreparedness was a preventative, because no peaceful and unarmed nation would be attacked.

A little later Col. Bryan was the premier of an administration under which the United States backed unprepared into the biggest war in history. In that war the American people fortunately sacrificed little life, but expended and obligated themselves for more than half of the national wealth of $188,000,000,000 as it stood at the beginning of the war. Billions of this expenditure was waste unavoidable in improvising military and naval preparedness.

With this lesson before us, not out of ancient but recent history, it seems strange that such an argument as that made by Col. Bryan is still repeated. The American people did not get into the World War willingly. They got into it under the leadership of men elected on the ground that they had kept us out of war and didn't intend to be dragged into it. We got into it as innocent bystanders upon whom the bricks began to fall from a fight two thousand miles away, "with the origin and purposes of which," as President Wilson once said, "we had nothing to do." And that war came in complete repudiation of all the peace treaties, alliances and conventions that had pledged nations against many of the very acts they promptly committed.

Now if men of pacific intentions and principles, such as President Wilson and Col. Bryan, couldn't keep us out of a war they didn't want to get us into, what becomes of the theory that pacifism has any more assurance of safety to the American people than it had then? There are many people who believe that if Europe had not become convinced that America would stand for anything before they would fight, we might have settled the war as the warrior President Theodore Roosevelt did the Russian-Japanese conflict, by friendly intervention at an appropriate moment.

Just now pacifists are centering their attack on additions to the American navy authorized by the London treaty to secure a naval parity we lost by standing still in naval construction while Great Britain outbuilt us. They claim that in so doing they are serving the cause of peace. They are, as a matter of fact, offering to aggression the temptation of weakness, and making it certain of weakness, and making it certain that when the next proposals of disarmament are considered, this country will have no trading stock to induce other nations to join in mutal reductions.

The London treaty was advocated in the United States on the ground that it provided both mutual reductions and parity. Now the people are led to believe that they were thimbled-rigged because it was anticipated that the provision for parity could be defeated by preventing American naval construction in Congress.

The most dangerous foes of American peace, as President Roosevelt often pointed out, are those who wish to so weaken the defenses of the United States that we stand in danger of the same treatment that the molly-coddle always gets from the bullies on the school grounds. They have not only got us into war before, but they have made necessary vast waste of blood and treasure. A regular army of respectable size might have ended the Civil War at Bull Run, instead of turning it into a four years struggle—the greatest war of history up to that time.

But there are those who prefer fancy theories to the practical lessons of human experience. Their logic knows no limitation of facts. And when accepted, such ignoring of realities lands the country where Darius Green landed his flying machine, constructed on the mechanical principle "the birds can fly, and why can't I?"

"Depression" is a time when people stop to ask "how much it is?" before saying "wrap it up."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

After all, 1930 was the healthiest year of record. Fewer late hours were spent in night clubs; more time was spent with the family; fewer children ran away; more good books were read; there was less riding and more walking, and more home cooking. There are compensations—Los Angeles Times.

"Three dollars a week; but what can you do around a butcher shop?"

"Anything."

Well be specific, can you dress a chicken?

"Not on three dollars a week." said the boy.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

Folks, Howdy!

There is an old saying about March coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion. Well, so far The Sweeper has been unable to decide just which way she came in this year. The first few days were windy and clear, then we have had some rain, so it is no telling how things will end up before the month is over.

After making a fine job of bungling up the Muscle Shoals bill before sending it to the President for his signature, the United States Senate has found that they would have to adjourn without being able to take further action on the bill in an effort to over-ride the veto which President Hoover affixed to the bill as passed, and returned it to the Senate.

The Sweeper is of the opinion that some arrangement certainly could be worked out by and between the administration and the Senate that would allow the operation of Muscle Shoals along lines similar to those which will govern the Boulder Dam project when that power and irrigation project is finished. We have, however, about reached the conclusion that our able congressmen and senators have learned that the Muscle Shoals question is too good a piece of campaign thunder to really put forth any special effort to permanently dispose of this huge and costly power plant.

As we have said before in this column, we are of the opinion that any operation of the Muscle Shoals plant, either by the government or by private interests under lease, that would allow and provide for the manufacture of fertilizer, would be a very great advantage to the farmers, not only of Alabama, but of the entire South.

Discussing the soldier's bonus bill with one of the "boys" who went over, he states emphatically that he will derive more direct benefit and good from the fifty per cent, which he will get now than he would probably get out of it all if he had to wait till 1945 for it. This particular service man is trying to build himself a little home on his farm, which he needs very badly, and the money he will receive from his bonus at this time will enable him to put a roof over his head.

Doubtless there are numbers of the "boys" who have no dependents to whom the money could be paid at the end of the original period, and some of these poor fellows may have passed on to their great reward ere that time. We feel that although it may somewhat srain Uncle Samuel's pocket book a little, it is far better that they receive at least a part of what they are due while they are really in need.

The Sweeper wishes to doff his hat and make his very best low and sweeping bow to the gentlemen of Alabama's legislature. We very heartily congratulate them on their action in killing the Barber Marriage Bill. No doubt Mr. Barber, the Gentleman from Jefferson, being a bachelor, has found it rather a trying ordeal to get married and now he is desirous of making it illegal to marry, er to be exact, to fix it so that a fellow can't get married when he wants to and can get some girl to agree with him on the subject, but has to wait five days before he can get him a cook.

The Gentleman from Jefferson really should be ashamed of himself for introducing such a bill in our legislative halls. Like the able legislator who said had such a law been in force at the time, he could not have gotten married. The Sweeper, being also unmarried is of the opinion that we may have to resort to the elopement method if we are ever to get married, so there you have another reason we are opposed to any such a measure being put on our statute books.

We also wish to congratulate the minister-legislator who took the floor against the bill. We are not now, never have been, and don't expect to ever be a member of the clergy, but we have an imagination. We can place ourselves in the position of the minister who has been awakened in the night to perform a hasty marriage ceremony, and can just see the fun he has with the excited and shy couple as they haltingly answer the questions and make the vows. We imagine that were we a minister nothing would give us greater pleasure than to perform such a service.

We are pleased to note that the State Legislature has decided to begin their long pow-wow in the latter part of March, instead of waiting till July, as has been the custom heretofore. This will allow that able body to dispose of some important legislation without further delay. Some of this legislation should certainly be looked after right away, and there was not time enough to attend to all of it at the short session just closed. It is indeed admirable to see the boys showing some speed, if only in the form of shoving up the long session three months. Maybe the habit will extend to legislative action.

Guess we have been resting about long enough, so we will be a-sweeping. Mind the dust.—The Sweeper.

Tell Them So—We all love our families, but we don't tell them so often enough.

ANTI-TRUST LAWS TO BE DISCUSSED

The National Association of Manufacturers has called a conference on anti-trust laws, to be held in the near future. Present-day operation of the laws will be considered, possible changes discussed, and means of clarifying their provisions so as to remove the generally-recognized handicaps to progressive industry which they create.

The conference will serve a good purpose and will be watched by all businesses and by citizens with an interest in our industrial welfare. Existing anti-trust legislation was designed for conditions of many years ago; changing times now require changing methods, and the laws often act as a barrier to progress.

This has been especially true in the oil industry's effort to abolish waste by limiting production to the point where it squares with demand. Apparently no one knows exactly what the industry can or cannot do. As a result, it has been existing in a state of semi-chaos, working in a legislative darkness. If our anti-trust laws can be revised to the point where they allow this industry alone to develop economically and rationally an important public service will have been achieved.

LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE IS VANISHING

The little old red schoolhouse has almost completely disappeared from the American landscape, and the one-room district school is rapidly following it into oblivion, according to a survey made for The Country Home.

The district school, it develops, is slipping away at the rate of 4,000 ever year. These buildings of the "Mary's Little Lamb" type are being replaced in rural communities by commidious consolidated schools.

But there are still 153,000 of the old type, an average of 3,000 for each staste.

BACK TO THE FARM?

A farm-ward trek which increased the agrarian population in 1930 for the first time in ten years is attributed by the Department of Agriculture to the industrial employment situation. The number who left farms for towns and cities in 1930 was 1,548,000, compared with 1,876,000 in 1929 and a peak movement of 2,155,000 in 1926. Last year 1,392,000 persons moved from cities to farms—the largest number since 1924, when a peak of 1,396,000 was reached. The total farm population as of January 1 was estimated at 27,430,000, as compared with 27,222,000 a year ago.

Here is a reversal of trend which, if continued for another year or so will become decidedly significant. For years editors and public speakers have been pointing to the danger of the preponderance of our great cities and the decline of rural life. It is too early as yet of course to say that the cityward movement has been stopped and yet there are new elements entering the situation aside from he depression. Good roads have made the farm much nearer the city and with improved methods of transportation have made it much easier for the city man to live in the country if he so desires. And who would not so desire, if he could do it without interfering with his daily business?

With no prohibition debate, no power issue, no drought relief and no unemployment, the wonder is that a French Cabinet ever falls.—Detroit News.

A sport model tractor with a plush-lined rumble seat might give valuable acceleration to the "Back-to-the-farm" movement.—Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

* SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS By Jay Taylor *
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

The Division of Education of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has just sent us another pamphlet which eulogizes the League of Nations, favors cancellation of the foreign debts, deplores our protective tariff, urges America to pledge itself at once to take sides against any nation that breaks the Kellogg treaty, and finally makes strong appeal for our immediate adherence to the World Court. These "educational" institutions are not making much impression on the American people but they are working hard and doing the best they can.

Careless spending of public funds, thus increasing the tax burden, is a sure way to hinder the return of prosperity.

Speaking of our merchant marine, during 1930 the United States took second place in world launchings.

Ambition and the will to work is the Edison suggestion as the chief requsite for success.

One observer says that if there were Congressional medals for asininity he would like to name the man for that honor.

If the ardent champions of American entry into the League of Nations would quit shouting for the World Court, that proposal would never be heard of again.

"Daughter," said the father sternly, "I don't like that young man you go out with."

"Yeah?" retorted daughter. "Well, don't worry, you're simply poison to him, too."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Here's Some News For You

Anything that happens only about once in a quarter of a century is news. Hence, I record here the fact that Sam'l Scott, the picture man, has a new hat. I saw it Monday afternoon as he passed the corner. I guess the brisk March breezes must have wafted away his faithful companion of many winters and summers—the black derby.

Of Interest To School Patrons

Folks who have children to send to school will be glad to learn that the education committee of the legislature has reported favorably a bill giving the patrons of a school the right to elect the trustees of their school. Talking with Representative Pitts Monday, he remarked that the committee on education has strong leanings toward the interests of the common schools. That sounds good to me.

The Best Time To Help A Fellow

I have often thought that somebody in our legislature ought to get interested in the common schools. When you face the figures that tell how much per capita is given to the student in our colleges as compared to the student in our common schools, it will make you wonder how such a lop-sided arrangement ever got into our educational affairs. I think the time to help a fellow in anything is when he is making a start. After he gets going, if he is worth very much he can keep going by his own efforts. This applies to the business of getting an education, I think. The time and place where a boy or girl needs all the help possible is when he is starting in the common schools.

Sympathy For the Poor Taxpayers

Our state legislature has expressed a measure of sympathy for the poor taxpayer in a very effective manner. A bill has passed the House giving the taxpayer until the first of August to pay his taxes. That is very attractive if we can figure up any way whereby we can have the money to pay with when the first of August comes around.

"Do you know what these ex-soldiers are doing with their bonus money which they are getting from the government?" That question was put to me Monday by a prominent man of Clanton who passed my corner. "I'll tell you," he said, "they are buying automobiles and whisky with it." Rather an interesting bit of information for me, especially since I had thought none of the boys around here had got paid off yet. However, one may buy an automobile on a credit; and perhaps the bootlegger might also extend credit to an ex-service man with a good claim on Uncle Sam's strong box.

Andrew Ellison Heard From

F. A. Ellison had a letter last week from his brother, Andrew J. Ellison, at Enid, Oklahoma. Mr. Ellison left here about 25 years ago. He had not been heard from in 15 years until the letter came last week. Andrew Ellison has many old friends and acquaintances in Chilton County who will be glad to know that he is yet in the land of the living.

Important Road Program

A meeting has been called at Clanton for March 19th, for the purpose of organizing an association to pull and push for paving of a through state highway from the Georgia state line near Anniston, to Mobile, by way of Anniston, Talladega, Sylacauga, Columbiana, Calera, Clanton, Maplesville, Plantresville, Selma. Representative citizens all along this route will attend the meeting. All the visitors will be entertained by Clanton.

A SOUND POLICY

The interests of the public and the public utilities are best served by effective state regulation. Well-considered measures calculated to strengthen the confidence of the public in the regulation of public utilities receive the support of progressive leaders in the electric light, power and gas industries.

Rates should be adjusted so as to yield a fair and reasonable return on the value of the property devoted to the public use. This return should be sufficient at all times to attract new capital and to include a reward for efficient, enlightened and honest management. Economies resulting from efficient management and from mergers, consolidations, and interconnections should be shared with the consumer in reduction of rates.

Publicity in the financial affairs of a public utility inspires confidence on the part of the stockholder and the public. Public utilities therefore should issue at frequent intervals full statements of their earnings in sufficient detail to give their stockholders a thorough understanding of company affairs.

Holding companies are essential to the expansion and development of public utilities and must not be used to exploit either the consumers or the operating company. Full and complete disclosure should be made of all agreements between the holding company and its subsidiaries covering services rendered by the holding company for financing, managing, purchasing and construction, to insure that they are fair to the consumer, the operating company and the holding company.

Government should confine itself to regulation of public utilities and not go into the public utility business. Government should not compete with any of its citizens in any field of business.

The foregoing statement was made by John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement Co., of Philadelphia, and its fairness and reasonableness are self-evident.

TAXES FOR BUSES

A recent compilation by the national motor bus division of the American Automobile Association shows that taxes paid by common-carrier motor coach companies increased 82 per cent between 1923 and 1928. These assessments against the bus were based on various factors, including value of highways, potential use of highways, actual use of highways and all special taxes. The average bus pays an annual tax of $511.81—24 times that paid by the average private car.

It is often charged that buses are wearing out highways for which they do not pay, but this is lirgely, nowadays, unjustified. The bus has become an important service industry—and like all service industries its place in the community as a taxpayer is rightly being established on a sound and stable basis.

WAR RISK INSURANCE

Veterans who served in the army, navy, marine corps and in the nurse corps, during the World War were given the privilege to contract for insurance in multiples of $500, not less than $1,000 and not more than $10,000 and were issued insurance certificates in the amount contracted for by the veteran.

Veterans who now feel that they have a claim against the Veterans Bureau under their war risk insurance are privileged to produce evidence to the effect that they have been unable to follow continuously any substantially gainful occupation since discharge from the service or from the date of the last payment of premiums on their insurance.

This evidence may be in the form of doctors' statements showing their dates of treatment and giving in detail the history of the disabilities that have disabled the veteran from maintaining himself in a continuous gainful occupation. Also affidavits from laymen setting forth their knowledge of the veteran's disabilities or inability to carry on a continuous gainful occupation.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled thus:

"Total disability within the meaning of the policy is any disability of mind or body which renders it impossible for the disabled person to follow cntinuously any substantial gainful occupation, and such disability is deemed to be permanent whenever it is founded upon conditions which render it reasonably certain that it will continue throughout the life of the person suffering with it."

It is not necessary for the veteran to show that the disabilities claimed are the result of his service during the World War. The Veterans Bureau has a form 579 which the claimants should use in making demand for payment on their insurance contract. Veterans who desire to make demand for payment on their insurance contract should write Mr. T. J. Calvert, regional manager, U. S. Veterans Bureau, Birmingham, Alabama, for this form.

Under the law veterans may bring suit in the U. S. District Court for the district in which they reside for the recovery of benefits under the insurance contract if denied by the U. S. Veterans Bureau, provided suit is entered prior to July 3, 1931. Suit cannot be entered until the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs has disallowed the claim, so it behooves every veteran who thinks he has a just claim to file it in the Veterans Bureau as soon as possible.

It might be advisable for the veteran to have his lawyer prepare his application on Form 579, so that if suit is necessary, his lawyer will be acquainted with the facts upon which the claim is based.

LITTLE MISS EDNA BAKER DIED AT SYLACAUGA

Little Miss Edna Baker, eleven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Baker, of Sylacauga, died at the Avondale Mills Hospital at Sylacauga, at 6:30 a. m., Monday morning, March 2. She was stricken Wednesday night, February 28, with minengitis. Sunday hospital attendants and those in charge of the case had hopes of her recovery, but a turn for the worse during Sunday night brought the end early Monday morning.

Edna would have been eleven years old in April. She stood high in her classes in school, and her sunny disposition gained friends for her wherever she was known. She left a host of little friends in and around Sylacauga and Clanton to mourn her loss. In the immediate family she is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Baker, and a younger sister, Clio. Her father, better known as "Sie" Baker, was born and reared near Clanton, making his home with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. "Bill" Baker, who loved Edna as their own child, she making her home with them most of the time.

Interment was made in Marble City cemetery at 2:00 p. m., Tuesday afternoon, March 3, with Rev. Woods, Mignon Methodist Church pastor, in charge of the funeral ceremonies. The great number of friends in attendance bespoke the high esteem in which she was held, despite a warning issue by health authorities on account of the vicious nature of the ailment which took her away.

Her hundreds of friends and acquaintances join in sorrow for her untimely passing, and mourn with her immediate family the loss of so lovely a flower from our garden of sorrows, yet rejoice with them in the knowledge that her spirit is most certainly with God, who gave it, and that she has gone to sing with His angels forever more.

Miss Dora Brackin, Sunday school Extension worker, will be here Saturday and Sunday. All who are interested in the Sunday school here are requested to be at the church Saturday and Sunday. There will be preaching here Saturday and Sunday. Everyone has a cordial invitation to come and be with us.

BETTER LONGER STAPLE COTTON, IS ADVISED

The time is drawing near when the farmers will begin to plant cotton seed, so we think now is the time for you to increase your efforts to encourage the farmers of this county to plant a better variety of seed than they have been planting in the past.

As you are no doubt aware, Chilton County grown cotton has a very poor reputation with the mills, on account of it being so very short in staple. In fact some of the larger mills will not buy any Chilton County cotton at any price on account of the staple.

Just the other day a cotton shipper told me he shipped a carload of Chilton county cotton to one of our largest Alabama mills and that when the cotton reached the mill and they opened the car door and saw from the tags that it came from Chilton County that they closed the doors and refused the entire shipment without even looking at it.

Naturally when our cotton has a reputation like that, we cannot expect to get the best market price for it, and the only way that we can improve our market is to get the county as a whole to plant a variety of seed that will produce full 7-8 to one inch staple, and then when they do that and the shippers and mills see that we are raising full 7-8 to one inch cotton they will compete for it, and we will get a much better price.

We note from cotton journals that there is a great falling off in consumption of American grown cottons as compared with foreign growths. This is because we have let our staple run down until it is no better than the foreign growths and the foreign growths are offered much cheaper than ours on account of much cheaper labor and production costs.

So if we expect to regain our export trade, naturally we will have to produce better staple than the foreign growths.

To prove to you how short our staple really is, on one shipment of 100 bales straight gin run cotton that we made to one of our largest mills last fall, they received the cotton as being 9 base or 7-8, 35 bales 13-16 and 56 bales 3-4 inch cotton. Naturally this mill finding our cotton to be of such poor staple withdrew from this market and therefore lessened our potential market just that much.

On another occasion we sent 24 samples straight run cotton to the Cotton States Arbitration Board of Atlanta to be officially stapled and they only passed 4 baless as being 7-8 inch staple.

As you are aware cotton under 7-8 inch staple is generally selling at discount of 1c under the price of 7-8 inch staple.

Some think that the shippers and mills have now quit stapleing the cotton, but this is a mistake for in all cases where they did not staple the cotton, it was because it was bought on a cheap basis and allowance was made in the price to allow for certain per cent of short cotton.—Geo. C. Polk.

Lesson for March 15

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.
LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; 11:14-54.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Among His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Test of Friendship.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Friendship With Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dealing With Friend and Foe.

I. Jesus in the Home of Friends (Luke 10:38-42).

There is no place where true character is so clearly revealed as at home.

1. His reception (v. 38). Jesus was received by Martha, as she was the head of the home. Jesus must have greatly appreciated the fact that there was one home in which he was welcome.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). She, with fine spiritual discernment, knew that sitting at the Lord's feet and hearing his word was that which would most please him. He was more concerned with opportunity to reveal himself to human hearts than with the eating of well prepared meals. Mary's way of entertaining Jesus was more acceptable than that of Martha.

3. Martha cumbered about much serving (v. 40). Both sisters loved the Lord. It would be impossible to say which loved the more, but Martha was bent on providing a fine meal for him. Because she was trying to do so many things, she was on the verge of distraction, and found fault with Jesus for permitting Mary to leave the kitchen to listen to his teaching.

4. Jesus' answer (vv. 41, 42). (a) He rebuked Martha (v. 41). He did this most tenderly for he knew that she loved him sincerely. (b.) Defends Mary (v. 42.) He declared that but one thing was needful and that Mary had chosen that good part which could not be taken away from her. The one thing needful for every member of the race is a heart for the Lord which brings the individual to Jesus to hear his teaching.

II. Jesus Among Foes (11:14-54).

1. Charged with being in league with the devil (vv. 14-23). Being unwilling to receive him as the Son of God and yet unable to account for his mighty works, they declared that he was casting out demons through Beelzebub, the chief of the demons.

2. Refusal to believe his miracles (vv. 29-32). They asked for a sign to which he replied that they would have a sign from heaven in his death and resurrection. He reminded them, however, that their request showed unbelief surpassing that of the heathen queen of the South and the wicked people of Nineveh.

3. Wickedness denounced (vv. 37-54). He pronounced six woes upon those who were opposing him and seeking his destruction: three upon the Pharisees and three upon the lawyers.

a. The Pharisees (vv. 37-41). These he denounced for:

(1) Punctiliously observing minute rites while at the same time breaking the Ten Commandments. They carefully tithed the small herbs of the garden while practicing injustice with their fellow men and withholding love from God. He pointed out to them their attending to these external acts while their hearts were filled with wickedness. It was as absurd as merely washing the outside of an unclean cup.

(2) Desire for public recognition (v. 43). This is a common sin today. Love for titles of respect and positions of prominence is a very common sin.

(3) Feigning humility (v. 44). He compared their hypocrisy to graves which are on the ground and may be stepped upon unconsciously by some one who would thus be defiled.

b. The lawyers (vv. 45-54). The strictures of Jesus on the hypocritical Pharisees aroused the lawyers, one of whom indignantly declared, "Thou reproachest us also." In reply to this Christ pronounced three woes upon them:

(1) For placing burdensome requirements upon the people to which they themselves would not submit (v. 46). Religious rites should not be made irksome. (2) For the murder of God's prophets (vv. 47-51). He showed that their attitude toward him was the same as was shown to the prophets by their fathers. Jesus declared that their guilt was the same as that of their fathers and that their generation would be held responsible for all that the fathers had done. (3) For keeping back the knowledge of God by false interpretations of the Scripture (vv. 52-54).

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FERTILIZER FOR COTTON IS NAMED

Auburn, Ala., March 9.—For best returns each dollar spent for fertilizer for cotton, the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, has made recommendations which are based upon hundreds of experiments conducted at Auburn and in cooperation with farmers throughout the State.

"The best fertilizer for an acre of cotton on Alabama soils," said the recommendation, "is 400 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate, 50 pounds of nitrate of soda or 40 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, and 50 pounds of muriate of potash on each acre before planting; and apply 150 pounds of either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime as a side-dressing at first cultivation after chopping. Apply before any squares appear."

The recommendation issued a caution about sulphate of ammonia. "It may be used in planting application provided the side-dressing is either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime," it said.

Ingredients applied at planting should be mixed thoroughly just before applying. "Do not let fertilizer and seed come in contact," was another caution issued.

Smaller amounts of fertilizer than the above may be used by applying the ingderients listed and in the proportions named.

While holding fast to home mixing of those ingredients the recommendation said that "farmers who use ready-mixed fertilizer may approximate the Auburn method by applying 12-3-5 (3 per cent ammonia which is 2 1-2 per cent nitrogen) before planting and side-dress with either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime at the rate of 30 pounds for each 100 pounds of 12-3-5 applied under the cotton."

County agents throughout the State are recommending this fertilizer because scientific research has revealed that it is best.

BETTER COTTON IS GREENE COUNTY AIM

Eutaw, Ala.—The D. P. L. 4-8 veriety of cotton will be produced on a larger scale in Greene County this year, according to H. C. Appleton, county agent. Seed are being bought and shipped in addition to 100 tons produced and saved in 1930. The supply is limited and seed are difficult to get, Mr. Appleton said.

BALDWIN EGGS ARE GOING INTO STORAGE

Bay Minette, Ala.—Baldwin County poultrymen are now placing eggs in storage with a view to selling them next fall when prices are high. The Baldwin County Poultry Association is handling the business for its members through the State Farm Bureau in Montgomery. Farmers are being advanced the present market price for eggs.

HAVING MEANS MORE THAN THE METHOD

Auburn, Ala.—In a radio address over Station WAPI, Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, presented a new slant on the potlikker discussion. "It does not matter," he said, "whether you drink or crumble or sop. The main thing is to have the potlikker and corn bread."

Dr. Knapp made this statement in connection with the work to stimulate food and feed production in Alabama this year.

PLEASANT HILL

There will be singing at this place Sunday afternoon, beginning at two o'clock (the third Sunday). Everybody come and help us out.—P. M. Cleckler.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The world production of natural gasoline increased from 41,470,069 barrels in 1927 to 58,200,357 barrels in 1929, a gain of 16,730,288 barrels, or 40 per cent, according to the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce.

The Department of Labor at Washington reports that building permits in a group of large cities during January totaled $98,678,521, which was a reduction of 22.4 per cent from the December total. Residential buildings decreased 18.2 per cent.

The Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, has published a bulletin on "Feeding the Family in the Present Hard Times." It was written by Miss Helen Kennedy, extension nutritionist, and is intended to render a special service under present conditions. Copies are mailed on request.

"No section has improved its agriculture or the condition of its rural people which has stuck to the old idea of producing cotton and cotton alone as a means of acquiring an income to pay debts, taxes, etc., and add to the comforts of life for the average producer."—Dr. Bradford Knapp.

A contest announcement made five times at noon broadcasts over Station WAPI in Birmingham and Station WSFA, Montgomery, brought to the State Department of Agriculture and Industries 1,450 replies. L. O. Brackeen tabulated them and found that 60 of the 67 counties of Alabama were included. A few came from Georgia and Mississippi, and one from Florida.

FOREST FIRE REPORT FOR THE ENTIRE YEAR

Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 9.—The calendar year 1930 witnessed interesting conditions in connection with the forest fires of the state, according to the compliations of the State Commission of Forestry in cooperation with the United States Forest Service. The total number of fires amounted to 24,526 and the total area burned was approximately 1,616,301 acres.

While the combined efforts of the State and Federal Governments are distributed over the State as a whole as to various educational measures which yield certain favorable results, it is only in those sections to which forestral agents are designated that the best progress is made. In the localities in which no agents are employed the proportion of the forest land burned over amounted to over nine per cent. In the territory in which the funds available to the forestry department have permitted the employment of agents the proportion burned over was but five and one-half per cent.

SHILOH

Our singing society meets at this place next Sunday afternoon. We want to revive and build up the society, as it has almost died down lately on account of unfavorable weather. To do this we need help, and we invite and earnestly request all who will to come out and help us. We are expecting some of the Pleasant Grove class to be present. The singing will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock. Come and bring your 1931 Stamps song books.—C. M. Billingsley.

Misses Mae and Flora Terrell of Deatsville were the guests of Miss Lorene Pyron last week end.

Miss Lorene Pyron left Monday for Biloxi, Miss., where she will visit her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Pyron.

MARKET BROADCASTS A DISTINCT SERVICE

During February over 1,500 Alabama farmers and business men in 60 of the 67 counties of the State wrote letters and cards to the Department of Agriculture and Industries at Montgomery, regarding the daily market and weather broadcasts over WAPI, Birmingham, and WSFA, Montgomery.

Each day at 10 a. m., 12:30 and 2:30 p. m., the Department broadcasts over these two stations the weather forecast, cotton prices, stock market, livestock quotations and jobbers paying prices on poultry, eggs, butterfat, and other farm products delivered at Montgomery. Each afternoon at 2:30 the market reports are broadcast over WODX, Mobile.

According to the letters this service is of distinct aid in protecting plants, livestock, automobile and pipes against cold weather and storms and in assisting in marketing of farm products.

Carolina Woman Lost 47 Pounds

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Gruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C., Jan., 1930. "P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Co., and druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty mtats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

IN MEMORY

On the night of February 24th, 1931, the grim reaper, death, took from our midst our beloved daughter and sister, Helen, age 18 years.

For the past ten years she had been a constant sufferer from heart trouble. Helen was confined to her bed a greater part of the time, but despite her suffering she was always cheerful and ready with her bright smile to give her family courage.

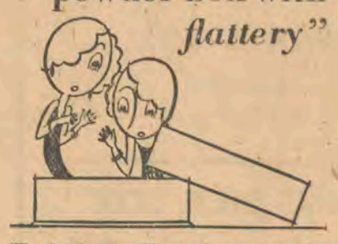
Her death was not unexpected, still we hoped to keep her for a few years more. Her death adds only one more to earth's countless millions who have gone down into the tomb. But we have God's promise all that are in the grave shall hear the voice of the Son of Man and come forth. Then shall be fulfilled the promise. O, death, where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?

When we see a precious blossom,
That we tended with such care;
Rudely taken from our bosoms,
How our aching hearts despair.

Round its little grave we linger,
'Till the setting sun is low;
Feeling all our hopes have perished,
With the flower we cherished so.

Yes, they sleep, but not forever,
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed promise they shall waken,
Jesus died the lost to save.

In the dawning of the morning,
When this troubled night is o'er;
All these buds in beauty blooming,
We'll rejoice to see once more.



—Mr. and Mrs. Horace Aldridge and children.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our most humble and sincerest thanks to the people of our community and surrounding territory for their generous gifts of most everything necessary in a home and the necessary labor in building our house back, after, on January 8, our home and most everything we had was destroyed by fire. May God's richest blessings befall each and every one.—Clarence Vines and wife.

Representative Percy Pitts, will go to Centreville Friday night of this week to speak at a meeting of the ex-service men of Bibb County.

"They filled this powder box with flattery"

That's what you'll say when you see the results of a few minutes' work with a powder puff and Golden Peacock Tonic Face Powder.

It simply ignores all those anguishing little complexion deficiencies—smooths them over with a velvety, baby-skin effect that makes even the least-vain woman preen herself a bit.

And it stays put! No shiny nose to be dabbed at—no chalky streakings to create amazed scrutiny. It's awfully good for skins, too—healing and soothing.

And—you'll never guess—it has a tiny touch of Golden Peacock Bleach Creme's famous whitening ingredient, to coax your skin to new and flattering fairness.

THE LEGISLATURE OF 1931

By Percy M. Pitts
Representative, Chilton County

The 1931 Alabama State Legislature, as compared with the 1927 legislature and others in the past, is apparently going to provide more economic legislation for the people of our great State than any other session of our legislature in the past twenty-five years. Members of both the House and Senate are cooperating with Governor Miller in cutting the large overhead expenses of our State, by abolishing useless jobs and thereby saving the State huge sums of money.

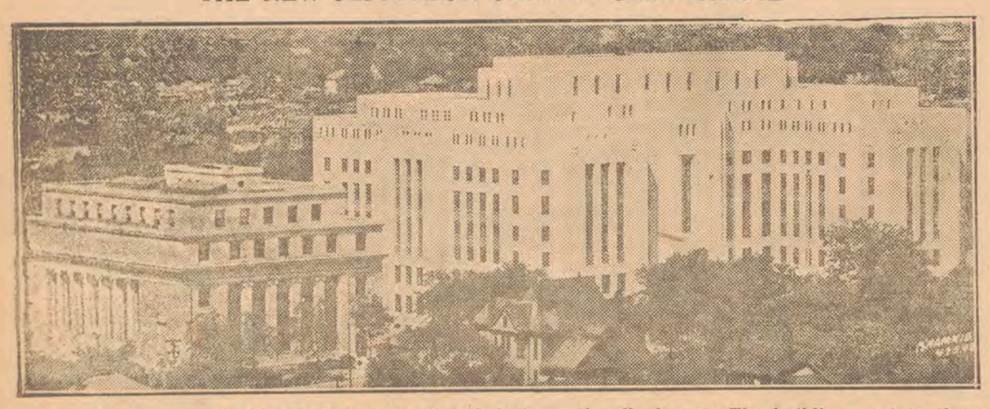
The 1927 legislature created many recess committees that cost the State about a hundred thousand dollars. This legislature has not provided for such recess committees, and have thereby saved many thousands of dollars.

In my legislative experience I have found the work in various committees to be the most interesting. The Educational Committee, Civil Laws Committee are two major committees that I have been assigned to. The Educational Committee is composed of about thirty members. Each bill affecting education is referred to this committee for either favorable or unfavorable report.

It may be interesting for the people of Chilton County to know that both the Educational Committee and the legislature as a whole are determined to care for the common schools and high schools before making appropriations to the higher institutions of learning in the State. In other words, the sentiment seems to prevail in the legislature that our common schools and elementary schools were neglected in a financial way by the 1927 legislature, as compared with our State colleges and higher institutions of learning.

For illustration the per capita appropriation for students in the higher institutions of learning was about $300, as compared to about $35 per capita for the students in the common schools.

There is also a sentiment in the Education Committee toward more local self government in the schools. We passed a bill last week amending the school code so as to give the voters of each school district the right to elect their school trustees by popular vote, as other officials are elected. Judging from the many expressions heard aong members of the legislature, many other changes along this line will be made.



I am now preparing two local bills for Chilton County which will be introduced when we meet in April. One of the bills will be to give the voters of Chilton County the right to elect their County Superintendent of Education by their direct ballot. The other bill provides for the members of the County Board of Education to be elected by districts instead of the county at large; and for the chairman of the Board to be elcted from the county at large.

Under section 372 of our present school code it is proided htat application for state aid must show that at least twice the amount for which aid is asked has been secured from sources other than the State. A bill has been introduced and reported favorably by the committee. which apparently will be passed at the next session in April, amending this section requiring that the community in which a school building is to be erected raise one-third of the amount and the State furnish two-thirds. This will be of great help to the communities desiring to build school houses.

Much to our surprise last week we were advised that about two and a half million dollars that had been raised by the tobacco tax principally during 1930 to be used by the State Educational Department for schools over the State, has never reached the Educational Department. It was alleged that these funds have been spent elsewhere bh the last administration. At the time this statement was given out no one could inform the committee where these funds were diverted to or what State departmnet received them.

No wonder we can't pay our school teachers.

THE NEW JEFFERSON COUNTY COURTHOUSE

Here is the new $3,000,000 Jefferson County Courthouse in Birmingham, Alabama, which will be ready for occupancy early in September. It is held by nationally known architects as the most beautiful of its kind in the nation, and brings to the South a new type of architecture. The building next to the courthouse is the central headquarters of the Birmingham Public Library and Museum.

CARD OF THANKS

We only wish we could find words to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and relatives which have lent a helping hand during the illness and death of our loving father and husband. Especially do we thank Dr. Arthur Johnson, Mr. Mell Martin and Rev. W. P. Lowery for their splendid service. We are also thankful for our many visiting friends to our lonesome home since our dear loved one has departed from us, and the comforting words which have been spoken to us during our heartaches and trouble.

May the Lord greatly bless each and every one of you, is our prayer.

"A friend in time of need is a friend indeed."

—Mrs. Walter Patterson and children.

FOR CLEANING BATHROOM NICKEL, ENAMEL AND TILE

For wash bowl and tub, use borax dry on a cloth, mop or brush. Borax instantly removes deposits of mineral soap and grease. Pure borax is odorless and acts as a deodorant. Strong cleaning powders, soap, turpentine, kerosene, are highly objectionable because of the odor they leave. After using dry borax, rinse tub or bowl with hot water.

Nickel fixtures may be kept in good condition by wiping off with borax solution and occasionally cleaning with a silver polish.

Tiled walls and floors may also be cleaned easily with a borax solution, using dry borax for obstinate spots.

JESUS THE FRIEND OF SINNERS

I. A Penitent Woman's Act of Love (vv. 37, 38).

1. The place (v. 37). It was in the home of Simon, the Pharisee, while Jesus was sitting at meat. When she knew of Christ's visit in this home, she came to lavish upon him her affections.

2. The act (v. 38). She washed Jesus' feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. Through some means she had heard of the pardoning grace of Jesus Christ and God had opened her heart to receive Jesus as her personal Savior.

3. Who she was (v. 37). Her name is not given. There is no good ground for assuming that she was Mary Magdalene. The implication is that she was of a notoriously bad character. Though known to the public as a bad woman, something had happened which transformed her. She was a saved sinner because she believed on Jesus Christ.

II. The Pharisee's Displeasure (v. 39).

Simon felt scandalized by such a happening at his table. He was a respectable man. For Jesus to tolerate such familiarity on the part of a woman of such evil repute greatly perplexed him. Though he believed in Jesus enough to invite him to dine with him, he questioned within himself as to whether, after all, he was not mistaken. He reasoned if Jesus were a real prophet, he would have known the character of this woman and would have either withdrawn his feet from her or thrust her back with them; or if he knew her character, his tolerance of such familiarity proved that he was not a good man.

III. Jesus Teaches the Pharisee (vv. 40-50).

He taught him by means of the parable of a creditor and two debtors. It is to be noted that Jesus made it very clear that he not only knew the woman but knew Simon also.

1. The common debt (v. 41). The woman was a sinner—so was Simon, though he was not the same kind of a sinner that she was. There were two debtors, though the one owed ten times as much as the other. This is still representative of all sinners. The Bible declares all to be sinners, yet recognizes degrees of guilt. Full credit ought to be given to the man who is honest, virtuous, generous, and kind, yet such a life will not secure entrance into heaven. Much harm has been done by even evangelical preachers through failure to recognize the essential differences in human character. On the other hand, the Savior's words are a severe rebuke to the respectable Pharisees who are sitting in judgment against sinners of a coarser type.

2. The common insolvency (v. 42). "And when they had nothing to pay." Jesus freely granted the difference in the degree of the woman's sins and those of the Pharisee, but drove home to him the fact that they were both debtors and had nothing with which to pay (Rom. 3:23). As sinners we may quit our sinning and hate our deeds but that does not make satisfaction for the sins of the past. What we have done is irrevocable—it has passed from our reach. Every transgression shall receive a just recompense of reward (Heb. 2:2). We must come to our Redeemer, the Almighty God, and acknowledge our insolvency and accept the kindness of Jesus Christ who bore our sins in his own body on the tree (I Pet. 2:24).

3. The relation of forgiveness and love (vv. 44-50). Simon's reluctant answer to Jesus' question showed that he got the point of Jesus' teaching. In order to make his teaching concrete, Jesus turned to the woman, calling Simon's attention to what she had done in contrast to what he had done. Simon had neglected to extend to Jesus the common courtesies of a respectable guest, but this woman had lavished upon him her affections and gifts. The measure of one's love is determined by the measure of the apprehension of sins forgiven. The one most forgiven will love most. Frequently the worst sinners make the best saints.

Become Like Him

The all-important thing is not to live apart from God, but as far as possible to be consciously with him. It must needs be that those who look much into his face will become like him.—Charles H. Brent.

HOW TO BRIGHTEN YOUR MIRRORS AND WINDOWS

To wash windows remove dust from frame with a small brush or soft dry cloth. On the glass use a chamois or soft cloth wrung out in a warm borax solution without soap (two tablespoons of pure borax to a gallon of water) giving special care to the corners of the panes, and washing the outside first. Dry quickly with the same chamois wrung out tightly in clean water, or with a soft cloth.

To wash mirrors and picture glass, use the same method as for windows, being careful to have your chamois or cloth wrung dry.

IN SPRING CLEANING OF PAINTED WOODWORK

Avoid the use of strong solutions that will injure painted and enamelled surfaces. Ordinary soaps are apt to discolor the original finish. A solution of two tablespoons of pure brax and two quarts of lukewarm water with the addition of a little mild soap will dissolve grease, wash away dirt, and leave the surface like new. Fresh cloths and frequent changes of water are necessary if a large area is to be cleaned.

JAMES SIGN SHOP OBSERVING SIXTH NATIONAL EVENT

Display Is On Exhibition in Co-operation With Birmingham Sign Contractors

Frank P. James, of the James Sign Shop, Clanton, states that his business is joining with other sign contractors of Alabama this week in observing with fitting emphasis the Sixth Annual National Sign Week, an event which has been organized by sign contractors of North America, to impress upon the public some of the outstanding features about the sign business as an advertising medium of worth and merit.

Mr. James extends to his friends an invitation to visit the exhibit in Birmingham this week. It is located in the display windows of the Birmingham Electric Company, at First Avenue and 21st Street North. Anyone visiting Birmingham this week is urged to see this exhibit.

Together with the James Sign Shop of Clanton, the following named concerns of the Birmingham District are combined in this display: Atherton Co., Art Sign Co., Alabama Ad Co., General Outdoor Advertising Co., Neon Lights Adv. Co., H. Padilla Signs, R. A. Stevens Signs, Two Vests Co.

Frank James gained world-wide mention by his activity in observing National Sign Week last year. Pictures of his shop as well as copies of his advertising matter were reproduced in the "Sign of the Times," the national magazine devoted to the interests of sign contractors. Through this medium the name and fame of Clanton have been carried to the four corners of the world.

SAFEGUARD YOUR HANDS WHEN SPRING CLEANING

The constant use of caustic soap and water when spring cleaning, is bound to harm the hands unless the necessary precaution is taken. Pure borax added to the soapy water will neutralize the effects of the caustic soap action, and leave the skin fine and smooth. While the borax acts like a lotion on the hands, it also softens the water and aids the soap to thoroughly clean and deodorize.

MEMORY OF MR. PATTERSON

It was just only a fe wdays ago,
We can never forget the day
When came the silent reaper
And took our dear daddy away.

Although unable to speak to us,
And could not even say goodbye,
We know his thoughts were with us
When he was called to die.

We miss him, O we miss him,
For our Savior called him away:
But we are praying to meet him,
In a better world some day.

We know he is waiting,
With our Savior on high;
He's there ready to greet us,
Where there's no goodbye.

No more on earth we'll see his face,
His voice we'll hear no more;
But let us live to meet him,
On that bright and sunny shore.

We love our dear daddy,
No human tongue can tell;
We said goodbye for a little while
But we didn't say farewell.

He has gone and left us desolate,
But he is so glad and free;
All our tears would turn to smiles,
If his rapture we could see.

Oh, how loving, good and jolly,
He was every day by day;
All the sorrow that he gave us
Was because he went away.

He's not dead, just sweetly resting,
From his trials and troubles here;
But if we live as he has taught us,
We will meet him over there.

— The children.

Legion's Warning To Ex-Soldiers

Beneficiaries of Loans Are Cautioned to Spend Money wisely In Providing For Families

Chilton County Post of the American Legion has sounded a note of warning and caution to ex-soldiers who may soon come into the benefits of the government loans that have been authorized by recent act of Congress. At a meeting last Friday night the local Post, among other things, urged the soldiers to look carefully to the manner in which they dispose of money they may receive.

It was pointed out that it was largely through the influence of the American Legion that Congress was induced to pass the recent loan legislation. In this matter the Legion had uppermost the idea of bringing relief to thousands of soldiers and their families who are in distress. Therefore, it was said, if the soldier would keep faith with the Legion and with Congress, he must be sure that his loan is not spent for unnecessary things, but used to bring solid comforts and necessities to his family.

The meeting last Friday night was well attended, according to Commander, Joe Calloway. There were lots of ex-soldiers present, and the interest was fine. The visiting speaker who was scheduled to come here failed to show up. However, the meeting was well supplied with local speakers in the person of Prof. L. C. Warr, of the Chilton County High School, and Prof. Earle Thomas of Isabella High School.

All ex-service men in the county are urged to keep in touch with the American Legion. All who have not yet joined the Legion should do so without further delay. The Legion is serving the soldiers with great efficiency. No other organization is in position to render comparable service to that which the Legion offers to soldiers now.

MRS. VELMA JACKSON DIED

Mrs. Velma Jackson, age 27 years, wife of G. W. Jackson, died Monday at the family home near Cairo, Georgia. The body was shipped to Clanton, arriving here Wednesday morning, and was carried to Blow Graveyard by Mell Martin, and buried Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Jackson was a daughter of J. N. Martin and Callie Varden Martin of Mineral Springs. She was born and reared in the Mineral Springs community.

Schools Of County Will Run Full Term

Action of Teachers Assures Every School Will Have Full Term Before Closing Down

The school teachers of Chilton County have risen in unison with a spirit of loyalty to their profession and patriotism for their county to give public assurance that they will see their schools carried to the end of the full terms, regardless of what happens in the present financial muddle.

This noble spirit in the hearts of our teachers will surely bring forth notes of cheer from parents and pupils throughout the entire county.

The situation is this: The county cannot get the balance of the school funds which are supposed to come from the State. That is the only resources left with which to pay teachers for the balance of the term, because the county funds have already been exhausted.

This brought the teachers face to face with two propositions: (1) To close the schools down immediately or (2) to teach on until the term has been finished and get their pay when it does come from the State. Facing these questions the teachers voted readily and unanimously last Friday to teach right on to the end of their terms, which assures that every school in the county will be run to its full term.

This matter was considered and acted upon by the teachers assembled last Friday in connection with the Play Day Program. It was stated in course of the discussion by some teachers that they had rather teach out their terms without any hope or promise of pay than to impair the work of the schools as would be done by cutitng the terms short.

JACOBSON-EASTERLING

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, at the Assembly of God Church, Santa Rosa, Texas, when Miss Wilma Easterling became the bride of Mr. Vernon Jacobson.

Long before the time for the ceremony the church was filled with relatives and friends of this popular couple.

In her clear soprano voice Mrs. Lawrence Perrault sang "I Love You." Then, as the wedding march from Lohengren was sounded the groom and best man, Mr. Fennis Easterling, brother of the bride, entered from a vestry room, and from down the isle came the pretty bridesmaid, Miss Chlois Hartsel in blue lace and hat to match carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, followed by the little flower girl, Myrtis Easterling, sister of the bride, in pink carrying a marianette basket from which she strew rose petals for the bride, who entered unattended and met the groom at the alter, where they plighted their troth.

The bride was lovely in a creation of white crepe and lace with conventional veil, and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas with shower of orange blossoms.

The alter, with an improvised arch of white, decorated with orange blossoms, ferns and sweet peas with the white wedding bell, with a background of palms, made a beautiful setting for the wedding ceremony which was said by the Rev. Laurence Perrault, ring ceremony being used.

Mrs. Jacobson is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Easterling of Santa Rosa, who enjoys much popularity, and her many friends regret her marriage takes her elsewhere to live.

Mr. Jacobson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Jacobson, of Harlingen, Texas. Mr. Jacobson is a popular carpenter, who, with his bride, are at home to their many friends at 1114 Southeast Street, Harlingen, Texas.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was tendered the bridal party and close friends at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Jacobson.

Mt. Creek Man Killed By Wife

Resident of Mt. Creek Community Killed Instantly Last Sunday Morning

Bill Harper, age about 65 or 70 years, was shot and instantly killed by his wife early last Sunday morning. The weapon with which the woman blew out the life of her husband was a single barrel shot gun. The shooting occured in the house in which the couple lived.

It is reported that Mrs. Harper says her husband was making an effort to kill her and her boy. He had become enraged and secured a double barrel shot gun, declaring he would kill them. Whereupon Mrs. Harper secured the single barrel gun, and shot the man just as he was aiming his gun at her. It is repored that Harper had some whisky, which perhaps was the cause of the racket that resulted in his death.

A former wife of Mr. Harper died about a year ago. He had been married only a few months to the wife who killed him. Before her marriage to Harper, she was a Mrs. Alley.

It is said that the charge from the gun entered the man's back, severing his spinal column. He fell forward on his face, and never moved. Death was instant.

The body of Mr. Harper was buried Sunday afternoon at Midway.

Bean. If you are a little crossed up on doctrinal subjects, come on any way, for probably he will be able to get it straightened out in your mind, if you will let him.

FIDDLERS' CONVENTION TO BE AT VERBENA

The tenth annual fiddlers' convention to be held at Verbena, Alabama, will convene on the evening of Friday, April 3, beginning at 7:30.

Many requests have come from fiddlers and others that this convention be held, and many have been the requests, as to when it would come off. In the past there have been capacity numbers of fiddlers and capacity houses. This year hard times are not, the same is expected, as the additional prestige the Verbena conventions have gained from year to year have an added advertising force, and this year the attraction promises to be even bigger and better than ever. Fiddlers had best be practicing away; as with added years to some who have competed in the past and the interest in fiddling pioneered in this section by Verbena has produced a much better class of music. Remember the date, Friday, April 3.

Further announcement will be made through the local papers next week, and posters will be distributed. Fiddlers, tell your friends. Friends, tell the fiddlers. Let's get ready to drive Old Man Depression and Poor Spirits from the country on the night of April 3. There is more good feeling, more good time in music and mingling of fiddlers and folks on such an occasion than "depression" can stand. So "good times are coming," they are just around the corner of April—and on the night of the third we will be at Verbena and help route old depression. 1931 style prices will prevail for admission.

Friday and Saturday the leading feature is a western picture "The Bar-L Ranch," an all-talking picture, with a news reel and the serial "Adventures of Tarzan."

Monday and Tuesday of next week he will show "Call of the Flesh," an all-talking comedy.

Special attention is called by Mr. Wade to his plan of awarding free passes as birthday gifts to those who put their names and date of birthday in the little box provided at the ticket window. Ask Mr. Wade about this unique plan. He will be glad to explain it to you in detail.

CENTRAL SINGERS WILL MEET AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY P. M.

Another two months have rolled around, and another fourth Sunday is close at hand. The Central Singing Society will meet at Friendship next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend. Do not be late, for the singing will begin promptly at 2 o'clock.

The singing at Maple Springs last Sunday afternoon was something to brag about. It was the best that has been held at this place since the society has been organized, and it was as good as has been held at any of the eight churches. The class was exceptionally large, and it was unusual in that most everyone in the class was singing. Usually an over-sized class is choked with folks not singing, but such was not the case at Maple Springs.

Prof. L. T. Grant presided. There were about fifteen directors present and practically all of them were used. Prof. G. C. Weldon was in the class, but begged off from taking the floor; however, he promised not to be guilty of that again. We hope that Prof. Weldon attends our society often and sticks to his promise, which we are sure he will do. No specials were used last Sunday afternoon because we were too busy singing.

Professor H. G. Carter, of Billingsley was in attendance also. We were very glad to have Prof. Carter sing with us last Sunday afternoon, and extend him an invitation to come back again.

We are sorry to have to report that the United Singing Society cannot meet with us at Coopers the fifth Sunday afternoon. However, they promised to meet with us somewhere in this part of the county the fifth Sunday in May, unless something now unforeseen interferes.

COLUMBIANA TOWN MARSHALL WOUNDED

Columbiana, Ala., March 16.—Jack White, town marshall, was shot here Monday afternoon when, investigating officers said, he attempted to intervene in an argument between Miss Catherine Fleming, Welfare officer, and C. T. Mitchell. White was taken to a Birmingham hospital where attendants said his condition was not serious.

REV. R. M. HONEYCUTT WILL BE AT FRIENDSHIP MEETING

A letter from Rev. R. M. Honeycutt of Jemison last week states: "I accept the invitation to be at Friendship the fifth Sunday, and if the Lord is willing I will be with you all there that day. I hope to be of some benefit to the people.—Yours truly, R. M. Honeycutt."

The older people will be glad to hear that Rev. Honeycutt has agreed to attend this meeting. He has friends all over this county, who will be glad to see him and hear him talk.

This service will be all day, beginning at 10 o'clock. There will be a sermon by someone to be selected at the meeting at 11 o'clock. The singing for the day will be in the old Christian Harmony books under the leadership of Mr. J. N. Scott of Jemison. Of course, there will very likely be some of the other old people lead part of the singing.

Let us all pray that the day may be one of great spiritual uplift to the community as well as to all who attend.

WANT PUBLIC ROAD RESTORED

Monroe Parrish, of Beat 16, and Squire John S. Dennis, of Beat 11, are seeking to have the Commissioners Court of Chilton County re-establish the old public road from the place of B. Adams in Beat 16, to Johnnie Cleckler's in Beat 11.

This road, one of the oldest in the county, was discontinued a few months ago. It is a part of the old Adams Ferry Road, which turns north at the Iron Ore Hill east of Clanton, crosses Walnut Creek at the Miner Bridge, goes on by old Union Point Church, then crosses the mountain, and on by old Macedonia Church to Adams Ferry.

Mr. Parrish and Squire Dennis maintain that the road is an important link of communication for people who live in the eastern part of the county. They will present to the Commissioners an appeal from the citizens of the eastern part of the county asking that the road be put back on the county's public road system and maintained in passable condition.

Mail Robbery Is Laid To Youths

Two University Students Held By Government For Molesting Boxes

Tuscaloosa, Ala., March 13.—Two University of Alabama students, Guy Cooper, 18, of Mountain Creek, Ala., and Leo B. Seltzer, 21, of New York, today were bound over to the Federal Grand Jury, by U. S. Commissioner S. H. Sprott, on charges of tampering with the mails at the post-office on the campus.

Harold Weeks, student employe of the post office, testified that he saw the two accused youths opening combination boxes and mail of others in the post office at 2:30 the morning of March 7.

Both Seltzer and Cooper testified they were getting their own mail and that of James J. Faulk, Cooper's roommate.

Faulk told the commissioner that Cooper's father, a Mountain Creek farmer, had written him asking that he attempt to dissuade his son from going with Seltzer because of "his bad influence."

The youths were arrested March 7.

Journalistic Honor Won 25 Years Ago

The Banner Was One Paper Out of Nine In Alabama To Be Nationally Honored

To those interested in the achievements past and present as well as to the progress of newspaperdom in the nation, Alabama and Chilton County, the little item carried in this week's Union-Banner under the heading "25 Years Ago," may prove to be of interest.

You will notice in this item, which was printed in The Banner, issue of March 15, 1906, that The Banner was honored with the distinction of being one of only nine newspapers in the State which had made the requisite attainments to have its name placed on the Honor Roll for 1905 of the famous "Printers Ink," a New York publication having for its object the advancement and general survey work of the journals of the nation.

You will notice from the article that "No price could buy a place on this Roll of Honor." This distinction was won by service alone and by actual achievement; and the honor was awarded by uninterested and independent people. All they knew of The Banner and the 237 other newspapers of Alabama was their circulation, community standing, prestige, etc., as obtained from national agencies whose business it was to gather such information. It was from this data alone that The Banner was given this honor away back a quarter of a century ago, when many who now read the paper and are interested in, and enlightened by the various phases of news and human interest had never been born.

The Banner, which was then edited and published by Frank Crichton, was no doubt the first paper ever to bring such a distinction in journalism to this section of Alabama.

Many people in Chilton County had never dreamed that such a broad distinction had been brought to our county and this section of Alabama 25 years ago. But no one ever gets too wise or too old to learn.

Big Goodyear Tire Will Be In Clanton

Biggest Balloon Tire In the World, a Goodyear, Will Be Here On Thursday, March 26

Watch for it! The monster Goodyear tire, 12 feet high and four feet thick, will be in Clanton next Thursday afternoon, March 26th, and until 10 o'clock Friday, March 27. This interesting announcement is made by Dief's Sericve Station, local Goodyear Tire dealers.

The complete intenirary of the big tire for Chilton County is as follows:

At Verbena Service Station at 3 p. m., Thursday, March 26, and will be there one hour.

At Dief's Service Station, Clanton, at 4:45 p. m., Thursday, March 26, and will remain here until 10 a. m., Friday, March 27.

At W. H. Conway's Jemison, 11 a. m., Friday, March 27, and will remain there half an hour.

At Thorsby Filling Station at 12 o'clock Friday, March 27 and will remain there half an hour.

At Nix Service Station, Maplesville, at 1:45 p. m., Friday, March 27, and remain there half an hour.

This big tire is a sight to see. It is the biggest tire ever made. It is a regular Goodyear all-weather tread supertwist cord tire, except for its enormous size. The inner tube alone weighs 125 pounds. It is geared up behind a large passenger automobile and actually rolls over the road as it travels from place to place.

The Goodyear Dealers at the places named above invite the public to come to their places and see the big tire.

Mr. J. F. Jones, of Route 5, was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. A. J. TYUS

On the 13th day of March, death came to the home of Mr. A. J. Tyus and claimed as its victim his wife, Mrs. Maggie Tyus. The age of the deceased was 45 years, 4 months and 16 days.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Culp. She leaves to mourn her going, a husband, A. J. Tyus, seven sons, Julius, Preston, Lewis, Nuel, Bert, Willie, and Ben; one daughter, Mary Elizabeth; a mother, Mrs. C. M. Culp; two brothers, A. J. and J. O. Culp; two sisters, Mrs. G. W. Mullins and Mrs. J. B. Yearyan, besides a host of relatives and friends.

She was a member of the Mt. Pisgah church, joining early in life and holding steadfast to her profession. She will be missed in the church and in the community, but most of all in the home, where the husband will be lonely, and the hearts of the children will be yearning for mother's presence, and mother's love, with only the pleasant thoughts of the past reflecting in their minds.

Mr. Tyus has the sincere sympathy of the many friends of the family and we commend them to God, who alone can comfort them in their sad bereavement.—A Friend.

CHILTON COUNTY POST NO. 6 AMERICAN LEGION

Chilton County Post No. 6 American Legion met in a called meeting Friday night, March 13. There was a good attendance. We were assigned Judson Snead, from Talladega, for our main speaker for the occasion. For some reason he failed to come. But the meeting was not a failure by any means. Our comrade, Prof. L. C. Warr, made a fine address to the Post. Prof. Earle Thomas, vocational agriculture teacher, made an excellent address. Prof. Thomas told the good intentions of the Legion. Also some of his experience while on the front in France and Germany. Some things concerning the war risk insurance was explained by our commander, Joe N. Calloway.

Good music was enjoyed by all, furnished by Chasteen and Culp brothers' string band. They have been playing at our meetings for some time past, and is greatly appreciated by the Post.

The question of organizing the Ladies Auxilliary in connection with our Post was brought up for discussion among the members. We hope to have this unit working in our county in the near future.

All World War veterans are invited to join our Post.

Everybody is invited to meet with us. Our next meeting will be the first Monday night in April. At this meeting plans will be laid for our annual fish fry, which will be some tome in April.

All citizens of Chilton County are invited to meet with us at any and all our meetings, to learn that we will cooperate with them in all just and honorable causes so as to make this County, State and Nation a grander place to live in.—V. C. Mckee, Post Adjt.

CHESTNUT CREEK CHURCH

As last week was a nation-wide study course week, our church, too, had the wonderful opportunity of having a study course that was very much needed and appreciated.

We wish to thank Mr. Cornelius Hand of Clanton very much for teaching the Senior manual; also Miss Lucile Taylor for teaching the Intermediate; and Mrs. Hattie Jones for teaching the Junior manual.

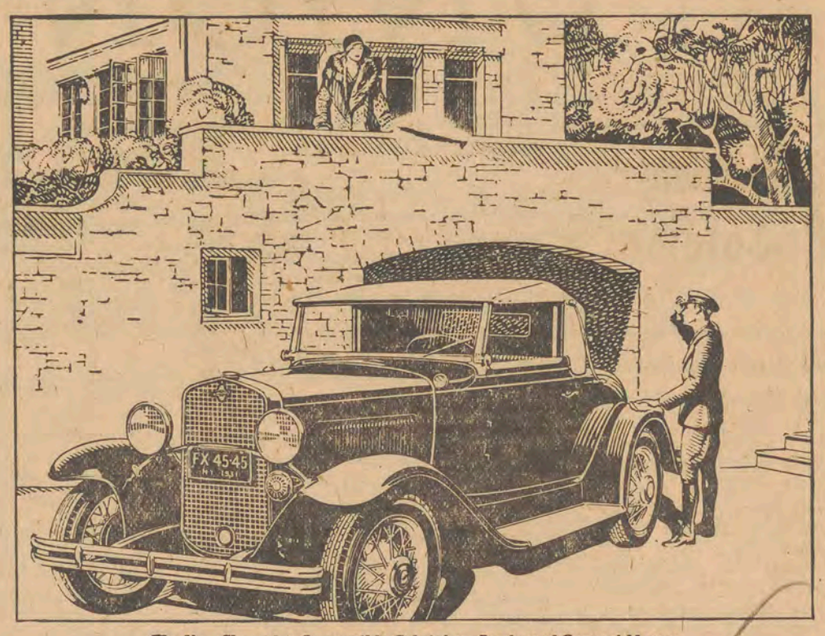
There were 40 who took the course. We are very sorry a few of our members didn't take it. I'm sure they can't realize what they missed. We adopted the standard in each union and are working to be A-1 by the beginning of the new quarter.

After examination Saturday night, and I wish to say here everybody made good grades, we left the church and went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Patterson, where a lively social was enjoyed, and I'm sure I can speak for all, we really had a good time.

We were glad to have all visitors, especially our pastor, Rev. J. S. Hand, and Rev. Ollie Hayes. We welcome yuo back to our B. Y. P. U.

We wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Patterson for allowing us to have the social in their home.—Director.

IN MEMORY OF EDNA BAKER



On last Monday morning, about 6:30, the death angel visited the home of Mr. S. J. Baker, of Sylacauga, and bore away his darling little girl, Edna, which loved them so. Edna would have been eleven years old in April. She leaves to mourn her loss, one little sister, Clio, and a loving mother and father.

We loved her, yes we loved her,
But angels loved her more;
And carried her dear spirit,
To yonder shining shore.

Little friends, weep not for Edna. She has gone on and is waiting just across the shining river. Prepare, and be ready, so that when God calls you, you can meet her again and be a happy family once more.

We used to wonder what would become of the street cleaners of the horseless age. Now we know. They are busy writing biographies of prominent men of the past.

CHILTON SCHOOLS TO FINISH TERMS

At a meeting of the Chilton County Board of Education and teachers from over the county held here last Friday afternoon following the field day program, it was unanimously decided that the schools of this county continue for the full term this year, according to Buford Lawrence, superintendent of education.

When the problem facing the Board, that the local schools being closed on account of shortage of funds, was placed before the teachers, without hesitation they cheered and stated that they would teach the remainder of the term and get their pay when possible.

The teachers declared that they believed the State of Alabama would meet the obligations as soon as possible. They said that they would rather do wihtout their salaries than see the children of Chilton County go without a full school term.

CARD OF THANKS

Freddie Lee Marler, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett E. Marler, was able to be carried home Tuesday evening after spending 18 days at Doctor Wood's office. He has been sick five weeks, had pneumonia, after which an operation for pus on the right lung was necessary.

We sincerely thank Dr. Wood and Dr. McNeil for their attendance; also all who lent a helping hand in any way during the sickness of our baby boy. We pray htat God's blessings may rest on each and every one who helped us during the time of need. And we shall never forget to thank our heavenly Father for hearing and answering our prayers. He is the giver of all good gifts, always ready and willing to help us in time of need, if we will only seek His help and call upon Him in the time of trouble. He surely points out the way, and helps us over the stormy, rough places in life, if we bow in humble submission to Him.

Let his holy spirit dwell in our hearts; have the right of way in our lives; and always remember to keep his great commandments. Then we can always have a friend to call upon in time of trouble that will never fail us, or fail to comfort us in our greatest need. We feel that we could not have possibly kept up and been able to attend to our baby if he had not helped us and been so merciful to us in all our trouble.—Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Marler.

Lesson for March 22

THE USE AND ABUSE OF GOD'S GIFTS.

(Temperance Lesson)

GOLDEN TEXT—And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12:13-48.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us How to Use God's Good Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Tells Us How to Use God's Good Gifts.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Sin of Drunkenness and Gluttony.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Enslaving Power of Strong Drink.

I. Warning Against Covetousness (vv. 13-15).

1. The occasion (v. 13). The occasion of this warning was the request of one of the company that Jesus be the umpire regarding a disputed estate. Two brothers were in trouble over an inheritance.

2. Jesus' reply (v. 14). He said, "Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?" He refused to enter the sphere of the civil law. Christ's mission was pre-eminently spiritual.

3. The warning (v. 15). The clear implication is that if due attention is given to inculcating right principles in the hearts of the people, civic and economic problems will largely adjust themselves.

II. The Parable of a Rich Fool (vv. 16-21).

The parable of this rich planter shows clearly that to be concerned with earthly riches while neglecting God is the height of folly. Observe:

1. The increase of his goods (v. 16). This clearly implies that his riches were rightfully obtained, for the ground brought forth plentifully.

2. His perplexity (v. 17). His land was producing more than his barns would hold. He was at a loss to know what to do. No thrifty man wants to see the legitimate fruits of his toil perish. If he had possessed right views of life and a sense of stewardship before God, he would have seen that his barns had enough for his personal needs and then have distributed the surplus to the needy.

3. His fatal choice (vv. 18, 19). He chose to enlarge his barns and give up his life to ease and luxury. He made plans without consulting God.

4. His awful indictment (vv. 20, 21). God called him a fool. His plans were cut short by an immediate death sentence.

III. The Certain Cure for Anxiety (vv. 22-34).

Having shown the folly of rich men who gained gold and lost God, Jesus now urged the disciples to trust God and dismiss all anxious care.

1. The argument (vv. 22, 23). It is summed up in one brief sentence. "The life is more than meat and body is more than raiment."

2. The illustrations (vv. 24-28). (a) God's care for the fowls (vv. 24-26). The ravens do not sow nor reap. They have not storehouse nor barn yet they live, for God feeds them. If God does not forget the fowls, certainly he will do more for his children. (b) God's care for the flowers of the field (vv. 27, 28). If God is so careful of the flowers which appear but for a day, how much more will he clothe his children?

3. The exhortations (vv. 29-34). (a) The getting of food and clothes should not be man's chief concern. (b) Seek the kingdom of God (v. 31). Those who make God's kingdom first shall have all their needs supplied (Phil. 4:19). (c) Be not afraid (v. 32). God's good pleasure is upon his own, and all good things he will give. (d) Practice self-denial in order to be able to give to those in need (vv. 33, 34).

IV. Be Ready for the Coming of the Lord (vv. 35-48).

Having warned the disciples against the acquisition of worldly goods while forgetting God, and shown them the needlessness of anxiety for food and clothing, he showed them the blessedness of being in a state of readiness when the Lord shall come. This attitude of heart he made clear by two parables:

1. That of the returning lord (vv. 35-37). The Lord will be so pleased with those who are waiting for him that he will take delight in sitting at the banquet with them and even serving them.

2. The thief in the night (vv. 38-40). This parable shows that the time of the Lord's coming is not known. The proper thing is to be ready.

3. Reward will be given to the faithful (vv. 41-48). The faithful servant will be promoted at the coming of the Lord. Awful judgment will be meted out upon the unfaithful servant.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

WINTER LEGUME CAUTION STATED

Auburn, Ala., March 16.—In order to get the best returns from their winter legumes farmers are being asked by county agents and by the experiment station at Auburn not to plow them under too early this spring. On the other hand, they are advised not to wait too long.

The work should be done when sufficient growth is made to supply as much nitrogen as will be needed during the year. If turned too early the supply of nitrogen will be inadequate; and if the work is delayed too long it will become difficult and it may interfere with corn and other crops that follow.

Farmers who are in doubt as to when to do this work are advised to consult their county agents. The Alabama Experiment Station has made a thorough study of this subject and county agents have been informed as to the results of these studies.

With a warm winter conditions generally were favorable to the winter legume crop but growth is reported to be short of expectations. Probably lack of sufficient moisture in the soil during much of the winter retarded growth.

Last fall Alabama farmers planted a large acreage to Austraian peas and hairy vetch. A very large part of these crops promises to supply all the nitrogen needed if allowed to make sufficient growth. One danger this year is that farmers are anxious to get started early, and this is tempting them to plow under legumes prematurely.

CITIZENS' MILITARY TRAINING CAMP

Major S. R. Tupper, U. S. Army, Birmingham, in charge of enrollment for citizens' military training camps in Alabama, has been informed by the commanding general of the Fourth Corps area that Alabama filled its allotted quota on February 28th, being the third state in the union to enroll the designated number.

The Alabama boys and young men selected for these camps will receive four weeks training at an army post at the expense of the government.

Early enrollment has been stressed by Major Tupper to insure acceptance on account of the large number of applicants throughout the Fourth Corps area, which consists of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Florida. Only 4,400 applicants can be accepted from the entire corps area. To date more than 1,000 have been received from Alabama boys.

Major Tupper states that the unprecedented response this year was due to the assistance and cooperation of educators, public officials, the various county chairmen and their assistants and newspapers.

According to Major Tupper, vacancies still exist in a few counties and interested young men should get in touch with him immediately.

ORGANIZED PROGRAM FOR SWEET POTATOES

Group of Growers Will Unite On One Variety For Shipment In Car Load Lots

County Agent Stapp announces an interesting program with a group of farmers who have gone in together for growing a special variety of sweet potatoes for shipment to northern markets in car load lots. The variety to be used is known as the Big Stem Jersey, which is a dry mealy potato that has a very popular demand in the markets of the north.

The seed have already been obtained from Virginia, and have been bedded. Specially constructed beds have been built so that they may be heated by furnace method and some of the potatoes are already sprouting.

According to Mr. Stapp, the plans of this group of farmers are to have their potatoes ready to dig by the first of August, when they will be shipped to market in car load lots. This potato has always brought a good price on the northern markets, Mr. Stapp says. While the price may be a little lower than usual this year, he believes this group of farmers will be able to place them at a profit.

Anyway, it is a move in the right direction. Our farmers have some good opportunities awaiting them if they will get together on this and other similar projects.

Following is the list of farmers which are grouped in this potato program: C. M. Lawrence, W. C. Robinson, Aubrey Robinson, J. R. Scott, R. L. Johnson, Gulledge Bros., J. N. Dennis, J. Z. Mims, C. J. Patterson, Richard Turpin (colored), J. L. Smith, R. M. Roper, J. D. Sutley, W. L. Popwell, J. W. Bradberry, J. P. Montgomery, J. H. Jackson, T. F. Patterson, T. C. McSwain, Nathan Miner, Jess Mitchell, J. A. Moates, Lee Moates, Isaac Moates, Harvey Baker, Ellis Cleckler. A similar group is working on a project of the same kind at Thorsby, but we were unable to get their names.

LONG HOURS FOR FORESTRY WORKERS

Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 16.—A working day of nearly ten hours in length was the lot that befell the field agents and patrolmen of the State Forestry Department during the calendar year 1930, according to the compilations of the Commission of Forestry. The exact length of service each day averaged 9.8 hours, this period of duty being necessitated chiefly on account of the conditions resulting from the long drought.

The State Forestry Department operates under contract with the United State Government in the promotion and advancement of timber growing on the 23,000,000 acres of forest land within the State.. In order to do its part with the limited funds provided by the State appropriation, it is necessary for the field force of the department to make extraordinary efforts. In droughty years this responsibility rests quite heavily upon the comparatively small number of men engaged. In 1924, the first year of the department's work, the average hours per day worked by the field employees was 8.9; in 1925 the figure rose to 9.1; in 1926 it went to 9.4; in 1927 the average hours per day reached 9.7; in 1928 the figure was 9.6, and in 1929, an exceptionally favorable year, the number of hours worked averaged 9.5.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD GARDEN EXPLAINED

Auburn, Ala., March 16.—Production of all the vegetables which a family will need is neither difficult nor expensive in Alabama. Half an acre of rich ground, seed, and work are the essentials.

Julian Brown, horticulturist for the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is authority for this statement. "During the next few weeks," he added, "many of the following vegetables should be found growing in every home garden: Asparagus, beans, beets, brussels sprouts, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, chard, collards, kale, kohl-rabi, lettuce, mustard, onions, parsnips, English peas, Irish potatoes, radishes, spinach, turnips, tendergreens cucumbers, eggplants, squash, peppers, and tomatoes.

"Set at least 50 crowns of Mary Washington asparagus in one side of the garden at an early date. For a good supply of leafy vegetables plant turnips, tendergreens, mustard, spinach, and lettuce. Plant all of these at once and fertilize liberally with nitrogen to rush to edible sizes. Plant one of the spring types of spinach, such as bloomsdale, king of Denmark, or aragon. Plant the New Zealand later in the spring. For head lettuce, plant a variety such as Iceberg or New York. Bog Boston is a good variety for those not so anxious to produce crisp heads.

"For root crops, plant a good supply of carrots, radishes, beets, and parsnips. If you do not grow a fall crop of Irish potatoes, plant enough this spring to supply you until next year. Nothing is so easily grown and yet so important as a good supply of Irish potatoes at all times.

"The cucumbers, peppers, eggplant, squash, and tomatoes should not be planted or set in the fields until danger of frost is over. However, you may use "hot-kaps" or some other such means of protection for these young plants and thus have them reach maturity much earlier."

IMPROVEMENT WORK IS POPULAR PROJECT

Auburn, Ala., March 16.—On the farms of Alabama attention is being turned to the improvement of the landscape as never before, according to recent reports received from the home demonstration agents.

Trees, shrubs, and flowers have been planted in large numbers during the late winter and early spring and more are to be planted, the reports revealed. The aim is to make homes beautiful and attractive. This should increase the appreciation of the owners of the homes and add other advantages, the home agents said.

In addition to trees, shrubs, and flowers, grass is being planted as a basis for a beautiful lawn. Most of the plantings are being made according to plans which the owners and home demonstration agents have prepared.

Stimulation of the work followed immediately a series of thre landscape schools for home demonstration agents conducted by Sam Brewster, extension landscape specialist at Auburn. Practical landscape improvement was taught at these schools, following which many of the home demonstration extension workers will make it a major project. Homes and schools are being used for demonstrations.

Where the work is being promoted on a systematic plan it is very fruitful, the reports reveal. Farm women and girls are especially attracted by it.

FERTILIZER TAG SALES ARE OFF 51 PER CENT

Fertilizer tag sales through March 14 this year amounted to 135,300 tons compared with 379,750 tons to the same date last year, reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries. This is a 51.7 per cent decrease.

Commissioner Storrs also stated that the tag sales to March 14, 1929 amounted to 286,350 tons.

We've started a perfect frenzy of face-cleaning

It's all our fault, we know, in making Golden Peacock Cleansing Creme so inviting. The minute women sniff its delicate perfume, they want to put their fingers into it. And the moment they dip their fingers into its smooth, cool creaminess, they simply can't resist putting it on their faces.

The result is that faces are growing unbelievably clean—and wonderfully lovely. So smooth and soft and clear-skinned. So enchantingly well-cared-for. And—here's the big secret—they are getting whiter and fairer, for Golden Peacock Cleansing Creme has a special whitening ingredient. Ask for it at toiletry counter.

STATISTICIAN SAYS "GROW MORE HOGS"

F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician is advising Alabama farmers to grow more hogs for market and home use.

"With cotton on January 1st at 77 per cent of its 1910-14 price and hogs at 114 farmers cannot grow cotton to buy meat," he said. "And certainly hogs for market are more profitable at present prices than cotton."

"The hog industry is expected to be in a more favorable position next summer and at fall because of slightly smaller supplies, lower feed costs, and probably some improvement in domestic demand." The number of hogs to be marketed this spring and summer may be 2,000,000 head less than a year ago, but ther is a weaker demand for hog products, and prices will probably average lower than a year earlier.

FREE OF SHORT STAPLE COTTON BY 1931 IS GOAL

Florence, Ala.—Lauderdale County farmers have adopted as their slogan, "Free of short staple cotton by 1932." They mean by this that they will produce no cotton shorter than 7-8 of an inch, said G. B. Phillips, county agent. They have selected the D. P. L. 4-8 variety. It produces good staple and makes a large yield per acre.

THE PRINCIPLE BEHIND THE VOTE

The United States Chamber of Commerce recently conducted a referendum among its members as to their views on retaining in private ownership the development and distribution of electrical power. The result is interesting.

In the survey 1,147 commercial organizations and trade associations holding memberships in the Chamber cast about 3,000 votes and registered an overwhelming majority against the government competing with private enterprise.

It will be asserted that business would naturally vote against government competition. That is true, for business which must furnish the capital that creates the industries which employ the labor of this nation knows that private citizens and investors cannot compete with government owned, tax-exempt business. Government has the power to crush any competition through taxation, or tax subsidization of its own business ventures.

Business also knows that if government once enters the power business, a mad rush will be on to put the government into other lines of business and thereby extend the hand of officialism and bureaucracy into all branches of industry. During this process business men know that taxes would increase in direct proportion to the taxes lost to government as one enterprise after another became tax-exempt under government ownership.

Commenting on the vote of the local Chamber, the Sioux Falls, South Dakota Leader uses good logic when it says:

"The Chamber of Commerce has acted sensibly but what an uproar its recommendations will cause among radical advocates of public ownership! Not being able to understand a position of sincere opposition to their ideas, they will immediately conclude that the Chamber of Commerce has been purchased, body and soul, by the wicked power trust—Yet saner minds will realize that the Chamber of Commerce is composed of the best business men in Sioux Falls. They are students of economic questions and problems. They are well aware of the expensive inefficiency of governmental invasions into the field of private enterprise."

And that is about the whole story. It is not a case of "power trust" or government ownership, but a question of individual and business freedom as contrasted with specialization of industry, and the resulting destruction of individual initiative, enterprise and opportunity.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One of the most significant features of the world-wide depression is the seeming unanimity of opinion both here and in Europe that the march out of the slough of despond out on to the high road of prosperity must be led by Uncle Sam. There may be disagreement as to how this should be done but the opinion is almost unanimous that Uncle Sam must do it.

Of course there are differences of opinion on the subject and in general the European opinion differs from the opinion in this country, although there are of course, a great many internationalists here who, as is customary, agree with their European brothers. It seems to be the European idea—and the internationalist idea in America—that Uncle Sam should cancel the war debts, wipe out his tariff protection, and join either directly or indirectly the League of Nations, so plunging himself into the European political avalanche in an effort to stabilize it.

Needless to say Americans who have the real interest of their country at heart do not agree with this internationalist theory. They believe that the results of the adoption of such a policy would be disastrous not only to America, but in the long run, to Europe as well. Cancelling the war debts would not wipe them out but would merely transfer the burden of payment from Europe to the shoulders of American taxpayers. It is much more probable it would only release additional funds abroad to be spent on preparing for the next war in Europe.

It is doubtful whether eliminating our protective tariffs would do Europe a great deal of good in the long run. The American market is the richest market in the world because the American worker, through the high wage system in vogue here is able to purchase commodities which few European workers ever dream of buying. But flooding the American market with cheap foreign goods would close American factories and cripple American buying power so that our market would no longer be the rich field that it now is, and Europeans might find eventually that they had killed the goose which laid the golden egg. It is not to be forgotten that even now, sixty per cent of our imports come in duty free and that many European industries are suffering at the present time because the American market has been curtailed not so much by the tariff as by the world-wide depression.

Most sound Americans believe, on the other hand, that Uncle Sam can be of most benefit to the world if he will get his own house in order first. To do this he must get his own factories to running full blast, and his own people back at work. For it is to be remembered that we consume in America about ninety per cent of the things we produce, and it would be the height of folly to go off on a European junketing trip looking for sometihng at the end of the rainbow, when we have the richest market in the world at home. That it is the home market which finally must sustain us is supported, for instance, by the statements of Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board to the effect that we must get our wheat production on a domestic basis, if our wheat farmers are to prosper.

Now after prosperity is restored in America our people will have money to buy not only our own products but the things which come to us from Europe and other lands. Better times may then spread to Europe and the other continents. Certainly burdening our people with additional taxes through debt cancellation, destroying our industries through lower tariffs, and upsetting our political equilibrium by getting into European politics will not help in the least.

A FABLE OF CONTENTMENT

A certain man, not rich as the world counts riches, had two children whom he loved dearly, and for whom he craved the best that life has to offer.

"Since I cannot buy beautiful things for you," he told them, a little sadly, "I shall try to teach you to see and lope beauty wherever it exists in the world around you."

So he walked with them in the woods and fields and by the riverside, and showed them many marvels which they had looked at, but had never really seen before—the silver sheen of young oats; the intricately-woven cradle of the oriole; the bark of the crape myrtle, tinted like old ivory; the slender sickle of the day-old moon.

The children's playthings, too, were lovely things; mussel shells, lined with mother-of-pearl; chaplets strung of polished ruby and amber seeds; the flowers and grasses that hide away from careless, trampling feet.

"We have few coins in our purse," the father would say, "but see the silver that rims the clouds before the sun; on the surface of the lake where the light touches it; on the under side of the green bay leaf. Was ever satin soft as the petals of the wild rose, velvet of so deep a pile as that of the mullen leaves?"

On winter evenings, the three found pictures in the embers, or talked intimately of the friends in the old books upon the shelves—shabby but priceless. Best of all, they played the dictoonary game, that made words come alive.

In the fullness of time, the father was called away. One who named herself a friend came to condole and advise. "I wish he had left you a large, fine home like mine," she said.

"Our house seems large to us," the daughters replied, "for it holds so many things of value."

"But," the visitor objected, "you have no handsome furniture nor silver, no fine paintings on the walls."

"Your pictures are but copies," the younger girl said. "Our western windows frame the originals of Turner's most gorgeous sunsets; oaks such as Rousseau loved to paint. a landscape lovelier than Corot's masterpiece. On the sycamore by our gate you may see mosiacs more marvelous than the rarest product of Byzantine art."

"You talk nonsense," retorted the consoling one petulantly as she rose to go. "At least you will admit that a legacy of money would have made you happy—comforted you in old age."

The older daughter looked at the caller in amazement, as she opened the door. "My sistre and I are very happy," she said, softly, "and richer than anyone we know. When we were but small children our father found for us the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow." — Columbia State.

AMERICA SEEN FROM ABROAD

One of the most curious results of business depression in the United States is its stimulus of British confidence in their own social and economic system. For a decade at least the British have become accustomed to regard Americans as possessing an economic magic which produced wealth without limit and precluded the dangers of poverty or suffering. This bred a discontent with the historic system of Great Britain, emphasized by the gradual decline of British trade and transfer of the world's financial capital from London to New York.

Just now the English are hearing and reading accounts of America's difficulties, in their press and from returning visitors. Some of their information is faulty, most of it exaggerated, but the essential point is present—that the United States, like any other industrial country, has not yet learned to manage its economic system without frequent maladjustments.

Thus it is that our transatlantic cousins are developing a new confidence in their own political and econmoic system. Meantime America is fumbling tentatively with social insurance and governmental devices to stimulate foreign trade, which, if the cards have been read aright, can be hel dresponsible in considerable measure for Britain's plight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FROM SHEEP TO WOLF

It is reported that higher gas taxes are being sought in about half of the 44 states whose legislatures meet this year.

This is one problem that should find the oil industry and the motorist in perfect accord. The gas tax has unquestionably been a good thing in that it has helped build highways—but a good thing can be done to death. And that is exactly what is happening to the gas tax.

Government expenses are constantly on the rise. Property owners, security owners, businesses, builders—all are staggering beneath a weight of taxes. As a result, many legislators get the bright idea that another cent on the gas tax will raise revenue without, at the same time, causing public revolt.

This may have been true in the past, but the revolt has come. A tax which amounts to twenty or thirty per cent of the price of a product is almost confiscatory, and in addition an increasing number of states have used the gas tax for purposes other than roads. The motorist, once a sheep, is rapidly turning into a wolf, with his eye on the legislators who are advocating higher gas taxes.

Drastic action is necessary, before, as one writer says, "You will hear some galoot of an officeholder telling how he has 'reduced taxes,' meaning that he has stolen so much from the gasoline tar fund that the general property taxes were not needed that year."

Vital statistics show that pepole today enjoy longer lives than did those of previous generations. The old assertion that worry shortens existence loses force when it is considered that at present the human race has more to worry about than it has had in many years.—Washington Star.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

There is so much rubbish and clinkers around that we hardly see where we will have much time to chat with you this week. However, we will try to give you an idea of a few of the things we have been thinking about during the past week.

While we have been meandering around our town after night for the past few nights we have been more forcibly impressed than ever before with the need of a "white way" in our down-town business section. We have reference to that part of sixth and seventh streets, and first and second avenues which form the boundaries of Block 10, Seventh Street from Second Avenue north to Fourth Avenue; Second Avenue from Seventh Street to Eighth Street at the Hotel Wilson.

Such a system would certainly increase the appearance of our little city, make it look like the home of progressive business men, and in the hands of a competent set of city fathers, as well as create a favorable impression with the people who chance to pass through after night.

The expense of installation is very small compared with the benefits derived therefrom, and maintenance and operation is negligible. It would appear to The Sweeper that the gentleman in charge of the affairs of the City of Clanton could formulate some plan whereby we could have such a system of white-way lights as is befitting a city of our size and ability.

It is certainly amusing at times to stand on the streets of Clanton, or any other town, as for that matter, and observe the number of people one sees, who, to make use of an old saw, are from Missouri. We were standing on the corner a few days ago near a store front which had recently been treated to a new coat of paint. There were severel "Fresh Paint" signs tacked here and there to warn the public. It was amusing to watch the people read the sign, then carefully touch the paint with the tip of one finger, and then the entire hand, sometimes being rewarded with a handful of wet paint for their curiosity and disbelief in signs.

We have just recently been an unwilling listener to some harsh words by and between friends. This reminds us of a little verse we memorized when in the sixth grade at school, the author of which we have forgotten, but the lesson conveyed therein has always stuck with us. We pass it along for your consideration.

Angry words can do no good,
And blows are dealt in blindness;
Words are better understood,
If spoken in kindness.

As The Sweeper drove into town last Saturday afternoon, we were forced to suddenly stop, jam on our brakes and block traffic for half a block, all because one of those huge motor freight busses had Seventh Street almost closed while they delivered their cargo to one of the local stores. This brings to our mind a subject which The Pottor, a former contributor to these columns, discussed at some length last year. Could we not have some ordinance or traffic regulation that would force these huge trucks and also the passenger busses to provide a terminal located in some place where their operations would not block the traffic on the narrowest street in the city. The Railroads provide such places for their operations and we see no reason why the passenger busses and freight vans should be allowed to clutter up our streets and cause traffic jams.

Let's see some concerted action on the part of the authorities who are clothed with the power to enforce such regulations as may be necessary to a disposal of this inconvenience. We would also like to see the citizens of the city bring influence to bear with these authorities in the matter of clearing our streets of these hazards.

We would like to pass along to our readers a little poem which we think exoresses a very fine sentiment. We ran across this a few days ago and no author is given, but we feel that everyone should know it, and the feeling expressed is one that it would be well if we would all cultivate for our fellowman:

If lillies wed with roses,
And snow-time wed with June;
If Autumn wed with April,
And sunlight with the moon;
And their children inter-married,
Till came the blend of year;
Sweet with the joy of loving,
And sanctified with tears.
From out this evolution,
There came just one;
To embody all those graces, and mark it true,
I'd swear that one was you.

Here is some "information" for you. We have been wondering all this week just what was making us feel the way we have for the past few weeks. Well, one of the boys in the "shop" looked over our shoulder as we were writing the above poem, and come forward with the information that we had the "spring fever." We have been saved the doctor bill. For this we thank you, Courtland!

Got to be sweepin'.—The Sweeper.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS

By Jay Taylor

The Congressional Record published recently views of Senator Smoot on the proposed cancellation of war debts owed to the United States by foreign governments. The following are a few statements the Senator made on the subject:

"The United States government has been lenient with the debtor nations of Europe."

"The settlement with France was at about 50 cents on the dollar, and Italy is paying only 28 cents for every dollar originally owed."

"The method of funding reduced interest charges in some cases to extremely low figures. Belgium was allowed an interest rate of 1 8-10 per cent; France, 1 6-10 per cent; Italy, 4-10 of one per cent, and even Great Britain, the strongest of the debtor nations, pays only 3 3-10 per cent.

"Besides giving these governments such easy terms, the United States allows them 62 years in which to pay. No more liberal terms could be asked for."

"The settlement with Great Britain calls for annual average payments equivalent to 4 6-10 per cent of the total British budget expenditures; Belgium devotes only 3 1-2 per cent of its budget expenditures for this purpose, and Italy five per cent.

"This government asked and received no spoils from the war. It spent billions of dollars and lost thousands of lives for the sake of reestablished peace. Now that peace has been restored, it is manifestly unfair to expect American taxpayers to shoulder the financial burdens incurred by other nations interested in the same cause.

"I regret to find that some Americans who do not feel the pinch of taxation on meager incomes, are advocating a transfer of Europe's rebts to our own people. I propose to resist their efforts and to stand firmly against any further cancellation of war debts."

Some of the president of our leading universities seem to be more interested in getting foreign decorations than in teaching their students the fundamentals of American citizenship.

Senator Penrose once said that he was spending most of his time contending with perspiring patriots who were trying to put the tax on the other fellow. We have a few of the same kind with us today.

The Man on the Corner had the pleasure last week of a trip to Mobile with County Agent, C. E. Stapp. We went on a mission in the interest of the Kiwanis Club. Stapp, as you know, is Lieutenant Governor of the Fourth Division of the Alabama Kiwanis District. He has supervision of the clubs at Mobile, Montgomery, Selma, Demopolis, and Clanton. We found a very large and active group of Mobile business and professional men associated together in the Kiwanis Club, about 165 of them in all.

Went By Way of Selma

It is about six hours drive (for Stapp) from Clanton to Mobile, by way of Selma. From Selma to Orrville the road is being paved. Detours had to be made, but with no trouble. From Orrville on down the road there was nothing of much event. Just a nice graveled road over which one may run just as fast as his nerves can stand. We stopped at Grove Hill to have a puncture fixed. While there we met the town character, the community joke-teller. And before we got away we found out that he is Clarke County's representative in the Legislature, Mr. Coates. He was still wearing his red rooster campaign button. He knows Percy Pitts, of course. There is somebody everywhere who knows our own Representative.

Through Washington County

The next thing that impressed us was our passage through Washington County, where we saw evidences of the care that is given to forestry preservation. We thought of Massey Edgar and the active work he has been doing in that line for his county. We concluded that it is perfectly reasonable for Washington County to be vitally interested in forestry preservation, because from what we saw along the road, one would judge that the forests is all there is in that part of the country. No signs of fires in the woods in Washington County. A forest fire there would be a terror in those woods that haven't been burned over for many years.

Finally Got Into Mobile

With some difficulty we got into the city of Mobile, after getting considerably mixed up with the various streets and avenues. When we disembarked at the Battle House and went in to supper, we met up with Billy Barton, the nitrate man. Billy now travels over the country selling nitrates for fertilizer. He was some years ago County Agent of Autauga County. He married Miss Kate Deramus, of Verbena. They live in Montgomery. After supper Billy and Stapp and I went to a picture show.

With Kiwanis Club Wednesday

The meeting with the Kiwanis Club was at noon Wednesday. The club meeting place is at the Battle House. It was the biggest single club meeting I have ever been in. Compared with our little club at Clanton, the Mobile crowd looks like some kind of a convention when they all get together at luncheon. Among the celebrities who are on the member list of the Mobile club are Leon Schwarz, Mayor of our Gulf City. He is a little man who does big things. On the card he handed me I noticed his title was printed "Mayor of Mobile, Alabama, U. S. A."

On the Way Back Home

We pulled out of Mobile at three o'clock Wednesday, scheduled to get to Clanton at nine that night. Our plans didn't work so well, however. We got back home at four o'clock Thursday, after spending Wednesday night and up to noon Thursday in Evergreen. Car trouble delayed us. But we enjoyed our stay in Evergreen. The capital city of Conecuh county is the best looking small city we saw on the trip. Looks like it is about as progressive as Clanton. Indications are that the surrounding country is a good farming district, with diversification well planned.

Play Day Here Last Friday

I am glad I got back home in time to see the great army of school children who were here for annual play day Friday. Never thought about being so many children in our county. The parade was a mile long, and they marched four abreast. A delightful day for the children, and a great satisfaction to the school authorities who planned the occasion. It takes good head work to carry out a program with four thousand children taking part, and not make a bobble anywhere.

Optimism in Our School Business

I am gratified to find that a spirit of optimism pervades the official side of the school business of Chilton County. Superintendent Lawrence said to me: We are approaching the end of the year's school work with the most optimistic spirit I have ever seen. We have made good progress in our schools this year, and I want to say that it is due to the splendid cooperation that has been shown by parents, pupils, and teachers. This means that our schools are moving upward toward betters conditions, and it ought to make everybody feel proud.

From Friend Bill on Route 7

A letter from our friend, Bill, out on Route 7, says to The Sweeper, just hold your broom still while you read this. It is not dusty, but it may be a little hot. I admire your paper, the Cinder Pile and The Man on the Corner. Read last week's corner where one business man of Clanton said the soldiers were spending their money for whisky and automobiles. He must run some other kind of business than those two he mentioned. This is March and pretty windy. Move the Man on the Corner to a better place. He is getting dust in his eyes; and from that reply of the business man, looks like he is getting some dirt in his ears.

Bill Keeps on "Billing"

Our friend Bill says he wonders if the aforementioned business man bought a dozen eggs and the first one he broke was rotten, would he turn right in and throw the whole dozen away, taking it for granted all of them were rotten because the first one was. Bill says he is a disabled veteran of the World War, and wears a silver button given him by the War Department. He says he spends every cent of his compensation check every month in Chilton. He is a new comer, has started farming, and likes Chilton County very much.

Band Boys Played for WAPI

Concluding his interesting letter Bill says he carried the Clanton string band to Birmingham recently where they played for WAPI. The band is composed of Rube Chasteen, Winston and Alton Culp. That trip, he says, was made possible by the American Legion. Write again, Friend Bill.

Life was much simpler for our forefathers. They didn't have to wade through lengthy reports of commissions that didn't get anywhere. —Milwaukee Journal.

Reading between the lines, the navy reprimand to General Butler said, "Think what you dang please, but keep your trap shut."—Ohio State Journal.

The schedule shows a drought in 1930, a possible extra session in 1931 and a national election in 1932. We couldn't give the seven-year locusts a date till '33.—Detroit News.

McDANIEL WYATT

The death of McDaniel Wyatt Monday night brought to a close the earthly career of a man whose simple and beautiful life has been a blessing to everyone who had the good fortune to know him. The end came peacefully about eleven o'clock, after an illness of three weeks with pneumonia. As his loved ones stood beside his bed and watched his eyes close into eternal rest, it was as a sweet calm after the storm.

He had lived a life that had carried him through some rugged places, strenuously engaging the conflicts that came his way, and always maintaining a sweet spirit and cheerful disposition. His family and intimate friends have ever been impressed by his unusual ability to see the bright side of every perplexing situation. He never failed to see the light of the sun that was shining behind every dark cloud of his life.

McDaniel Wyatt was 73 years of age. He was born and reared in the Providence community, in Beat 16, where he lived until 31 years ago, when he moved to a farm about a mile east of Clanton. About six years ago he left his farm and moved to Clanton. He was the oldest son of Francis Marion Wyatt, who died about 25 years ago, and Jane Popwell Wyatt, who died in 1929. Surviving him are his wife, Rebecca Ann Parrish Wyatt; five sons Monroe, Will, Reuben, George and Mack, all of Clanton; two daughters, Mrs. G. C. Armstrong and Mrs. W. B. Cox, of Clanton. One of his sons, John T. Wyatt, died in the U. S. Navy during the World War.

Three sisters and three brothers survive him. They are Mrs. Dora Dupree of Montgomery; Mrs. J. J. Maddox, of Clanton; Mrs. W. W. Robinson, of Providence; Reuben, Jim and Tom Wyatt all of Clanton.

Mell Martin had charge of the burial at Concord Tuesday afternoon. The funeral was conducted by Rev. G. G. Williams, Rev. S. J. Ezell, and Rev. M. J Parrish.

For many years Mr. Wyatt had been a member of the Baptist Church first at Providence and later at Concord, where his membership remained until his death. He was a devout Christian man. His first great purpose in life was to live right himself. Next to that he was interested in helping everybody else to live right. The golden rule was his plan of life. Noble men, loved and respected as he was, are the result of such purposes as he had in life.

The children of Clanton will miss him much. He was known and loved by many of them. To everyone he was "Grandpa." As they passed his home on the way to and from school, he took special interest in greeting them with some word of cheerfulness every day.

We who come after this good man well may strive to emulate his noble example. No higher hope of reward could we have than that we might come to the end of our earthly ways with the peaceful benediction that was his, the crowning glory that awaits all who will take up their cross and follow humbly in the footsteps of Jesus.—A Friend.

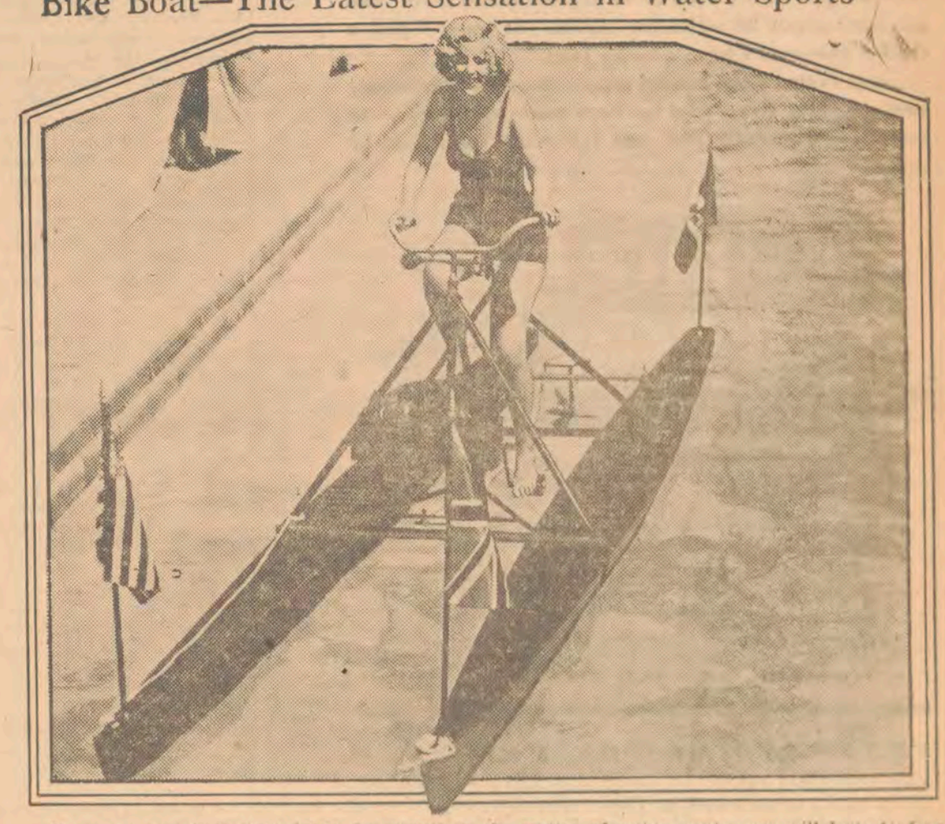
Ukulele Played at Both Poles by Explorer

Famous Musician Takes Hawaiian Instrument on Polar Tours

New York City.—Dick Konter has played music farther north and south than any other human being. He accompanied the Byrd expeditions to the North and South poles and was within seven hundred fifty miles of the northern and southern extremities of the earth. Accompanying him was his ukelele!



"American dance music is the only music with universal appeal," says Konter. "Neither the Esquimaux nor the Maoris got anything out of high class music. It was only when we played syncopation that they became interested in the ukulele."

Konter taught a class of Maori girls in the southernmost part of New Zealand and also had a class of Esquimaux girls beyond the Arctic Circle. "Try as I might, I could not get them interested in anything but rhythm," he explains. "They all like dreamy southern songs of the mammy variety, though I was surprised to hear the Maoris singing the 'Stein Song.'

"'Alabama Lullaby,' a mammy waltz song which a friend sent me also made a great hit in the Antarctic. It was quite a sight to see hundreds of Maoris dancing to this pleasant piece."

Konter is one of the few men who made both poles with Byrd. He is an ex-navy man and between polar jaunts teaches ukelele which he learned first-hand in the Hawaiian Islands.

Bike Boat—The Latest Sensation in Water Sports

If you want to keep right up to the minute in the matter of water sports, you will have to forget speed boating, aquaplaning, and beget yourself a Bike-Boat.

Coming to us from Europe, where they have been very popular at the various ocean inland and water places, these cycles have taken a firm grip on the American sport loving public.

The Bike-Boats, as illustrated, consist of twin pontoons ranging in size from 10 to 14 ft. long, on which are mounted a cycling machine operating an underwater propeller, and is operated exactly like a bicycle. These boats have been found to be of great advantage in reducing, marvelous sport for children, lifesaving, etc. And as a manner of transportation, need more be said than that in 1923 a woman crossed the English channel in 8 hours on a day so rough that it took some of the steamers almost 4 hours to make a passage, ordinarily negotiated in 2 hours.

Harry Kramer, director of the Bike-Boat Ltd. of New York City, believes from his experience in Europe, and already in the United States, that the adaptability of these boats, which are unsinkable, uncapsizable and unseasickable, will supplant canoes. The models have been made to accommodate one and two passengers.

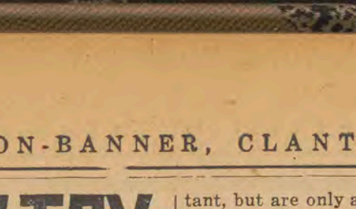
"14 FEEDS IN EVERY THIMBLEFULL"

"Not corn alone—not wheat, oats, buttermilk, and meal thrown together—or too much emphasis on vitamins—but balance, the proper proportion of ingredients to get results, that's today's message to poultrymen who buy feed," say the research men in Purina Mills' laboratories whose life work it is to find out just what things chicks need and just how much of each they must have to live and grow.

"We've heard so much talk about vitamins," they say, "that some of us begin to think that vitamins are the only things necessary in a feed. They're important, mighty important, but are only a part of the things needed. Chicks also need carbohydrates, proteins, fats, fiber, and minerals.

"A chick can eat only a tiny bit of feed each day—just a thimbleful—and that bit must do the job of building bones, muscles, and tissues—make feathers out of fluff — make pullets out of chicks. And since baby chicks can store food for so few hours, it's important that they get every day all the things needed for life and growth."



So in making a baby chick feed these man determined first what chicks needed, then searched for grains, minerals, oils, and other ingredients to meet these needs.

After much research, codliver oil, dried buttermilk, alfalfa leaf meal, yellow corn meal, granulated meal, wheat middlings, wheat bran, linseed meal, corn germ meal, oat middlings, salt, bone meal, calcum carbonate, and wheat germ meal were brought together. Taking a little of one, more of another, and so on, they brought about a combination that would give chicks not too much—not too little, but just the amount of each ingredient needed for life and growth. Then it was mixed over and over again to make every bit alike.

Were they satisfied? Not entirely, so they fed this combination of ingredients to shipment after shipment of chicks at the experimental farm for a solid year, making it prove-up in every detail and under every condition, before being announced to poultrymen.

Then, to verify in a practical way the work done in the laboratories and on the experimental farm, records were kept last year on 1,834,513 baby chicks all over the United States. Ninety-two out of every 100 lived, and they weighed 17 ounces at six weeks, a quarter of a pound more than the average chick weighs.

What did this mean? To the farmers keeping the records it meant 458,628 more pounds of broiler meat in six weeks. Valued at 30c a pound, it meant an extra income of $137,588.40. To the research men who had spent years in searching for ingredients, testing them, weighing them, experimentally feeding combinations of them, and calculating their results to fractions of a pound, it meant another victory—an achievement which would give baby chicks the right to live—and give to poultrymen full returns for the money invested in those chicks.

More than 73,000 miles in a New Ford

THE substantial worth of the new Ford is reflected in its good performance, economy and reliability. Its stamina and endurance are particularly apparent in sections where bad roads and severe weather put a heavy extra burden on the automobile.

In less than a year a new Ford Tudor Sedan was driven more than seventy-three thousand miles over a difficult route. The operating cost per mile was very low and practically the only expense for repairs was for new piston rings and a new bearing for the generator.

The car carried an average load of 1200 pounds of mail and was driven 250 miles daily. "The Ford has never failed to go when I was ready," writes one of the three mail carriers operating the car. "The starter did the trick last winter even at 34 degrees below zero. The gas runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer whenever I have a bulky load."

Many other Ford owners report the same satisfactory performance. Every part has been made to endure — to serve you faithfully and well for many thousands of miles.

WATCHING THE WORLD

(By John Dudley McCready)

Flying Against Fate

The manifold benefits of science to humanity are suggested by a recent airplane flight in Alaska. From the Presbyterian mission at Point Barrow northernmost white settlement on the American continent, word came to Fairbanks of the desperate need of diphtheria serum. Joe Crosson, pilot, climbed into his airplane, and after flying over frozen Arctic mountains and uninhabited wastes and through a blizzard, delivered the precious fluid in five hours and twenty minutes. The distance was 450 miles; and the old-fashioned method of travel by dog teams would have required two months.

Where Ham Comes High

Comfort for those depressed by hard times may be derived by a comparison of prices in Russia and our own country. With us, although work is scarce and wages low, food is astonishingly cheap—eggs as low as a cent a piece. In Soviet land there is a food shortage, and prices are appalling. A visitor in Moscow sends word of ham and eggs costing $1.75 an order at the hotel where he stopped. Coffee was seventy-five cents a pot, and poor at that. His room with bath cost him fifteen dollars a day. And the worst of it was that at such a rate the room was anything but comfortable. Fuel is scarce as well as food, and the Soviet authorities forbid hotels to heat rooms beyond 53 degrees. Wood sells at $31.50 a cord.

Murder and the Amendment

In Indiana a high school football star who went on a wild party and murdered his sweetheart is to have a life-time in the penitentiary to reflect on the foolishness of running amuck and then blaming prohibition. Attorneys for the defense called the murderer a model young man, declared wild liquor parties common, and attributed the whole thing to the 18th amendment. The jury, however, was not impressed. Perhaps they thought the "1931 Model," if here represented, was in serious need of alteration, and that if wild parties were common they need not encourage them. They evidently agreed with the prosecuting attorney when he declared that the 18th amendment was not on trial. How strange it must seem to the new "lifer" that a group of twelve men should be so unenlightened. He will have plenty of time to think it over.

Affluent Ireland

In the midst of world depression Ireland is flourishing. This is true at least of the Irish Free State, which comprises three-fourths of the land; all but the province of Ulster in the northeast. The happy situation arises from the adoption by the farmers of the plan worked out by President Congrave—whereby they specialize on cattle, sheep and swine, and dairy products, instead of raising mostly grain. American farmers in some sections might make the same change with profit. The Irish, who are not noted for competibility wit heach other, have shown an admirable spirit of cooperation and have reaped a rich profit. The story once current may have to be altered, the question asked by an observer, "Why do you never see an Irish band—you see Italian bands and German bands, but never an Irish band—why is it?" "You would never get that many Irishmen to agree on a tune."

Ninety Years Young

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court celebrated his ninetieth birthday in Washington last week, receiving telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the world. The venerable scion of a distinguished New England family—son of the well-beloved poet—is still erect and vigorous in body, alert and forward-looking in mind. For two-thirds of a century he has carried three bullets in his body—mementoes of the Civil War. His special reason for happiness on his birthday was that now he would be able to realize an ambition—to write a Supreme Court decision beyond the age of ninety. There are, one fancies, many fulfilled ambitions in his long and useful life; so that he well represents the "Happy Warrior" of Wordsworth:

"Who is the Happy Warrior,
Who is he;
That every man in arms
Would wish to be?

It is the generous spirit,
Who when brought;
Amid the tasks of real life Wrought,
Upon the plan that pleased his boyish thought."

More Briefly

In Germany at a recent political convention an editor suggested a petition requesting President Von Hindenburg to remain at the head of the nation for life. Politicians everywhere might denominate such petions the fulfillment of their fairest dreams—Reports from Washington describe recent rain and snowfall as "extremely helpful" for the farmer. Smiles and good cheer are in order. The U. S. Public Health Service is supplying medical advice by radio to ships too small to carry doctors. Over a thousand sufferers have been advised regarding pains varying from toothache in the captain to acute indigestion in his passengers—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of a Zion City, has returned from a trip around the world still convinced that the earth is flat. Reaching Chicago simultaneously with Professor Einstein, he challenged him to debate both world rotundity and relativity — Einstein was busy—A Spanish composer has just written an opera in which he received valuable help from an American girl. She furnished the plot by eloping with him.

WEST CHILTON

Prof. H. A. Harris wil lecture at Macedonia next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on some church subject. Everybody go out and hear him.

H. H. Armstrong attended singing at Center Hill Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Lowery of Providence visited at Mr. Hubbard's one evening last week.

There is a decided novelty on H. E. Barnhill's farm. During last summer a young patridge became associated with Mrs. Barnhill's little chickens. Now the chickens are grown hens, but the "bob white" remains with them, eats with them, and when night comes on, occupies roosting quarters with the chickens.

Mrs. Belle Hubbard attended the school play day at Clanton Friday. She considers it the greatest visit of her life. She took dinner with Mrs. Jewel Atchison, a former resident of West Chilton.

Alvie Smith is quite ill with pneumonia.

Hugh Waldrop went to Selma last week to carry his nephew, Burley Smith, for treatment. Mrs. Homer Atchison, Mr. Waldrop's niece went with them.

Mr. Frank Gist of Montgomery says our present financial troubles can be traced back to the time just after the Civil War, when people in strenuous condition began making cotton a collateral for dept. It has kept on until now a surplus of cotton is on hand and people still in debt. They grew cotton at the suggestion of bankers and merchants so they could pay their debts and thus neglected home supplies. By the way, Mr. Gist is a former Randolph boy.

So, in a conversation with Mr. T. J. Hubbard, he expressed a desire that some of his experiences in life be written for the benefit of younger people.

Mr. Hubbard is a strong believer in living at home. On his father's farm in West Chilton, they ran seven plows, back in the old days. The crop was largely corn, wheat, potatoes, turnips, peas, not much cotton. Commercial fertilizer was not used, but great quantities of home made fertilizer was used. Peas were planted all over the big corn fields. That was Mr. Hubbard's task, to drop those peas between the corn hills, a three weeks job. In the fall the hogs ate the peas, then they were fed on potatoes and turnips, finished with corn. They were butchered in mid winter, producing enough pork and lard to last until the next winter.

The wheat produced their supply of home ground flour. Thus they had the whole wheat, far better than what we buy.

They had large cow lots which were plowed as regularly as the crop, until in August, when they were planted in turnips, with a sprinkling of barley. Where now do we find a barley patch? Such rich pasturage for stock.

Mr. Hubbard believes that is a safe farming program. We think of others that have made a success following the program of our fathers. The late William Dawson, beginning in almost destitution, and made fine success. There is John S. Waldrop, S. M. Edwards, the late James Franklin, L. G. Posey, and others too numerous to name, all successful. They first looked out for home supplies.

Of course all cannot do alike, but all can at least, to a limited extent, follow Mr. Hubbard's program. Begin with a garden and a full supply of all crops the home needs, thus living at home, and the financial worry will be greatly reduced.

Mr. Hubbard is a great friend to The Union-Banner. He placed the first adv., in The Union after it was established.

His program is safe and sane. The younger people would do well to heed his advice. He lived before the advent of the cook stove or telephone. He knows by experience what it takes to live. By growing all we need for the family and all live stock, expense and worry can be greatly reduced, and much cheaper than buying.

Have you ever considered how much more value you would get out of your feed you raise by having it crushed? My experience is that you would get at least fifty per cent more. How about trying some? Then I think you will be convinced it pays.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

The series of special meetings at Thorsby Congregational Church. lasting a week, with Rev. James W. Davenport, of Tennessee, as principal speaker and Gresham Lowery as leader of singing, was in many respects very satisfactory.

Hearty cooperation on the part of people from other churches in Thorsby gave capacity audiences for each Sunday and evening services. Bro. Davenport's sermons were deeply spiritual, and the singing of the congregations, as conducted by Mr. Lowery, was unusually inspiring.

These leaders came without definite arrangements as to compensation, further than that the people would be given opportunity to make voluntary contributions for their benefit, and despite the hard times and the fact that there was no personal solicitation of funds, it is believed by the committee of arrangements, that both men were satisfied that they had been generously supported. While there will be no immediate resulting additions to the membership of the Congregational church, there can be no doubt that much seed has been sown in "Good Ground" that will eventually bear fruit. The Scripture says, "Sow in the morning thy seed and in the evening withold not thy hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper, this or that."

As an instance of the spirit of cooperation among the people of Thorsby and vicinity, the P.-T. A. gave a chicken dinner Saturday for the benefit of the public school pump fund, for 25c per plate, and the supplies for it were so liberally donated that there was considerable left over and the ladies offered a "bargain supper" for 15c, even at these low prices the fund was increased by $46.85, at least that is what was taken in and the actual expenses were very small. One merchant, Mr. G. F. Harper, donated all the coffee that was needed, of his famous "Harper's Special" 25c brand, and many thought the coffee very good, as was everything served, in quality and quantity.

These are anxious days for many mothers in Thorsby, on account of an epidemic of measles which has invaded many of our homes. So far we have heard of no really serious cases, but nearly forty children are out of school on that account.

The monthly union prayer meeting in Thorsby will be held this week on Wednesday in the Baptist church at 7:00 p.m. These meetings are usually well attended, interesting, and help to promote a spirit of fellowship and community interest in religious affairs. You are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peterson spent the week end with their children in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vines, Dave Broughton and Miss Molly Smith of Birmingham spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Piper.

THANKS FROM M. LOCKHART

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to thank Circle No. 3, of the W. M. S. of Thorsby Baptist Church for their splendid contribution recently given me. It consisted of fruit, etc.

We especially thank Mrs. Prim, wife of the late J. C. Prim, for her share of the contribution, which was $2.00, that was found in an enclosed envelope in the midst of the fruit. The total contribution amounted to $8.00.

It would be almost impossible to mention everyone who has given us aid, around Thorsby, and elsewhere. But the following are the names of those who have contributed recently, money, edibles, or clothing: Mrs. Emmett Billingsley, Mrs. B. L. and Mrs. Marion Davenport, Mr. John M. Parrish and Mrs. George Tippett of Clanton.

Also we wish to express our thanks to Friendship Church for their regular monthly offering. But to cap it all off, while we were gone from home sometime ago, someone left a nice package of clothing just inside the donor of which we still have no account of.

I think of this as God's blessing in disguise.

Thanks to those mentioned above, and also any contributor not mentioned.—M. Lockhart and family.

Emmett Powell, of Decatur, was a visitor to Clanton this week.

L. E. Diefenderfer, Maurice Lande and Ben Margolis, went to Gadsden Tuesday. Dief and Lande planned to take in the Goodyear Tire factory, while Ben went to see Dr. Bass.

Willie Hamilton, prominent farmer of Route 7, was among the visitors to Clanton last Saturday.

IN MEMORY OF BERTHA LUE GRIFFITH

It was only a few days ago,
We can never forget the day;
When came the silent reaper,
And took our dear niece away.

Although unable to speak to us,
And could not even say good bye;
We know her thoughts were with us,
When she was called to die.

We miss her, O, we miss her,
For our Saviour called her away;
But we are praying to meet her,
In a better, world some day.

We know she is waiting,
With our Saviour on high;
She's there ready to greet us,
Where there's no good bye.

No more on earth we'll see her face,
Her voice we'll hear no more;
But let us live to meet her,
On that bright and sunny shore.

We loved our dear niece,
No human tongue can tell;
We said good bye for a little while,
But we didn't say farewell.

She has gone and left us desolate,
But she is so glad and free;
All our tears would turn to smiles,
If her rapture we could see.

Oh, how lovingly good and jolly,
She was every day by day;
All the sorrow that she gave us,
Was because she went away.

She's not dead, just sweetly resting,
From her trials and troubles here;
But if we live as Jesus taught us,
We will meet her over there.

—An Aunt.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the nurses at the Central Alabama Hospital for their kindness and good attention while I was there. Also Dr. Gragg and Dr. Marcus for their attention and services. I also thank the many friends and relatives who visited me and for the many deeds of kindness shown me. Words cannot express my feelings for them all.

May God's richest blessings rest on each and everyone.—Mrs. Reece Lockhart.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

Our Sunday School was opened by singing, "What a Friend we have in Jesus." Our superintendent read the 86th Psalm, which was beautiful, and inspiring.

Our Sunday School is just wonderful; we may not be up to date but the people are taking more interest and we know the Holy Spirit is with us leading and directing us. Our superintendant asked that each one bring an offering next Sunday for missions. We hope that every one will do their best.

Sunday was our preaching day. We had a wonderful sermon delivered by our pastor, W. P. Lowery. We invite everybody to come, and if you can't come to Sunday school come to preaching and hear Bro. Lowery.

We are so thankful to have such a past pastor. May the Lord bless him in all his work.

We had with us yesterday, Mr. Robert Scott and wife, also our pastor's wife, Mrs. W. P. Lowery. We were glad to have them and hope they come again.

WORKING AT MRS. W. C. PATTERSON'S FARM

Last Wednesday March 11, my heart was made to rejoice to see many accomodating folks begin to come into my field with their plaws and mules, and too, it was indeed sad to think why it was done. I certainly appreciate your great kindness, and may the Lord greatly bless each of you.

They were as follows: Mr. John Cox, Reuben Popwell, Lawton McDowell, J. H. Traywick, W. C. Moore, John Wilson, Roy Traywick, Willie Wilson, Cletus Duke, Bonnie Miller, Carson Duke, Jim Miller, Zebedee McDowell. E. J. Foshee, Renzie Blalock, John McDowell, Calvin Edwards, Pate Wilson, and Carl Lewis. Also a few days before a day's ploughing was given by Mr. Emmett Thomas. —Mrs. Patterson.

Ravages Of Flu Quickly Yield To Nature's Tonic

Ferrac, the Non-Constipating Iron Tonic, is Widely Acclaimed By Sufferers

Containing Ferrac and Ferrac Sulphates of iron, perfectly combined by nature. Ferrac is recommended as the ideal strength builder for weakened, run down systems after the ravages of flu.

When the supply of iron has been drawn down dangerously low by illness, the mineral sulphate, as contained in Ferrac, goes straight into the blood making organs, it is stated, and stimulates them into vigirous activity in the manufacture of more blood. The matchless triumphs scored by Ferrac in cases of weakened, rundown and almost exhausted systems, is attracting wide comment wherever this remarkable product is on sale. But the ideal time to begin Ferrac is before the flu takes hold, warding off this dread illness by building up the system.

O. F. Bonham, Ensley, says: "My wife lacked strength from a protracted illness, and was so completely exhausted for almost a year that she was practically confined to bed. She started taking Ferrac and gained her strength back so rapidly that it was almost like a miracle."

Mrs. Laura Rheinhart, 1821 Copeland Ave., Birmingham, says "An attack of the flu left my whole system terribly weakened. My weight dropped from 124 to 88 pounds. I started taking Ferrac, my weight is already back to 104 and I am stronger and feel better than I have in years."

Ferrac is on sale at all drug stores, or if your druggist cannot supply you you can send $1.00 to the Greenville Products Co., Greenville, Ala.

THE VALUE OF A COUNTY PLAY DAY IN YOUR COMMUNITY

Joe Moore, Jr. III Civics Class, County High School

The definition of a County Play Day is when the different schools of each community in the county come together in a general meeting one day and try for different events in which only the student body takes part and trys to carry it out to the very last word.

The County Play Day brings the schools and the school spirit closer together that day and makes the student feel that he is a part of that school. The students also take pride in the events that their schools win and try to feel the real sportsmanship in the games that they are playing and the part that they are taking in them and also they not only think of themselves but the school as a whole and as one body. The body of a school is composed of the entire school, and the pupils that day are in one body and are pulling together for their school to win.

The competition is perhaps one of the greatest things or the greatest goal that is trying to be reached on a Play Day. The different schools in the community train their boys and girls for these different meets, so they will be in the best condition to take off the prizes and the honor of beating the other teams and the other schools in the county.

Cooperation is another one of the chief problems in a Play Day. If the cooperation is not gotten and the program doesn't function right the day is not a success.

One of the most important of all things on a Play Day is fair play and sportsmanship. The thing above all is to play clean. Unfair play just reveals the lower things in a student and demoralizes his character as well as his word. In fair play we must have a clean bunch of boys and girls as a clean team that meets these other teams. It is not altogether the honor of winning the prizes for the schools but it is how you played the game. If you were square and on the level about it and not trying to cheat your opponent of a point.

Another one of the most important things about a Play Day is what it does to its community as a whole and the good it will do the pupils. It will give the pupils a sportsmanship outlook in life and will cause them to see the real good in fair play, as well as trying to win the game in a fair and square way.

LAWLEY NEWS

Funeral services were conducted by Rev J. W. Bean of Blocton, at Rehobeth Baptist Church last Tuesday for Mrs. Willie Barnes, who died suddenly as she was preparing breakfast on Monday morning.

This community is grieved over the loss of this good Christian woman. She was always faithful in all the activities of the church, and ready and willing to do all she could for the up-building of the community. She was the mother of thirteen children, twelve living; also is survived by her husband, several brothers and sisters. She was before her marriage Miss Lou Fox.

The W. M. S. here has lost one of its most active and faithful members, as she was always present, taking part on the programs and gave liberally. We shall miss her so much, but we rejoice to know our loss is heaven's gain.

Mrs. Rufus Gentry was carried to Selma Baptist Hospital last week and is at this time very low, not expected to live. She has cancer of the stomach. She had an operation about a year ago for the same cause.

Mrs. Minnie Collins has been seriously ill but we are so glad to state that she is improving.

Mr. Bob Lowery is planning to leave for Atlanta, Georgia, this week where he is to be treated for kidney trouble by a specialist.

Mr. Julius Fowler and Mr. Lem Fountain happened to an automobile accident Sunday afternoon as they were coming down grade from the church towards the school house. Their car turned over with them, pinning them under it, and they could not get out until help arrived. Mr. Fowler was cut very badly and would have bled quite a bit, but Dr. Meigs happened to be in the community and passed by in time to stop the blood. Mr. Fountain wasn't hurt so much.

Rev. J. W. Dean of Blocton, who is pastor here, just completed two study courses last Friday night. It was a great success; about thirty were present each night. The lessons taught were from the Sunday school manual and B. Y. P. U. manual. Great good will result from this study course, as each one has a better idea of the Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. work. Anyone must be informed if they are to be interested.

Mr. Perry Hicks and Mr. Sanford Lawley motored to Selma Sunday and returned with Mr. Waymond Lawley, who has had his leg amputated. He is now doing nicely, but will have to go back to Selma to have his leg dressed in a few days.

The B. Y. P. U. only lacks one point being a No. A-1 union, and by the time the year is out, it will have that point.

This community should be proud of this achievement of the young people with Mr. Edwin Lovelady as president, and the pastor here is doing all in his power to help this church to succeed as a church should.

THE VALUE OF COUNTY PLAY DAY TO YOUR COMMUNITY

Hilda Hart, Jr. III Civics Class, County High School

County Play Day is one of the most important days in each county every year. It is looked forward to by all people and it brings excitement to the entire county.

The date of our play day was set at the beginning of early spring by the County Superintendent and the Board of Education. The program was carried out at the County High school on March 13.

Each school in the county took part in all activities of the day, contributing one or more students to each game. Each school had an assigned place where the activities of that school were carried out. They were divided into two groups, one group of boys and the other group of girls. The boys and girls had separate programs.

The way in which pupils were selected for these activities was by try-outs. In each activity those who wanted to take part in them came out for the try-outs. The one that proved to be the best player of that game was chosen to represent that school in that game.

County Play Day was important to this community because it brought all the people of the county together. Some people, who probably had never been to Clanton before came on this day. It threw together the people of the county and the people of the town, and therefore it brought about better cooperation to the county. This not only brought about better cooperation but in days to come it might probably increase the trade.

County Play Day was also helpful to the students. It taught them useful activities and things that will be of great value to them in later life.

This also brought out a good example of fair play, the thing that should be taught every person in any activity life. Fair play is one of the things that was stressed most on County Play Day and each school had an equal chance with the other schools.

Not only did the County Play Day help the people of the town and county to cooperate but it helped the schools to cooperate and caused a more friendly spirit between them. The teachers had the opportunity to meet the teachers of the other schools of the county and therefore it made every person able to cooperate on that day.

County Play Day also helped to develop one of the important departments in our high schools, the department of Physical Education. It encouraged more play and exercise in our high schools. It also taught the students to take part in different activities and gave the Physical Education classes a good outline of play.

County Play Day will always be looked forward to by all people and will be one of the most important days in the county each year.

PLAY DAY WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Thousands of School Children Gathered Here Last Friday For Annual Field Day

The school children of Chilton County had a time last Friday which will live fresh in their memories for many years to come. There were gathered in Clanton about 4,000 of the youth of our county for carrying out the program of annual Play Day. Everything went off in orderly fashion and the boys and girls evidently enjoyed the occasion thoroughly.

About 3,000 children were in the parade which formed at the County High School, marched up First Avenue through the business section of the city, and back down Second Avenue to the High School. It was a string of boys and girls marching four abreast, and stretched out for about a mile. The parade was led by a group of members of the American Legion, with a drum and fife-arms. Members of the Boy Scouts acted as traffic officers, keeping the streets open for the parade.

The center of operations was at the County High School grounds. After the parade the children were assembled in accordance with a well outlined scheme, and they engaged in playing all sorts of games throughout the day. The winners of the girls athletic events were announced as follows:

Hoop race, Chilton County High and Verbena; broad jump, Thorsby (Lena Barrett Williams) and Maplesville; potato race, Isabella and Jemison; 50-yard dash, Paul Benson, Jemison, and Geraldine Ratliff, Maplesville; distance throw, Nell Neighbors, Chilton County High, and Maplesville; chariott race, Verbena and Maplesville; sack race, Winifred Suite, Maplesville, and Clara Mae Calfee, Isabella.

Winners in the athletic events for boys were: 100-yard dash, Wilson Maddox, James Gandy, and Melton Hughes (Melton Hughes won the race because the other boys were ruled ineligible on account of their weight placing them in the senior group); running high jump, Hilton Prickett from Verbena and Horace Gray from Enterprise tied; running broad jump, Charles Retherford of Union Grove.

In the county spelling contest Helen DuBose, of Verbena, won first place, and Renfroe Price, of Mt. Pleasant won second place. These two winners will be taken to Jacksonville Normal School Saturday of this week, where they will enter the District Spelling Contest to determine the best speller in a large group of counties in the Jacksonville district. Superintendent Lawrence will accompany them to Jacksonville.

Mr. A. R. Meadows, of the State Department of Education, conducted the spelling contest, which was engaged in by one student from each of the different schools, 47 in number.

A number of splendid exhibits by different schools were on display. The Isabella boys were showing a model school building in miniature. Other exhibits included home economics subjects by the girls of several schools, writing, drawing, handiwork, etc.

Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, stated Tuesday in reviewing the day's activities: "All of us who worked and planned the events of play day for our school children are gratified beyond the power of words to express our satisfaction at the successful manner in which the whole affair was carried out. We thank the teachers of the schools for the splendid interest they showed. We were delighted to have so many of the parents present to witness the performances.

"I wish I was able to express the thanks of the school officials to every person who helped make the event such a grand success. I will mention especially the untiring work of Chief of Police, John Boockholdt, and the Boy Scouts, who guarded the traffic points while the parade was in progress. Members of the American Legion rendered very commendable service throughout the day. Captain R. D. Woodson of Lay Dam worked hard all day and rendered invaluable service. Miss Madge Scarborough, Mr. C. E. Stapp, and Abe Lakeman were untiring in their efforts to make the occasion a success.

"We thank everybody who had a part in the day's activities. We feel it was an occasion of great worth to our school children."

Terrific Snow storm In New Hampshire

LETTER FROM WOLFEBORO, N. H.

Editor Union-Banner:

I wonder if you have space in your interesting paper for a description of one of the worst snow storms in years of New England history, and perhaps decades. Some say last Sunday's storm (March 8th) was the worst since the storm of 1888, when farmers had to climb out of second story windows in order to get to their barns to feed their stock.

No word picture I could draw would do justice to, or give an adequate idea of the fierceness of a wind and snow storm that raged here last Sunday from 3 p. m., to 10 o'clock p. m. But the effects of such a storm might best be pictured by supposing Clanton to have been in the thick of it, and as this town is about the same size as Clanton, describe the predicament of Clanton and its people all day Monday.

If this storm had taken place in Clanton, with old snow lying previously as here, your big snow plow would have only cleared Main Street from above the courthouse out to West Clanton, and North and South on your highway to the corporation line by time for business houses to open Monday morning. On all side streets, business men would have found they could not reach the street until they shoveled out a path, which was filled to the level by the gale. Impossible to get your auto out of the garage until hours of shoveling. No train or mail would have come in till near 12 o'clock Monday.

The road East to Coosa River would be covered in places 8 feet deep. After plowing out the road to Thorsby the snow would be piled higher on each side than trucks and autos. Your roads to Maplesville and Billingsley would be closed for several days. You would not see your fences, and only the highest monuments in your cemeteries would show above the snow. (I conducted a funeral today at the chapel ault, two days after the storm, and only the highest monuments could be seen. the cemetery caretaker worked hours opening up a narrow path to the vault).

Every available team would be hauling the snow out of the Main Streets for three days, so autos could park, and so business could resume as usual. Not teams with wheels, either, but bob-sleighs. Wheels cannot run in deep snow. Snow would have blocked the doors of your Methodist Church, and early Monday a siren would have blown from the fire station, indicating "no school for today," for the kids could not have reached the school building. Such would just about be the story if you could imagine the snow still falling two days later, as it's now Tuesday night as I write, and it's still snowing, as it has almost continuously since the Sunday blizzard.

Sixty-three people blocked in their autos had to spend the night in one farm house, and ten college students returning from their homes Sunday night were blocked in the snow, and spent the blizzardy night in their cars. They could neither move backwards or forwards.

Fifteen deer not far away are herded up under some pine trees, and the farmer near by has fed them all his apples to save them from starving, and he has appealed to the state to send them hay, so they can survive the winter. Snow is so deep they cannit forage as usual.

This country had been settled 150 years before Chilton County was settled, and even now deer, moose, bear, and Canadian lynx are plentiful. Our engineers occasionally have to stop the train to drive the deer or a moose off the track. A moose is larger than any Chilton County mule, and this winter near here one had to be driven off the track in front of a train. Laws protect them, except for 30 days each year, and people rigorously abide by the law. If Chilton County would buy and turn loose a few deer, and the people protect them for a few years, deer, especially the white tail, would be plentiful, as they thrive right in thickly settled communities.

Judging from the articles you print, Chilton County must certainly be hard bit by the depression and drouth. Something somewhere must certainly be wrong when so many people, especially tenants, are suffering for the necessities of life in such a fine farming section. This ought never to be. I see you are still standing by the President in the matter of the last tariff bill. Many Republicans in this manufacturing section say the last tariff was entirely too high. That they cannot send their surplus to foreign countries when we bar their return goods by tariff walls too high. The political economists of all the leading colleges and universities of New England say the tariff is too high. Cotton farmers are suffering, and so are the cotton manufacturers in the North.

Cotton mill stock in Fall River, Mass., is 10 to 17 per cent off par. A friend of mine bought 25 shares 15 years ago for $2,500. Last September he was offered $250 for his 25 shares, a sheer loss of $2,250 on 25 shares.

A leading economist has figured it costs $6,000 to feed, clothe, and educate to good citizenship a child to his or her 21st year. I know a tenant in Alabama that has seven children and another that has nine. In the case of the latter, it will take $54,000 to rear his children. He makes around 6 or 7 bales of cotton per year, which at last year's prices would be around $300. This, over a period of 21 year would be $6,300. I am wondering where the other $46,700 is to come from, so my friend, the tenant, can rear his family to good citizenship.

Even granting the economist's figures are high, we still have to admit the tenant friend only exists on three or four hundred dollars a year. What is the solution to the problem? Smaller families seem the only solution. Our religious friends will say it is sinful to limit the birth rate. but isn't it also sinful to bring more children into the world than we can comfortably care for?

People North and West are limiting the birth rate, except, among the Irish, Polish, and Italian races. People in many sections are becoming over crowded, and in over crowded countries famine often results, as witness China, Japan and India.

This is a great question, and the tenant cannot solve the problem alone. The State must help him, and the medical fraternity must help him, if there is to be a solution of the problem. I have letters this week from Tennessee in over-crowded communities. Saying people are sufferingfor good. If this was the last hard time, we might get through it; but unless strong measures are taken soon, they may soon be coming much oftener. 'Here's hoping for an early lifting of hard times among our people.

ORMAN T. HEADLEY.

CHEVROLET PRODUCTION HIGHER IN FEBRUARY

February production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 67,318 cars and trucks, according to W. S. Knudsen, president. While the total is 3,448 under that of January when 70,766 wer produced, daily output was higher in February, with its three fewer working days, than in the previous month.

Final figures on Crevrolet's February production show an increase of 2,678 over preliminary reports and indicate that schedules originally set for the month were followed.

March schedules, according to at 78,000 and confidence is expressed that the figure will be surpassed. Current factory employment of Chevrolet is approximately 34,500 men.

We hope that permitting the World War veterans to borrow more money won't turn out like it always does when the farmers are permitted to borrow more money.

We finally got far enough into the Wickersham Commission's mystery, after nine attempts, to suspect it was the butler who did the shooting.—Detroit News.

PROVIDENCE BEAT 13

Health of this community is fairly good.

The weather is fairing up and spring is opening up, and the farmers have begun their work for a new crop; however, they are slow about buying their fertilizer.

The sun is drying the ground very fast, and I see the road work is beginning to start up a little more.

If the new commissioner watches the road workers like our new sheriff watches his work they will hae some job. I guess they will; they have the entire works in charge.

Mr. Gillespie has visited our community several times this week, serving papers, and other work.

The law plainly says that no commissioner can hire any of his relatives by blood or by marriage, to work for him while looking after the county affairs. All tax payers should watch the county treasury books and see who gets the bills.

In the campaign just past, who promised to sweep out the court house ring and have new business. It seems to me that a defeated candidate has just as much power in sweeping out the court house ring as the elected ones do. In their plea to the voters their course was equal rights to all. Mr. Taxpayer, see who gets the money. We do not have to be a sheriff, commissioner, or a school teacher to know what is going on in the county, or be of some help. Justice and equal rights should be given to all and not to some undercover politician.

Hoping the county success. — W. G. Shaw.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

We are indeed glad to correct two errors that occurred in last week's honor roll students. The names of Joe Hall Johnson and Mabel Harris were omitted. Joe Holl made A's in all of his courses, and Mabel made an average of A in all her work. Joe Hall is in Jr. I and Mabel is in Sr. I.

County Field Day

We feel that our play day was a success in every respect. Everybody seemed to enjoy the occassion, and to get a great deal of good from it. Comments were made during the day that the largest crowd of school children were assembled that has ever been in Clanton. Due credit is given the officials who organized the various committees together for sponsoring the plays and games. We feel that this should be made an annual affair. A splendid school spirit can be built up over the entire county on occassions like last Friday.

Combination Truck Shed and Gymnasium for High School

Bids are now ready for the erection of a building sixty by eighty feet, on the campus of Chilton County High School for the purpose of storing twenty of the forty busses owned by the county during the summer months. During the winter, this building may be used for any purpose the school sees fit. We plan to make a splendid indoor basketball court out of it. A similiar building is in process of construction at Jemison, where twenty others will be stored there. We plan to break the dirt next week.

ANOTHER PLAY

Don't miss seeing, "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick," a clean rural comedy in three acts, to be held at the Union Point School, Saturday night, March 28, 1931. Admission free.

Admission will be 15 and 20 cents. The proceeds will be divided between the Eastern Star, the Baptist Church and the public school.

This play was given at Thorsby on February 14, and was received with much enthusiasm. This is probably one of as good plays as has ever been put on in the county. Come and see it. You will enjoy every act from beginning to end.

Road Association Was Formed Here

Representatives Of Six Counties Unite In Effort To Get Paved Highway

The Anniston-Selma-Mobile Highway Association was formed at a meeting in Clanton last Thursday, when representative citizens, county and municipal officials from six counties gathered here. The meeting gathered here. The meeting was called to order at 10:30 a. m., with Judge L. H. Reynolds as temporary chairman, and Hunt Frazier, of Selma, as Secretary.

A committee on permanent organization was appointed. The recommendations of the committee were adopted as made, and provided for the following permanent officers of the association: Judge L. H. Reynolds, of Clanton, chairman; Hunt Frazier, of Selma, secretary and treasurer.

The association adopted as its first objectives the matter of securing federal designation of the highway from Mobile through Selma, Clanton, Calera, Columbiana, Sylacauga, Talladega, Anniston, Piedmont, and terminating at Cedartown, Georgia, as a federal aid highway; and second, the immediate paving of the north end of the road, 14 miles between Cedartown and Piedmont.

A resolution was adopted unanimously pledging the support of the association for a State Bond issue to be used exclusively for paving highways.

Representatives of every one of the six counties made reports to the meeting, and it was evident that every county along the way is ready to get behind the association with an organized effort to bring the paving of this route, which is declared to be one of the most important highway courses in Alabama.

SINGERS WILL MEET AT COOPERS SUNDAY P. M.

The Central Singing Society is proud to receive into its ranks another director, Mr. J. W. P. Murphy. Of course, Mr. Murphy is not a new singer, neither is he a new attendant at our singings, but he has only recently taken the floor as a director. We are pleased to have Mr. Murphy occupy a place on our programs.

The society met last Sunday afternoon at Friendship, and the crowd was small, since the weather was so unfavorable. However, the singing was good. There were six or eight directors—enough to make out the full program. We were glad to have Prof. Weldon with us again, and he made good his promise to direct a lesson. We are glad to have this good man and good singer with us.

We were sorry of the absence of Amie Boswell, and deeply grieved to hear of his misfortune in the death of his baby, which was buried Sunday. The society's sympathy is extended the bereaved parents.

The meeting place next Sunday afternoon is Chestnut Creek, Coopers. This meeting was placed at Coopers next Sunday afternoon, the fifth Sunday, in order to clear the way for the Easter singing at Poplar Springs the first Sunday in April. Everybody has an invitation to meet with us at Coopers next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Man Killed in Accident Near Calera

Pair Pinned Under Truck When Struck By Car On Montevallo Road

Joe Oglesby, of near Montevallo, was killed instantly and T. J. Kerney, 48, of Brierfield, Ala., was critically injured shortly after dark Sunday night in an automobile collision two miles west of Calera on the Montevallo Road.

Police Chief Cully Miller, Calera, who investigated the accident, said the collision occured when Oglesby and Kerney parked their truck at the side of the highway and got out of the machine to repair a punctured tire. The two men, Chief Miller said, were under the car trying to jack up the wheel when another car, approaching from the rear, ran into the truck, pinning the two men next to the truck frame.

Chief Miller said the other car in the collision was driven by Herbert Talliaferro, of Gadsden. Willis McDonough and E. G. McDonough, of Calera R. F. D. No. 2, riding with Taliaferro, were hurt slightly, but were given first aid treatment in Calera. No arrests were made.

ELLISON-SHAW WEDDING

The marriage of Mr. Ross Ellison and Miss Mildred Shaw was solemnized last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, at the home of the bride in Clanton. A large gathering of friends witnessed the beautiful ceremony as the solemn rites were said by Rev. D. W. Haskew, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church.

An improvised altar, banked with flowers and evergreens, and lighted with groups of candles, occupied the living room. Music was rendered by Mrs. Barney Roberts at the piano, Mrs. Grady Broadhead with violin, and Miss Morris sang "I Love You Truly." Little Miss Joan Atkinson was flower girl. She preceded the bride and groom to the altar, scattering flowers along their pathway.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ellison were greeted by their many friends, who showered upon them every good wish for their happiness. Soon they were away on a brief wedding trip. They will make their home at Lay Dam, where Mr. Ellison is an employee of Alabama Power Company.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Shaw, of Clanton. She is a very popular young lady.

Farmers Tell About The Visit To Auburn

Expressions Show Appreciation For Kiwanis Club Making Possible This Event Which Was Declared Valuable To All Farmers Who Went

Concerning the trip that was made to Auburn last week by a group of Chilton County farmers, under auspices of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, The Union-Banner has sought some expressions from a number of the farmers who made the trip, and we are glad to publish below a brief summary of statements which they made:

T. E. Kelley

I want to say that I believe the Kiwanis Club did a most valuable thing for the farmers when they made this trip possible. It was well worth the time of everyone who went, and would have been time and money well spent if each of us had gone at our own expense. I was very greatly impressed with what I saw, as this was my first visit to our State Farm Experiment Station. I expect to go back again and see how some of the experiments come out.

Farmers of Alabama ought to realize that Auburn is doing a vast amount of experimenting for the farmers. In other words, if a farmer decides he wants to try any kind of agricultural work, he does not have to try one thing and another to find out which way will be profitable. He can take a day off any time and go to Auburn, and see for himself that very thing already tested and proved for his own benefit.

I am going back to Auburn again, and I hope that many of our farmers will go too. I am glad of the interest which is being shown in agriculture by our citizenship.

Dr. M. F. Jackson

One day last week Dr. M. F. Jackson, on his way to Opelika, stopped for a few minutes in Clanton. He said he had heard of the trip the farmers made with the Kiwanis Club to Auburn, and he thought it was one of the best agricultural promotion projects ever undertaken by any club in Alabama. "I planned to be with you," he said, "but was kept away by sickness in my family." Dr. Jackson is one of the leading agriculture specialists in Alabama. He is with Tennessee Coal, Iron & railroad Co., at Birmingham, and has been familiar with conditions in Chilton County for many years.

Dudley Collins

Dudley Collins says the trip was one of the finest things he has seen in many days. He continued his comment: "No farmer can fail to get something good out of a trip like that. The projects carried out at the Experiment Station are simple, practical, and easily understood by the farmers. We were impressed with the experiments in vetch and winter peas. The experiment suggests that these be turned in when the growth is 5 to 7 thousand pounds per acre. Some of our farmers have a mistaken idea about winter cover crops, thinking they have to stay on the land so late in the spring as to hinder other cultivation. This is not true. Our farmers ought to go about more, and I feel that the Kiwanis Club is doing a mighty good thing to help get us into the habit of seeing what is going on in the world of agriculture outside Chilton County. When we go on a trip we always get an idea that is worth bringing back home.

Grover Jones

The trip was worth much to me, if for nothing more than what I learned about Kudzu. I have already made arrangements since I came back home to apply the Auburn method of Kudzu planting to save some of my land from washing. I learned some valuable ideas about feeding cattle, poultry, and other things. It was my first trip to Auburn, and I think I shall go back again when I can stay longer and learn more.

Lee Boockholdt

The first reaction I got from the trip was the hope that the Kiwanis Club would take us back again right soon. It was my first trip to the experiment station. I had been planning to go for fifteen years. I am glad I went. I think I broke the ice on this trip, and I am going to make every effort possible to arrange my business so I can go back to farmers week in August. I wish the whole group who went last Week could go back and spend a whole week together. I thank the Kiwanis Club for the interest they showed in us farmers by making this trip possible.

Howard Oden

I have been to Auburn on several trips before this one, and it was not as new to me as to some others; but I believe the value of such trips can better be appreciated by several visits than one the first occasion of this kind.

I think this project of the Kiwanis Club in carrying the farmers to Auburn is the best move that the Club has ever undertaken to serve the farmers of our county. I would sum up my impressions of the trip in three statements:

First, it caused numbers of farmers to go to Auburn who perhaps never would have gone, but for this opportunity given them by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

Second, I believe the farmers who went not only got something of value in connection with their own farm work, but got a better understanding and appreciation of the attitude which the business men of Clanton have toward the farmers of the county.

Third, I am of the opinion that the business men of Clanton who made this trip possible and went with the farmers also got a new insight into the interests of the farmers and the problems with which agriculture is faced.

Sam P. Collins

This was my second trip to Auburn. I was there at Farmers Week eighteen years ago, and I was greatly impressed with some of the improvements I noticed. But I found some of the experiments which I saw eighteen years ago are still being conducted. I want to thank the Kiwanis Club of Clanton for its interest in our agricultural development. Especially was this trip a valuable thing for our farmers who had the privilege of going. I hope that many of our farmers will be able to go back for farmers week this summer.

MAY ESTABLISH LANDING FIELD

It is reported in Clanton that some thought and investigation has been made concerning the establishment of an airplane landing field near Lay Dam. Mr. H. C. Armstrong, of Selma, who is interested in aviation, together with other prominent men who were in Clanton for the highway association meeting last Thursday, are reported to have gone to Lay Dam to look over possible locations for a landing field.

This work is sponsored by the Three Sixty-Five Club of Birmingham. Some members of the Board of Directors of the Cripple Children's Clinic will be here to explain the work in connection with the showing of the picture, which is entitled "The Long Journey."

According to John Hollis, chairman of the committee on Under Privileged Child, it is the desire of the Kiwanis Club that everybody come to see this picture. It will be shown free at the Wadesonia Theatre.

Mr. Hollis says: "The Kiwanis Club will be pleased to have you present at the showing of this picture, and to hear the explanation of what the Cripple Children's Clinic is doing for those who are in need of such attention. The picture will be shown at 7 o'clock Friday night, March 27, at the Wadesonian Theatre. No admission charge will be made, and we hope everybody will come."

The cripple children's picture will be shown at seven o'clock, ahead of the regular picture show program. LUTHER FOSHEE

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp. County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS CAN USE MUCH MORE COTTON

Auburn, Ala., March 23.—A study of the probable uses of cotton for bags for food and feed products, fertilizers, cement, and as a covering for bales of cotton has been made by J. D. Pope, head of the department of agricultural economics of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, and shows that farmers may increase the annual consumption of cotton for these purposes by more than half a million bales.

Cotton bags for all fertilizer would consume annually 170,000 bales. At present only a few thousand bales are consumed this way. Cotton bagging for all American cotton one season would require 200,000 bales each year.

The cement industry is using 45,000 bales annually and the full amount would require 155,000. Flour is using 115,000 and the full amount would require 200,000. All groceries are using only about 100,000 bales and the full amount would require 200,000 bales.

It was pointed out that cotton bags for these products must compete with other bags, especially jute. While this is true, cotton growers can afford to pay a little higher price for cotton bags because the increased consumption of cotton increases the price. An estimate was made that an increased consumption of 200,000 bales would increase the price of the entire crop by $2.50 per bale. With an increase of more than half a million bales in consumption the increase in price should be more than $5 per bales. "This is evidence," said Mr. Pope, "that farmers can increase the consumption of cotton by demanding it for bags for fertilizer, feeds, flour, cement, and bags for cotton bales. In this way much cotton of inferior grades will be consumed and removed from the market."

TRENCH SILOS ARE ADVISED BY BURNS

Auburn, Ala., March 23.—Trench silos have given entire satisfaction in Alabama and F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist at Auburn, is confident that there will be a large increase this year in their use. Fewer than a dozen were built last year, including one on the experiment station at Auburn. Each one gave entire satisfaction. Similar reports have been received from other states, he said.

A trench silo is a silo made in the ground, Mr. Burns explained. One can be made very easily on any farm where there is drainag whihc means practically every farm in Alabama, he said. The cost of making such a silo is almost nil, for it is done with farm labor and the material on hand. Hand tools and an ordinary scrape with mles or a tractor to operate it will do most of the work.

Instructions for making a trench silo are being supplied by the county agents. To fill it next fall Mr. Burns recommends planting sorghum this spring. The Texas seeded ribbon variety is preferred. It has produced an average of eight tons per acre at Auburn during the last three years.

Ordinarily, one cow will eat two or three tons of silage per season, which means that one acre of Texas seeded ribbon should produce enough for three or four cows. A silo should be made during the summer and be ready to be filled when the sorghum is ready in the fall. An ordinary feed grinder may be used to fill the silo if an ensilage machine is not available.

A farmer with a few cows should have a trench silo, Mr. Burns said. It will reduce feed costs and increase milk flow.

ALABAMA IS SOLVING FARM CREDIT PROBLEMS

Using liberal loans offered by the United States government, Alabama bankers, merchants, farmers, and others are setting up local credit corporations for solving the agricultural credit problems of the State.

This was made known by Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of Agriculture and chairman of the State Advisory Committee on Agricultural Credits, who said that some local credit associations have been approved by the State Advisory Committee and the papers submitted to Washington for final approval, "due to the fact that anly $10,000,000 is available to all the drouth stricken states and that 'first come is first served' immediate action is essential," he said.

"Any group of individuals may get together and form an agricultural credit corporation with a minimum capital stock of $25,000 by paying in one-third this amount and then borrowing the other two-thirds from the government for a period of two years at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent interest.

"After credit corporations are set up it would be eligible to discount papers with the Intermediate Credit Bank at New Orleans for five to seven times its capital stock.

"In dollars and cents this means that bankers, merchants, farmers, agricultural workers and others in any community can get together and raise $8,333.33 in cash and then borrow $16,666.66 from the government and organize their own credit corporation with a capital stock of $25,000 which in turn can loan farmers in the community from $125,000 to $175,000 for crop production purposes.

'If a community has a credit corporation it is only necessary for those desiring to assist in getting additional credit for their community to subscribe for stock in their local association," he said. "For each $100 so invested they may borrow $200 from the government for additional capital stock, making a total of $300 subscribed for capital stock purposes in their corporation. In return individuals in the communty may borrow from $15,000 to $2,000 by the local organization discounting their paper through the Intermediate Credit Bank at New Orleans."

WORKING LADIES URGED TO WEAR COTTON FROCKS

Ways and means of saving the "poor working girl" from paying so many bills for new dresses and for dry celaning and at the same time increase cotton consumption by "millions of yards" has been suggested by S. A. Burns, chief of the warehouse and gin division of the Department of Agriculture and Industries.

Mr. Burns made the following statement:

"I suggest that all working ladies including stenographers, bookkeepers, office women in all offices including banks, chamber of commerce, farm organizations and private concerns as well as mill workers and others wear frocks made of cotton over their dresses when working. The frock should be large and long enough to protect the whole dress. I suggest long sleeves for winter, while for summer it may be with or without sleeves.

"This will save much dress cleaning and also save the poor working girl from having to buy so many new dresses. For a change this will at least enable girls to wear a dress a whole day without changing at noon.

"The main advantage of this move is to increase cotton consumption and if this is adopted it will take millions of yards to supply the demand of all working women in the United States."

FOREST VOLUNTEERS SAVE STATE MONEY

Montgomery, Ala.—Over twenty-one thousand Alabama citizens engaged in fighting forest fires in Alabama during 1930 without pay from the State, says Col. Page S. Bunker, state forester, the exact number being 21,788, according to the compilations of the Forestry Department.

Every state, upon taking up the matter of developing timber production on its otherwise unused lands, must decide upon the system that will be followed in preventing and suppressing forest fires. These systems fall into two classes. The first requires that the state treasury shall bear practically all of the cost through the employment of large numbers of paid workers. In some states these amount to several hundred.

The second system depends for its success chiefly upon arousing the interest of the landowners themselves, securing their voluntary cooperation and developing individual and community responsibility for the actual work of fire suppression. This system requires but a comparatively few regular employees, whose principal duties are in developing, stimulating and maintaining community efforts.

The first system involves very large state appropriations, approximating in some of the states a million dollars a year. One very serious difficulty in its application is the fact that if people are paid to fight fires there will always be plenty of fires to fight. The second system, that of local responsibility and community action under the supervision of a limited number of forestry experts engaged by the state, costs far less, usually in the neighborhood of but ten or twelve per cent of the first. As an example of the "State-do-it-all" system, one northern state spends for forestry purposes approximately thirteen and a half cents per acre of forest lands. Alabama follows the second system, spending less than one-fifth of one cent per acre. This figure is far too low, however, and permits the extension of the supervisory work over only sixty per cent of the forest land area of the state.

He recommended enactment of legislation to give the President power immediately upon declaration of war to "freeze" all prices, not only of commodities but of rents, wages, interest rates, commission and fees, on the level of prewar prices.

The President of Brazil has placed a temporary embargo against the imports of industrial machinery to that country. It is described by the United States Department of Commerce as "the most drastic by a South American country recently." Gist, state and federal statistician who stated yesterday afternoon that the farm stocks on March 1, this year amounted to 11,507,000 bushels compared with 17,608,000 bushels on the same date last year and a five-year average of 19,681,000 bushels.

Regarding the farm stocks of corn in the United States, Gist said that there were 709,000,000 bushels March 1, compared with 987,000,000 bushels a year ago and a five-year average of 1,051,000,000 bushels.

Lesson for March 29

REVIEW: JESUS THE WORLD'S SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Busy Doing Good.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Busy Doing Good.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the World's Savior: Preparation and Popularity.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the World's Savior: Preparation and Popularity.

Since the lessons of the quarter center in one person and have one theme; namely, the world's Savior, the best method of review for senior and adult classes will be to refresh the mind with the principal facts and leading teachings of each lesson. Assignments should be made a week ahead. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for January 4.

John the Baptist was a great preacher. He had a great heritage in his godly parents. Much can be expected from a son of such parents.

Lesson for January 11.

Jesus, as to personality, was divine and yet his human nature developed in the normal way. He waxed strong in body, was filled with wisdom, and God's grace was upon him. Though conscious of his deity, he lived a life of filial obedience.

Lesson for January 18.

John the Baptist came in fulfillment of prophecy, calling upon men to prepare for the coming of the Messiah by repenting of their sins. Baptism was the appointed sign of their repentance. With fine humility, John turned the attention of the people from himself to Christ.

Lesson for January 25.

Jesus was led into the wilderness by the Holy Spirit to be tempted of the Devil. His temptation was Messianic. The purpose was to demonstrate the reality of the incarnation. Jesus went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the enemy of God and man (Heb. 2:14).

Lesson for February 1.

Jesus demonstrated his power over various diseases and over demons, thus displaying his Lordship. Even while demonstrating his mighty power, he operated through benevolent channels.

Lesson for February 8.

Jesus made clear to the disciples that they would be hated and opposed as they went out into the world with his message. Those who follow Christ must expect opposition and suffering.

Lesson for February 15.

Jesus is the friend of sinners. There is no one so steeped in sin as to be shut out from him. Christ came into the world "to seek and to save that which was lost."

Lesson for February 22.

Jesus' supreme mission was to make known the good news of salvation to a lost world. In spite of the good seed sown by him, only a small portion brought forth full fruitage owing to the unfavorable condition of the soil.

Lesson for March 1.

The greatness of the harvest—man's lost condition moved Jesus to ask the disciples to pray the Lord to thrust out laborers. The real force back of missionary endeavor is prayer. When the church begins to pray about missions, there will be missionaries and money to sustain them.

Lesson for March 8.

The parable of the Good Samaritan shows who is my neighbor and what being a neighbor means. My neighbor is the man needing my help, whether next door or across the world. Being a neighbor is the most important thing for me. To be a neighbor means to be on the lookout for those in need and to give sympathetically the needed help.

Lesson for March 15.

The Bethany home was always open to the Lord. Jesus will come into such homes as will give him welcome. The inspiration of the Bethany home must have greatly helped Jesus as he went out to meet his foes. It is the inspiration of the home which gives men courage to go out and fight the battles of life.

Lesson for March 22.

The parable of the rich fool shows the peril of allowing the heart to be set upon even the fruits of legitimate toil. To seek gold and thus forget God is to play the fool.

The next quarter continues the lessons from the gospel by Luke.

Our Love to God

Our love to God brings us a gleam in earth's darkness to show us whither we are going. It keeps us in sympathy with God's work everywhere. It is our enlistment in the army of good will toward men.—Isaac Edwardson.

Men of Genius

Men of genius are often dull and inert in society, as a blazing meteor when it descends to earth, is only a stone.—Longfellow.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Dr. H. C. Bass To Preach Commencement Sermon at Baptist Church

It is of more than passing interest that we have been fortunate enough to secure the time and service of Dr. H. C. Bass, pastor of West End Baptist Church, Birmingham, to deliver the commencement sermon for the graduating class of Chilton County High School, 1931. The sermon will be preached at 11:00 o'clock May 24, the First Baptist Church in this city.

Dr. Bass is a distinguished and yearned gentleman whose services are always in demand, and it was only by applying early that the school is fortunate enough to get him for this occasion. He is well known generally over the state of Alabama, and particularly well known among the Baptists of the state, and his coming will be anticipated with much pleasure and interest.

Sr. One Starts Potato Project

The Senior One agriculture boys under the supervision of their teacher, J. B. Varnell, have started a very interesting and particular project, namely, that of bedding sweet potatoes. The boys are looking forward to and hoping to realize enough in commensuable returns to finance a trip to A. P. I. at Auburn.

Each of the twenty boys have shared equally the expense and are keeping record of their expenditures and also will keep a record of their receipts with the goal in view of an interesting and benificial visit to our State Agricultural College. They will also share equally in the profits and are hopeful that the potato market will have been made better by their project.

Mr. Lee Thomas of Elmore County was in Clanton a while Monday. He is the son of George Thomas who used to live in the Providence community some years ago.

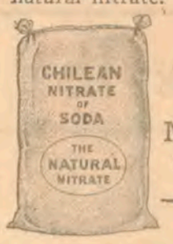
SOUND ADVICE
by your Fertilizer Dealer
No. 4
in a Series appearing in this newspaper



GIVE first thought to nitrogen this year in ordering fertilizers. It's nitrogen that gives your crops healthy growth and healthy yield. This year, more than ever, on account of unusual dry weather, nitrogen is most lacking in the soil.

Play safe. Buy plenty of Chilean Nitrate of Soda. I've got a big supply. Cheaper than it has been for years. New 100-lb. bags, too. Order now and be sure of your requirements.

Your Fertilizer Dealer

CHILEAN NITRATE now comes in new 100-lb. bags that make it more popular than ever. It always has been the dependable fertilizer of Southern farmers. Side dress, top dress with Chilean Nitrate...and increase your yields, quality and profits.

Be sure you specify "Chilean" when you order your nitrate. "Chilean" is the one important point to remember. It is your protection and your dealer's too. When you get "Chilean," then you'll get the real, money-making fertilizer — the natural nitrate. Remember the two kinds — Original Chilean (Crystalline) and Champion Brand (Granulated) both natural nitrate.

DAVE BUCKNER DEAD

Another good negro has gone to his reward. David C. Buckner of Clanton died at his home in West End Clanton, last Friday about noon. He was buried in Clanton cemetery Sunday at noon. The funeral was held at Union Baptist Church, Rev. R. C. Mixon in charge.

Dave Buckner had lots of friends in and around Clanton. He learned the concrete finishing business under Ernest Hopkins in Clanton ten or twelve years ago, and since that time has been doing work of this kind. He was an expert in his line of work. It is said that his death was the result of some kind of infection of the throat and lungs caused from handling lime and cement.

Dave is survived only by his wife, Mary Brazile Buckner. Dave and Mary had been married only about a year.

Teacher—Why do we use soap?
Bill (feelingly)—Thats what I'd like to know!

Alice—That man that just passed looked well, didn't he?

Winnie—Yes, and he's still looking.

Big Tire To Be Here Friday and Saturday

Mammoth Goodyear Balloon Will Be Shown Under Auspices Of Dief's Service Station, Local Goodyear Tire Dealers

WORLD'S LARGEST TIRE

Twelve feet high.
Four feet wide.
Tread, sidewall and bead weigh 877 pounds.
Frictioned fabric weighs 289 pounds.
Tube weighs 125 pounds.
Wheel weights 600 pounds.
Yoke weights 2,000 pounds.
Total weight of tire and yoke is 3,900 pounds.
Value of the tire is $5,000.

This week the largest tire in the world will be on exhibition in Clanton, being brought to our city by Dief's Service Station, well known Goodyear dealers, who will have the giant casing at their place of business from 4 o'clock Friday to 10 o'clock Saturday.

The intensely interesting tire was built by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, and is on a tour of several states in this section of the country. It has been in many sections of the United States, and has been exhibited in Canada, causing no end of amazement at the Toronto Exposition last fall.

The rubber giant, which is 12 feet high and four feet wide, was built under the combined supervision of the chemical, tire design, and research divisions of Goodyear's development department. It takes about three-quarters of an hour to inflate the mammoth casing to a pressure of only three pounds. Its value is placed conservatively at $5,000.

It might be interesting to note that the value is the only item of standard size in the entire size in the entire tire, which is a replica of the Goodyear all-weather tread supertwist cord tire, the measurements being in exact ratio to measurements of the regular size tire.

Goodyear is the largest rubber concern in the world. Early this year it finished the largest ariship dock in the world—in fact the largest building without interior supports. It is now constructing for the United States Navy two of the largest airships in the world, being nearly twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin and about three times the size of the Los Angeles. It was quite natural that Goodyear should build the largest tire in the world. It was necessary to construct around this huge casing a special vulcanizer to cure the rubber. Otherwise the giant pneumatic was built under normal operations.

Will there ever be occasion for the use of a tire the size of the giant to be seen in our city today and tomorrow? A prominent manufacturer of airplanes, when he saw the tire on exhibition in his city, stated that the day was coming when huge airplanes would require tires of just such dimensions.

Goodyear originally planned to construct the giant tire even larger, but the engineers in charge of the work were restricted in their program by the fact that some of the bridges over which this tire would pass on its tours of America, Canada, Mexico and Cuba have a clearance of only twelve feet.

The tire is mounted as a trailer to a bus of special design and has a load carrying capacity of approximately 50,000 pounds. Three months' time was required in building it.

RAILROAD MAN NOW FEELS LIKE NEW, HE SAYS

"I never make a trip now without taking a bottle of Ferrac along and it has made me feel like a new man." recently stated John L. Sanders, of 4211—2nd Ave. S. Birmingham, who is in the transportation department of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. His statement follows:

"I was in a badly run-down condition; had mighty little appetite and my digestion was poor, and I could'nt eat anything hardly without feeling upset all over. I was forever taking some kind of medicine that didn't seem to do me a bit of good. Then I started taking Ferrac and I never saw such a change in ankbody as there is in me. I am eating man size meals and enjoying them; my digestion is as good as anybodys and I feel fine from head to foot. I always will be thankful that I got away from "druggy medicines" and started this natural presription."

Ferrac is on sale in all drug stores or if your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 to the Greenville Products Co., Greenville, Ala.

CLANTON WINS OPENER

Last Friday afternoon on the local diamond the baseball team of Chilton County High took the opening game from Verbena High, the score being 13 to 2. Both teams showed up well for an early season game. From the showing the Clanton boys made last Friday afternoon they are going to put out a fast, scrappy little team this season. Each man played ball last Friday like a veteran, making a very few errors, and hitting the ball to every corner of the field.

Littlejohn, for Clanton, poled out the first homer of the season, winning the glove offered by Prof. Warr for the first home run. Benson Sims also got a home run, and a three-bagger. Cox, pitcher for Clanton, seemed to be in excellent form for an early-season game, giving up only two or three hits.

We would like to make special mention of the new uniforms the Clanton boys were "dressed up" in, and with them playing ball like they have started, and in their new uniforms, they look like a real baseball team. Let's back them up; come on out and root for your team.

Following is the box score for Clanton:

F. Busby 3b	5	3	2	0
Sims c	4	2	2	0
Cox p	4	2	1	1
Nivens ss	4	1	1	1
P. Busby cf	3	2	0	0
Littlejohn 1b	4	1	2	1
McMurray lf	3	1	1	0
Wagoner rf	3	1	1	1
Harris 2b	3	1	1	1
Totals	35	13	11	5

Summary—Bases on balls, 4; three-base hits, 4; home runs, 2; double plays, 1; hit by pitched ball, 2; passed balls, 1; wild piches, 1; earned runs, 10; struck out 3; umpires, Varnell and McMurray.

Collins Chapel Community

(Fifty Years Ago)

A man who was born and reared in the Collins Chapel community has kindly offered to furnish to The Union-Banner some interesting facts gathered from the early history of that section of the county, which will be published in this paper in a series of historical articles each week for the next few months.

These sketches will date back to fifty years ago, and will give interesting glances at the community as it was at that time, the school, the church, and each family who lived there then. Each family will be taken up in a separate article, and its history traced from fifty years ago until now.

The territory which will be included in these stories is that area which lies south of what is known as Rocky Ridge, and included in the half circle formed by Yellow Leaf and Turkey Creeks. It is now one of the most thickly settled parts of Chilton County, and is equal to about five or six miles square.

Fifty years ago there was one church in the community and one small log schoolhouse. The church was New Salem, which name it yet holds. The church house was a small log building at about the same spot as the present church building. At present, with other churches not far away on every side, New Salem has a total membership of 300 or more. Perhaps 50 years ago there were not 300 people who lived in a radius of many miles of the place.

The small log schoolhouse of 50 years ago stood out in the woods about a quarter of a mile east of the Sank Collins place now owned by J. H. Collins, the Bensons and Littletons.

In the course of these articles we hope to give a complete history of every family that lived in the Collins Chapel community 50 years ago. Of course as the story of each of those families is told up to the present time, it will have taken in practically every person now living in that section. Most all of the present day inhabitants of Collins Chapel can trace their ancestry back to one or the other of the families which lived there half a century ago.

Among the families which have been listed for this historical publication are the Dormineys, from which family came the immortal governor of Stumps Hills, an honor never accorded any other man before or since. The Robinson family, beginning with Aunt Polly, a widow. The Littleton family, the Martins, Collinses, Burnetts, Maddoxes, Barretts, Beans, and perhaps a few others who will come to our attention as we gather together the scattering threads with which we hope to weave our stories.

Those who may be interested in these articles would do well to keep them on file. They will be authentic and as nearly correct as it is possible to make them. This will be a bit of valuable history about one of the most important communities of Chilton County. It will be worth preserving.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank every one who lent a helping hand during the sickned and death of our dear daughter and sister, Velma Martin Jackson, who died from pneumonia on March 16. We pray God's richest blessings on each and every one of them.—J. N. Martin and family.

VELMA MARTIN JACKSON

The death angel visited the home of Mr. G. W. Jackson on March 16, and bore the spirit of his kind and loving wife to the great beyond.

Mrs. Jackson, before her marriage, was Miss Velma Lee Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Martin, of Pleasant Hill community. Velma was married to Mr. George W. Jackson on March 28, 1926. They made their home in the Collins Chapel community about three years. There she had scores of friends. After leaving Collins Chapel Mr. and Mrs. Jackson made their home in Whigham and Cario, Georgia, up until her death.

Although Mrs. Jackson had lived in Georgia for only two years, she had gained a host of friends there.

Velma was only 27 years of age, and leaves to mourn her loss, husband and four children. The children are Mary Nell, Marcelle, and a set of boy twins only five weeks of age, father and mother, three sisters and six brothers and many relatives.

To know her was to love her. Oh, it was so hard to give her up, but the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord. And we feel assured that our loss was heaven's gain, as she told us so many times that she was ready to go, only hated to leave her loved ones. And we are praying that we will meet her again some day, where sorrow will be no more.

Mrs. Jackson's body was shipped from Cario to Clanton on March 18, and carried to the home of her parents by Mell Martin. Funeral was held in Pleasant Hill cemetery Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Z. Y. Appleton conducted the services.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

BOY SCOUT ITEMS
By Dan Smith

Mr. Johnh J. Sigwald, Scout Executive for the Central Alabama Area Council, was in Clanton last Wednesday night for conference with local Scout officials, and a meeting with the troops of Clanton and Lay Dam. The progress of scouting in Chilton County was commended very highly by Mr. Sigwald. In his talks he presented some matters for the immediate future that will be undertaken with very keen interest by the Scouts.

Nine hundred Boy Scouts of Alabama will be selected to help with the entertaining of the Confederate Veterans Reunion at Montgomery in June. The Scouts thus selected will be cared for by the United States government at an improvised Scout City on Maxwell Field. The boys wil do police duty, guide service, and other like things to assist in entertaining the forty-odd thousand visitors who will be in Montgomery for a whole week. Perhaps eight to a dozen Scouts of Chilton County will draw asignments for this work.

An encouraging note was sounded by Mr. Sigwald concerning the number of Chilton County Scouts who have enrolled for the annual Scout Camp this summer. This, he said, shows that the Scouts of Clanton and Lay Dam are on their toes.

Another event of great consequence is the Annual Scoutcraft Jamboree to be held at Auburn Friday, May 1st. Both the Clanton and Lay Dam troops are eligible to enter this event, which includes a large list of contests that will test the ability and training of the Troops and individual scouts.

Mr. Sigwald called attention to the Scout programs which are being broadcast over WAPI every first Friday noon in each month. The Clanton troop will furnish the program the first Friday in August.

BIGGEST CROP IN HISTORY

Robert J. Jones, cotton census enumerator for Chilton County, has made his final report for the crop of 1930, which shows a total of 22,507 bales, as compared with the total of 18,947 for the year 1929.

"I have been in charge of the cotton census in this county for 15 years," said Mr. Jones Tuesday, "and the figures for last year, 1930, show the biggest crop for any year in that period."

TO THE OLD TIME SINGERS

Doubtless most of you have noticed the announcement in The Union-Banner of the old folks meeting at Friendship Church next Sunday, and I have been requested to write to all the old time singers to come out, and that I lead the singing, in the old Christian Harmony books. I now ask that you all come out and help us sing the good old songs for the benefit of the old people and the young people as well. Be sure and bring your old book. This is not to be a regular singing, but what songs are to be used are to be of the old book. May God come with each of us and may it be a great day of praise to God and His Son, Jesus Christ, who died for us all. Yours for a great day.—J. N. Scott.

"Are you shure this suit won't shrink?"

"Shrink? Vy, Mister, dot suit has been squirted on by efery fire hose in town!"

The Croon Sets A New Style In Singing

Many Singers Now Know This Trick, Declares Lillian Dawson

New York City.—That broadcasting has done more than any other agency to give the natural, untrained singer an opportunity is the opinion of Lillian Dawson, famous radio crooner.

"Crooning which has become so popular cannot be done according to rule and rote of the singing teachers," declares Miss Dawson. "In fact, it is contrary to all accepted rules of the great masters but nevertheless a new sweet tone is being evolved and a complete revolution in singing technique is very possible.

"The commercially successful singers are nearly all crooners, that is, singers who can tabloid their voices into the microphone. The exact opposite means are used in the control of volume of tone.

"The most popular crooners cannot be heard a foot away from the microphone. They sing with a peculiar softness akin to a whisper which the ether waves seem to pick up and transport with greater clarity than any other sound. They must also have songs of great sweetness and melody such as 'A Big Bouquet For You,' probably the crooningest song ever written."

Miss Dawson comes of a family of singers and is the first untrained voice in her theatrical family to make good.

CAPITAL STOCK LOANS AVAILABLE IN FOUR DAYS

The Alabama Advisory Committee on Agricultural Credits said Saturday that it takes only four days for local credit corporations in Alabama to obtain capital stock loans from the United States government out of the $10,000,000, made available for loans to individuals for setting up or increasing the capital stock of local credit corporations in drouth stricken areas.

This was made known after the State committee composed of Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries and chairman; M. A. Vencintelli, president of the Alabama National Bank, Montgomery; and Thomas Bowron, vice president of the First Nationla Bank, Birmingham, received a telegram from Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, stating that an application made by the Andalusia Agricultural Credit Corporation, Andalusia, Alabama, had been approved and that the corporation could proceed in making loans.

"On Tuesday, March 17th, the committee said "the Andalusia corporation made an application for a loan increasing its capital stock to $45,000. Immediately the state committee approved the application which was forwarded to Washington for approval by the National Advisory Loan Committee. On Friday, March 20, we received a telegram stating that the loan had been approved and that the Andalusia corporation could proceed in making loans based upon a capital stock of $45,000.

"This means that the association at Andalusia by discounting papers through the Intermediate Credit Bank at New Orleans for five to seven times its capital stock, is eligible to lend farmers from $250,000 to $300,000."

Chairman Storrs and L. B. Farley, executive secretary, reported "a flood of inquiries" about getting up local credit corporations. They said that information coming from various sections state that arrangements are being made for organizing several local associations.

"Due to the fact that only $10,000,000 is available to all drouth stricken states and that 'first come is first served' immediate action is essential," the committee said. "We are very anxious to cooperate with any group of individuals in setting up local associations."

NEW MODEL CHEVROLET

A new body style, the 5-passenger coupe, has been daded to the 1931 line of Chevrolet Sixes, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced this week.

The new model is Chevrolet's latest addition to its deluxe line, another of which, the convertible cabriolet, was brought out early in January, and through which Chevrolet is establishing a new order of quality, luxury and individuality in the low priced field. The new type, which brings the number of passenger models in the Chevrolet line to eleven, is priced at $595 f.o.b., Flint, Michigan.

The 5-passenger coupe is of the 2-door, close-coupled type with the sport treatment carried throughout. Body is by Fisher. Finish is in new duco combinations of ember gray on body, with Cooperstown green wheels and the roof and rear quarters in Sheffield green. The trim stripe is cream.

Interior arrangement is practically the same as that of the 2-door sedan, affording abundant leg room for all passengers. The front seats are separate, the driver's being adjustable. The other has a thin back and can be tilted forward. The rear seat holds three persons comfortably. The three-hinged door is exceptionally wide, permitting easy entry for passengers.

The interior appointments are of the deluxe type throughout. The upholstery is optional in bedford cord or mohair. The instrument board is specially designed. There are arm rests, an assist cord on the right side, ash tray and curtains on the rear side and rear windows.

Exterior treatment is in keeping with the interior. A package compartment in the rear deck has a large capacity and is easily accessible. Radiator grille and cowl lights in chrome plate are used. Chromium plating is also freely employed on headlamps and other exterior hardware. The regular Fisher V windshield is used. Five wire wheels are standard equipment with the spare carried in the rear.

The new model is now in production and dealers throughout the country are being stocked for immediate delivery.

Howard R. Oden of Isabella was in Clanton this week serving on the Petit Jury.

POULTRY

LACK OF FEEDING SPACE FOR CHICKS

Here and there, from various corners, from numerous businesses comes news that the cloud of depression is clearing. Now and then, oftener than for many months, flashes of returning prosperity are heard. Fresh news, heartening news, came recently, when the Jackes-Evans Company, St. Louis, Mo., announced a single order of over a quarter of a million baby chick feeders, sold to Purina Mills. This order, officials of the company declare, will keep their plant running until late next spring—will keep many men employed.

When asked the purpose of this mammoth contract, C. S. Johnson, head of the Poultry Department of Purina Mills, said, "We ordered these feeders for our dealers as our part of a program to give every baby chick all it needs to eat. It means a square meal, a square deal for every chick hatched.

"Many poultry failures can be traced to this one cause—lack of feeding and watering space for chicks," he continued. "When chicks have to crowd and fight to eat, it stands to reason they won't grow as fast. And some hungry chicks develop toe-picking and feather-pulling habits.

"Sufficientt feeding space means about one inch of trough room for each chick, until they are four weeks old, or 50 chicks to the average 24-inch feeder, allowing feeding from both sides. When the all-mash system of feeding is used, slightly more hopper space must be provided.

"The quantity production and consequent low price secured on these chick feeders," Mr. Johnson concluded, "is being passed on to poulttrymen through a nation-wide dealer system," Mr. J. L. Ruffin, local Purina dealer, has ordered a supply of these feeders and will make a special offer to baby chick raisers in a future issue of The Union-Banner.

SHILOH

I want to call attention to everyone who will come out next Sunday and help us out in our singing. The books are new and we need lots of practice. As it being the fifth Sunday, and no singing close by, we want all who will and can to come.

Our regular singing met last third Sunday with a large crowd, and did some good singing for the songs to be new. Directors were F. I. Popwell, Sam Henley, Clem Billingsley, T. W. Billingsley and C. M. Billingsley, who sang four songs each. Organists were Miss Minnie Bice, F. I. Popwell and C. M. Billingsley.

Let everybody come out next Sunday and make the singing good.—Chairman.

First, we elected new officers, as follows: Clyde Popwell was re-elected president; James Dennis, vice president; Osmond Glenn, secretary-treasurer; Quentin Kelly, reporter; and E. J. Foshee, yell leader. Other members of the club who were present are Chester Messer, Morris Foshee, Howard Martin, Morris Popwell, Elbert Foshee, C. A. Foshee, J. P. Culp, and Odean Deloach.

After the electing of officers, Mr. H. C. Armstrong, president of the City National Bank, Selma, Made a most interesting talk. Also Mr. Cobb, Commissioner of Chilton County, made a brief but very interesting talk on the value of pure bred live stock. We were then very glad to have Mr. Ling give us wonderful advice on the proper feeding of dairy cows.

There being no further business we adjourned until the next meeting time.—Quentin Kelly, reporter.

BURNS HOLE INTO SAFE, GETS MONEY

Strong Box of Shelby County Banking House Is Rolled From Vault As Burglar Uses Torch

Wilsonville, March 24.—Robbers last night burned the combination off the vault of the Bank of Wilsonville and escaped with currency estimated at between $4,700 and $5,000, G. W. Carter, cashier, reported today.

Carter said the robbers entered the bank by prizing off a door. He said the bank was equipped with a gas protective system and that the robbers evidently were equipped with gas masks.

The robbery was discovered by W. J. Weldon, president of the bank, when he arrived to open the institution this morning. He reported that the safe was wheeled from the vault to the main floor and the safe robbed.

Gallatin, also from Pennsylvania, who served from May 14, 1801, until February 9, 1814. The latter, however, spent much of his time in France and his office was declared vacant while he was abroad.

It will be shown free at the Wadesonian Theatre, beginning at seven o'clock. The public is invited and urged to see this picture. After the cripple childrens picture the regular picture show program will be shown.

On April 24th, the members of the Kiwanis Club will put on a negro minstrel at the County high school auditorium. This will be more fun than a barrell of monkeys.

Voice of the People

FROM UDAH CURLEE

Editor Union-Banner:

Enclosed you will find money order for $1.50 for which you are to renew my subscription for another year.

I enjoyed what you had to say about the sacrifice the teachers of Chilton County are making in order to keep the schools open. It was very commendable of the teachers.

We are a little more fortunate here in Etowah County. We have not failed to get checks and have promise of them for the remainder of the term.

I enjoy your paper every week, for it keeps me in touch with all the events of home.

Wishing you continued success in all your endeavors, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
U. B. CURLEE.

FROM WALLACE C. EDLER, IN SEATTLE

The Union-Banner has received at letter from Mr. Wallace C. Edler, who now lives in Seattle, Washington. He says:

"The state of my eyes, not knowing whether I shall attain full sight, partial sight, or any at all, makes it impossible for me to promise a letter under my own hand some of these days. To give you an idea of my seeing capabilities, I can't read anything in a newspaper except the 'Box-Car' letters, and I sign my name from memory, when my hand is placed where the signature is needed.

"All the same, I am wishing you and yours and the paper all the luck possible. If any of my friends inquire about me, just tell them I am doing the best I can."

Mr. Edler went to Seattle about a year ago to live with some of his relatives. This is the first letter we have had from him. It is needless to say that we regret to learn of the infirmities he is suffering with his eyes.

Hundreds of our readers will recall their acquaintance with the man who was founder of The Union in 1903, and the publisher of the paper until 1912, when it was consolidated with The Banner.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

In none of his public statements has President Hoover shrown to better advantage than in his message vetoing the Muscle Shoals bill, and the document will doubtless be quoted in future debates in the political and legislative arena when the question of putting the government into business comes up for discussion and debate. President Hoover makes out a complete case for vetoing the Muscle Shoals legislation passed by the recent Congress. He shows that the government to go into the business of selling power would first of all have to invest something more than $125,000,000 and then under the most favorable conditions, aside from the competition it would be compelled to meet, could only operate at a yearly loss of $2,000,000. So far as the question of the manufacture of nitrates is concerned the president points out that great changes have come in that industry since the nitrate issue was first broached and the government need no longer worry about nitrates for use in war, since synthetic nitrogen is now turned out by private enterprise in the United States in quantities large enough to supply every need of the government.

There is a subtle bit of irony in that part of the president's message which points out that the Muscle Shoals bill provided that the nitorgen producing plant is to be operated by persons believing in the "feasibility and wisdom" of the project. As President Hoover sums it up, "In other words they are to say that they believe in government manufacture of fertilizers and that it can be made a success on this set-up. We are thus supposed to appoint business administrators on the basis of their belief rather than on their experience and competency." The average citizen who remembers something about government in business from World War days will hardly agree with Muscle Shoals advocates that belief in government ownership and operation is the best proof of the business ability of the business theorist who nourishes the belief.

The Muscle Shoals project has been given a great deal more national advertising inside Congress and out than it deserves from the standpoint of its physical importance. The reason is not hard to find. Government operation if Muscle Shoals has been made the rallying cry of socialists of every stripe and complexion who are seeking, in some way or other to get Uncle Sam into business in competition with private enterprise, with the ultimate purpose of "socializing" the United States. President Hoover evidently was thinking of this when he wrote:

"I am firmly opposed to the government entering into any business the major purpose of which is competition with our citizens. There are national emergencies which require that the government should temporarily enter the field of business, but they must be emergency actions and in matters where cost of the project is secondary to much higher considerations. There are many localities where the government is justified in the construction of great dams and reservoirs, where navigation, flood control, reclamation or stream regulation are of dominant importance and where they are beyond the capacity or purpose of private or local government capital to construct. In these cases power is often a by-product and should be disposed of by contract or lease.

"But for the federal government deliberately to go out to build up and expand such an occasion to the major purpose of a power and manufacturing business is to break down the enterprise and initiative of the American people; it is destructive of equality of opportunity among our people; it is negative of the ideals upon which our civilization has been based. The power problem is not to be solved by the federal government going into the power business, nor is it to be solved by the project in this bill. The remedy for the abuses in the conduct of that industry lies in regulation and not by the federal government in entering upon the business itself."

In the last few words quoted above the President may well have outlined what is to become a paramount issue in the campaign of 1932.

WASHINGTON ON ALLIANCES

A frequent contributor of letters to American newspapers, whose internationalist urge is familiar to many editors, sets out to destroy the fairly general error of ascribing what she calls "this hackeled phrase" of "no entangling alliances" to Washington. She is correct in stating that the words occur in Jefferson's first inaugural address.

Whether she is correct in stating that "Washington never used the phrase" is another question, which can be finally disposed of only by combing every utterance Washington ever made. The answer is not important enongh to justify the research. The idea that opposition to the United States entering the World Court is sufficiently withered by transferring a warning from the lips of Washington to those of Jefferson survives only in the little rump of federalism that has its headquarters in the neighborhood where this correspondent parks her typewriter.

Washington and Jefferson, who was Washington's Secretary of State, were of one mind regarding the dangers to be anticipated from political entanglements with the Old World. "It is our true policy," Washington stated in his farewell address, "to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world." The idea of entanglement was included in that of permanency by the following sentences which immediately preceded this declaration of policy:

"Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course (from Europe's). * * * Why forego the advantage of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalism, interest, humor, or caprice?"

Attempting to make it appear that Washington's alleged failure to use precisely the phrase Jefferson used convicted him of less distaste for foreign entanglements is quibbling, which is never argument.—Detroit Free Press.

THE DAYS OF DEWEY

The recent death of Mrs. Dewey recalled to many middle aged Americans the famous and stirring days when her husband's name first was blazoned across a country about to burst its shell with all the reserves of its contained power. They were confident days, adventurous exploring and curious. There was a comparatively new navy, experienced sailors and able captains, the far seas, and, strange as it now may apear to indifferent or critical Americans, a people who thought their cause was just and their purpose civilized and humane.

Dewey was trained under Farragut. Under that great sailor he had seen the forcing of the Mississippi. In the same spirit he, as commander of a squadron which had no base unless it conquered one, forced his way into the unknown dagers of Subig Bay ad Manila harbor. The improvidence of the Spanish had been incredible. Being incredible, it could not enter into the calculations and expectations of the American commander. His ships went through mine fields which were ineffective, past batteries which did not discover him, by gun positions where the guns had not been mounted, and into battle against ships and batteries which could not hit him. But Dewey did not go against known futilities, but against positions which were potentially deadly. Few sea commanders have taken equal chances. The World War revealed a poverty of fleet command as compared with that of the age of Dewey and Sampson. It is to be hoped as to the American navy they were not the last of the old tradition.—Chicago Tribune.

Won't it be nice when they get the Muscle Shoals issue settled and we won't have to read about it any more?

BUY AT HOME

There are people in this community who buy very little here, thoughtlessly spending their money out of town where it is lost to the community. Those who buy here benefit the community by keeping their money in local circulation and reap the additional rewards of buying from business enterprises that depend, for their very existence, upon their reputation for fair dealing.

The same principle which urges people to patronize the local merchant who has his money invested where it serves them most, should impel the merchant to advertise in the newspapers of his community. This newspaper boosts Gary and its people, institutoins and business. It is a fixture with a heavy investment and dependent, for its existence as a booster, upon the patronage of the community.—Gary, Ind., Post-Tribune.

Congress had gone home and we hope for its own peace of mind it won't spend the next few days reading what the newspapers thought about it.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper had the pleasure last week of looking over a majority of the county west of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. We visited most every community in that part of the county, and found that the farmers are earnestly at work in all sections, bent, it seems on raising a bumper crop, or at least as much so as it will be possible to do with little or no fertilizer. Our business carried us to the fields to see the farmers, where we failed to find them at the house, and discussing crop conditions and the prospects for a good price this fall with them, we found that most of them are planning to raise all the food and feed they will need, and then some cotton.

Owing to the pretty weather we have been having since Christmas there has been more farm work accomplished in this county than The Sweeper ever remembers seeing before at this time of the year. Of course, we attribute this, to a certain extent, to the fact that money is scarce and the people have nothing better to do than to stay home and work. This can be seen by an examination of the crowds on the streets of Clanton during week days now.

The Sweeper has done considerable traveling in the last few years, visiting most every county in the State, and here is something else we were forced to take notice of while we were out last week, and a condition which all the people of the county should be justly proud. Every piece of road we traversed was in excellent shape, and could have been traversed in any kind of weather with ease. In company with The Sweeper on this trip over the county was a gentleman from Decatur, Ala., who has been all over the State in the last few months, and he made the statement to us that Chilton County had the best roads, taken as a whole of any county in the State, taking into consideration the number of miles of rural roads we have.

The above mentioned condition is certainly a high recommendation for our board of County Commissioners and for the road system of Chilton. The Sweeper told the gentleman from Decatur that our commissioners had done all this and at the same time found a way to relieve all road subjects of the county of road duty or road tax, to which statement he replied: "I never heard of such thing before. How do they do it?"

Our road system is fast coming into repute over the State, and several people from other counties have already been here to study our system. The Sweeper is proud of this record.

Our friend Bill, from Route 7 whom The Man on the Corner referred to last week may think it has not been dusty, but he certainly has not been hanging around The Cinder Pile for the past week or so. What with our trying to do our little sweeping and this March wind, it has been rather dusty with us. But be that as it may, we are certainly glad to know that Friend Bill likes our little chat each week, and will be pleased to cease our labors and stand the broom over in the corner while we read what Bill has to say. Like The Man on the Corner, we too would like to have Bill come again.

Also we would like for Bill to let us know the next time he is going to take "the boys" up to the Magic City to play for WAPI as we would like to tune in and hear them. How about it Bill?

It is surprising how much a little paint will improve the appearance of a building. The next time you pass the new offices of the Superintendent of Education, now located in the old Potts building, take a good look at the improvements the county has had made in that property. An old and somewhat dilapidated building has, with the aid of a very little work and a coat of shining white paint, been transformed into an imposing structure, worthy of its position alongside our modern courthouse.

The Sweeper has heard some criticism of the act of the authorities in having the trees around the courthouse trimmed up so closely. The Sweeper does not concur in this. Although the trees may look badly at the present time, they were getting entirely too large and were ever in danger under high winds. It will of course take a few years for them to branch out again, but when they do they will be far more beautiful than before. We commend the officers in having them pruned at this time.

In connection with what we had to say last week relative to a white way and some control of the traffic situation as it applies to the large trucks or freight vans, we would also like to inquire where the street department manages to find all those bricks, large rocks and large pieces of slag they are continually using to repair the streets. These large pieces of stone and brick are very bad on tires and make mean driving. We wonder if the men in charge of this work could not find time to dispose of such obstacles in the future.

We have been missing some of the larger clinkers from our Cinder Pile. Maybe that is where those objectionable ones on the streets are coming from.

We'll be a-sweeping along. See you again next week and promise to have something interesting for you.—The Sweeper.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS
By Jay Taylor

The number of men employed by the government to carry out its construction program will soon be increased from 150,000 to 450,000.

All of our peace foundations might do well to adopt as the first article of their constitutions Washington's advice: "To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace."

President Hoover by proclamation has added the Hiawatha National Forest, located in the upper peninsula of Michigan, to our reserves under national control, making a total of 150. There are 150 million acres administered by the National Forest Reserve.

When one of our half-baked statesmen makes the discovery that some prominent person has in his posession $1,000,000, he considers that fact prima facie evidence that the money was stolen.

American marines are to be withdrawn from Nicarauga in June, we are told. But our pacifists should not feel disheartened, for they will be able to find other reasons for criticizing the government.

When Kink Ibn Suad of Arabia makes a journey into the desert he keeps in touch with his two palaces at Mecca and Riyadhfi by radio, which reminds us that our present civilization is extending into Asia. Arabia, by the way, is as large as all of Europe outside of Russia.

The Federal Bureau of Engraving and Printing turns out each year one billion pieces of paper money, and some of us are wondering who gets our share.

Our idea of an altruist is a congressman spending other people's money where it will produce the most votes for the congressman.

The soviet government has quite a system. It dumps the output of stolen property and slave labor on foreign markets, in many cases below cost of production, to produce depression and unemployment, and then appeals to the unemployed to overthrow the governments which are the targets of these economic attacks.

Alaska has a bonded indebtedness of $130,000,000 and an authorized bonded indebtedness of $160,000,000 which is one-fourth of the entire realty valuation of the state, but no one has heard any politician claim that the high price of politics has anything to do with what is the matter with Arkansas.

Maybe Congress is in the same shape that the stock market was in in 1929—it needs to be deflated.

Still the retiring congressmen may be consoled by the fact that it is better to be a lame duck than never to have been a duckatall.

Remember the good old days when you believed there was an Easter bunny? But come to think of it that wasn't half as foolish as the innocent trust you put in the stock market after you had grown up.

RAILWAYS, HIGHWAYS, AND AIRWAYS

Railways, highways, and airways, are the three major arteries that carry the transportation of this country. Each of them bears a more or less important relation to the commercial, industrial, and economic life of every community in the land.

Time was when towns and cities were being made by the location of railway lines. That development has served its day. No more do we see railway lines being built on any appreciable scale. In fact, it is doubtful if you could find at present in the United States an important railway line under construction.

At preset the highway subject monopolizes the interest of town, cities, and communities. Everybody everywhere has an ear to the ground for any possibility of getting a paved highway to come by the town where they live.

What about the airways? We haven't yet worked up very much interest in that subject in the smaller towns. The big cities have been scrapping over it for five years. It will become a live project in the little towns before long. We will perhaps live to see the airways of the nation carrying a large part of the traffic of passengers and commerce.

It is not a bad idea for the small cities to begin now to offer attractions to the fliers who already traverse the airways. Landing fields can be arranged easily, thus putting the town on the air map. The subject has been mentioned in Clanton. Our opinion is that it would be a wise move to make.

We know of a business man who has large financial interests in Selma and Talladega. He makes his appointments between the two places by means of his own private flying machine. He has indicated a number of times that he would be glad to make stop-overs in Clanton if we had a landing field.

There you are. One by one, visitors would drop down from the air to see us, if we had provisions made for them. First thing you know some adventurous citizen of our town would get a plane if we had a landing place. As the years go by the air travelers will be more in numbers. Where we would have one or two stop-overs a month now, perhaps in five years it would be that many or more every day.

Planning for the future and being ready for all opportunities when they arrive is the surest route for keeping our town on the map. We should not miss a single opportunity to attract the man from anywhere who might be inclined to stop and see our community.

MORAL ECHOES

By D. W. Haskew

The examination was on at the school and the father was concerned about the grades of his son. To encourage him in his studies the indulgent father had given his boy a sport model of the Buick make of cars. At the close of the first days of examinations, the son came into his father's office, tingling with excitment. "Did you pass everything today, my son?" inquired the anxious father. "Yes, Daddy," replied the boy. "I passed everything on the road but a Pierce Arrow, and one time I was sure I was going to pass it." The young hopeful was not thinking about his grades at school, but he was thinking about his speed on the highway. In this day of speed and more speed, the children of our homes are not thinking about passing in their studies, but they are thinking much about passing everything on the highway of life. It is hard to understand why some folks are in such a hurrry to get there, when their arrival means the arrival of just one more fool.

There must be near 572 thousand little red ants living in and around my place of habitation. They are just like folks, only they do not require so much room. On a table there sat a glass of syrup, these motes of energetic life discovered the sweet in the glass, and they started to diving in. Every one wanted to taste the sweet in the glass, and all alike refused to be warned by those already in trouble. They would tumble over each other to get their share of the sweets that they craved, and when they had tasted they started to dying. Not dozens, but thousands of these senseless forms of life, plunged in after sweetness and they all died. A great big human stood looking down into the glass filled with dead ants, remarked, "If I had been an ant and had seen all of my comrades in trouble, I would not have gone into that syrup." We see auto wrecks caused from fast driving, but we do not slow up. We see men in trouble because of dealing in rum, but we do not keep our hands clean from that business. The thing that looks sweet to us, we are going to have it if we have to tumble over the dead to make it ours. When will we be warned by the fellow who is in trouble just ahead of us.

I saw a lady standing on her front porch drawing water out of a well. She had two buckets, and as one went down the other came up. While that lady was drawing water one bucket was going down all the time, one bucket was coming up all the time. That is what takes place in all forms of gambling. If the man makes on his cotton futures, he can be sure that some other man is losing. When one goes up the other goes down. When a fellow wins at dice, he wins at the expense of the one who loses. That is why all forms of gambling must be wrong. The man who lives on gambling, lives on the life blood of the one who loses. No gambler ever won a dollar when some other man did not lose a dollar. One goes up and that forces the other one to go down.

It was noised abroad that the old gardener in the city had died. He was just a simple old colored man, but that man had not lived in vain. He had spent his life grading and leveling yards. He had planted the shrubbery around the homes of the town. He had placed the brick that went into the curbstones. He had hauled the loads of fertilizer that had put life and growth into living plants. He had dug up tons of soil and he had made a thousand flowers to grow where no flowers had ever grown before. That old negro had the broken language of the primitive darkey, but he was honest, he was a hard worker and he lived by the sweat of his brow. Now, the old man is sleeping in the cold ground, but he did not live in vain. He left something behind him that made the city look better. When a man lives in a community and leaves that community more beautiful, when he pours out his perspiration to make flowers where no flowers have ever grown, that man's life is not in vain.

The father came in from business and rushed through his home to the back porch and whistled for his bird dog. The dog failed to appear. He called again and no dog. That father made the welkin ring around that place until he found his dog. That night the oldest boy in that home was not at supper, but the father said nothing. The hour to retire came and the father went peacefully to bed, never inquiring about the boy who was absent. The mother came in from her club and found that the garage door was open and her car gone. The phone got busy until she located that car. She had an absent daughter, but nothing was said about the girl. When a father is more anxious about his bird dog than he is his own boy, when a mother is more anxious that her car is in the garage, than she is that her girl is at home, you may expect awful things to happen in connection with that family life.

Rev. Ayers will speak at Mountain Springs church on the evening of March 31, and April 2, at seven o'clock. Miss Davison will accompany Rev. Ayers here from Thorsby.

We hope to have Miss Brickin with us on April 2.

The time has been set for the organization of a Christian Endeavor Society, after the speaking on Thursday, April 2. We invite all the young people of the community to come.

Everybody is invited to come out to hear Rev. Ayers at these speakings.

WATCHING THE WORLD

Cutting The Cake

Charlie Chaplin, traveling in Germany, finds himself lionized equally by the crowd at the railway station and by Professor Einstein. The latter had a birthday twenty-four hours before Charlie arrived, but saved the cake to share with his American guest. He gave him also an autographed picture of himself and a copy of his theory of relativity, and the comedian went off saying it was his happiest visit in Europe. A pleasureable discovery made by men who succeed in any line is that those in fields far different are ready to accord them honor for their accomplishment. Achievement in any honorable occupation often leads to delightful relationships.

Prodding the Peasants

Russia's collective-farming experiment has been a distinct success, so it is claimed, and plans are now being made for a re-organization of the movement to increase families have participated thus far in the project. In the new scene of things the lazier peasant, who contributed their implements and live stock but as little labor as possible, will find rough sledding. The new rule is "Only those who work may eat." Probably many peasants pictured the new regime as one in which work would be abolished; but the Soviet, if it has not brought in such a utopia, has done much for the peasants. Not collective farming perhaps, but some kind of farm-movement ought to be started in our own land for the benefit of thousands now out of work in cities—because of improved machinery which largely dispenses with human labor.

Momentary Millionaire

Up in Minneapolis there is a man who knows a good deal more about human nature than he knew a year and a half ago. At that time news came that he was heir to a fortune of $130,000,000, left by an uncle in Australia. After the news came, came the salesmen—droves of them of every variety. The heir gave up his job to receive them and moved into a hotel which begged him to accept its hospitality. An automobile concern presented him with a handsome car. And then—the expected returns from the vast Australian investments failed to arrive. The salesman grew dubious; the hotel presented a bill of several thousand dollars; the givers of the car requested its return. One happy result remained—the momentary millionaire found who his real friends were. Then too there was this to be happy over—peace from the pestering salesmen.

Fire and Fury

The Illinois state pentitentiary was the scene last week of one of the worst riots in penal history. Guards were beaten, fires were started, property was destroyed; and pandemonium reigned as in a madhouse. Several convicts were shot and tear bombs were used to break up the raging mob in the prison yard and disperse the members to their cells. The cause of the riot was dissatisfaction with the ways of the pardon board, thought the immediate occasion of the trouble was the death of a convict in "solitary" with much resultant excitement. The physchology of the prisoners, in wrecking their own quarters—such as the dining room and the entertainment hall—has puzzled observers, but such ways are symbol of the self-destructiveness of crime.

Optimistic Ford

Present times are good times, according to Henry Ford, interviewed recently in Florida; though he added that "only a few know it." The customer can buy from fifty to seventy-five per cent more for his dollar than before the stock market crash. The wise merchant will reduce prices to meet changed conditions, even though his goods may have been bought at the high price of a year and a half ago. Asked his opinion regarding prohibition, Mr. Ford pronounced it a success and predicted that eventually big business will be a factor in enforcement. "Industry will have to help if it is to survive and the real enforcement will come from industry." Ford's optimistic attitude about prohibition may play as real a part in influencing the public mind as his optimism about returning prosperity, and will help to create the improvement which he visualizes.

Birthday of a Star

Friday, March 13th, was the birthday of "Planet X," twin of Mother Earth in size. It was discovered a year ago at Lowell observatory in Arizona, and later named Pluto, at the suggestion of an 11-year old girl in England. It is the only planet to which a human being could go without changing his weight; for since its size is practically the same as that of the earth the gravitational pull is the same. In traveling around the sun its distance is sometimes a billion miles nearer than at other times, and a half a century or so hence, when it is nearest to sun and earth, astronomers will doubtless give it the once-over. Besides the nine planets known to the general public there are hundreds of tiny planets and asteroids—so numerous that the astronomers have nearly run out of names, like some old-time families.

Dream City

Australia, a land of strange animals and aborigines, affords today a strange spectacle of another sort. Some years ago, desiring a federal capital like Washington, Australia's statesmen made plans for a large and beautiful city. Nine hundred acres were laid out in streets and water mains, hotels were built, a three-million-dollar capital building erected, and five million dollars worth of private dwellings put up. It was the beginning of the great city of Canberra. But there was no great aftermath; few people came. A palatial hotel, with a large staff from England, has often had not a single guest. The failure of the politicians is graphically suggested by the numerous foundation-stones, bearing their names in gold, which litter the landscape. A number of government leaders have advocated the abandonment of the city, and the time may come when the solitary traveler will find there a scene similar to that described by Browning in one of his most beautiful poems—"Love Among the Ruins"—of the English pasture where sheep grazed beside columns of ancient grandeur, harking back to days of Rome, and lovers walked in the quiet eventide.

32 Physicians Report Findings on New Sargon

So remarkable have been the results accomplished by Sargon in helping restore health to countless thousands of people that during the past thirty days alone thirty-two leading physicians have broken the rule of a life-time and have come out openly and publicly to give it their unqualified endorsement.

So startling have been the reports in many thousands of cases that selected physicians in principal cities were expressly retained to study the Sargon formula and report their findings so that the public might know the whole truth.

Outstanding among the number are:

Dr. P. K. Drummond, plant physician for the Ford Motor Company, Detroit, for 12 years.

Dr. C. J. Roberts, Philadelphia—Examining physician for the Pennsylvania Railroad for 26 years.

Dr. W. L. Mair—Graduate McGill University Faculty of Medicine, Montreal—Medical examiner for Sears-Roebuck, Detroit.

Dr. G. Warburton—Graduate famous Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York.

Dr. Eugene Perkins—Physician for Western Electric Compnay, Philadelphia.

Dr. W. W. Kern—Examining Physician for New York Life Insurance Company—and many others

In order that the public may receive the full benefit of the advice of these well-known physicians, their reports will be published in later issues of this paper. The statements of physicians of such standing are perhaps without precedent. Study their repors and profit by their advice.

WINNER OF $500 PRIZE

Miss Ruth H. Jones certainly knows her oil when it comes to babies. In the Mennen Baby Oil letter contest recently conducted by the Mennen Company of Newark, N. J., Miss Jones won first prize of $500. The judges met at the Union League Club in New York City March 13, and awarded the prizes.

The judges were Mrs. Clara S. Littledale, editor of Parents Magazine; Miss Meta Pennock, editor of Trained Nurse and Hospital Review; and Senator Copeland. Miss Jones can feel proud of having won first prize in view of the large number of entries and the high standard of the competition. Miss Jones is a local resident of Chilton County, a prominent teacher and member of the Child Welfare Board. Her many friends join in offering congratulations for having won this high honor.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. FLORENCE HUETT

Mrs. Florence Huett was born in Coosa County February 6, 1878. She was married to Mr. James Alfred Huett in the year of 1896. Lived in Chilton County most of her married life. She was the mother of six children, of which four are living. Johnnie and Lonnie, twin boys; and Mrs. Mary Williams and Mrs. Allie Gray. Three sisters, Julia Huett, Carrie Boockholdt, and Abbie Dees. Two brothers, Albert Neeley and Arthur Neeley. Three of them live near Enterprise; Mr. Arthur Neeley of Bessemer; Mrs. Abbie Dees, of Sylacauga; and also a great host of friends and relatives to mourn for her.

To know her meant to love her. She joined the Baptist church when she was young, was a devoted Christian. Her health was fairly good until last Summer. She had a stroke of paralysis, and we thought she was going to die, but we all loved her so much that many prayers were made for her restoration, and God spared her to us until February 9, 1931.

During her sickness last Summer she was very happy and sometimes sang; and sometimes shouted. She was very reconciled to God's will. Her health began to fail just after Christmas, and on February 9 she fell dead in her chair.

She was a great friend of mine. Her smiles and her sweet disposition and her Christian life will live on in the lives of all who knew her. She was always ready to go to see anyone sick, and help in any way that she could. She loved her church and was a good worker in her church. Her husband died and left her on November 20, 1926.

Now, I'll say to her children, be reconciled to God's will. He always knows best. She is happy and free from care. We can go to her some day, where death can never part us.

Her cares are past; her grief is o'er; and on the everlasting shore, with Jesus she is now at rest.—Mrs. Edith Burkhalter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to those who aided us so much during the sickness and death of our sweet little baby.

We especially make mention on Mr. Harvey Foshee, Mrs. Stapp, and Miss Alma Allen, also Mr. Tom Rockett, and the neighbors who were so kind and good. God bless you all.—A. O. Boswell and wife.

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewiston, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much over-weight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 pounds, and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 pounds. And I must say I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at Alred Drug Company, or any drug store in America. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully staisfied—money back.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some Sights He Saw Some He Saw Not

Had another trip this week, exploring another section of Alabama which I had not hitherto visited. Went to LaFayette, in Chambers County Monday, going by way of Spigener, Wetumpka, Tallassee, Auburn, and Opelika. I had seen that part of the country before; but on the return trip we split the world wide open by the most direct route back to Clanton. From LaFayette this route brought us almost due west by Camp Hill, Dadeville, Alex City, Kellyton, Rockford, Mitchell Dam, and back home.

Traveling over Alabama nowadays, one cannot avoid the observation that our State has made great progress in road building in recent years. Most anywhere you choose to go, you will find a good graveled or paved road to take you there. On our entire trip Monday we found only one piece of road that was not good. That was from Rockford to the ferry below Mitchell Dam. That is a new road, well graded, but no gravel. It showed evidences of being somewhat treacherous after a rain. This road should be graveled from Rockford to the river, like it is from the river to where it intersects the Montgomery Highway between Coopers and Verbena.

We had with us on our journey Monday, Mr. Ben Sessions, mail carrier on Route 7 from Clanton. All along the way he was busy watching the mail boxes to see if any flags were up. That was caused merely by the force of habit which he has acquired from many years service in delivering and collecting mail along his route.

Ben was born and reared in Chambers County, near LaFayette. He knows a great many people there. We could not go anywhere up and down the streets of LaFayette with Ben for somebody was always stopping him to talk over old times and renew acquaintance. I thought I would starve to death before we could ever get him to quit talking to folks and go with us to the restaurant.

One of the old acquaintances of Mr. Sessions whom we came across was a Mr. Johnson. No sooner than I had met him I could see that he bore a likeness to Mr. W. T. Johnson, who was in this section of the State a few years ago. Upon inquiry I found out that they are brothers.

Mr. Sessions pointed out to us the cross tie and lumber yard over by the railroad tracks, where, he said, he used to eat his sardines and crackers, when, as a boy, he hauled ties and lumber to LaFayette.

The country all the way through east Alabama from here to LaFayette, is what you might call rolling, red, rocky, and rough. Of course there are variations of all those conditions; but it is easy to find places that will meet any of the descriptions. I have noticed many times when folks go away on a trip, they come back and say, almost invariably, that they did not see any place that looked better than Chilton County.

Not being such a widely traveled man, I have wondered if our folks were really justified in holding up our county always above other places in the State. Now, there is only one little corner of Alabama which I have not been in; and I am compelled, from what I have seen to say that I have not found any part of the State that looks any better to me than Chilton County. In fact, there are very few places that look any ways as good. And the places which look worse than our county could not be enumerated, they are so many.

We saw some nice looking towns Monday. LaFayette is a good looking place. They took plenty of room to build it. The streets are wide and roomy. The courthouse occupies a large space with wide streets on all sides, and business houses forming a solid square, all facing the county building.

Did not stop in Dadeville; but it appeared to be a nice little city. In Alexander City we paused a moment at the drug store of Newt Askins to get a drink, and hoping to see him. He was out, but we saw Mrs. Askins, and talked with her a few minutes. Mrs. Askins was Miss Beatrice Culver, daughter of Mr. Henry Culver, of Clanton. She and Newt were married here, back in the days when Newt and Calvin Wilson were working at Upchurch Drug Store. I had not thought how long ago that had been until I heard Mrs. Askins say that their boy, Ernest, is now studying medicine at the University of Alabama. I believe she said he was in his third year of college work.

I was somewhat surprised to see Alex City as big and business-like as it is. Evidences of much business going on there. Mills and plants of some kind in every direction you look. Fine looking business houses, and many beautiful residences. Paved streets, of course. These days you find paved streets in every town of any consequences, even in Camp Hill.

The industrial institute, where one of Sheriff Gillespie's boys goes to school, is at Camp Hill. We passed right by the place on our way out to Dadeville. It is a nice looking school. Perhaps it deserves to be better konwn than it is in Alabama.

The highway from Dadeville to Alexander City crosses Lake Martin. There we saw evidences of much fishing. A fine hotel or lodging house is built alongside the highway and overlooking the big lake. Lake Martin is everywhere in that part of the country. There were signs of low water in the basin. It appeared to be ten feet or more from the high water mark down to where the present water level stood.

I will conclude the story of our trip Mondey by telling who was in the party. Besides Mr. Sessions and the writer, there were County Superintendent Buford Lawrence, and his brother from Selma, and Prof. Quinn, principal of Clanton Grammar School. It took me all day to find out what we made the trip for, and it may take you longer than that to find out.

Back to the old corner now for a few observations. Circuit Court is in session in Clanton this week. Not so very many people attending. Many who are held here by the court duties appear to be wishing they were back home making preparations for farming. The weather now is ideal.

Tried to find Malley White the other day to figure on buying some coal. His private secretary, Bob Baker, told me I need not try to find him; he was too busy fishing. Mr. White has been sick some more this spring. He will be back at his work with the railroad in a few more days, provided he can get caught up with his angling assignments.

The road meeting in Clanton last Thursday brought many notable visitors to our town. They were entertained in good style, and I think we may feel sure that everyone of them got a good impression of our town and county. Meetings of that sort are worth while a great deal, not alone for the good purpose for which they came, but for the opportunity it gives Clanton to make a good impression upon people from other places who come to be our guests.

Somebody now and then asks the question: "Is the Kiwanis Club worth while to Clanton?" In answer to this question, let me ask you another: If we did not have the Kiwanis Club, what would we do about entertaining such gatherings as that we had here last week. I say that the Kiwanis Club (thanks to the Baptist ladies) was able to entertain the visitors last Thursday in a way that will be worth a great deal to our town in the future.

Much flu has been reported in recent weeks. It has caused a good deal of tardiness at our schools. Some of the teachers have been out with it also.

County Agent, Stapp, has been sick in bed for a few days. He is better now, and hopes to be out in a short while. The trouble with Stapp is that he has been geared up too high. It would take an iron man to stand up under the work that he has been doing. He needs to slow down, rest a while, and get back to himself. Maybe he will get back to normal when he goes to Miami for two weeks with Kiwanis International.

"The folks across the street must be away; there are no lights."

"No, the young lady of the house is giving a party."

Reporter—Do you believe in clubs for women?

Visiting Notable—Yes, if kindness fails.

Visitor—And what is you brother's name?

Bill—It would be Johnny if he were my brother, but he ain't, so it's Mary.

Mistress—"Nora you were entertaining a man in the kitchen last night, were you not?"

Maid—"That's for him to say, maam. I did my best."

"Have you heard about the meanest man in the world?"

"Yea. He throws chewing gum in the streets for Austins to get stuck on."

BUS COMPETITION HITS RAILROADS

Bankers Association President Asks If Unfair Aid Is Given Motorized Transport— For Rail Mergers.

NEW YORK.—Fair treatment for the railroads in respect to highway motor competition was called for by Rome C. Stephenson, President American Bankers Association, in a recent address here. He also strongly endorsed "sound economic railway consolidation" and praised President Hoover for his initiative in this respect.

"I am very strongly of the opinion that one of the measures which would help materially to put back business where it ought to be is the Eastern four-system plan of railroad consolidation as announced recently following negotiations instituted by President Hoover," said Mr. Stephenson. "Its adoption by the Interstate Commerce Commission would tend to stabilize the transportation industry, facilitate operation and exert a favorable influence on business in general.

"It is a fact well known to business leaders that our railroads are now facing a crisis. Not only do they need protective laws to meet competitive situations arising from increased use of our highways and waterways by other carriers, but they need unification such as the proposed four-system plan provides. Our President has acted wisely in assuming a leadership in this respect and his move deserves the support of every clear-thinking citizen."

Mr. Stephenson declared that the railroads have served this country so superlatively well that we are prone in our public affairs to overlook our dependence upon them and our obligations to them. The past, present and future progress of the United States is inseparably bound up with their welfare. In neglecting just consideration for them we are even more neglectful of the public's best economic interests.

A Question of Public Interest

"We are confronted with the question as to how much more the public economic interest will stand an invasion of the welfare of the railroads by forces and difficulties not of their own creating and not within the scope of their own unaided powers to combat," said Mr. Stephenson. "I refer especially to new competitions that are undermining the hard-earned position of the railroads, not only with the aid of natural economic forces but also through the aid of government policies which, positively or negatively, tend to give these competitors undue advantages over the railroads.

"It goes without saying that the railroads have no right, nor claim any, so far as I have been able to discern, to complain at legitimate competition in the field of transportation, for the public is entitled to the best possible transportation at the lowest practical cost. But equally does it go without saying that this cannot be fairly brought about by using, or by failing to use, the taxing powers of government to enable competitive methods of transportation to do things they could not otherwise do as unaided private enterprises, particularly when such action impairs the invested rights held in good faith by great masses of our people in established enterprises that are serving the public well."

Mr. Stephenson said it was not his purpose to argue against such competitive transportation as the highway passenger motorbus and motor truck as such, when conducted under proper conditions and in keeping with public welfare and benefit. He declared, however, there is need for serious consideration whether such competition is being developed under conditions that are unfair to the railroads, because either the outright or obscure aid of government policy is the deciding economic factor in that competition.

Would Investigate Bus Traffic

Railroad rights of way, he declared, represent tremendous capital investments, on which the railroads have also heavy current costs to meet. "They pay every day a million dollars in taxes and most of this is on their rights of way," he said. "Also they spend daily over two million dollars additional for the proper maintenance of way." He asserted that the motorbuses have not had to pay for their rights of way in any sense that the railroads paid for theirs.

"They have simply taken possession of public highways built by public funds, both state and national," he continued, "and they have extensively made those highways vastly less comfortable, less safe and less serviceable for private motorists and others who are contributing chiefly to their creation and maintenance."

Mr. Stephenson declared that all these matters should be thoroughly inquired into by competent public bodies, both state and national, with a view of determining the equities and basic public economic interests involved, "particularly in respect to their effects upon the nation's railroads.

"I venture to say," he added, "that such inquiries would show whether it is to the public interest to let things remain as they are, whether the situation calls for a new basis of motorbus and truck taxes to satisfy the equities of the case or whether it would call for such drastic action as the exclusion of this traffic from our public general highways, and the requirement that, even as the railways, it provide as a part of its own private capital investment its own rights of way and for its own maintenance of way out of operating income."

Mr. Burnie Cobb of Jemison was in Clanton Wednesday.

Alabama River Bridge at Montgomery is Planned

Will Open Way for Road from Foot of Commerce Street to Mountain Creek

Bridging the Alabama River at the foot of Commerce Street for the purpose of giving an easy inlet and outlet for the North and South Highway from the Tennessee State line to the gulf will be introduced in the Legislature by Senator Charles B. Teasley, of Montgomery.

Senator Teasley said Monday that he had been in conference with highway officials relative to his bill which would afford tourists an easy and pleasant ingress and outlet to Montgomery and at the same time would ease up on the traffic congestion incident to the Birmingham Highway entering Montgomery along Bell St.

Tentative plans of Senator Teasley after the conference with highway officials, are for a viaduct or bridge across the Alabama River beginning at a point somewhere near the present crossing of Commerce Street by the Belt Railway line and for a causeway across the overflowed land on the north side of the river to a point just to the west of the present Roy Bridge and tapping the highway from Montgomery through Millbrook, Elmore Speigner, Deatsville, Marbury, and Mountain Creek with connection with the present paved Birmingham Highway at a point near Mountain Creek.

Cost about $750,000

Senator Teasley has developed his ideas to the point where he has reached the conclusion, after conference with highway officials, the the viaduct and bridge across the Alabama River, with consequent expense of the causeway on the north side of the river, will entail an outlay of money in the neighborhood of $750,000. In this connection, the Alabama law woud require half of the costs of the viaduct with its approaches to be borne by the railroads affected. Inasmuch as the proposed viaduct and bridge would be over the tracks of a number of railroads, the cost to each in the opinion of Teasley, would be low.

It is the idea of Senator Teasley that the new ingress and outlet to the city of Montgomery would not only ease the burden of traffic on the Birmingham and Montgomery Highway along crowded Bell Street, but would also afford a scenic route for tourists and others into and out of Montgomery. And in addition to this, it is the idea of Senator Teasley that the new bridge and viaduct would offer a means of closer communication between Montgomery and a large trade territory on the north. In this connection it is known that in the very near future the Roy Bridge, now spanning the Alabama River on the highway between Montgomery, Elmore Marbury and Mountain Creek, will have to be rebuilt at a considerable cost to Montgomery County.

City, County To Cooperate

It is the plan of Senator Teasley to have the new bridge constructed by the State Bridge Corporaton and that the City of Montgomery and Montgomery County will cooperate to make the bridge a free bridge so that it will be used freely by tourists along the line of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad from Montgomery to Mountain Creek.

It is the ultimate plan of Senator Teasley to have the entire highway from the causeway leading to the new bridge paved to Mountain Creek to connect with the paved Birmingham and Montgomery Highway.

Senator Teasley said Monday night that all of the details of a financial plan for the payment of the cost of construction of the viaduct, bridge and causeway had not been worked out but that there were no obstacles in the way and that he was confident that the whole matter could be worked out in a manner that would be agreeable both to the City of Montgomery and Montgomery County and he had no doubt that he could secure the cooperation of the State in the plan.

SKIN SPECIALIST TO BE AT DeMABEL'S SHOP

Mrs. Jea Chadwell, from the Luzier Labratories, Kansas City, Mo., a dermotoglist and dietician, is at DeMabel's Beauty Salon this week analyzing the skin and finding out just what each individual needs for her own skin. A charting is made and what is needed is written down as a prescription and sent in to the laboratories where it is mixed just for that skin, just like a doctor gives a person a prescription for one person which would do no other any good. This way you get the right kinds of cream, etc., for your skin and not a cream which everyone uses, and which cannot do what it should therefore, it is not a demonstration similar to the ones given at the drug stores where the main idea is to sell everyone the same standard thing regardless of whether it is the right thing for each and every face or not.

Mrs. Chadwell also comes back very often and visits the homes and analyzes the skin again to see how the things you use are working on the skin and if they are doing their proper duty.

Everyone is invited to come for the free analysis. She has no creams with her, and does not charge for the analysis.

REVIVAL MEETING GOING THIS WEEK AT METHODIST

Dr. N. B. McLeod of Selma Preaching Twice Daily. Special Services Thursday and Saturday

The revival services at the Clanton Methodist Church, which began last Sunday morning, are the center of attraction here this week. Rev. D. W. Haskew, the pastor, preached the first two sermons; Rev. N. B. McLeod, presiding elder of the Selma district arrived here Monday and preached his first sermon Monday night.

A splendid musical program was rendered Sunday night, which was very enjoyable from start to finish.

Rev. McLeod is preaching twice daily throughout this week—at 10:30 in the morning and 7:30 in the evening. Today (Thursday) a special service will be held for young people at 11 o'clock. The schools of the city will attend this service enmasse. The 7:30 service tonight will also be for the young people.

Saturday at 10:30 a special service will be held for the children. The parents of the city are urged to have their children attend this special service Saturday morning.

The series of meetings will close with the preaching service Easter Sunday night. Rev. Haskew and Rev. McLeod, as well as the laymen of the Clanton Methodist church, extend to all a cordial invitation to attend these services and worship with them.

OLD TIME SERVICE AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The old time service for the older people was carried out at Friendship last Sunday to the staisfaction of all, so far as we have been able to learn. There were old people present from all over the county, as well as younger ones, and everyone had an enjoyable time.

Mr. J. N. Scott of Jemison was present with his old Christian Harmony class, who did the singing. After singing one song, Rev. M. J Parrish was called upon to lead in prayer. Then a chairman for the day was appointed by J. Dudley Collins in the person of Rev. T. J. Deason. Rev. Deason then came forward and appointed an arrangements committee consisting of Rev. J. A. Raines, S. M. Yates, Jr., and Johnnie Mims. This committee returned a program on which a sermon at 11 o'clock was to be preached by Rev. R. M. Honeycutt; prayer service and singing was to be conducted in the afternoon by Riley Robinson; a sermon at 2:30 in the afternoon by Rev. J. Robert Bean, pastor of Friendship Baptist Church.

The above items were carried out with great spiritual uplift to the congregation of old as well as young. The presence and power of the Holy Ghost in the entire service of the day was evident to all. Special mention should be made of the sermon by Rev. Honeycutt. He began preaching a few minutes past 11 o'clock and when he stopped it was 12:40. But no one got restless during the talking of this good old veteran of the Cross. Rev. Honeycutt is truly a man of God, and he is unflinching in his belief of God's purpose for man in the world. He gave some advice to the younger preachers and to Christians in general that is well worthy of their consideration and emulation. The facts laid down by Rev. Honeycutt cannot be denied, and they must be faced by the Christians of today.

A bounteous dinner was enjoyed by everyone, spread on a table prepared for the purpose out in the yard.

Everyone enjoyed the song service in the afternoon as well as the talks. The sermon by Rev. Bean at 2:30 was very appropriate and was well enjoyed by the older people of the meeting as well as the young. Many words of comment on Rev. Bean's discourse have been spoken by those who heard it.

After Rev. Bean's sermon a song was sung by Mr. Scott and the closing prayer was offered by Mr. E. L. Jones of Corinth community. Everyone went away greatly refreshed and uplifted spiritually.

The members of Friendship church wish to express their appreciation to those outside the community who brought dinner and helped in other ways to make the day the success that it was. Mr. J. N. Scott of Jemison and the other old time singers are especially to be thanked for the part they had in the day's service. This old time singing helped wonderfully in making the services of the day complete.

MR. AND MRS. BLUE RETURNING HOME

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Blue left Clanton Tuesday morning for Savannah, Ga., from where they will go directly to Washington, D. C., for a few weeks visit with their son. Thence they will return to their home in Tekamah, Nebraska.

As has been their custom for some years, Mr. and Mrs. Blue have been spending the winter in Clanton. While here they lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O. Franz.

Mr. Blue stated Monday that their decision to leave Clanton was somewhat unexpected, as they had planned to remain here for another month. Their plans were altered however, when they learned that they would have a chance to be with all the members of their family in Washington by going on now.

They have a son who teaches school in Washington. Their other son is a missionary of the Seventh-Day Adventists in India. The missionary son, whom they have not seen for eight years, will be with them in Washington, and will accompany them to their home in Nebraska.

Upon leaving here Mr. Blue stated that he and his wife have had a most delightful winter in Clanton. They have made a number of friends while here, all of whom will be glad if they are able to come back again next year.

BOYS CLUB RALLY HELD TUESDAY

The annual rally of 4-H Club boys of Chilton County was held at the Baptist Church in Clanton Tuesday. About 270 boys from practically every part of Chilton County were in attendance.

Acting upon a proposition to form a county-wide club organization the following were chosen as officers:

Clyde Popwell, president; James Dennis, vice president; Osmond Glenn, secretary-treasurer. These are the same officer of the calf club.

The following adult leaders were present with the boys in the meeting Tuesday: Charley Wilkins, Willie Hamilton, Earle Thomas, J. L. Smith, O. H. McDowell.

County Agent Stapp anounced that he would give a silver loving cup to the club which does the best all round work in the county this year. The cup will be engraved with the name of the club and the names of its officers.

Teachers Elected A. E. A. Officers

Chilton County Superintendent Is Elected Vice President of Educational Association

The main point of interest to Chilton County people in the naming of officials of the Alabama Educational Association last week is the fact that the honor of second vice president of that important body was given to our own County Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence.

The entire list of officers named is as follows:

President, C. C. Mosely, president of the City Schools, of Dothan.

first vice president, E. B. Erwin, of Jefferson County; second vice president, Buford Lawrence, County Superintendent of Chilton County; third vice president, P. T. Orr, of Valley Head; members of the executive committee, W. B. Luckie, Etowah County Superintendent; T. H. Napier, Dean of Alabama College Montevallo.

John Burnett, retiring president of the Alabama Educational Association, is a native son of Chilton County. He is now Superintendent of the city schools of Tuscaloosa.

"Mandy, I'm sorry to tell you that the parson who married you to Absolom Johnson was a fake and your marriage isn't legal."

"Man, you is crazy! I gives birf to twins just dis month. Fake? Wish to goodness 'twas."

WARNED NOT TO OBSTRUCT PUBLIC ROADS

County Commissioner, J. M. Mims, makes complaint that many people have been guilty of obstructing the work of public roads in the county by piling brush, logs, and other rubbish in the ditches. This is a great hindrance to the road working crews.

Mr. Mims hopes that those who have been doing thish will discontinue the practice. He also dropped a hint that such a thing is a violation of the law.

HUNTERS KILLED MOUNTAIN LION

P. C. PINSON AND DR. KENNEDY MAKE PICTURES OF BEAST BEFORE KILLING HIM

One of the most thrilling lion hunt stories that ever echoed around a campfire was told by Dr. R. D. Kennedy and P. C. Pinson upon their return to Globe from the Three-C ranch yesterday with a large mountain lion.

Besides bagging the lion, Mr. Pinson succeeded in getting an excellent close-up motion picture account of the battle between dogs and beast.

The lion was jumped by Carl Larson's dogs and ran out on a 40 foot bluff, where it was held at bay while Mr. Pinson took pictures for two angles and from a distance of about 15 feet.

Enraged, the lion then leaped into space from the top of the bluff. It landed upright, like other members of the cat family, and ran off without hesitating. The dogs gave chase and treed the large mountain cat in a crevice within a short distance.

When the hunters arrived on the scene, they opened fire and killed the beast without further trouble.

The animal was about three feet high and measured eight feet from tip to tip.

The pictures will be shown before members of the Gilla county unit of the Arizona Game Protective association at the next meeting, it was indicated yesterday.

The above clipping, taken from the Globe, Arizona, Record, was sent to The Union-Banner by Mr. J. B. Jones. The P. C. Pinson referred to in the article is Peter Pinson, formerly of Coopers. It will be remembered that P. C. Pinson donated a sum of money toward building an addition to Chestnut Creek church at Coopers about a year ago. His friends in this county will be glad to learn of his success as a big game hunter.

Brown was making a visit to a girl who lived in the country. As they were walking through the field, they noticed a cow and calf rubbing noses in bovine love. He spoke up:

"The sight of that, makes me want to do the same thing."

"Go ahead," she replied, "It's father's cow."

DR. L. E. BARTON TO SPEAK TO CHILTON COUNTY CHURCHES

It will be interesting news to the church-going folk of Chilton County to learn that such a prominent man as Dr. L. E. Barton of Montgomery will make three different addresses at as many churches in Chilton County on the second Sunday in April.

Following is the schedule Liberty Hill at 11 o'clock; Collins Chapel at 2:30; and Jemison Baptist Church at 7:30 p. m.

The name of Dr. L. E. Barton is almost a by-word among Baptists of Chilton County and even Alabama and the whole South, as for that matter; however, it has not been the pleasure of all Baptists in Chilton County to hear this distinguished man. Lots of us have heard him over the radio in recent months. He conducted a revival at the Clanton Baptist church about two years ago; he is now secretary-treasurer of the Alabama Baptist Convention, and he is very honorably filling the duties of this important and resposible office.

Rev. J. W. Jones has grouped the churches near these places and asks each church named below to be sure and be represented at the speaking places named: Collins Chapel—Union Grove, Mineral Springs, New Salem and Thorsby. Jemison—Oak Grove, Pleasant Grove, Macedonia, Pates Chapel, Center Hill. Liberty Hill—Highland, Concord, Mulberry, and Samaria. Of course, all other churches in reach are urged to be as fully represented as possible at one of these places at the hour set for that place. Dr. Barton has something to tell you that will be worth while.

MRS. NANCY WILLIS BURIED AT COLLINS CHAPEL MONDAY

Mrs. Nancy Willis, wife of Roy Willis of Collins Chapel community, was buried at Collins Chapel Monday afternoon. Mrs. Willis died at her home early Sunday morning of pneumonia.

Mrs. Willis was the daughter of Gaynard Smith, formerly of Minarel Springs, now a resident of Shelby County. She was about 33 years old. Mrs. Willis is survived by her husband and two young sons.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. Zac Y. Appleton, pastor of Collins Chapel. Mrs. Willis was a member of Collins Chapel Baptist church.

SEVERE HAIL STORM HERE TUESDAY AFTERNOON, 31ST

Reports From Some Localities Say Ground Was Covered With Three Inches of Ice

The most severe hail storm of recent years visited Clanton at noon Tuesday. The pellets ranging in size from peas to eggs fell in great volumes for several minutes, covering the ground everywhere. Reports from the most severe places say that the ground was covered with three inches of ice.

Fear is held that the strawberries in the path of the storm have been damaged severly. The farm of Mr. L. E. Dienderfer, one of the biggest strawberry patches in this territory, was directly in the path of the worst part of the hail. At this time it has not been learned whether the damage extended as far south as the farm of O. O. Roper, which is a larger field than Dief's.

Several reports say that vegetable gardens were demolished. Some damage was done to the roofs of the buildings in the business district of Clanton. Following the hail the atmosphere turned much cooler, and by Tuesday night overcoats were in evidence everywhere.

GIRL DASHED TO DEATH ON ROCKS OF THE SEASHORE

Grand Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Paxson, Thorsby, Drives Car Off Mediterranean Cliff

Little Margaret Laird, who left Birmingham in 1917 for her kaleidoscopic career in the movies and on the stage, was dashed to death Sunday afternoon upon the rocks bordering the Mediterranean at Nice, France, after scribbling a hasty note to her third husband, David Townsend, Australian millionaire.

The one-time popular entertainer at Birmingham theatricals had married three times and all of her husbands were reputedly rich. Press dispatches said she drank two brandies and then jumped into her expensive car and steered it over a 200-foot precipice to death.

Known on the stage as "Peggy Davis," Mary Margaret Laird was formerly a popular entertainer in Birmingham, where even at an early age the crooning sweetness of her voice and her nimble feet presaged her eventual career. She was born in East Lake, December 31, 1905, and later moved to the Margaret Apartments on Highland Avenue, after living at the Ridgely Apartments and on Eleventh Avenue, South, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets.

Sunday Mrs. Townsend bolstered her nerve with two brandies, and wrote the following note to her banker-stock broker husband: "I do not wish to go on the stage again, as you insist. I hope my family will forgive me for the pain I am causing them. Take care of mother and baby. I am tired of living." Then according to Associated Press cablegrams to Birmingham, she jumped into her fashionable car and drove it over the precipice into the Mediterranean.

Mrs. Alberta Grady and Mrs. Esther M. Schimmel, of 1531 North 19th St., Birmingham, are first cousins of Margaret Laird. Her mother lived with her in Nice, France, an aunt, Mrs. C. E. Hall, and another first cousin, Paxson Hall, live in Gainsville, Ga. Her grand mother and grand father, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Paxson, reside at Thorsby, Ala.—Birmingham News.

FINE PROSPECTS FOR STRAWBERRIES

Fields of L. E. Diefenderfer and O. O. Roper Indicate Excellent Within Few Weeks

Just as we were all set to write a big story about the bright prospect for strawberries in the vicinity of Clanton, along comes the biggest hailstorm of all time, perhaps doing considerable damage to what this morning was the finest indications we have ever seen for a good early crop of berries.

Tuesday morning L. E. Diefenderfer carried the writer to his berry farm one mile east of Clanton. He has five acres devoted to a model strawberry plantation. The plants are perfect; the growth is all that could be desired; and the blooms and young fruit indicate that harvesting will be ready in about two weeks. But the hailstorm which came Tuesday at noon may cause us to have to tell another story.

We also visited the farm of O. O. Roper, near Samaria, where we found six acres as promising as Dief's. Mr. Roper and his son, Royal, have cared for their acreage very diligently, and everything is ready for a harvest of plenty.

The general strawberry outlook, according to Mr. Diefenderfer, is unusually good. If the weather conditions do not upset calculations, picking berries in Chilton County will be under way by the middle of April. Market conditions are encouraging, and Mr. Diefenderfer believes that this year's crop will bring a satisfactory price.

The hail had hardly ceased to fall when Uncle George Willis came along and the first thing he said was that he had fears that it had damaged his strawberries.

Shipments of berries have already begun from Castleberry in South Alabama. Our berries in Chilton County usually come along about two weeks behind Castleberry.

"OUR BAND"

Will play again Saturday afternoon, April the 4th, over WAPI in Birmingham. Listen in and enjoy the program. We had lots of requests waiting for us last Saturday. We enjoy the requests. Hope everyone enjoys our program, thank you. —Reuby Chasteen.

WEST CHILTON

Had the heaviest rain of the year Friday night. Now the cold March winds are reminding us that winter still lingers with us.

Great crop preparations are being made in West Chilton. This is a great time for the consumer if he can get the money. Like the memorable depression of the nineties, when William McKinley said he proposed to "open the mills instead of the mints." He did that and brought the "full dinner pail."

Mrs. Pat Lowery and Mrs. Robt. Lowery of Providence were visitors at Mr. Hubbard's Monday.

T. J. Hubbard is visiting in Jemison.

Rev. B. Lawrence passed through this part Sunday enroute to his appointment at Randolph.

Wm. Robinson and family visited Mr. Robinson's father Sunday fatternoon.

Mr. G. W. Tubb seems to be improving now. He has been sick quite a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones of Gadsden, and Mrs. Fay Tubb of Birmingham spent last week end with their father, Mr. G. W. Tubb.

Died recently, at her home in Siluria, Mrs. Alice Posey Cofer. Her last illness was of short duration, while for years she had been seriously crippled, was helpless. She was a good lady, the wife of the late Will R. Cofer. She leaves several children and many friends and relatives to mourn her passing.

She was reared in West Chilton, the daughter of Rev. S. D. Posey. She was laid away at Mars Hill. The burial was attended by a large gathering of her friends.

She now rests in hope, yes the bow of hope spans her grave, and she will live again in the unclouded beautiful day. The day of the coming kingdom, "then we will walk 'mid the trees by the river, with the loved ones by our side."

Awake Half the Night Weak and in Pain

NIGHT after night I could not sleep," writes Mrs. Mary J. Roberts, 117 West Franklin St., Raleigh, N. C. "I would lie awake half the night. I was dizzy and weak, suffered frequently with pains in my side and small part of my back.

"When I was a girl, my mother gave me Cardui, and it did me so much good, I thought I would try it again. I took five bottles, and I feel like a new person.

"I think it is fine. I would advise every woman who is weak to try Cardui, for it has certainly put me on my feet."

FERRAC BRINGS HER FIRST RELIEF IN THREE YEARS

Every suffering man and woman should know the facts about nature's marvelous prescription, without alcohol, opiates, herbs or drugs of any kind that has helped hundreds to better health. There is no safer, saner, surer guide than the experience of others. Read what Mrs. W. T. Hayes, 304 Cotton Ave., N. E., Birmingham, says:

"For three years indigestion and ulcerated stomach kept me in misery, and during the greater part of that time I was under the care of specialists. I had very little appetite; went down to 95 pounds in weight and was nervous and wretched. Six bottles of Ferrac have given me my first real relief in all that time. I've already gained back six pounds; my appetite is splendid; my whole conditon is wonderfully improved, and my 9 months old baby that is fed from the breast, is gaining in weight and is in perfectly splendid health. Nobody will ever know how glad I am to get away from all that upsetting old medicine."

Man cannot compound Ferrac! It is given to suffering humanity exactly as nature herself compounded it. For stomach troubles, indigestion, gastritis, acid, constipation, piles, liver and kidney troubles, count no case hopeless no matter how complicated or of how long standing until you have first tried Ferrac.

Official announcement is made that the Federal Farm Board will not attempt to maintain wheat prices beyond May. The Board will not authorize the Grain Stabilization Corporation to make stabilization purchases for the new crop.

FAVORS SPORT TYPE CARS

One of the significant trends in the automotive field, evident during the past year or two and certain to be more pronounced than ever this motoring season, is the evolution in popular favor toward the sport or deluxe type car. Popularized on the college campus, the "dolled up" automobile represents a constantly growing proportion of each year's output, with the increase in favor meaning gradually lowering prices due to volume, points out H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

"Only a relatively short time ago the sport car represented something of a novelty for two reasons—only a limited few wanted it, and the manufacturer—particularly the volume manufacturer—could not include it in his production schedules because of the necessarily high price which he would have had to place on this type by reason of that limited demand," Mr. Klingler explained. "Youth, largely, made up the purchasers of the sport car because of the individuality the car expressed. Elders clung to the dignity of the closed type as against the informal open model.

"But here, as elsewhere, youth won out. The demand for sport cars grew. The manufacturer found a way to incorporate their production in his program. He went even further. He devised means of making deluxe models of the enclosed type, evolving entirely new body styles. He produced a car embodying maximum utility, which appealed to elders, and the deluxe features that had intrigued youth.

"Few realized the hold deluxe models have today on the auto-buying public. The truth is, as represented by Chevrolet, that when our 1931 line is rounded out, exactly half the models in it will have sport equipment.

"Another interesting development in connection with deluxe models is their constantly decreasing purchase price. Originally they were usually the most expensive model of any manufacturer. He made too few of them to permit of the saving effected by quantity production, just as once closed models cost more than the open types because more of the latter were produced. Today the deluxe closed model costs a very little more than the same standard body type. In some instances it costs less than other standard closed models in a manufacturer's line. The present day volume demand for deluxe models is responsible. We are now turning out sport models in such numbers that their added cost is spread so thinly as to add relatively little to the cost of the individual unit."

AN EASTER INVITATION

Won't you give your life to Jesus,
Just accept his love today;
He will give you peace and comfort,
Make your burdens roll away.

He will rescue you from danger,
Lift you above the prison walls;
He is able, He is willing,
He will save both great and small.

On the cross he died, His heart was broken,
He shed His blood for you and me;
That through Him we might have redemption,
And from sin and death made free.

He alone is our redeemer,
His blood alone can save our soul;
Only through His grace and power,
Can we walk the streets of gold.

Won't you accept His invitation,
Come to Jesus while you may;
We may not live to see tomorrow,
Oh, come to Jesus, come today.

Jesus is the resurrection,
He alone has power to save;
It was on one bright Easter morn,
He came forth from his lonely grave.

He won the victory over Satan,
He triumphed over death and the grave;
That we too might be resurrected,
And through His blood we might be saved.

Jesus is the resurrection,
He raised Lazarus from the dead;
He raised the widow's son at Nain,
Five thousand at one time He fed.

He is the true bread of life,
Sent from His heavenly throne;
Oh, won't there be a great reunion,
On the resurrection morn?

—Mrs. Newton Cooper.

Every spring countless thousands take S.S.S.—the purely vegetable tonic—to build back their red-blood-cells so that they may have that new strength which makes for a keen appetite, firm flesh, a clear skin and greater resistance against infection and disease. IN MEMORY OF LITTLE MILLARD JUNIOR BOSWELL

Little Millard, at the age of three,
Took his plight for the heavenly glee;
Now he's resting safely in the arms of Jesus,
Where we some day hope to meet him.

No one knows the sadness of our hearts,
When the angels whispered "thou must part;"
But dear God in heaven knew it was best,
Even though it leaves us grieving yet.

The vacancy that Millard left in our home,
Can never be filled, no matter where we roam;
For his tender voice and smiling face,
Will be missed in every directed pace.

It was sad when our son departed,
For it left us broken hearted;
But we will try contented to be,
Until we cross the Jordan Sea.

Dear friends, we'll suffer not those grievous pains,
For we know our loss is heaven's gain;
And some bright day on yonder shore,
We'll rest assured with Millard once more.

CONCORD-BILLINGSLEY

JESUS TEACHES HUMILITY

GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:1-14; 18:15-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and the Children.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Consideration for Others.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Others the Preference.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Spiritual Democracy.

I. Jesus Dining With a Pharisee (v. 1).

Jesus moved in all circles of human society, thus showing his divine sympathy. The Christian's influence is best when mingling with his fellows in all right relations and positions in life.

II. Jesus Healing a Man With the Dropsy (vv. 2-6).

1. Why this man was present (v. 2). While there is no way of absolutely determining, it was most likely a part of the plot of the Pharisees to trap Jesus by getting him to violate the Sabbath rules.

2. Jesus' question (v. 3). His question was an answer to the thoughts of the lawyers and Pharisees who were watching him. Before healing this man, he submitted his case to their judgment. They were free on the Sabbath to hold a feast where their selfish pride and vanity could be displayed, but they were horrified that a fellow man should be healed on that day.

3. Jesus healing the man (v. 4). While they were in a state of embarrassment, Jesus healed the man.

4. Jesus rebuked them (vv. 5, 6). He laid bare their hypocrisy by showing them that their willingness to show mercy to a beast on the Sabbath should induce them to regard as not sinful the relieving of a human being of distress on the Sabbath.

III. Jesus Rebukes Selfish Ambition (vv. 7-11).

1. The occasion (v. 7). He observed that the guests while taking their places at the table chose the best seats for themselves. This is still true of men and women in railway cars, hotels, street cars, etc.

2. Instruction given (vv. 8-11). When bidden to a feast take the lowest place lest you suffer the humiliation of being asked to take a lower seat. This is more than a lesson on courtesy or table manners. It was a severe rebuke of that selfishness which fills the human heart, causing it to seek to be ministered unto instead of ministering to others. The declaration of Jesus, "Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted," sets forth the fundamental principle of the philosophy governing the moral world. The one who has experienced the redeeming love of Christ will gladly take the place assigned him.

IV. The True Motive in Deeds of Charity (vv. 12-14).

The Jews, like many of the rich today, made social dinners occasions for display. They invited only those whose wealth would enable them to recompense them by inviting them in return. Jesus took note of the selfishness thus displayed and set forth to them the right principle governing hospitable deeds. Such benevolent acts should be extended to the poor and afflicted. All charitable deeds should be done with unselfish motives. They should proceed from the one aim; namely, to confer benefits without expectation of a recompense. Jesus assured them, however, that recompense would be made at the resurrection of the just.

V. The Child Example (Luke 18:15-17).

1. Spiritual contact with Christ sought for children (v. 15). Presumably this was done by the parents. The time of all times to effect contact with Christ is in childhood.

2. Rebuked by the disciples (v. 15). Seeing Christ's time so completely taken up with adults, the disciples thought that bringing the children would be an instrusion.

3. Welcomed by Jesus (v.16). Mark says, "Jesus was displeased with the conduct of the disciples"; that is, was indignant. Christ called the children unto himself, thus showing their relative value.

4. What he said about children (vv. 16, 17). "Of such is the kingdom of God." Childhood is the character which proves citizenship in the kingdom. Two traits are pre-eminent in childhood: (a) Absence of self-consciousness; (b) Natural trust. The way to realize this character is through surrender to Jesus Christ.

Teachings of the Bible

The foundations of our society and our government rest so much on the teachings of the Bible that it would be difficult to support them if faith in these teachings should cease to be practically universal in our country.—Calvin Coolidge.

POULTRY

THE FIRST FEED IS A BIG FACTOR IN CHICK RAISING

In growing your next year's pullet crop, too much stress cannot be placed upon the feed given them throughout the growing period. Their egg production is dependent directly upon what has happened during the first six months of their life. It is during those months that they build bones, frame, and the egg-making machinery. If you do not grow strong, vigorous birds, you are apt to have a considerable amount of sickness among the layers and they will lack the ability to economically handle their feed.

Too many baby chicks receive nothing but grain aside from what they may pick up on the range. Such a practice might have been satisfactory fifteen or twenty years ago when chicks were kept in small flocks and the baby chicks were raised with a mother hen. She would help them find what they needed. Then, too, poultrymen did not expect very much in the way of production from the birds until in spring. A 200-egg hen was at that time considered one of the impossible creations.

Baby chicks need a soft, easily digested mash, which will provide for them just the things they need to build bone, flesh, muscle, feathers, and blood. Consedering the small amount of feed a chick actually eats, you cannot afford to take a chance with an unproved feed. While it may be cheap in price, it generally is by far the most expensive to use.

If the feed you have been using has not produced the kind of birds you want, learn from your neighbor, who is making a success of his flock, what he is feeding. He will be only too glad to tell you and help you in any way he can.

HOME-MIXED CHICK MASH FROM HOME-GROWN FEED

Auburn, Ala., Mar. 30.—Feed for young chicks must be palatable, digestible, clean, and must contain the correct amounts of proteins and fats, says Prof. G. A. Trollope, head of the Auburn poultry department.

After the first 30 to 36 hours chicks should be fed for the first time. If they are shipped they should be fed after arriving at destination, he said.

Milk, either sweet or sour, skimmed or buttermilk, makes an excellent first feed. If milk is not available warm water should be supplied. If possible get chicks to drink milk first then keep mash before them continually.

Mr. Trollope recommends a chick mash of home-grown feed stuffs as follows, in case a commercial mixture is not used: 80 pounds corn meal, 20 pounds shorts or middlings, 5 pounds bone meal, 5 pounds marble grit, oyster shell or ground limestone, and from one-half to one pound of fine table salt.

Green feed should be given to the chicks at two or three weeks of age, and they should have access to sunshine. Codliver oil is not necessary where this plan is followed.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA

The University of Alabama is seeking the names and addresses of all individuals and institutions 100 years or more of age in order to extend them an invitation to attend its Centennial May 10-12. It is hoped that all municipalities, churches, and lodges which have arrived at the century mark will send sponsors to the celebration.

The University of Alabama's new song, "The March of Trumph," by Gabriel Jacoby, a University student, seems destined to become a national hit, according to Broadway experts. It was announced that over 250 orchestras will be playing it within the next two weeks.

Miss Frances Swain, president of the American Economic Association and supervisor of the home economics work in the Chicago Public schools, visited the University Saturday, March 28. Women students of the University honored her with a dinner on Saturday evening.

Ruth Bryan Owens, U. S. congresswoman from Florida, was honor guest at a luncheon following her University address Friday. President and Mrs. Denny, the University deans, and Mrs. Washington Moody, Alabama alumnae head, were also present.

A recent survey of commerce schools of the United States shows that the University of Alabama is the seventeenth largest in the nation and the largest in the South. Its enrollment is 793 this year, having increased the size of its student body ten-fold in the past ten years.

CRUDE OIL is not an automobile lubricant. It is converted into motor oil by a refining process which removes the wax and extracts the gasoline, kerosene and lighter fuels.

The lubricating value of a motor oil depends upon the method of refining and the care used in the refining process, rather than the source from which the crude is secured.

The best quality crude oil, regardless of its source, is selected for the refining of "STANDARD" Motor Oil. Then comes the refining process, based on our 50 years' experience in the manufacture of petroleum products. IN MEMORY OF MRS. AGNES GLENN

On March 27th the death angel decended from heaven and bore the sweet spirit of Mrs. Agnes Glenn to the only place of rest. She had been ill only 12 days, and oh, how we know she suffered. But she bore her suffering without complaint.

She was carried to the Central Alabama Hospital on Thursday, March 26th, and only lingered until 12:30 o'clock Thursday night, and entered the great beyond, without a word of farewell. She was a kind and loving wife and mother. She always wore a sweet smile for everyone; and how we do miss her, for to know her was to love her.

She was a faithful Christian, and worker for God.

Agnes was 23 years of age, and had been a member of the Baptist church since the age of 9 years.

There is a vacant chair in that home that can never be filled, but there is one more crown in heaven.

All that kind and loving hands could do to save her was done, but a greater power than man said, "Come with me, and I will give you rest." We know that she wouldn't exchange places with us, for there they know no sorrow, pain, or death.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, Willie Glenn, an infant daughter, Mollie Euella, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Mose Thomas; one brother, Dawson Thomas, and one sister, Mrs. Henry Thornton; and a host of relatives and friends.

Weep not, loved ones, for our loss is heaven's gain, and we can meet her on that shore where parting will be no more. She was laid to rest at Chestnut Creek Friday afternoon. Rev. J. D. Hughes conducted the funeral services, with Martin in charge.

We loved her, yes we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more;
And he sweetly called her,
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gate was opened,
A gentle voice said come;
And with farewell unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

We miss her, oh, we miss her,
But she has gone to rest;
Where there's never any parting,
Sorrow, pain, or death.

—A Cousin.

The Southern Prison Company contracted to furnish all steel cages, locks, windows, etc., in the construction of the cells, for $17,000.

Helping the Chinese to Help Themselves

Working to Live—a Famine Prevention Activity

AMERICAN charity has under way a movement in China which, by reason of the leadership being provided and the examples being set, may, if widely supported, eventually mean the end of famine, the ensuing frightful loss of life, and recurring appeals to this country for help.

China Famine Relief U. S. A., whose headquarters are at 205 East Forty-second Street, New York City, under the leadership of David A. Brown, and acting under the sponsorship and at the request of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and the National Christian Council of China, has sent $1,316,000.00 to China. Rigid economy, minimum overhead, and regular auditing here and in China are component parts of the movement.

There have been no losses worthy of recording, and the money sent from America has built roads and irrigation projects and has dug wells. Multitudes of people have been saved, and hundreds of thousands more now look to the charitable hearted people of the United States with hope and expectancy for the essential assistance which will crown their efforts with life itself. For if they are forsaken now they will surely die.

A LIFE SAVING PROGRAM FOR CHINA—
Give food to the starving;
Exchange food for labor, as shown above;
Develop home industries among farmers and villagers in the famine areas;
Make available the demonstrated results of better farming.

Americans in China send word that two million men, women and children will die of starvation before another crop is harvested unless we continue our efforts.

Aware of unemployment at home, the Board of Directors and the National Committee of China Famine Relief, in other capacities, are playing an important part in relieving this distress. There has happily been no starvation in this country, whereas over eight million human beings have starved to death in China, a tragedy so horrible that the mind reels in its contemplation.

America cannot—must not—forsake the unfortunates in China who are still undergoing suffering, a plight for which they themselves are in no way responsible.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers

Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims—Seed Programs Instituted on Wide Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in 862 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.

Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 58,000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures, and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this purpose amounted to $326,800. Green vegetables were made available up to the first of January.

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 states. Quarter-acre plots were planted to beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, collard, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips. Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation.

A comparatively mild winter contributed to the success of the Spring and Fall seed campaigns. Many habitual single-croppers were introduced to the advantages of kitchen gardens, balanced cropping and balanced diet. Numerous land-owners have expressed the opinion that this constitutes the one apparent blessing to come out of the drought catastrophe. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents cooperated in making this part of the relief operations outstandingly successful.

Balanced Meals Served

Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness, as well as simple economy. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with little or nothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

In some places where lunches were not served in the schools, but were provided for in the regular food orders, each family having school children received extra staples for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, prunes and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.

County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations procured on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, cabbage, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, eggs, yeast and other preventives were given.

Thousands of Volunteer Workers

Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, not one authent'cated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered.

Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children resumed their studies who had been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief work.

States involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the cycle of distress.

"Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond. In widely scattered points, from leading citizens, came the answer that undoubtedly there would have been many deaths directly from starvation, with epidemics preying upon the undernourished."

Complete line of strings for all instruments, now.—Clanton Drug. Co. G. W., Moore.

CHEWING GUM KING WILL BUY COTTON

William Wrigley, Jr., has inaugurated a plan which started into operation April 1st, whereby he will exchange his chewing gum in 12 Southern States for coton. The plan contemplates the purchase of 100,000,000 pounds of cotton between April 1st and December 1st, at an estimated total expenditure of $12,000,000.

The chewing gum and baseball magnate announced his new concern to be know as Wrigley's Cotton Investment Fund, which will use all money it receives from Wrigley's chewing gum in Texas, Louisana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Alabama, Georga, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North and South Carolina to buy cotton.

This is a novel scheme, and one that will meet with wide popularity in the South. When Southern folks come to realize that when they buy chewing gum they are helping to create a sale for cotton, it will mean more popularity for gum.

Shorty Minor of Montgomery was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

J. O. Mize of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

Assurance that Selma's schools will be financed as usual and will operate without interruption in the payment of teachers' salaries and other expenses was given following a meeting of the Selma School Board.

King Cotton, with all his majesty, will reign supreme in Hale County April 10, when the "Queen of the Cotton County" will be selected at a "cotton ball," a feature of the High Carnival to be held at Greensboro.

A miniature golf course is a playground and not necessarily a nuisance. The Supreme Court of Alabama ruled on this question in dissolving an injunction against the operation of such a golf course in a residential district in Birmingham.

Delegates from five counties in Alabama and from parts of Georgia attended a meeting in Clanton to organize an association to promote paving of the highway from the Georgia line, through Talladega, Calhoun, Chilton, Shelby and Dallas Counties down to Mobile.

Work is being pushed forward on the Opelika-Auburn Airport, which, in accordance with plans, is to be made suitable for mail, freight and passenger planes.

The Alabama Supreme Court has sustained the Mobile Circuit Court in ruling that Mrs. Bebe W. Hubbard was entitled to all the personal property and one-half of the real estate left by her husband, Ashbel Hubbard, and that the remainder of the real estate should go to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as a trust fund to erect Hubbard Memorial Hospital in Mobile.

A woman arriving in this country after a short visit to the continent was asked the usual question by the custom official at the landing port: "Anything to declare, madam?"

"No," she replied, sweetly, "nothing."

RECIPE FOR A GUN

Take the following ingredients: One small piece of wood; two four-inch sections of half-inch gas pipe; one standard strap hinge; an old spring; nuts, bolts and wooden screws.

Aided by the tools usually found in any work shop, assemble into a pistol. This can be done in about five hours time by anyone with reasonable skill. Result: One home-made gun, shooting standard amunition and capable of homicide.

This was actually done by a resident of Seattle. The gun produced was of course, not a beautifully balanced target piece—but in general, just as useful to the criminal or murderer as the product of any manufacturer.

No better illustration of the futility of anti-gun laws could be found. It is well known that a good handgun may be made by cutting down a rifle or shotgun, and even if these weapons were prohibited the criminally inclined would obtain his weapon by an afternoon's labor in the basement. Our vociferous advocates of stringent anti-gun legislation would do well to chew over this fact.

WASHINGTON WAS THE FATHER OF WEST POINT

His Dream of a Great Military Academy Will Be Fully Realized In 1932

Another project dear to George Washington will take on final form with the addition of 15,000 acres of land to the reservation of the United States Military Academy at West Point, thus rounding out the scope of the school as Washington desired it to be. The dedecation of this additional land, it has been learned by the division of information and publication of the George Washington bicentennial commission, has been most appropriately set for next year, 1932, the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth.

Probably no military locality figured more often than West Point in Washington's mind during the War for Independence. He early had seen the importance of the Hudson River. Control of that waterway by the enemy would have cut the thirteen warring colonies in two. Command of the river by the patriots meant dominance of the military situation and was necessary to victory in the war. And West Point was the key position on the river.

TENTH ANNUAL SAFETY CAMPAIGN FOR PUPILS TEACHERS, ANNOUNCED

Washington, D. C. March 30.—Offering 430 cash prizes and the same number of medals to elementary school pupils and prizes totaling $1,000 to elementary school teachers, the Highway Education Board today announced its tenth National campaign for street and highway safety. This campaign, comprising a safety essay contest for pupils and a safety lesson contest for teachers, has been conducted annually since the school year 1921-22 in cooperation with state, county and municipal school authorities throughout the United States and its possessions.

The project this year will stress the rewards for practicing safe conduct on streets and highways and in keeping with that, the subject for the essay contest is "My Rewards for Observing Street and Highway Safety Rules." The subject for the lesson contest is "Teaching the Rewards of Careful Conduct on Streets and Highways." The competition for pupils is open to children of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, 14 years of age and under, and the lesson contest is open to all elementary school teachers of the eighth and lower grades.

Contestants from every state in the Union, from Alaska, the Philippines, Hawaii, the Canal Zones and Porto Rico are expected to strive for the many prizes, aggregating $6,500 offered for the best essays and lessons. In the pupils' contest 450 medals and a like number of cash prizes are offered as state awards. The writer of the best paper in each state will receive a gold medal and a check for $15. Second prize winner will receive a silver medal and a check for $10. The third prize winners will receive bronze medals and checks for $5. The number of third prize winners in each state ranges from one to 23, depending upon the school population.

From among the essays ranking first in each state three national prize winners will be chosen, the first receiving a trip to Washington with all expenses paid, at which time he is presented with a gold watch. Second and third national prize winners will be presented with gold watches, but will not be taken on the trip to Washington.

Awards to teachers, although less numerous, are more substantial. The teacher writing the best safety lesson from among all submitted throughout the country, will receive a trip to the national capital with all expenses paid, and will be presented with a check for $500. Second and third national prizes in the lesson contest consists of checks only, these checks being for $300 and $200 respectively. To the teacher in each state who submits the best lesson a certificate of honor will be awarded. All prizes are being donated by the national automobile chamber of commerce.

Essays are to be not more than 500 words in length, it was announced, while lessons must be at least 1,000 words but not more than 3,000 words long. The contest closes May 15. Between that date and May 29 the principal of each school is required to select the best essay and best lesson submitted by pupils and teachers under his supervision and these two papers must be forwarded to the state superintendent of schools or state headquarters not later than May 29. The state committee will then select the prize-winning papers and forward them to the highway education board in Washington.

States have been allotted third prizes according to elementary school enrollment. While some states have allowed but one third prize, most of them have materially more than that number. Territories outside continental United States are listed for one third prize, in addition to a first and second prize, and this is the case also with Wyoming, Nevada, Vermont and Rhode Island. Alabama, the first on the list, is entitled to seven third prizes, while 23 New York pupils will be awarded third prizes. Pennsylvania, with the second largest allotment, receives 21 third prizes.

In announcing the tenth national street and highway safety campaign, Thomas H. McDonald, chairman of the highway education board and chief of the United States bureau of public roads, asserted that safety education in the schools had definitely proved its value in reducing the number of accidents. It is receiving increasing attention each year, he said, and comparatively few schools now are without safety instruction.

Between 650,000 and 700,000 pupils participated in the safety essay contest last year and provision has been made for an increase in this number in the present campaign.

WATCHING THE WORLD
(By John Dudley McCready)

Authors At Odds

Sinclair Lewis, who has often slapped his countrymen in the face with his satires on American life, was himself recently slapped, in a more literal sense, by his fellow-novelist, Theodore Dreiser, following a dinner at which Lewis had accused him of plagirizing from a book on conditions in Russia written by Mrs. Lewis. The "Slappee" was about to return the blow but was restrained by other guests. The marked similarity between the Dreiser book and that by Mrs. Lewis, it turns out, arose from the fact that each had included at one point material furnished by the Soviet authorities, without stopping to edit it. Dreiser was thus innocent, despite the circumstantial evidence. Many Americans have probably relished the punishment, slight though it was, which Lewis received. Nevertheless his books, jarring many readers out of their complacency and compelling them to think, have performed a real service. Socrates compared himself to a gadfly sent to sting the noble Athenian steed, and Lewis recently declared that he felt called to play the role of the despised but dutiful critic.

Mid-European Alliance

Germany and Austria are planning an economic union that may have important consequences for all Europe. Free and favored access to Austria's population will be given to German manufacturers, and the Austrian consumers will profit by a reduction in prices. Some regard the alliane as a protest against the recent French-British-Italian naval agreement and view with comprehension the possibilities which may follow, especially if some of the Balkan States join. Great international alignments are fraught with danger to peace, especially when commercial supremacy is the aim. It has well been said that nations may be at war even when no guns are fired, because of a war spirit which uses economic measures as its weapons. When armies afterwards take the field it is only the same warfare in another form.

Progress toward a peaceful solution of the problems of India has received serious setbacks since the notable successes recently recorded. The execution of three natives for bombing outrages and murder (committed in 1928-29) has inflamed many of Gandhi's followers, particularly because of the proclamation of amnesty which preceded it. The highly diverse sentiments of India's population is suggested by the attempted attack on Gandhi the other day when he reached a railway station not far from the meeting place of the Nationalist Party, which he heads—a one man attack which was frustrated by the followers of the "holy man". Again, at Cawnpore, fifty persons were killed and two hundred injured when Hindus and Moslens disagreed over the question of a strike as protest against the execution mentioned. India seems hardly ready for self government.

Underneath the Pole

The most hazardous voyage ever undertaken by an Arctic explorer will soon be made. Sir Hubert Wilkins will attempt to reach the north pole under ice in his submarine, the "Nautilus." The ship was recently christened at the Brooklyn Navy Yard by the grandson of Jules Verne, the Frenchman, who half a century ago predicted many marvelous inventions and exploits which he believed coming decades would witness. The airships and submarines which he visualized have become common, and both have been conquered by the airmen. Submarine explorers, who it is thought, will fail in the present attempt, will doubtless persist until they have attained their aim. "What man may do, that man dares attempt." It is said incidentally, that Jules Verne was vastly provoked by the reception, enthusiastic as it was, which was accorded his famous book. He had written it in a thoroly scientific spirit, and it was hailed as first-rate fiction.

Threescore and Sixteen

Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, celebrated his 76th birthday recently by working as usual at the biggest financial job in the United States. That is more difficult now than ever before, thanks to the depression, which results in diminished receipts, and to the bonus bill, which necessitates a vaster out-go. The spectacle of this man, not far from eighty, tackling his herculean task should be a spir to multitudes beset by financial problems. Mr. Mellon is in a sense working for all of these—for one hundred and twenty million of his fellow men. His unselfishness is expressed also in the handling of his personal fortune, which numbers something like a hundred and twenty million. He has given much to scientific purposes, tho very quietly and on his recent birthday he was honored by the American Institute of Chemistry with a medal.

Porto Rico and the President

President Hoover has been taking a vacation cruise on a battleship, thereby benefitting his health and also, some think, the political fortunes of the Governor of Porto Rico, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., whom he visited. The President was given a rousing welcome by the people of the island, and in return congratulated them on the wonderful progress which was made there in recent years. His praise of the governor is a preliminary perhaps to a vice-presidential boom for the latter next year. If there is anything in a name, Roosevelt, should be an asset. Young T. R. is acceptable, furthermore, to the progressive Republicans of the west, headed by the insurgent Senator Norris. It would be an odd situation if the governor of Porto Rico should be nominated by the Republicans and the governor of New York, also a Roosevelt, should be nominated by the Democrats—for either President or vice president. The great T. R. incidentally, began his national career in the Vive-Presidency—as McKinleys running mate.

Memory Chain

Shortly before the last Confederate Reunion, as it may be in Montgomery, in the early summer — news comes of the passing of Mrs. George E. Pickett, widow of one of the South's most famous generals. Few people's lives have linked past and present in ways so romantic as did the career of this Virginia belle who was the inspiration of the dauntless soldier when on July 3, 1863, he led the world-famous charge at Gettysburg. She was only eighteen at the time. The wedding took place two months later. After the war, as during it, her life was replete with interests, and the memoirs of famous people which she penned, gave a panorama of the leading figures of the time. She was acquainted with all the presidents following Lincoln, and with such famous women as Julia Ward Howard and Louise May Alcott. The most colorful of her manuscrips was left uncompleted—"My Memory Chain"—a chronicle of events centering around a necklace whose various pendants had been given her by illustrious people who crossed her path. Rich memories are a treasure to anyone, and this should be kept in mind by those who sometimes repine in the midst of happiness at the thought of possible change.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

A number of Miss Clara Hayes' friends surprised her with a party last Wednesday night. Lots of games were played. Hollis Jones and Vernon Robinson furnished music which was enjoyed by all present.

The sympathy of all the good people of Thorsby and vicinity is extended to Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Paxon in the death of a loved grand daughtwho was widely known in the theatrical circles as Peggy Davis, in a sensational tragedy at Nice, France last Sunday, by an act of her own, which shocked all humanity, and which many believe was the result of an unbalanced mind. Alone in her car, she ran over the high cliff, plunging to death.

Although only 25 years old and surrounded with an abundance of wealth and beauty that made her an attractive object wherever she went, she failed to find real joy in living, and took effective means to end it all.

In the summer of 1923, we think it was, this young woman spent several weeks at the home of her grandparents in Thorsby. She was affable, attractive, gracious. She helped some of our young people in the production of an amateur play, and won their esteem.

A terrible feature of the whole affair is the Goulish avidity, which the secular press of the world has pounced upon the incident, which they seem to consider as great news, cabling dispatches, ferreting out pictures and writing columns of gruesome details, regardless of the feelings of the afflicted families.

The past week has been an anxious time for Chilton County farmers and fruit growers. Weather forecasts spelled disaster by anticipating freezing weather, which did not arrive as scheduled. Up to the present writing there has been no substantial damage to fruit or berries although the cool weather has retarded development which is favorable for the growers and gives rise to the hope that from now on conditions will be more favorable and develop a bumper crop.

Mrs. Harry Peterson and children are visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Peterson.

Miss Frances Wilson left for Birmingham Monday morning to do some special work for a time.

Rev. J. E. Each has arranged to attend a ten day school for rural pastors and other church workers to be held at Nashville, Tenn., beginning next week.

Mrs. Higdon left last Monday to resume her work at Campbellville, Kentucky, where she and her husband are engaged in teaching. Her mother Mrs. Ben Franklin, who has been quite ill is much improved.

The Congregational Ladies aid social due this week has been postponed until further notice. Also the play to be given at the public school has been definitely postponed.

Mrs. H. L. Walker and Mrs. Lee Pate spent Sunday in Columbiana.

There will be a special Easter service at the Congregational church next Sunday night, beginning at 7:15, when the choir will render the song, "The maker of the Cross." You are invited.

Herbert and Ruth Patterson of Birmingham were week end visitors at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peterson.

Miss Caroline Skinns is quite ill with the flu at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg.

Miss Anna Werness of Birmingham visited home folks in Thorsby last Sunday.

Residents of Chilton County will be pleased to learn that it costs less now to travel by railroad than it has cost. From now to the end of October, tickets can be bought on Friday, Saturday and Sunday good for return trip until the following Tuesday night, for one and one-half fare to many points in Alabama and elsewhere. This has no connection with the usual summer tourist rates for greater distances and longer time.

Mrs. G. F. Harper is expecting to go to Defuniac Springs next Saturday to help care for her sister, Miss Burt, who has had an accident.

Miss Margurite Davidson and Rev. Lucy Ayres have arrived in Thorsby and are busily engaged in holding evening meetings for the young people in the Congregational churches within twenty miles of Thorsby and also preparing for the Young Peoples Christian Life Conference to be held in Thorsby this week end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shehan of Birmingham spent Sunday with the Pipers.

Mrs. James Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Walker and Louvine Crocker of Birmingham spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Piper.

Pete Crocker from Bessemer spent the week end with his brother, Charles Crocker.

George Piper from Bessemer visited E. R. Piper Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Butler and daughters, of Montgomery, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. E. W. Butler.

Mrs. A. E. Reagan, Mrs. E. E. Hanson, Mrs. C. S. Howard, Helen Diefenderfer and Margaret Peterson spent last Saturday in Birmingham.

Miss Mary Will Sanford from Dadeville, Ala. spent Sunday with Miss Sallie Thompson.

Miss Marie Eiland from Mt. Pleasant spent a few days the past week with Miss Sallie Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson and Cecil Each made a business trip to Columbus, Ga., last Thursday.

Mr. Arnold Littleton of Selma spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Littleton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Littleton, Jimmie Claire and Miss Mabel Johnson spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Littleton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Colley and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Mack Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Mixson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mixson.

Mrs. Carl Mixson, Mrs. Mixson's mother, is staying with her son, Mr. J. L. Mixson.

Mrs. Piper's Sunday school class, The Young Matrons, gave a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Mack Gray, in honor of Mrs. Relius Franklin, Mrs. Mack Gray, Mrs. Astro Wright, Mrs. Julius Smith, Mrs. Spurgeon Williams and Miss Junita Connatser, their birthday being in the first quarter. Nice little gifts were given them by the different members of the class. The evening was enjoyed by all those present.

A missionary program was given on Sunday morning at the Baptist church after Sunday school by the different classes: which was very interesting.

The Christian Life Conference will begin at Thorsby Friday night, April 3rd, at 7:30 o'clock. The conference will open with a meeting at the Congregational church led by Dr. Ensminger, district superintendent.

This conference is for all young people and for older people who are interested in the young people. We urge them to be with us and our many good Christian leaders.

Come on young people, and let's make this the best young people's conference in the state. Read over the program below and see how much you will miss if you stay away. Plan to be with us and we are sure you will not regret coming.

Last Saturday night the Helen Keller Literary Society held an open meeting. Various stunts were performed and the following debate was given: Resolved, That the chain Stores are detrimental to the best interests of the American people. The debaters were: Affirmative, Margaret Peterson and Charles Crocker. Negative, James Kincaid and Ralph Roy. The affirmative side won which made the Philomathics happy. Margaret Peterson and Ralph Roy were named by the judges as the best debaters. It was one of the best debates given at the Thorsby Institute for several years.

BETHSALEM NEWS

Health of this community is very good at present, except Mrs. Doshie Vinson. She has been on the sick list for several days, but we hope she will soon be able to be back with us in our Sunday school.

Our Sunday school was called to order last Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock by Mr. C. L. Wilkins. We had a real nice crowd, but we wish to have more next Sunday.

Everybody come to Sunday school next Sunday without fail. Be there at 10 o'clock. After Sunday school everyone is invited to march with the Sunday school pupils to Mr. R. N. Wilkins' to an egg hunt, which will be at the back of his barn, in the woods.

After the egg hunt everybody will march back to Mr. R. M. Wilkins' to serve dinner, which will be spread on his front porch. Everyone is especially invited to come, and bring their dinner and some boiled eggs, for next Sunday is Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Vinson and children of Montgomery were visitors in this community Sunday afternoon.

IN MEMORY OF AGNES THOMAS GLENN

We wish to thank Dr. T. J. Marcus, Dr. Gragg, Miss Robinson and all the nurses of the Central Alabama Hospital for their untiring efforts they used during the last hours of our darling daughter and sister, Mrs. Agnes Thomas Glenn. Also we wish to thank her many friends who helped and visited her at her home.

She joined the Baptist church in Birmingham at the age of 9 years. She lived a very humble life, consecrated to the Lord.

She married at the age of 19, to Willie Glenn. To this union God blessed their home with one daughter, 12 days old when her mother died.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, Willie Glenn, mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, a sister, Mrs. Daisy Thornton, and a brother, Dawson Thomas; and a host of other relatives.—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, Daisy Thornton, and Dawson Thomas.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely. We had a real good attendance last Sunday. On account of the annual all day singing at Poplar Spring next Sunday we will not have any preaching or Sunday school. So let's all go to Poplar Springs and have a good time next Sunday, but don't forget to come back on the second Sunday.—E. M. Wilson.

OLD TIME SINGING

There will be an all day singing in the Sacred Harp bopks at the courthouse the second Sunday in April.

All singers and lovers of this old music are invited to come and bring your song books.—W. L. Sanders.

Jim. M. Armstrong, age 54 years, died at his home near Thorsby last Sunday. Burial was at Macedonia west of Jemison Monday afternoon. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Buford Lawrence.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Mr. Haskew Visits High School

We enjoyed Mr. Haskew more than ever Monday morning. His talk, inspiring each individaul to have faith in himself was most encouraging. It seems that Mr. Haskew realizes what high school students need to be told most. We always enjoy his visits, and hope that he will come again.

Who's Who In the Senior II Class

On last Monday afternoon the members of the Senior II class held a who's who contest. The following nominees won: Most beautiful girl, Eunice Edwards; most handsome boy, Robert Sumner; friendliest boy, Ottis Miller; most popular boy, Herman Harris; most dependable, Elizabeth Stanley; best all-round, Charlsie Pyron; biggest booster, Ethel Mae Jones; most dignified girl, Ruth Alyne Maddox; most dignified boy, J. C. Massey.

Ted Littlejohn Wins Prize

At the beginning of the baseball season in 1929 Prof. Warr made the announcement that a hasndome baseball glove was awaiting the first player who knocked a ball over a ball over the south side fence. Since that time he has been anxiously awaiting for a chance to award his gift. The entire season past last year with all balls falling on the inside. Again this year the same proposition was made, and during the first game, which was between Verbena and Clanton, the whole team seemed to have renewed their interest and determination. But it took Ted Littlejohn, to show Verbena and Prof. Warr how to knock a ball. Littlejohn, with the twirl of his bat sent the ball fast and high over the fence and under the porch of a residence on the other side of the street. He had won the coveted prize, and on last Monday morning an announcement was made at chapel to that effect. The glove will be presented at an early date. The entire school is proud of Ted, and shared the thrill of his prize.

Who's Who In Senior III Class

Most beautiful girl, Mary Heard; most handsome boy, Benson Simms; most dependable, Homer Carroll; most popular, Paul Cox; wittiest, Frank McMurray; most dignified girl, Bernice Williams; friendliest boy, Alvin Davis; friendliest girl, Virgie Giles; biggest booster, Stanley Nivens.

Good English Week

This is good English week. The school has been divided into two sides, the blue and the gold. May the best side win. Each student is going to work hard to put over this campaign. Everyone must think twice before he says ain't, and then not say it, but say the correct form of the verb be. One-act plays illustrating good English will be written and the best one from each class will be presented at chapel Friday. The best essays written will also be read in chapel. We may have a bad case of nerves at the end of the week from meeting good English posters at every turn, and hearing amateur poet, playwrights, etc. but thereafter better grammar will be in order.

Senior II Play a Success
(By Dan Smith)

Friday night, March 20, was a great night for the Senior II class of C. C. H. S. The reason for this was the play entitled "The Wild Oats Boy," which was given my the Senior II class. The play was a three-act comedy. The characters were 13 members of the Senior II class, who were coached for the performance by Miss Margaret Kendrick and Miss Josephine Martin, who are due much credit for its success.

It is customary for the Senior II class to entertain the Senior III class at the close of school; the play was given to raise funds for this purpose. A neat sum was realized and the Senior II's are looking forward to giving the Senior III's a good time.

Before the play the audience was entertained by some members of the school orchestra. Between acts Misses Janice Danforth and Hilda Hart sang several popular songs with Miss Nell Wells as accompanist. The play was attended by a large audience, and is considered generally very successful. We wish to thank again those who so kindly gave us their attention and presence that night.

BIDS FOR SCHOOL TRUCK ROUTES

Many of the people are asking about the matter of when the County Board will appoint truck drivers for next year. A notice was put in the papers some few weeks ago that this would be attended to at their meeting the second Tuesday in May. Anyone wishing to bid for any route will please get their bid to me before the date mentioned above.

I wish also to say in connection with this that the meeting in May is the time at which people are supposed to meet the Board and make any suggestions about the school program. Of course we are glad to have these suggestions at any time and hope that the public will feel free at all times to make any suggestions or recommendations they see fit about the administration of the schools of the county. We realize that it is a problem belonging to every citizen of the county and we want your cooperation in every way possible. We realize that many times people can make helpful recommendations. We are anxious to do the best that we can for our schools and will appreciate all the help in that direction possible.

At this time I wish to call the attention to the fine spirit demonstrated among the teachers recently. The state has quite a little bit of our money tied up and we will be unable to pay off any more teachers until after the state funds are had. In the face of this situation the teachers voted unanimously and enthusiastically to go on through with the full term and wait until they could get their money.

Teachers have as much right to expect their pay on time as any other group of people. I think it is a fine patriotic act on their part to be willing to go ahead under the circumstances. I do not feel that there is a group of people anywhere else that is more ready to make a sacrifice for the interest of the cause for which they are working than the teachers. We have a fine group of them in the county and I hope that we will remember the sacrificial act and properly appreciate their services.

Personally I greatly appreciate the teachers of Chilton County, and let me urge that everyone of us give them our full cooperation and lets put Chilton County on the map eduducationally and otherwise.—Yours for a bigger and better school system.—B. Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education.

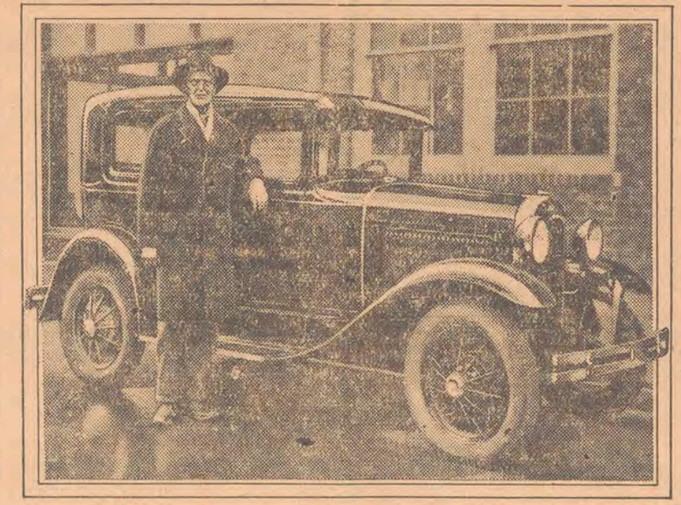
Lose Fat
Safely and Quickly

Kruschen Salts—(a perfect combination of the six mineral salts your body should have to function properly) purify your blood of harmful acids, and aid the kidneys and bowels to throw off waste material—the continual formation of which is probably the cause of your fat.

In this modern age of living, it's impossible to get these salts from the fancy foods you eat—but don't worry just as long as you have Kruschen Salts.



Take a half teaspoon every morning before breakfast in a glass of hot water—little by little that guly fat disappears, you'll feel better than ever before—years younger, more energetic. You'll soon possess that enviable beauty, clear skin, sparkling eyes, superb figure which only perfect health can impart.

An 85c bottle (lasts 4 weeks) at Alred Drug Company, or any progressive druggist in America. Money back if Kruschen doesn't convince you that it is the safest, quickest, easiest way to lose fat.

A Hartford woman writes, "I'll tell the world Kruschen Salts is wonderful stuff to reduce." An Ohio woman lost 10 pounds with one bottle.

OLDEST FORD DRIVER

J. M. Crow, 89, of Ethel, Miss., the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi, traversed the historic old Natchez Trace in a covered wagon eighty-seven years ago.

As rugged today at 89 as the age in American history he so picturesquely typifies, J. M. Crow of Ethel, Miss., is the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi and one of the oldest in the United States.

When as a babe of two years he rode with his parents in one of a train of 30 covered wagons out of Cobb county, Georgia, into Mississippi, the old Natchez Trace followed by the brave little band was still infested by the swashbuckling ruffians whose bloody outrages gave that era its place in this country's history as "the outlaw years."

One of his vivid memories is hearing, as a boy of six, the news of General Scott's victorious assault on the heights of Chapultepec which ended the Mexican War in 1847, and his proudest memory is of honorable service as a Confederate soldier during the Civil War. When the southern cause collapsed, Crow was compelled to trudge 400 miles on foot to the old homestead at Ethel where he settled down to rear a family.

In the intervening years he has seen the lumbering stagecoach give way to the fleet automobile and the comfortable motorbus, the soggy gumbo and rough corduroy roads of his childhood to the wide, paved roads of today, and although he was long past middle age before the modern automobile became commonplace he is as enthusiastic a driver as youngsters who can boast less than one-quarter of his years.

Five generations of Crow's family are frequently seen together in his Model A Ford, the second of its type Crow has owned and driven.

Collins Chapel Community
(Fifty Years Ago)

The Dorminey Family

The Dorminey family, prominent in the early history of Collins Chapel community, and later in the Union Grove settlement, sprang from the parenthood of Jim Dorminey, who with his wife, came from Georgia and settled first near the old Sank Collins place, in what is now Collins Chapel community. A few years after they came here they took up a place on Turkey Creek, where Mr. Dorminey operated a corn and flour mill and cotton gin for many years.

Jim Dorminey had three sons, Tom J., Jimmie, and William. Each of them grew to manhood at the home of their father, and as they married they went across Rocky Ridge to the north and settled on adjacent farms near what is now Union Grove.

T. J. Dorminey married Hattie Robinson, daughter of John Robinson, of Mineral Springs community. They had four sons, Shade, Jim, Osmond, and George. The youngest son, George, died when he was about seventeen years of age. Shade still lives in the Union Grove community. Jim and Osmond live in Ohio.

There were four daughters, Mrs. Nellie Shaw, Mrs. Carrie Shaw, Mrs. Artha Conway. The youngest daughter is Myrtle. The writer does not know whether she is married or not.

T. J. Dorminey died a few years ago, leaving behind him a life of long and honorable service for the betterment of his community and his county. He is the only one of the Dorminey family who ever aspired to public service. He was one time a member of the County Board of Education of Chilton County, and in the later years of his life he served as a member of the Court of County Commissioners.

In politics he was an ardent Republican. His party never had a more loyal and conscientous supporter than was this man. He was a man of more than ordinary ability. Never very well educated, except in the great school of experience. When he learned anything by experience, he always turned it around in a way that would make him wiser and more able to cope with the future.

One distinction belonged to T. J. Dorminey which has never been accorded to any other man before nor since his time. He was proud to be known everywhere as the Governor of Stumps Hills. Indeed, I think he is the only man I ever saw who would admit that he lived in Stumps Hills.

Many years ago a traveler was passing through that part of the country. He pulled up his horse by the side of the road where T. J. was plowing and said: "Hey, mister, can you tell me where is that place up here they call Stumps Hills?"

"Yes," said T. J., "you are right in the middle of it now, and you are talking to the Governor of the blamed place. Light, hitch your horse and stay a while amongst us hill billies." Such an informal but manifestly friendly reception was truly characteristic of T. J. Dorminey, a man whose heart was always wide open to everybody with a warmth that with whom he came into contact. made for him a friend of everyone

Uncle Jimmie Dorminey, the second of the original Dorminey boys, yet lives on his farm near Union Grove. His first wife was Martha Mims, daughter of Elijah Mims. They had two boys, Jimmie and Green, both of whom still live in the Union Grove settlement. Jimmie is not married. Green married a Miss Hall. The daughters of Uncle Jimmie Dorminey are Mrs. Lilla Shrader, Mrs. Mae Webb, and Rebecca. The latter is married, but the name is not known to the writer. A few months ago Mr. Dorminey was married the second time to Mrs. Rosa Foshee, of Birmingham.

William G. J. Dorminey died about two years ago. His wife, who was Miss Leona Green, still lives at the old home place near Union Grove. Their children were John, Mattie and Jessie. John married Miss Ella Martin, daughter of T. J. Martin, of Thorsby. Mattie married Frank Oslin. They now live in Birmingham. Miss Jessie Dorminey is a student of the State Normal College, at Jacksonville.

Next week the history of Collins Chapel community will be continued, taking up another one of the families which lived there fifty years ago.

CANE CREEK

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day, but our pastor, Rev. A. E. Trice, will attend an Easter service at one of his other churches and will preach here the second Sunday and Saturday before, in April instead of the first Sunday and Saturday. We have Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock; and next Sunday after Sunday school we will have an egg hunt. We invite all the little children and larger ones to come and be with us and bring some eggs and help out in the hunt. And come to Sunday school. Let's make it grow and grow.

SAVES LIVES OF MANY MOTHERS

Lives of 10,000 women could be saved each year in the United States by means of adequate maternity care, according to figures vouched for by life insurance statisticians who analyzed records of 4,726 mothers cared for by the Maternity Center Association. A reduction of two-thirds the prevailing death rate was recorded.

Methods used to achieve this saving of mothers' lives were described by Mrs. John Sloane, President of the Maternity Center Association. "The care given these mothers," said Mrs. Sloane, "is that prescribed by a medical board of leading authorities, and includes:

"1. Examination by a physician as soon as it is known a baby is expected, and regular visits thereafter.

"2. Regulation of work, rest, exercise and diet to suit the individual mother in accordance with her physician's advice.

"3. Supplementing this with skilled medical care at the time of delivery, and during the weeks that follow providing such nursing and household help as will assure rest in bed for at least ten days and an easy and gradual return to usual activity on the advice of the doctor and after his examination."

The Maternity Center Association, 574 Madison Avenue, New York City, is an organization sponsored and supported wholly by public spirited men and women. They are planning a national Mother's Day campaign for May 10 and offer to send free to anyone interested, suggestions for local use to make Mother's Day really mean a better chance for mothers everywhere.

MISS RUBY DAVIS SHOT BY LOVER

Grim Tragedy Enacted Last Saturday Night At Home of Mr. R. A. Aldridge In Clanton

The most horrible tragedy in the annals of this community was enacted last Saturday night when J. C. Goodson went to the home of Mr. R. A. Aldridge and with seeming deliberation shot to death Miss Ruby Davis, a beautiful young lady with whom he is said to have been in love.

Goodson, age 22 years, was a hired farm helper on the place of Mr. Charlie Stroud, near Enterprise. His father, George Goodson, formerly lived near Mt. Pisgah in this county but now resides at Autaugaville in Autauga County. The slain girl was a daughter of Mrs. W. C. Davis, of the Enterprise community. She had been away attending school at Talladega, and came to Clanton last Saturday to visit her sister, Miss Pauline Davis, who lives at the home of Mr. R. A. Aldridge, and works at the Dixie Cafe, Another sister, Bernice, who lives at home with her mother, was present at the Aldridge home when the shooting occurred.

According to the story related by relatives of the dead girl, Goodson had been in love with her for some time, her brothers objecting strongly to his attentions, believing that Goodson intended marrying her.

It is said that one of the sisters informed police shortly before the shooting took place that they were afraid Goodson meant harm by statements he had been making around the girl, but he is said to have shot her before officers could reach the Aldridge home.

Five shots were fired from a 38 calibre pistol, three taking effect in the girl's body. It was believed at first that she had been struck over the head, but it was later stated that bruises on her head had been received when she fell.

Miss Davis was a member of a well known family of Enterprise community. Surviving are her mother, Mrs. W. C. Davis; two sisters, Pauline and Bernice; four brothers, Augusta and Baker Davis, of Talladega; Luther Davis, of Enterprise; and Stanley Davis, of Montgomery.

Goodson's only statement about the affair was made to Sheriff Gillespie when he surrendered to the officer Saturday night. He told the Sheriff, "I want to be put in jail." When questioned by the Sheriff, Goodson would give no reason why he wished to be put in jail, until the Sheriff informed him that there were no charges, and that a warrant would have to be sworn out unless he, Goodson, told what he had done. Goodson finally stated that he had shot a girl, and was placed in jail without further explanation.

Sheriff Gillespie transferred Goodson to Montgomery County jail Sunday. In a story of an interview with the girl's slayer the Montgomery Advertiser Monday morning said:

"His eyes red from weeping and lack of sleep, with tears trickling down his cheeks, Goodson would not answer questions of an Advertiser reporter last night. His only move was a slow shaking of his head and occasionally a sob. Lying face down on his cot in the county jail, he seldom raised his thin, meek face which he kept buried in the pillow. When asked if there were any statement he wished to make, Goodson merely shook his head. Asked whether he intended to shoot his sweetheart, he raised his head for a moment, then, as fresh tears began to flow down his cheeks, he once more pulled the pillow about his head, and the interview ended."

The funeral of Miss Davis was held Monday morning at eleven o'clock, at Mt. Pisgah. The services were conducted by Rev. F. A. Gibson. Hundreds of people were present to witness the final chapter in the tragic story.

On A Visit To Texas

A party of men composed of Charley Cox, Fenn Jones, Herbert Neighbors, and Frank Callen, left early Monday morning on an automobile trip to Brownsville and other points in the State of Texas. They are traveling in Mr. Cox's car.

Dr. Neighbors has business to attend to in Texas for his father. So far as we are able to learn the other membersof the party merely went for the sake of the trip.

AN UNUSUAL FAMILY RECORD

Mr. Joe Clackler, of Clanton Route 1, gives us an interesting story of his family, in which is observed a record that is very unusual. Mr. Clackler is 52 years old. He has four children married, which, with his own family, makes a total of five families, in which there has never been a single death. There are 46 children, which with the adult members makes a total of 56 persons in the five families.

The family connections in the whole group are J. A. Clackler, W. Q. Sanders, Joe Berry Jones, Robert Ellison, and Enoch Traywick.

This is indeed remarkable to find a family of this extent in which death has never entered to break the fireside circle.

A few days after Mr. Clackler related the above facts to us, he came back and informed us of the death of Mrs. Willie Clackler, in New Hampshire, the first death in the family. Mrs. Clackler was the daughter of W. Q. Sanders. They have been living in New Hampshire for some years, where Mr. Clackler has been at work on a construction job.

ROBERT C. CARLSON DIED

Robert Conrad Carlson, age 28 years, son of Conrad Carlson, of Thorsby, died at the home of his father last Friday. Burial was in charge of Martin, at Concordia cemetery Saturday. Funeral services were held at the Lutheran Church in Thorsby.

CONTEST ON FOR "OUR BAND"

Listen folks, they are having a contest between the string bands that play over WAPI each Saturday afternoon. The one receiving the most votes wins. If you like "Our Band," and want it to play over WAPI, just write in to "Our Band" in care of WAPI Birmingham, saying that it is a vote for "Our Band," and we will thank you so much.

Each person counts a vote. We would be pleased if you will help us put it over. The contest will last about five weeks, and we hope to be on the air every Saturday during the contest.

We thank the American Legion, Post No. 6 Clanton, for wiring in the nice bunch of votes Monday night. We hope that every one will help us over with this, and we thank each and every one for so doing.—"Our Band," Ruby Chasteen.

Heads Elected For Schools Of County

County Board of Education Chose Heads for Some of High Schools In the County

At the meeting of the County Board of Education last Friday consideration was given to the matter of electing principals of a number of the high schools of the county. Final action was taken in regard to the following schools:

Chilton County High School, L. C. Warr was re-elected as principal.

Jemison High School, J. A. Peterson was re-elected as principal.

J. P. Montgomery was re-elected as Vocational Teacher at the Jemison High School.

Earle Thomas was re-elected as Vocational Teacher at the Isabella High School.

Verbena High School, W. C. DuBose was elected as principal. Prof. DuBose comes to Verbena from Courtland. In 1924-25 he was principal of the Marbury High School.

In reporting the matter of the Verbena School, it was stated that Prof. Sutton, who has been principal there for some years, did not make application for the principalship again.

LARGE WHITE LEGHORN EGG

Mr. Lenn Jones of near Coopers brought The Banner an exceptionally large hen egg last Thursday. It was laid by an average size white leghorn, and was three and one-half inches long and was two and three-eighths inches in diameter; was seven and one-half inches in circumference and measured nine and five-eighths inches around the oval way. It weighed exactly six ounces, and had another average size egg with complete shell inside it. There was a yellow between the two shells and one inside the middle egg.

Mrs. Jones and Uncle Bob Grant came along as witnesses, so if anyone doubts our statement you may ask them about it.

CHILTON PRISONERS ARE SENT TO MONTGOMERY

Sheriff Gillespie stated Tuesday that he had carried the prisoners who were confined in the Chilton County jail to the Montgomery County jail, on order of Dr. Glenn Andrews, State Prison Inspector.

The removal of prisoners from here was done because of the work of remodeling the jail, which is scheduled to begin this week. It is said that it will require about 120 working days to complete the job.

Tuesday afternoon there was only one prisinor left in the jail. This was a jeuvenile case which will be disposed of by Judge Reynolds.

Rural Church Meet At Auburn Planned

Auburn, Ala., Apr. 7.—During the period of June 22-26, a rural church conference will be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. It will be the first of its kind at Auburn and the central theme, as announced by Prof. L. N. Duncan, chairman of the committee on arrangements, will be "the rural church. its opportunity, and its place in the rural program."

Plans for it are being worked out by a committee composed of the ministers of Auburn churches and Prof. Duncan. The local ministers are Rev. Bruce McGehee of the Methodist Church; Rev. J. R. Edwards of the Baptist Church; Rev. W. B. Lee of the Episcopal Church; Rev. Sam Hay of the Presbyterian Church; and Rev. Milligan Earnest of the Christian Church.

The conference will be entirely non-denominational, Mr. Duncan said. The aim is to assist ministers and members of the rural churches in solving their problems and also increasing the services of the rural church to the community, he added.

The program has not been arranged but it is understood that leading laymen and church workers will participate. During the forenoons lectures will be given on agricultural subjects; in the afternoons field trips will be made and demonstrations conducted. During the evening programs there will be inspirational lectures and services and religious exercises, Mr. Duncan explained.

An invitation to attend the conference is extended to all who are interested. It was pointed out that ministers in towns and smaller cities, as well as those in strictly rural sections, will find the conference interesting and valuable.

FIRST STRAWBERRIES COME IN

Mr. M. C. Childress, of Jemison, brought to the Union-Banner office Tuesday the first strawberries we have seen this season. He stated that they came from the farm of his son, and that prospects indicate that there will be plenty of them in a short while.

If the weather continues right, the berry business will be on a boom in Chilton County in two or three weeks. Reports from Clanton, Thorsby, and Jemison are very favorable.

Mell Martin was called to Birmingham Tuesday night to get the body of Mr. J. P. Sorensen of Thorsby who died in a Birmingham hospital late Tuesday evening.

MRS. ESSIE CLECKLER DIED

Mrs. Essie Clackler, age 26, wife of Willie Cleckler, died last Thursday at St. Johnsbury, Vermont. The body was shipped to Montgomery, arriving there Saturday night. It was brought to Clanton by Martin and buried Sunday at New Harmony, near Lomax. Funeral was conducted by Elder Kelley.

Mrs. Cleckler was a daughter of W. Q. Sanders. For some years she had been living at Monroe, New Hampshire, where Mr. Cleckler has been employed on a construction job. She is survived by her husband and several children.

Dr. Barton Speaks In County Sunday

It will be interesting news to the church-going folk of Chilton County to learn that such a prominent man as Dr. L. E. Barton of Montgomery will make three different addresses at as many churches in Chilton County on the second Sunday in April, which is next Sunday.

Following is the schedule: Liberty Hill at 11 o'clock; Collins Chapel at 2:30; and Jemison Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m.

The name of Dr. L. E. Barton is almost a by-word among the Baptists of Chilton County and even Alabama and the whole South, as for that matter; however, it has not been the pleasure of all Baptists in Chilton County to hear this distinguished man. Lots of us have heard him over the radio in recent months. He conducted a revival at the Clanton Baptist church about two years ago; he is now secretary-treasurer of the Alabama Baptist Convention, and he is very honorably filling the duties of this important and responsible office.

Rev. J. W. Jones has grouped the churches near these places and asks each church named below to be sure and be represented at the speaking places named: Collins Chapel—Union Grove, Mineral Springs, New Salem and Thorsby. Jemison—Oak Grove, Pleasant Grove, Macedonia, Pates Chapel and Center Hill. Liberty Hill—Highland, Concord, Mulberry, and Samaria. Of course, all other churches in reach are urged to be as fully represented as possible at one of these places at the hour set for that place. Dr. Barton has something to tell you that will be worth while.

STATE BALLOTS SENT TO SENATE FOR RECOUNTING

Montgomery, April 6.—Shipment of ballots cast in Alabama general election in November, 1930, to the United States Senate subcommittee, appointed to hear former Senator J. Thomas Heflin's contest of the election of Senator Bankhead, was begun Monday.

F. H. Creech, representative of the committee, took possession of the Montgomery County ballot boxes Monday and immediately turned them over to the post office department for shipment.

Creech said simultaneously ballot boxes were being taken over in other counties and that in two weeks, all ballots cast in the state would have been shipped to Washington.

Heflin in filing his contest, alleged irregularities and fraud throughout the state. Just after the election he charged that he had been counted out and termed it the most colossal and scientific piece of thievery.

Replying to Heflin's charges, Senator Bankhead charged that the petition did not name specific instances.

Recently in a statement, Bankhead said Heflin had one or more watchers at nearly every box in the state, adding "I am at a loss to understand what the contest is all about and why the taxpayers are called on to pay out many thousands of dollars in conducting the contest.

The Alabama Legislature several weeks ago adopted a resolution asking sheriffs to turn the ballot boxes over to the committee conducting the contest, and previously had adopted a resolution "condemning the very poor sportsmanship" of the former Senator Heflin in contesting the election.

Chilton Ballots Will Go

Sheriff W. H. Gillespie stated when interviewed Tuesday that he has had instructions from Senator Hastings that the ballot boxes of Chilton County will be called for, and a representative of the Senate Committee will be sent here to receive them.

CLANTON METHTODIST CHURCH

We wish to thank the people of Clanton for your cooperation in the revival at our church last week. We feel that much good was accomplished. Let that meeting be the beginning of greater church loyalty and life.

Sunday school at 9:4 a. m.; preaching at 11:00 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., by the pastor.

Remember the prayer meeting each Wednesday night at 7:30. A prominent preacher has said "the prayer service is the thermometer to your church life." Shall we judge the church life in Clanton by the attendance at prayer meeting?

Our auditorium is beautiful with flowers and our service is inspiring with worship and we feel that we can do you good.

ANOTHER LARGE EGG

On April 6 A White Leghorn hen owned by Mrs. Henry Ratcliff, Maplesville, Alabama, laid a very large egg. It proved to be an egg within an egg. The largest egg contained the white of an egg, and also another common size egg.

MRS. NETTIE BEAN DEAD

HOUSE UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Marion Gore has started work on building a new bungalow residence on his lot on East Second Avenue. The location is where a house was partially destroyed by fire last year.

The lot has been divided and space is being left for another building on the premises in the future.

"I just had a lot of lumber there," said Mr. Gore, "and folks were toting off so much of it, I thought I would nail it together so if they get it they will have to take it all."

The new house, when finished, will be for rent, according to Mr. Gore's statement.

Chevrolet Dealer's Seventh Birthday

Polk Brothers Motor Company Are Celebrating Anniversary Event With Big Used Car Sale

This week marks the seventh anniversary of Polk Brothers Motor Company, local Chevrolet dealers in Clanton. In celebration of this occasion they are putting on a big Spring Sale of Used Cars, which will continue throughout the coming week.

The two Polk Brothers, W. M., and Geo. C., are too well known to require any comment on this occasion. But it can be very aptly said that their business as local Chevrolet dealers has been a record worthy of commendation. Throughout the seven years of their engagement in the business they have grown steadily in the confidence of the public. They have had one of the outstanding automobile values of the world to offer to their trade, and they have maintained a service that has been in every way in keeping with the merit of their Chevrolet automobiles.

"While we are pushing especially the sale of used cars in this anniversary sale," said W. M. Polk, "we could not fail to remind the people of Chilton County of the greatest of all American automobile values, the new Chevrolet Six. Whether you are interested in a used car or a new Chevrolet, we invite every person to come to see us and let us show you what we have to offer."

Mr. Polk also expressed the appreciation of his entire business organization for the friendship and good will which has been accorded them by the people of this section of Alabama during the past seven years. "We have endeavored to give everyone the best service possible in the past," he said, "and our plans are laid out for the future to continue that service with every possible improvement added."

D. M. APPERSON DIES IN SELMA

Attempted To Hang Himself Last Wednesday At His Home Near Stanton

D. M. Apperson, age 64, well known farmer of Stanton, died last Saturday in a hospital at Selma.

It was reported that the body of Mr. Apperson was found last Wednesday hanging by a rope from a beam in his barn. The discovery was made by his wife, who cut the rope and let the body down. He was carried to a Selma hospital, but never regained consciousness, and died about three o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Apperson lived alone at their farm home near Stanton. It is told that last Wednesday just before noon Mr. Apperson went to his mail box to meet the carrier. He secured his daily paper and went back home. After glancing over the front page of the paper he went to the barn to feed his mules. Mrs. Apperson told him she would read a story in the paper while he was feeding his mules, and asked him to bring some cobbs from the barn to kindle a fire in the stove so she could cook dinner.

After finishing her story in the paper, Mrs. Apperson went to the door and called her husband to come on and bring the cobbs. A second and a third call failed to get any response, and she went to the barn. As she approached she heard a noise inside the building, and when she went in there hang the body of her husband suspended by a short rope from a beam.

Her first impulse was to rush to the body and hold it up. This she did for a few minutes; but she realized on second thought that this would not get anywhere. She released the body, the rope again tightened. She looked down to the floor and there lay Mr. Apperson's pocket knife. She ran out to the barnyard and secured a chair. By this she was able to reach up to the rope. She slashed it with a razor-sharp knife, and both of them fell to the floor.

The news of Mr. Apperson's attempt to end his own life was a great surprise and shock to his friends here. He was well known in Clanton, and was generally esteemed as one of our best citizens. Everybody is at a loss to understand why he should wish to take his own life.

The funeral was held Sunday at Stanton. Services were conducted by Rev. W. J. Ruddick. It is a remarkable coincidence that Rev. Ruddick received and baptized Mr. Apperson into the church, performed the marriage ceremony, and officiated at the last rites at his burial.

Surviving him are his wife and four sons, D. C., W. F., C. L., and B. C. Apperson, of Birmingham.

FIDDLER'S CONVENTION AT VERBENA SCHOOL

Owing to the rain on last Friday evening, the fiddler's convention scheduled to be held at Verbena on Friday evening, April 3, was postponed until the following friday evening, April 10.

We are very glad to make this announcement, as many who had planned to go were kept away by the very bad weather. A number of fiddlers came, and a fair number of people, and a few numbers were played. From the excellency of these samples those who attend the convention on Friday night, April 10, at Verbena are assured a very high order of fiddling, and are certain to have a fine evening's entertainment.

Announce to your friends the above chage of date for the convention, and go to Verbena tomorrow night. Admission prices will be 15 cents for children and 25 cents for adults. Fiddlers and one accompanist will be admitted free. Doors will be open at seven o'clock.—W. E. G. Sutton.

Coosa County Honored

Mr. C. C. Mosely, superintendent of the city schools of Dothan, was elected president of the Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham last week for 1931. Mr. Mosely was raised near Marble Valley, Coosa County, and has a large number of relatives and friends in this section of the state. He is only one of many from Old Coosa who have received high recognition. There was a sufficient number of ministers at the last meeting of the North Alabama Methodist Conference from Coosa county to authorize the formation of a Coosa County Social Club.—Sylacauga News.

ALABAMA WOMEN TO USE MORE COTTON

Auburn, Ala., April 7.—An appeal to 20,000 women who are members of the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs in behalf of cotton is being made by Mrs. Strudwick Yarbrough of Auburn, who is state chairman of home demonstration and rural cooperation of the Federation, and also a former county home demonstration agent.

There are 470 club president in the State and to each of these Mrs. Yarbrough sent the following letter:

1. "It is now a patriotic duty and an act of good citizenship for Alabama women to join in the great South-wide movement to buy cotton materials for household purposes and for clothing.

"We grew cotton, we manufacture cotton, let's use cotton.

2. "Cotton is in style. Paris said so; and the leading dress manufacturers and department stores in America are featuring cotton dresses.

3. "Our stores are full of beautiful new weaves, new textures, new designs, and new colors in cotton materials. There are new piques, ginghams, dimities, shadowy prints, and cotton nets and laces.

4. "Again, it is a patroitic duty and an act of good citizenship for Alabama women to join in the great South-wide movement to buy cotton materials for household purposes and for clothing."

FACTORY PAYROLLS GAIN IN FEBRUARY

Auburn, Ala.—During the month of February factory employment in the United States increased slightly less than usual while factory payrolls increased more than seasonal amount from the low level of January, according to the Federal Reserve Bank at Atlanta.

HOME BAKING ON INCREASE

Home Economics Expert Says Love of Cooking Keeps Country's Ovens Hot

Home baking is decidedly on the increase rather than on the wane, is the conviction of Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, noted home economics authority and director of the Household Science Institute. Mrs. Gray, in her work, is in constant touch with hundreds of women all over the country and from them has learned that even with a grocery store around the corner and a bakery across the way, the majority of women still prefer to do their own baking.

"A new recipe is a challenge to the average housewife," says Mrs. Gray, "and a piece of ready-made cake, a double challenge. She wants to prove that she can make it better herself and the chances are, she can. There is a certain satisfaction from baking a perfect loaf of bread, a mouth-watering pan of biscuits or a party cake, that cannot be had by merely ordering it. And how about muffins, hot for breakfast, or a delightful nut or orange bread for afternoon tea sandwiches? Many women who have gotten out of the way of baking at home are returning to it with gusto for the sheer pleasure of proving their skill to themselves, their families and their friends."

Economy is another factor in favor of home baking, the Institute has discovered. The amount of savings varies, naturally, with the varying costs of bakery goods, ingredients and fuel in different cities, but there is always enough saving to warrant the making of breads, pastries and cage at home. In one city, for example, three full-sized loaves of bread can be made at home for ten cents, far less than even the cheapest quality can be purchased over the counter, and other goods are in proportion.

Superior quality, too, is the reward of the woman who bakes at home, concludes Mrs. Gray. She can use the finest grade of soft wheat flour for her baking, fresh eggs and good butter, she can be assured of absolute cleanliness and purity, and still be money ahead. The few cents extra per 24-lb. sack for buying the best grade of flour are saved several times over by the lesser amounts of shortening and eggs necessary when a good quality of flour is used.

WARNING IS ISSUED TO LIVESTOCK OWNERS

Auburn, Ala.—C. A. Cary, state veterinarian and dean of the college of veterinary medicine at Auburn, issued a statement to farmers and owners of livestock to be careful about the quality of feed which they feed to their livestock. He said that work animals and other livestock are dying because of decayed and otherwise objectionable feed which they are receiving.

2,200 ALABAMA COWS ARE ON OFFICIAL TEST

Auburn, Ala.—In Alabama 2,200 cows are now on official test in four associations, according to C. M. Ling of the dairy department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who is in charge of the work. Dairymen who are members of these associations are locating their unprofitable cows and removing them from their herds, Mr. Ling said.

BUSINESS INCREASE IN FEBRUARY SHOWN

Auburn, Ala.—Notwithstanding the fact that February was approximately 8 per cent shorter, in number of business days, than January, there were increases over January in retail trade, in building permits and construction contracts awarded, in production of cotton yarn and cloth in the sixth district, and in output of pig iron in Alabama, says the Federal Reserve Bank.

POULTRY

HIGH QUALITY CHICKS ARE MORE PROFITABLE

Poultrymen expecting to put profitable pullets in their laying houses this fall should be careful where they obtain their baby chicks, advises R. B. Jones, chief of the Poultry Division of the Department of Agriculture, who declares that a "low quality chick is high at any price."

Advising poultrymen that good quality baby chicks may be purchasel at reasonable prices Mr. Jones said:

"Alabama is now producing many chicks from flocks that have been culled for body type, color, egg production, disqualifications and mated to strong vigorous male birds by experienced state inspectors. These birds have been blood tested for Bacillary White Diarrhea (pullorum disease) and the reactors removed. These Alabama State accredited chicks are being produced by accredited hatcheries and can be bought at reasonable prices. The official list of accredited flocks and hatcheries can be obtained free by writing to the Poultry Division, Department of Agriculture, Montgomery, Alabama.

"These are the very best quality chicks that can be obtained as they are strong, vigorous, relatively disease free, coming from high quality breeding stock. Be sure that the chicks are state accredited and not just blood tested. Chicks hatched in incubators where there are eggs from flocks other than those blood tested may have bacillary white diarrhea the same as non accredited chicks as this disease spreads in incubators on the down from one chick to another.

"If a poultryman wants profitable pullets he must start with good quality chicks which he is assured when obtaining Alabama state accredited chicks.

"High quality chicks must be fed, housed and managed properly and this information can be received by writing the Poultry Department of Auburn. No matter how good the feed, management and houses given poor quality chicks you cannot have the most profitable pullet. But you can have the most profitable pullet very easily by starting right with state accredited chicks and following the above policy."

CRUELTY TO BABY CHICKS

The baby chicks season is here. More chicks are going out every day. A great many folks will wonder this year why they lose so many chicks, why those they have don't grow well and look weak. They wonder why it takes so much longer than it should to get the cockerels to a weight of two to two and one-half pounds, when they can be most profitably put on the market as broilers.

Providing that the ration has a good formula and is made of good ingredients, the big reason forr slow growth, lack of uniformity and considerable loss is the fact that few people use enough hopper space.

If there are five people in your family and the table is only large enough to accommodate two, somebody either has to wait a good while or go hungry. The same thing applies to baby chicks.

Not one brooder house in fifty has enough hopper space to give the chicks the right kind of a start and to give them a chance to grow satisfactorily. Seven feet of hopper space is needed for each hundred chicks. Less than this will cause slow growth and increase mortality.

Check up on hopper space. Be sure you have enough and then watch the chicks grow. But, above all, don't be guilty of cruelty to animals, because that is what lack of hopper space really is so far as baby chicks are concerned.

LOCKHART IS THANKFUL

Rev. M. Lockhart received a big surprise Saturday afternoon at the hands of his Maple Springs church members. They carried him into a Clanton dry goods store and fitted him up with a brand new suit of clothes and a pair of shoes. The young preacher asked The Union-Banner to express his thanks to the Maple Springs people for their thoughtfulness and generosity. When Rev. Lockhart got home at Thorsby Saturday night he was showing the new things to his wife and children. The good wife then informed him that Saturday was his birthday, and that that was the reason for the unexpected generosity of his laymen.

FREAK PINE TREE IN WILCOX COUNTY

Montgomery, Ala.—A shortleaf pine tree aparently but nine years old at stump height and twenty-one years of age a few feet up the stem has been found in Wilcox County by State Forest Inspector, J. M. Stauffer. This paradoxical condition is based upon the facts that the lower part of the tree is but seven inches in diameter and contains but nine rings of annual growth, while a short distance higher the diameter is something over ten inches with twenty-one growth rings.

With the exception of these abnormalities the tree is in fairly good growing condition. The pecularities noted are due to the fact that the pine survived an injury which would ordinarily kill a tree, but which in this instance merely cut off the growth of the lower part while permitting the upper section to continue its development. Some twelve years ago the tree was ringed or girdled. That is, a notch was cut entirely around the tree through the bark and into the sapwood.

A tree maintains its living condition through the raw sap that is carried up through the sapwood into the leaves where it is digested. The digested material starts downward through what is called the cambium layer which lies between the wood and the bark. The new material is deposited by the cambium as an additional layer of wood on the inner side and to some extent as further bark growth on the outer. In the case of the Wilcox County tree the injury to the sapwood was not deep enough entirely to prevent the ascent of the raw sap up the tree into the leaves, but nevertheless intercepted the descent of the digested material next to the bark. The upper part of the tree thus continued to add annual rings of growth while the lower part stood still.

Rev. Judson R. Martin and a friend, Mr. Walker, from Jackson, Ala., were visitors to Clanton Monday. Rev. Martin is a brother of Undertaker, J. Mell Martin.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TOUR SOUTHERN STATES RECALLED

One hundred and forty years ago on the morning of April 7, 1791, President George Washington left Mount Vernon on a tour of the Southern States. On this journey, the longest during his administration and perhaps the most extensive land trip he ever made, the first President covered a distance of 1,887 miles. The entire journey was made in his own coach and consumed a little more than two months. When he returned to Mount Vernon June 12, he noted in his diary that the same horses had been used throughout the entire journey.

In calling attention to the anniversary of this tour, the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission notes that the Journey Washington made more than a century ago was not the simple matter such a trip would be under modern conditions. Today the same tourn would take no more than three weeks including the same delays incident to the celebrations which were held in honor of the President.

Not only would modern travel facilities have increased the speed with which Washington journeyed—they also would have enabled him to make the trip with greater ease and comfort. Something of the hardships he experienced may be seen from his diary record of the tour. The day he left Mount Vernon, while crossing the ferry at Colchester, Washington nearly lost his horses when they became excited and plunged into the water from the boat.

The roads over which Washington traveled were rough and dusty in dry weather or seemingly bottomless pits of mud after a storm. Many times both men and horses suffered from the effects of dust stirred up by beating hoofs and grinding wheels.

The story of Washington's journey is an account of continued ovation. Most of the people who attended the functions held in honor of the President were seeing Washington for the first time. By these he was received as enthusiastically as by his old friends. Admiration and esteem for him were universal.

An interesting sidelight is thrown on the journey by Washington's comments in his journal. He nerely always noted the number of ladies present at the social functions in his honor and that their charms were not lost on the President is indicated by his references to their elegant gowns and handsome appearance.

At most of the cities Washington was received by the military organizations and was greeted with a "Federal Salute." In one small community, however, the people did not possess guns enough for this ostentatious welcome, and Washington somewhat dryly notes in his diary that "we were received by as good a salute as could be given by one piece of artillery."

Washington considered his trip a success, and some time after his return to Philadelphia wrote of it:

"I am much pleased that I have taken this journey, as it has enabled me to see with my own eyes the situation of the country through which we travelled, and to learn more accurately the disposition of the people than I could have done by any information.

"The country appears to be in a very improving state, and industry and frugality are becoming more fashionable than they have hitherto been there. Tranquility reigns among the people, with that disposition towards the general government, which is likely to preserve it. They begin to feel the good effects of equal laws and equal protection. Each days experience of the government of the United States seems to confirm its establishment, and to render it more popular."

THE ANNUAL EASTER SINGING AT POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

Sunday was our regular annual singing day at Poplar Springs, and though there were not as many attending as usual, the singing was a great success. Of course it is usually said that each singing is the best; this might not have been the best, but I don't think it could be beat. The weather was not very favorable on the outside but it was very comfortable on the inside.

The house was called to order by Prof. W. M. Devaughn, who sung one song, and prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Wilson. Officers were then elected for the day. Prof. W. M. Devaughn was elected chairman; Dr. J. B. Williams, W. F. Gilliland, and J. B. Hammonds were elected as committee, and Miss Gladys Wilson as secretary. After the officers were elected Prof. W. M. Devaughn sang another song, then the following directors sung two songs each: W. G. Culp, Jesse Jones, Arthur Beaird, Edward Jones, Evehret Devaughn, R. O. Williams and O. L. Devaughn; then a quartet was sung by Jesse Jones, W. M. Devaughn, Akins I. Collins and Euriah Wilson, from Birmingham. William Jones and Dr. J. B. Williams sung two songs each then we were dismissed until one-thirty, during which time everybody enjoyed a nice dinner.

Called to order again at one-thirty by the chairman, who sang one song, after which the following directors sang two songs each: Rev. M. Lockhart, R. T. Grant, Akins I. Collins, Lee Grant, Amie Boswell, Mr. Salser from Birmingham, L. T. Grant, Ralph Grant, I. D. Huett, J. B. Hammonds, J. E. Varner, G. C. Weldon, E. L. Glasscock, T. E. Wyatt and C. H. Robinson.

During the afternoon six quartets were sung which were arranged by different singers; also two special songs consisting of eight singers.

The pianists for the day were W. G. Culp, Lee Grant, Ralph Grant, C. H. Robinson, Misses Bertie Grant, Guy Eula Collins and Merrell Walker. The closing song, "My Faith looks up to Thee," was sung by the chairman and closing prayer was by Rev. M. Lockhart.

Everybody seemed to enjoy the day. We wish to thank all the visiting singers for their help, and invite you back on next Easter.—Secretary.

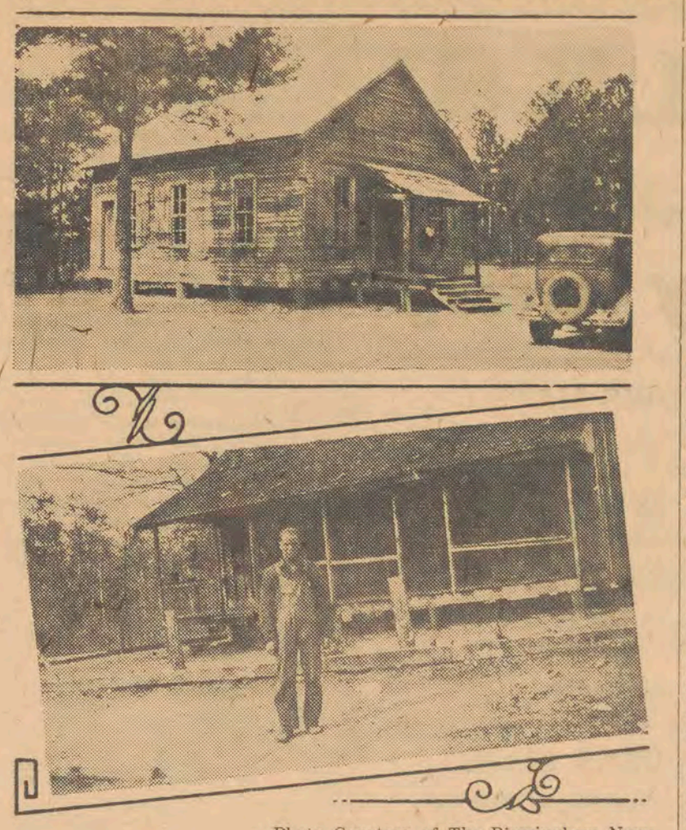
CHEVROLET TRUCK SALES INCREASE

Increases in Chevrolet Motor Company truck schedules by which output of some models has been doubled is made necessary by orders being received, H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager announces.

"There has been a steady uptrend in our truck business since the first of the year," Mr. Klingler declared this week. "Bothe in January and February we were compelled to increase production beyond that planned. In Murch, output was moved up twice to take care of demand. April indications are for continuance of this activity.

"We interpret this large and increasing buying of trucks as economically significant. Increases in truck demand paint a better picture of improving business conditions than do similar increases in passenger car sales. Truck purchases are a capital investment by the business man and are made only when justified by profit possibilities or expanding business. Our records show these purchases are from all sections of the country, by a great variety of businesses and in numbers from individual units up to fleet quantities."

Chevrolet's truck manufacturing activities n oware nationwide. The motor and chasis are built in the company's various plants. The bodies are produced in the main truck body plant at Indianapolis and shipped in sections to 52 branch plants in as many key cities across the country for assembling and mounting. This method, inaugurated last fall, has added several thousand to Chevrolet's payrolls and has permitted the company to expand its commercial car division to the point where it now produces 19 models on three wheelbases.



CULP SCHOOL DOTS

Health of this community is very good since the measles epidemic is over. Everyone in this community is farming as the weather permits.

Our school closed last Friday. The egg hunt and program were enjoyed very much by all those present. And may we take this means of expressing our highest appreciation to our good teacher, Miss Fannie Lecroy for the good she accomplished here as she did splendid work along educational lines, and not only that but she made every effort to teach our little ones right from wrong. We feel sure that she gained the love of all the scholars as well as every patron of the school and we do hope to have her back to teach for us next session.—A Reader.

Reports say that Miss Lou Ella McDowell, a nurse, has been called to the bedside of a friend at Ft. Benning, Ga., who is reported to be very ill with the pneumonia. We hope Miss McDowell will soon return, and bring good news that her friend is better.

CHILTON COUNTY OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL IS WINNER OF COLONIAL DAMES PRIZE

STUDENT, 22, AT COUNTY LINE, COMPLETES TWO GRADES IN THREE MONTHS TIME

By Mrs. W. L. Murdock, in The Birmingham News

It has been a great temptation to say in every state that illiteracy was being removed so rapidly that it could almost be said that it was now negligible. This was done by some persons but after all figures tell the story and, as the facts are coming out, it is seen that still there is so much to be done in such states as Alabama that one can only say it is being removed as fast as possible with the funds available.

The experience of Virginia is interesting here. Virginia, one of the proudest states in the commonwealth of states, was disposed to dispute the figures as to her illiteracy and was resentful of criticism.

Today she has completely reversed this policy and is heralding to her people the facts, and with an awakened people she is fighting the problem in a most effective way. Indeed, so excellent is her program now that Secretary Wilbur has publicly congratulated the state.

There is an old saying, "Once the American people know of a wrong, they lose no time in trying to right it." This may be altogether too optimistic a view to take as some of our wrongs, but certainly it has been true as to this question of illiteracy.

Opportunity Classes

Alabama has been continuing her program for this work, having opportunity classes, as they are called, in many parts of the state, the economic situation having made the intensive program of the Spring impossible.

In many places it is possible only to hold a short session of such schools and they are eagerly attended. Miss Clutie Bloodworth, State Department of Education, sends a story of the County Line School in Chilton County.

This school won the second prize offered by the Colonial Dames for perfect attendance at an opportunity school.

Such stories as this simply show what it means to these young men and women in our rural districts to be able to read and write and also to understand the value of money. This young man wrote his first check and the writer has a duplicate, and no one who has had all life's opportunities can quite understand what this meant to him.

County Line opportunity school opened March 10, 1930, and closed April 18. This was a small school, enrolling only 16 pupils, but seven of the 16 were perfect in attendance and not one pupil attended less than 24 of the 30 days taught.

One Pupil 62

The oldest pupil was a woman 62 and the teacher reported her as one of the star pupils of the beginners class. The youngest pupil was a boy 16 in the second grade. Eight of the 16 enrolled were beginning in the a, b, c, of school training.

Miss Leila Smith, the teacher, interested these people because in July when she opened the doors of the little one-room schoolhouse for the grown folks, many of her pupils came back for another try at book learning. Among the number attending the second term was a tall smiling, flaxenhaired young fellow just 22, named Grover Smith.

Grover went to school two weeks once when a very small youngster. The seats may have been too high for such short legs, the teacher may not have known what to do with such a little fellow, but the chances are that the walk to school was too long when his legs were so short and the times too hard when his legs got longer. Whatever the reason, Grover did not know how much was due him for filling up the cotton sacks on a long summer's day and how much was due him for cutting crossties. Grover had never cast his first vote.

In the Oppotunity School Grover mastered the three R's with rapidity. In the first term he read through Book One of the "Country Life" series. In the second term he completed the second and made a good start on the third. In fact, in three months he did a full nine months' work of public school work.

Likes School

Miss Bloodworth says:

"Grover likes school, and he says: 'Yes, I read the newspapers now every time Mr. Bailey lets me have his. No, I ain't never been to Sunday school. I did not want to go cause I could not read. The first week at school was pretty tough, then I sorter got the hang of it.'"

Then she asked him about arithmetic.

"Sure, I do know a lot about that now," he said. "I can figure what is due me for picking cotton and I can find out what a half a bale of cotton is selling for when I have just a half to deal with."

Then Miss Bloodworth told him that he could go on and prepare for high school and really get an education.

His fine teeth gleamed in an embarrassed grin as he said in his boyish way, "Gee, I'd sure like that."

Miss Bloodworth feels that this work is so vital to our young men and women and such stories shows so clearly that all they want is the chance, she is eager for all the Alabamians to know it.

MRS. ROY WILLIS

On Sunday morning, March 29, 1931, at 5 o'clock, many hearts were broken, and a dark cloud hung over Collins Chapel community, when the death angel visited the home of Mr. Roy Willis and bore away the sweet spirit of his darling wife and companion, Mrs. Nancy Willis.

We know that God doeth all things will, and even though it is hard to part, when He calls we must go. We feel our loss is heaven's gain, and this helps to lighten our hearts, because to know her was to love her.

She gave her heart to God when young, about 15, so she could live for Him and do something for His cause. She was a faithful church worker, and taught a Sunday school class at Collins Chapel. She loved the church, and loved to sing. Oh, how we miss her presence everywhere.

She lived a life for others to copy. Especially did she visit the sick and minister to their wants in any way possible. She rejoiced with the happy and wept with the sad. She did her part in all.

Everything that loving hands could do was done for her. Her friends were unnumbered, and stayed faithful until the end. Her nurse, Mrs. Irene Raspberry, was the most patient and loving nurse heart could wish for. Nothing was left undone that her hands could do. We will not forget her in our prayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis were blessed with two children, Charles Edward and Roy Arthur.

Oh, how we miss you mother,
Your smiles we see no more;
But some day bright and happy,
We'll meet you on yonder shore.

Where there'll be no more sad parting,
All is joy and peace and love;
Around God's throne we'll sing and shout,
In our happy home above.
—One who loved her.

MOTHERS DAY FOR THE ORPHANS

How could we better observe Mother's Day, May 10th, than by remembering the children of our Baptist Orphanage? This question is stressed in a communication which J. O. Colley, superintendent of the orphanage, has sent to Baptist Sunday schools over the State.

Mr. Colley further points out that the Alabama Baptist Convention in Bessemer voted unanimously in recommending that the Mothers Day offering in our churches and Sunday schools be designated to the orphans home. This, he says, is a great plan to take care of a great need, at the same time honoring our mothers and the mothers whose children have been left in the orphanage.

There are 208 children in the home. They are deprived of the love and care of their mothers. They have lost something that the Divine scheme intended for them.

In the past the offering on Mothers Day has been given to the Baptist Hospital at Selma. The plan to give it this year to the orphans will doubtless meet with the hearty approval of the churches and Sunday schools.

Mr. W. C. Vice, undertaker, of Birmingham, stopped in Clanton a while Wednesday morning to see Mell Martin. Mr. Vice is president of the Alabama Funeral Directors Association, and Mell Martin is secretary-treasurer.

BABY CHICKS AT ELMORE'S

Elmore's Ten Cent Store is rendering a very worth while service to the people of this community in offering the opportunity whereby anybody can buy any number of pure bred baby chicks. If you want one chick or a hundred, you can get them at Elmore's.

In addition to the chicks, you can also get a scientifically and economically built starter brooder for a small cost. This is very important, for the secret of raising chickens lies in the method of starting them off.

One particular advantage which Mr. Elmore mentions is that people who have hens hatch their baby chicks can come to his store any day and get as many more baby chicks as they need to fill out the brood to the desired number.

If you are interested in raising chickens, go to Elmore's and see his display of chicks and starting equipment.

KIWANIS CLUB BRINGS A MOST UNIQUE PICTURE TO CLANTON

The people of this section will soon have an opportunity to see a writer's idea of what this world will look like in the year 1980, almost fifty years from now. Trips to Mars in a rocket ship—people with numbers instead of names as we have now—bringing people back to life after they have been dead sometime—and a love story that goes along with it all.

This picture is "Just Imagine," and is booked to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton for three nights, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week, April 13, 14, and 15. It is being put on by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, with the kind assistance and cooperation of C. W. Wade, proprietor of the Wadesonian Theatre. There will be a slight increase in price of admission, and reserve seats will also be sold beforehand, as it is expected that record crowds will be in Clanton to see this unique talking picture.

BROWNIES ARE FAVORITES

There comes inevitably in every little girl's life the moment when her sense of hospitality is aroused and she will want to make something all by herself to serve the little girls who are coming over to play with her in the afternoon. Mother will undoubtedly be appealed to and, if wise, will suggest the ever-favorite "brownies," sometimes referred to as baked fudge.

Brownies have the advantage of being extremely simple to make, nutritious but not over-rich, and are always greet d with murmurs of delight.

If the following simple directions are followed, good results can be expected, even by the little girl who has had no previous experience. Remember that all measurements should be level and accurate. By using self-rising flour, no baking powder nor salt

BETTER COTTON NEEDED

President Bradford Knapp, of Auburn, said in a recent statement: "Alabama cotton growers must improve the quality of their cotton if they are to hold their place against competition with the rest of the world."

County agent, C. E. Stapp, for some time has been seeking to impress this same thought upon the farmers of Chilton County. It is evident that the words of president Knapp are not idle gossip in regard to our cotton situation. We must have a better staple. That is just as true right here in Chilton County as it is in any place in Alabama.

Mr. Stapp informs us that the Farm Bureau has secured a large quantity of improved cotton seed for planting this spring. The variety is one that has been tested out for a better staple than we have been getting in this county.

Our farmers should get busy in this matter. They are losing thousands of dollars every year that could be saved if they would take the necessary steps to produce the best staple possible. See Mr. Stapp about this matter before you plant your cotton this spring.

PROGRAM

The following is the program of the Sunday school convention of the Unity and Chilton County Baptist Associations, to be held at the Maple Springs church, Sunday afternoon, April 12. All churches are urged to attend.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MRS. JOHN BEAN

We miss her, oh we miss her,
For our Saavior called her away;
But we are praying to meet her
In a better world some day.

We know that she is resting,
In Paradise above;
We hope some day to meet her;
With joy, peace and love.

No more on earth we'll see her face,
Her voice we'll hear no more;
But let us live to meet her
On that bright and happy shore.

We love our dear mother,
No human tongue can tell;
We said good-ble for a little while
But we didn't say farwell.

It was just only a few days ago
We can never forget the day;
When came the silent reaper,
And took our dear mother away.

Oh how brave and good and tender,
She was every day by day;
All the sorrow that she gave us,
Was because she went away.

She's not dead, just sweetly resting,
From her trials and troubles here;
But if we live as she has taught us,
We'll meet her over there.

INDIAN CHIEF TO BE HERE

Will Appear In Person To Make A Talk To Boy Scouts At An Early Date

Sam Powers of Lay Dam informs us that he has made arrangements to bring to Clanton a real Indian Chief and movie star, who will make a talk and sing some songs for the benefit of the Boy Scouts and their families and friends. This announcement will meet with keen interest on the part of our boys, because there is nothing that appeals to boys more than the thought of seeing and talking to a real indian chief.

The name of the entertainer is Chief White Elk, who has been the leading star in several great productions, including Show Boat, The Big Trail, The Indians are Coming, and Whoopee. Mr. Powers states that he has talked with Chief White Elk in Birmingham, and has completed the engagement for him to come to Clanton at an early date for the entertainment and benefit of the Scouts. The date will probably be next Monday night. The Indian Chief has requested that the place of the entertainment be where a pipe organ is available; therefore Mr. Powers hopes to make arrangements for it at the Clanton Methodist Church.

Upon leaving for Birmingham Wednesday morning Mr. Powers stated that he would have his arrangements all made in time to notify all the Scouts, and he hopes to have a big crowd to hear Chief White Elk talk and sing. There will be no charge for admission. The event will be strictly for the inspiration of the Boy Scouts.

Mr. Powers says his conversations with Chief White Elk have revealed many interesting facts which he is sure will captivate the boys of Clanton and vicinity. The Chief is a cultured an highly educated individual. He holds a sheepskin from Carlisle and a medical degree from Rush Medical College. He is much of a linguist, capable of carrying on a conversation in nine different tongues. He has toured the world and is an avid worker in matters pertaining to Boy Scouts.

Mr. Powers says if you have never seen a sure nuff "injun," here is your chance. Despite his educational attainments, Chief White Elk is still adept with his indian sign language, and has a vast store of knowledge of the mystic lore of the aboriginal Americans.

J. P. SORENSEN DIED TUESDAY

J. P. Sorensen, age 76 years, died Tuesday afternoon at St. Vincent Hospital in Birmingham. Death came as he was sitting in his chair. Mell Martin was called and brought the body to Clanton Tuesday night and prepared it for burial.

The deceased was a prominent citizen of Thorsby, where he has lived for sixteen years. He was born in Denmark, a tailor by trade, having retired from active work in 1905. He is survived by his wife.

A short funeral service will be held at the home in Thorsby at two o'clock today (Thursday) after which last rites will be conducted at the Congregational Church by Rev. E. W. Butler.

Mr. Soresen was a member of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute.

ED HULL IN HOSPITAL

Charlie Wyatt of Titus, Coosa County, was in Clanton Wednesday attending to some business matters. Mr. Wyatt broke the bad news to us that our good friends, J. E. B. Hull of Titus, is in the Hill Hospital in Montgomery. Mr. Hull has been there for two weeks with an enlarged gland and bladder ailment. He has undergone one minor operation, and will undergo another some time this week. We certainly hope for Mr. Hull a recovery from his ailments.

Negroes To Die For Assault On Huntsville Girls

Scottsboro Jury Brings In Guilty Verdict For Pair After Short Deliberation

Scottsboro, Ala., April 7.—The first two of nine negroes to face trial for an attack on two young Huntsville white girls who were "bumming" their way home on a Southern Railway freight train March 24, today were convicted and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

While the jury was out for an hour and 55 minutes deliberating the case of Charlie Weems, 21, of Atlanta, and Clarence Norris, 19, of Chattanooga, the first two convicted, trial of Heywood Patterson, 17, of Chattanooga, was begun.

The courtroom was packed when the jury returned from its deliberation of the evidence against Weems and Norris, and when the verdict was announced a demonstration began that was checked only by the ejection of numerous persons from the courtroom.

It was the first sign of demonstration during the trial which began yesterday. Judge C. A. Hawkins, presiding, threatened to clear the room if another demonstration occurred.

Judge Hawkins this afternoon announced that he had received a telegram from Huntsville signed "The International Labor Defense, New York City," charging that the negroes were being tried on "trumped up" charges and demanding a change of venue and new trial for all the negroes.

The telegram protested the "attempt at legal lynching of negro workers on framed up charges," and added that Judge Hawkins would be held "personally responsible." Huntsville police were asked to seek the sender, but late today reported they had been unsuccessful.

This mountain town of 2,300 population seemed almost deserted today, as few of the estimated 10,000 coming here yesterday only to fail to gain admission to the courtroom, returned.

National guard machine gun squads, their snub-nosed weapons menacing the two entrances to the court square, lolled in the sunshine watching the everyday business of the town proceed.

Sentries posted at the doors and other strategic points also relaxed the vigilance that marked their attitude yesterday, but all persons seeking entrance to the courthouse were halted and were searched for weapons.

The trial of Weems and Norris moved rapidly today, the State unexpectedly resting after calling five witnesses in addition to three who testified yesterday. The witnesses included the second victim of the negroes who identified them, and two men who saw five of the seven white youths accompanying the girls, "thrown from the train near Stevenson.

The two negroes were the only witnesses called by the defense. Weems denied participating in the attack but accused the seven not on trial, and Norris accused all eight, but denied his own guilt.

Selecting a jury to try Patterson was finished in a short time and his trial was interrupted for the other jury to report. The same witnesses were being called by his trial as testified against Weems and Norris.

Indications were that the trial could be completed tomorrow forenoon, and the case of one or more of the others called.

Those awaiting trial are Andy Wright, 17 Chattanooga; Willie Robertson, 17, Columbus, Ga.; Olen Montgomery, 17, Monroe, Ga.; and Ozie Powell, 16, Atlanta. Two others, Roy Wright, 14, and Eugene Williams, 16, both of Chattanooga, will be turned over to the juvenile authorities for disposition.

Famous Singer Tells Origin of Crooning

Vaughn De Leath Describes Accidental Start of New Style Singing

New York City.—Crooning, according to its originator, Vaughn de Leath, the famous radio star, was the result of a lucky accident.

"In the early days of radio broadcasting, before the microphone had been perfectly adjusted to the range of the human voice," explains Miss de Leath, "a soprano's high notes often shattered a delicate tube in the transmitting panel. Tubes cost $110 each, and the seconds it took to insert a new one meant interrupted programs.

"In order to avoid this annoyance, I tried singing with a new note, a 'throaty' modulation of voice that kept within the microphone's range."

The new style of singing made an instantaneous hit with the radio public. They wrote their approbation and imitative crooners began to spring up everywhere. Now many of the most loved and valuable songs of the day, such as "You're Just a Lover," are written with the crooner definitely in mind.

Miss de Leath has been singing as long as she has been talking. She made her musical debut at three in an amateur minstrel show in her native town, Mount Pulaski, Illinois.

Miss de Leath is known as the original radio girl because in January, 1920, before the first regularly scheduled broadcast of a radio program was made from Station KDKA, Pittsburgh, her voice was heard on the air in a broadcast from a stuffy little "wireless room" atop a New York skyscraper.

Her "radio public" on that day was made up of a handful of radio enthusiasts, owners of crystal sets and amateur experimenters in wireless. Her voice as it came through the headphones was blurred and marred by whistles and static, but her first broadcast was considered a success, so much so that she kept on her programs and added an accordion player as accompanist.

Today, she probably has the largest following of any woman on the air and it is not unusual for her to be the soloist with a sixty-piece orchestra.

CONCORD-BILLINGSLEY

Our Easter program which was put on here last Sunday night was very good. Several visitors were present. We wish to thank them for their presence with us. It makes us feel that they are interested in us. Especially do we thank the parents for their presence and encouragement. We feel that with our parents to encourage us, we can do a greater work for our Master.

If nothing prevents, Pleasant Grove Christian Endeavor will come to our church next Sunday night and render a program. Let us give them the best of attendance.

"When I was a child, if I did not feel well, or if I had a cold, my mother gave me Black-Draught," says Mrs. Orpha Hill, of Wofford, Ky. "When I was married, it became a family medicine in my own home, as it was in my mother's.

"I take it for headache and especially for constipation. When I get bilious, my skin gets yellow and I have a very bad taste in my mouth, and a drowsy feeling all during the day. My eyes burn and I get dizzy, or my head is 'swimming.' When I take Black-Draught, it seems to drive the impurities out of my system and I feel fine. I am seldom without this reliable remedy."

The producers of Ferrac realize that the product is so unusual, so mystifying in its origin as well as in its ability to perform, that there are those who cannot understand how it is possible for nature to combine minerals that the brightest minds in the greatest chemical laboratories in the world cannot duplicate. Therefore, the producers of Ferrac invite the closest inquiry and investigation, and if it can be shown that Ferrac is put into the bottle with any other constituents than those originally supplied by Mother Nature in the subterranean fires of her great laboratory, the producers of this marvelous compound will give to any charity in the State of Alabama $1,000 REWARD ..... 18pt.

Lesson for April 12

THE PRODIGAL SON

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What to Do When We Do Wrong.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What to Do When We Do Wrong.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Father's Welcome to the Wandering Son.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Church and the Repentant Sinner.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the story.

I. The Son's Estrangement From the Father (v. 12).

There is every indication that this was a happy home, but a demon entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him willfully to choose to leave home—to throw off the restraints of a father's rule. Sin is essentially the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and for selfish indulgence. At the request of the son "the father divided unto him his living."

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13).

Having made the fatal decision, he went posthaste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision. He quickly got his goods in portable shape. Having thrown off the restraints of his father's rule, he eagerly withdrew from his father's presence. This is always the way sin works. Adam and Eve after they had sinned hid themselves. The son could not now stand the presence of his father so he hastened away, having "gathered all together."

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14).

He had a good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. The indications are that his course was soon run. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey. The sinner is soon made to realize the famine when such powers as ministered to his pleasure are burned out.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16).

Having no friends to help him when his money was all gone, he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was a tragic change from being a son in his father's house to feeding swine in the far country. It is ever so. Those who will not serve God are made slaves to the Devil to do his bidding (Romans 6:16). How vividly this portrays the history of many men and women about us, and yet it is the picture of the inevitable consequences of sin.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24).

1. "He came to himself" (v. 17).

Upon reflection he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, he was still a son of his father. In the days of his sinning he was beside himself. The sinner continues in his sin because he is insane. The world calls the sinner who leaves off his evil ways crazy, but in reality he has just become sane.

2. His resolution (v. 18).

His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home, where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His confession (vv. 18, 19).

He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father, that he had forfeited his right to be called a son, and begged to be given a place as a hired servant. The sinner not only should make a resolution—he should confess his sin.

4. His action (v. 20).

Action was needed. Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow. Good intentions will not avail.

5. His reception by his father (vv. 20-24).

The father had not forgotten his son. His unchanging love followed the son all the time he was away, and longed for his return. He must often have looked for him, for he saw him when he was a great way off. So anxious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he did not even hear his confession through, but ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position.

Boundless Resources

He is the God of boundless resources. The only limit is in us. Our asking, our thinking, our praying are too small. Our expectations are too limited. There is but one measure given for his blessing, and that is "according to the power that worketh in us."—A. B. Simpson.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. ESSIE MOISE CLACKLER

I never thought it would be I who should write my own sister's obituary; but of my own accord I shall do so, for if she could know, and sometimes I feel that she sees and knows, I believe she would be glad to know I did it.

The sweet subject of this obituary was, before her marriage, Miss Essie Moise Sanders. She was married to William A. Clackler in June, 1920. To their happy union five little children were added, namely: Everett, Cleigh, William, Jr., Betty Joyce, and Essie Moise, all of whom are left to miss and mourn for their mother.

Also we, her dear husband and parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Q. Sanders, and her brother and sisters, Lorenzo Sanders, Mrs. Mae Mims, Mrs. Henry Lee Moates and Mrs. Era Culver, are bowed in deep sorrow over our loss. But we are made to feel glad, to rejoice that her last conscious words left the blessed assurance that our loss was heaven's gain. Only those who have felt as we do realize how hard it is to give up one so dear, but when death called she met it calmly, fearlessly; God knew best and she had to go.

Her last words were, to tell her parents, and brother and sisters not to grieve, not to worry, that she was going to heaven. She stated that she had been in heaven five times already, and was now going to stay—blessed thought.

She died in the Brightwood Hospital, St. Johnsbury, Vermont, where she had suffered intensely for nearly two weeks. Long before she was taken ill it was her request that whenever she died she wanted to be buried in New Harmony cemetery (near Lomax), so her request was granted, and her dead body, accompanied by her husband, journeyed the many miles home that she might rest 'neath her own home soil.

Her favorite song, "I'm Going Home," was beautifully rendered, also there were others she loved so well. On Sunday, April 5th, the funeral service was conducted by Elder J. S. Kelly and also Elder Tucker spoke a few words of sympathy to the grieving.

Beautiful flowers bespoke the respect and esteem in which she was held. Perfect though they were, their lovliness was dimmed by comparison with the lovely flower who lay silently beneath—for truly she was in the bloom of youth.

Born October 25th, 1904, and departing this life April 2, 1931, she was spared us for a brief twenty-six years; and for one who has spent with her the greater part of that time, I am deeply moved to say the association has been sweet, perfect, and in losing her I have lost one of the sweetest, dearest pals of my life.

God only can understand the aching void in our hearts. But they tell us that time will heal.—Her's in love and sorrow—Sister Era.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF CHICKEN RAISING

The ten commandments of chick raising—as essential to the polutryman's success as Moses' original laws—are offered in the 1931 edition of the Purina Poultry Book—a handy hip pocket volume of 100 pages, devoted entirely to the feeding, care, management, diseases, and cures of poultry.

In brief form this outline gives a simple plan of what the poultryman should do to raise a high percentage of his chicks—to care for them properly—to give them what they need in life, health and growth—to cure their ailments—to guard them against infection and diseases.

Numbers one and two of these commandments lay the foundation for chick raising: "Move the brooder house to new ground, and throughly clean and disinfect all equipment. These precautions are deemed necessary to prevent any chance of disease being carried over from last year and give this year's chicks the chance to start without handicaps of any kind. The third commandment advises that brooder houses and the stoves be carefully regulated for several days before the chicks arrive to insure even steady temperature conditions, proper ventilations, and the elimination of drafts.

A sound piece of advice is offered next. Start with early-hatched, vigorous chicks; with the explanation given that early-hatched chicks mean pullets laying early in the fall at the beginning of high prices, and broilers ready before market is glutted.

Not more than 360 chicks should be placed in a 10 x 12 brooder house, the next law declares, since more than this number means crowding, with the conveniences of poorly developed, stunted and possibly diseased birds.

Commandment No. 6 explains that a drinking fountain and a two-foot Startena feeder should be provided for each 50 chicks to allow each individual chick all the room it needs to get feed and water—upon which life and health depend.

Frightening or stampeding chicks by sudden movements is advised against in No. 7 since, if done only a few times, it will mean highly temperamental chicks which are thrown off feed by slight disturbances, resulting in poor development. Chicks should be taught to roost early, says No. 8, usually beginning about the third or fourth week.

The ninth commandment advises the adoption of a plan of feeding which will give the chicks the right start and the best chances for growth throughout.

Finally it is recommended that every poultryman remove the cockrels, which are usually about half of his flock, fatten them in a separate pen and market them as broilers as soon as possible.

The complete set of commandments is contained in the Purina Poultry book together with a full explanation and detailed information on poultry raising. A copy may be obtained from Mr. J. L. Ruffin, the local Purina dealer, at the store with the Checkerboard sign.

BROODER TEMPERATURES

It has been the experience of people who are operating battery brooders that a temperature of 85 degrees is warm enough for baby chicks.

The usual recommendation, where either coal or oil stoves are used in the brooder houses, is to start with a temperature of 95 degrees, with a thermometer hanging at the edge of the hover about two inches off the floor. This means that when the baby chicks go to bed at night, they are about a foot outside of the edge of the hover, because they will hunt the temperature in which they are comfortable.

As they get older, chicks need less heat, and the temperature of the stove should be reduced so that the inner edge of the circle of chicks will continue to stay about a foot away from the edge of the hover.

It is not possible to give definite temperatures, because it is necessary that the caretaker watch the chicks and reduce the temperature of the stove so that these chicks don't form the habit of sleeping too far away.

If the temperature is kept too high, the chicks will keep backing up until they get into the corners of the house, and then they will start piling. Once the chicks are either too hot or too cold, you are almost sure to have trouble with crowding, with consequent poor feathering, slow growth and often heavy mortality.

Incorrect temperatures are the most likely cause of chicks piling up.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Bill Offers a Prize

Our friend Bill, from out on Route 7, comes across again this week with a bit of praise for Ben Sessions, which, I am sure is well deserved by this faithful agent of Uncle Sam's mail service. Says Bill: I notice the Man on the Corner recently made a trip to East Alabama, and in the party was our faithful mail rider, Ben Sessions. It was stated that Ben was watchful all along the highways, observing if any flags were turned up on the mail boxes. That's him all right. He never misses one. With due respect to all other mail riders, I'll bet there is not one who can beat Ben Sessions and his ditch-jumping Model T. We not only depend on him to bring us our mail. He is so regular in his rounds that we set our clocks by his passing. If anybody will show me another rider that can beat him I will give him a chewing gum door mat, if I have to look under every seat in the Wadesonian Theatre to get the gum to make it out of.

Also a Little Bonquet for The Banner

Friend Bill also drops in a little bunch of flowers for The Dear Old Banner, which we appreciate. He says: I have lived in some of the biggest cities in the country, and The Banner is of more interest to me than any paper I ever ran across. To my way of thinking, it is a very valuable paper to the people of Chilton County. Several of my friends have asked me to write more to the paper. But I am no writer. Perhaps I had better lay off and give the space to others. Some have accused me of being a booster for Chilton County. Well, I am glad I am a booster, and not a rooster.

Lots of Things Happening

Sometimes news is scarce. Again it is more plentiful. Also it happens many times that big news makes sad hearts. Such has been the case this week. Many things have happened around here, and we regret to have to tell the sad stories, although it is "good news" from a newspaper standpoint. The attempted suicide and ensuing death of our friend, D. M. Apperson, was heartbreaking to many. He was a good man, one of our best citizens. The puzzling thing is what could have caused him to take such a notion. Then the shooting Saturday night in which the life of a sweet young girl was snatched away by the foolish action of a young man who had a notion that he loved her. Bleeding hearts by the hundreds was the result.

Quick Trial Hoped For

Judging from many expressions heard on the streets, I would say that prompt action of our courts in regard to the Goodson case would be very pleasing to everybody. I understand that a number of citizens and county officials have requested that the grand jury be assembled at once to take up the case. It is reported that Judge Smoot will be here about the middle of this week to look into the situation. This is certainly the kind of a case that ordinarily gets folks stirred up; and the best way to keep them from getting stirred up under such circumstances is for the courts to act promptly when such grave matters are to be dealt with.

Bees Tried To Get In Jail

Just as Sheriff Gillespie was getting the county jail depopulated Tuesday, preparatory to the rebuilding program that is ready to start, along comes a hive of bees and tried to get in. They swarmed all over the place around the building for several minutes. Finally they were settled down and induced to enter a box just back of the building. I thought we ought to send for Will Rogers, who boasted in the picture show Monday night that he drove a whole hive of bees across the Western plains and never lost a bee.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

It is quite true in this imperfect human world of ours that too many things have a nuisance value out of all proportion to their importance and intrinsic worth. This fact is realized by most of us either consciously or by instinct. It develops in most of us early. How often have we seen the little child capitalize his nuisance value by emitting loud cries of anger commonly called "fits of temper" because his mother or father will not do the thing which he wants done. The youngster knows that if he keeps up the noise long enough and creates a sufficient amount of disturbance he will get what he wants, unless he happens to have a set of rarely wise parents, which is generally not the case.

But the nuisance value develops in later life and unfortunately we find it among the statesmen and politicians as frequently as among those in more private walks of life. The adept politician, who has no constructive attainments is very often prone to capitalize his nuisance value. How often have we seen this work out! If he doesn't get what he wants he kicks over the traces, threatens to start a new party or a new faction. As the politician is a timid animal, the fellow who capitalizes his nuisance value usually gets away with it, and gets the plum which was intended for some more deserving and probably plodding brother who always "stays put" in the organization year in and year out.

Again, many so-called statesmen who have no constructive program to offer capitalize the nuisance value which they know they possess. It takes a lot of work to develop a constructive program, and indeed in many difficulties there seems to be no constructive solution. But any resourceful statesman can criticize and threaten all sorts of dire things on behalf of the dear people if certain legislation which he dislikes is put into effect. It takes a real expert to build a watch but any amateur with a hammer can demolish one in a few moments.

There never was a time when courageous leadership was more valuable to the country than it is at present. Both political parties need to get back to fundamentals and to stand on them. They will have to do this if they are to survive as political organizations. They can do this neither by recognizing nuisance value on the one hand nor by attempting to smother sane constructive criticism on the other.

ECONOMIC ARITHMETIC

In a speech at the recent progressive conference at Washington Senator Borah declared that 75 per cent of the wealth of the United States is in the hands of four per cent of the American people.

Statements of this kind are frequently made; the source of such figures is not given. Half of the people of the United States are under 21 years of age, and do not figure much as property owners. For every holder of property there are a number of dependents who are legal as well as moral sharers of this property.

Sixty-five per cent of the national wealth of the United States is in real estate. That it is "cornered" to any such extent as such figures would indicate is clearly incorrect. The value of farm lands and live stock, exclusive of the amount of mortgages upon them, is nearly one-sixth of the total national wealth, and few farmers presumably are to be numbered among the "malefactors of great wealth." The per capita wealth of Idaho, as far back as 1922, was $3,301, double what it was in 1912, and four hundred dollars per capita above the national average . Do four per cent of the people of Idaho own 75 per cent of the state's wealth?

Persons paying federal taxes in 1927 on incomes of $10,000 or over received, according to the figures printed in the World Almanac, about ten per cent of the national income. This does not seem to fit in very well with this theory that four per cent of the people own 75 per cent of the national wealth.

In view of the fact that soviet grain production ends all prospect of a foreign market for American wheat, the revival of the debenture proposal is particularly malapropos. The scheme seems to be principally in the interests of importers and foreign producers who will be enabled under the plan to buy debentures in the hands of American producers at a discount, and thus reduce restrictions on foreign cheap labor products displacing the output of American industry and promoting unemployment in the United States.

Senator Norris of Nebraska let it be known through friends that he had sent word to the President that in case his Muscle Shoals government ownership bill was signed, he would be willing to resign from the Senate and accept a job on the commission the bill provided to run the power and fertilizer business. Even to so strong a temptation President Hoover did not yield. It would probably be news to the senator that an antiquated and obsolete document known as the United States Constitution provides that no member of Congress shall be eligeble to any office created by Congress during his term of office. But what's the Constitution among politicians?

Voice of the People

W. G. SHAW WRITES

Hello Mr. Editor:

Would like to have a small space in your paper. There is a great deal of measles and colds in this section of the county.

Well, it is time to see who gets the road work. In the campaign just passed didn't you hear that old cry that Judge Reynolds was the "Boss" of the Commissioners Court? I have just learned why Judge Reynolds got the job of "bossing." When a new commissioner goes in office he has so many kinsfolk that must have work, so they put him (Judge) "boss."

Believe me when the state man, Mr. Coker, gets through with his work, they won't think Judge is between them and the law.

Well, I was in town last week, so I thought I would go and get some of that fifty thousand dollars that the county commissioners figured to help the farmers with. The thought came to me that their fifty thousand would not be much help to a farmer who was not able to pay his taxes. Would it not be legal rights to all to reduce taxes some, so the poor man could receive some reward?—W. G. Shaw.

If anybody wishes to create some additional legal holidays, why not select the day after Congress adjourns?—Indianapolis Star.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper has certainly been stirring up the dust and ashes with that new broom which Friend Bill was so kind to donate the necessary wherewithal for its purchase last week. Truly "a new broom sweeps clean." And since we have gotten our new broom we have had a little time on our hands in which to sift the ashes and soot from our clinkers and find plenty of nice ones this week.

While we are referring to Friend Bill, The Sweeper is almost inclined to accuse Bill of being in "cahoots" wit Frank James. What with all that talk last week about those nice shiny signs he suggested for the highways. But that was a good suggestion and The Sweeper is very appreciative of the same. We wonder if some local interest in the matter can't be worked up?

It would seem to us that while the Kiwanis Club is sponsoring this civic improvement and that, it would be a fine thing for them to set their pushing machinery in motion and get behind this "Welcome to Clanton" sign idea. And then after the signs are painted and erected on the four main arteries of traffic through the city, let the business men and citizens of the city practice a little of that old fashioned Southern hospitality and make our visitors really and truly feel welcome and instill in them a desire to come again.

Of course these signs will be a far cry from the white way which The Sweeper discussed some weeks ago, but it would be a beginning, and that is the important thing—get a movement started and one in which people can see results ahead, it is hard to stop short of complete success. How about it, Kiwanians?

You know, The Sweeper is bowed with contrition and sympathy since reading about the predicament our contempoary, "Doug" finds himself in with the "wimmin" of our fair city. The Sweeper, too, has had trouble with the wimmin in times past and can truly sympathize with Doug in his present predicament. It was noble however, of the DOOK to come to Doug's aid in this most serious matter. Just a hint to Doug for future safety: Steer clear of this woman issue. You can't please them all no matter how hard you try.

But then, Doug, what could you expect more than to be "bothered" by the "wimmin" if you are going to make yourself into a replica of the once famous Beau Brummel or Don Juan? Naturally these wimmin will take to you like a duck to water. Just pull down your signs and you will have no need of those "pink pills for pale people" which the DOOK has sent you for protection. However, if you have to resort to their use and they prove successful, The Sweeper would like to have the DOOK'S address so that we may lay in a supply also, not that we have any immediate need for them, but just as a precautionary measure.

The Sweeper is almost ashamed of the fact that this week our humble but active brain has failed to function with its usual and wanted alacrity. We are forced, it seems, to use ideas and suggestions of our friends to fill our "colyum" instead of our own usually brilliant ideas. Once the "boss" of this editorial staff accused The Sweeper of being real smart. We don't think however, that the accusation is exactly a just one, as our Dad has always said we were too lazy to breathe if it were not natural. And we have most always found our Dad to be right.

The above brings us to another suggestion of Friend Bill. The Sweeper thinks it would be a grand idea to hold funeral services for Old Man Depression right away. We wish to go on record as favoring such a move at once. There is another chance for our Kiwanis Club to come to the fore. If they wish to handle the thing, I am sure that Friend Bill and I could arrange with them to take charge of the details of the service.

No doubt Martin and Sons would be glad to donate their services free in such a worthy cause. The only request that Bill and I would make in the matter would be that we be allowed the honor of being the cative pallbearers. Let's hold this funeral right away.

And instead of being a sad and solemn occasion, the funeral of Old Man Depression should be made one of much rejoicing and making merry. Once this old grouch has been put out of the way, all kinds of business is bound to pick up, and since the present condition is mostly one of the mind, we think this funeral and season of rejoicing would tend to put the people in better spirits.

Remember we told you last week we were going to endeavor to learn why The Man on the Corner went to LaFayette? Well, we are not positive, but we believe we have at last a clue at least, may eventually lead to a disclosure of the truth of the matter. Now remember we said clue, and that we were not positive, but we started out to locate The Man on the Corner last week and when we got to his corner we were informed that he had hied himself out in the country to the farm of "Uncle Fate" Ellison where some hog-killing had been going on. Yes sir, when we finally run him down he sure enough had the "chitterlings."

Maybe The Man on the Corner heard someone in LaFayette had killed hogs and he went after the "chitterlings." We are not sure of course, but the way that man likes chitterlings we are inclined to believe he could smell them almost that far. We will keep you posted on developments in our search for the cause of the trip.

Well we have to close the door to the cinder pile now, and save the rest of those large clinkers till next week, and take a few minutes out from our sweepings to look after those chickens we referred to last week. Yes sir, we have a whole bunch of them.—The Sweeper.

THE WAGNER BILL VETO

President Hoover's refusal to sign the bill providing for a series of national employment agencies, introduced by Senator Wagner of New York, is to be commended, particularly at this time when, as the President pointed out, its passage "would constitute a serious menace to labor." The bill would have appropriated part of the money necessary to establish the agencies from the federal treasury and would have taken almost complete control over their policies. The states would be expected to subscribe their share, although provision was made for the establishment of agencies in those states which refused to be bribed into accepting the government's subsidy.

Without attempting to argue the relative merits of the present and proposed systems' it must be obvious that such a proposal, which would scrap the present federal agencies in favor of an untested method would be, as President Hoover declared, a case of changing horses needlessly in midstream. The opinion of the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Doak, that since the bill "serves no emergency purpose and in fact destroys our emergency action, it is in the interests of labor that careful and constructiively formulated legislation should be taken rather than to approve this measure" will doubtless be echoed by other labor men throughout the country. The last thing labor wants is a nebulous scheme of the sort to replace the present system which gave 1,300,000 persons jobs last year.

Action of the "fifty-fifty" type such as the Wagner bill and the maternity aid measure are indubitable evidence of the progress of federal encroachment in matters that properly belong to the states.—Hartford Courant.

MORAL ECHOES

By D. W. Haskew

Mike and Pat, two husky Irishmen, walked into the sitting room and found that the family clock had stopped. Mike proposed to Pat that they take it down and see what was the matter with it. The door opened, and the works released from the frame. At that time a dead cock roach dropped out of the machinery of the clock. "There is your trouble," said Pat to Mike. "The engineer is dead." The two Irishmen were satisfied with their discovery, and placing the works back in the clock, they put it in position, and it was all right. I am wondering if the "engineer is dead" in the heart machinery of some of Clanton's most noted citizens. Better have a cleaning out, and get soul machinery into operation.

Here is what Dr. McLeod said last Friday morning in his sermon at the Methodist Church: "I was walking down one of your streets this morning, and in a window I saw a sign that informed the passer-by that a dance would be held that night in your city, and that the charges would be one dollar and fifty cents for each man. I wonder what Jesus Christ thinks of any one who will advertise a dance on Holy Friday. It is like a Nero, reveling while Rome is being burned." There is something radically wrong with our ideals when we think that Christmas is a time for drinking; Easter a time for dancing; and Thanksgiving a time for killing. No man can show greater disrespect for the Man of Galilee, than to make holy days and holy occasions into seasons of revelry and sin. To dance on the night when Jesus was a corpse, is like holding a wild party while mother is in her casket. It is a shame on our civilization that we have so little reverence for holy days.

A man in Clanton made use of these words a few days ago: "There is something wrong with the preachers in Chilton County, or there is something wrong with the folks. If there is nothing wrong with the folks, then we should have better preachers so that our people would go to church. If there is nothing wrong with the preachers, then the folks should bestir themselves and fill their places in the house of God." This layman said: "I go to church in the city and in the country, and empty pews are everywhere." If the preachers in Chilton County are not preaching a good Gospel, then let the membership of the churches come together and oust every preacher in the county. If they are preaching a good Gospel, then get in behind them and help them with your presence, your prayers and your support.

Last week two outstanding Americans passed away. One was a ball expert, and the other was a great churchman. Rockne, the great ball man, fell to his death and the papers had big headlines about him for days. John R. Pepper, the great churchman, of Memphis, died a quiet Christian death, and the only notice given by the papers was two inches one day in an obscure corner. One Knew how to choach ball, the other knew how to coach a soul for heaven. Can you tell me why it is that a ball player is honored and lauded more than a man who is spending his life for the betterment of the race? The voice of the Ephesians is still echoing: "Great is Dianna, the goddess of the Ephesians."

The other day I was passing a farm house and a little boy had his pet pig out by the roadside. The boy seemed to love his pig, and had him all dressed up in pink flannel, and on the pig's head he had placed a hat covered over with flowers. The pig made a good appearance, but he was a pig in spite of his pink pajamas. When some people are all dressed up for Easter, or for a party, we think them rather beautiful. They have on silks and satins and a hat covered over with flowers is carried on their heads, but we fear for the pig element to be found in their way of living. As loath as we are to acknowlege it, yet we must confess that there are many "dressed up pigs" let loose on society today.

I was in a strip of woods to the west of Clanton and as I strolled about I came to an old dead pine tree. Long ago it had died. The bark had fallen from the trunk of the tree, but it was standing up among the other pines. That old pine had been standing up dead for many years. That reminded me of many people I find scattered along by the side of my pathway in life. They are standing up, but they are dead. Long ago they lost interest in the schools, the churches, civilization and everything else. It is sad to see a person die long before he is dead. It is sad to see a man sitting down dead, standing up dead, or walking dead. Folks, let me urge you to stand erect, with life pulsating through your very being, until the storm of death lay you low. Do not allow yourself to die before you are dead.

Man thinks himself somewhat. He prides himself that he is under no obligations to the Almighty. He can make a garden, he can make strawberries, he can make cotton, he can hold his job, and no God can molest or disturb. In twenty minutes God can pour out enough hail to ruin any crop anywhere. He can touch the body that is well and strong and no strength is left. Man is powerless in the hands of God.

THE BIG SWING TO UNITED STATES TIRES

Tom Littlejohn, manager of Clanton Motors, and local dealer in United States Tires, calls attention to the fact that U. S. Tires are gaining unprecedented popularity in the motoring world this year.

"There has been a great swing to United States Tires this year," says Mr. Littlejohn. "A growing per centage of automobile manufacturers are using them as equipment for their output of new cars. Ford uses about 25 per cent U. S. Tires. This per centage increases with other manufacturers, until some of the makers of big cars have reached one hundred per cent U. S. Tire equipment."

"In connection with our agency for U. S. Tires, Clanton Motors has developed a complete tire service," said Mr. Littlejohn, "and we hope to bring the great values of this product so forcibly to the attention of local automobile owners that the same swing to U. S. Tires will be effected in Chilton County as has been done everywhere in this country."

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gray spent Sunday in Prattville.

Mrs. Relious Franklin and Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway spent Friday in Montgomery shopping.

Mr. Willie Scott spent Sunday with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Collins spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Gore at Collins Chapel.

Mr. Horace Franklin spent the week end in Thorsby.

Mrs. S. C. Wood and Frank and Mrs. Mack Gray spent Wednesday in Birmingham.

Miss Mary Sue Robinson spent last week end in Clanton with Miss Clyde Jones.

Mrs. Robert Smith is on the sick list.

Miss Jennye Robinson and Virginia Bice of Florida are expected to arrive this week. Virginia expects to spend the summer with her grandmother, Mrs. T. W. Robinson.

Little Miss Mary Alma Goodgame and Emiley Cleckler have pneumonia.

Mr. Robert Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Carlson, died at the family home in Thorsby about noon Friday, April 3rd, in the 29th year of his life. For several years past Mr. Carlson had been an invalid, having heart trouble, which prevented him from engaging in manual labor. He was a young man of fine character and a great favorite among Thorsby young folks, who recently presented him with a radio, for which he was exceedingly grateful. He was a member of Thorsby Lutheran Church, now without a pastor. Rev. J. E. Each held a short service at the home Saturday afternoon, and also conducted the burial service in Thorsby Lutheran cemetery. At three p. m., Saturday the body was taken to Thorsby Lutheran Church, where Rev. Peel, himself ill, conducted a brief funeral service. Rev. Peel is a Lutheran minister, retired, who makes his home in Thorsby.

Miss Mary Nell Jones of Clanton spent the week end with Miss Lois Thompson.

Mis Dollie Collins of Birmingham spent the week end with Miss Frances Wilson.

Mrs. G. F. Harper left for De-Funiak Springs, Florida, to spend two weeks with her sister. Mr. Harper spent Sunday at the home of M. E. Willis.

At an early hour Monday morning a group of ministers and others interested left Thorsby in autos to attend the Rural Church School, covering a period of ten days, at Nashville, Tenn. This is an inter-church educational annual institution, designed to increase the efficiency of pastors and church workers in the rural sections of the South. The delegation from this section was composed of Rev. J. E. Each, Miss Marguerite Davison and Gerald Smith, of Thorsby; Rev. N. A. Long, of headland, Ala., Miss Dora Bracken, also from Headland; Rev. A. C. Nelson and a Mr. Dobson from Chilton County churches. All of the above are affiliated with Congregational churches in Alabama. At Birmingham they were joined by Rev. Fred P. Ensminger, Cogregational superintendent for Alabama and West Florida. Also a Mr. Chapps, affiliated with the Methodist denomination. Altogether an attendance of several hundred is expected. Just another example of the growing unity among Christians, who do not consider denominational fences insurmountable.

A telegram was received in Thorsby Tuesday morning announcing the death of Mr. Sam Thorson, at the family home in Wasaka, Minnesota, after a prolonged illness. Mr. Thorson was one of the pioneers in the colonization of Thorsby, and it was through his efforts that the writer came from Chicago to make his home in Thorsby in February, 1903. He was energetic and industrious, and induced many of the early settlers in Thorsby to come here. His wife was a sister of Mrs. Bosworth, Mrs. C. R. Foss, Mrs. Reagan and Miss Naemi Turnquist, all of Thorsby. Some of them may go to attend the funeral on Friday of this week, but we were unable to learn at this writing anything definite about it.

Mr. Charles A. Peterson, who has been ill for some time, accompanied by his wife, went to Birmingham on Friday of last week, with his son-in-law, Roy Raybon, who came for him at the request of Mr. Peterson's daughter, living in Birmingham, that he might be with them and in close contact with good medical attendance.

To correct an error which appeared in last weeks issue of The Union-Banner, the rate of fare for week ends should read 1 1-5 instead of 1 1-2 as printed.

Rev. Lucy T. Ayres, who was a guest at the Norton home for a week, while preaching evenings at some Congregational churches in Thorsby district, and preaching and working with the young people at the Christian Life Conference, left early Monday for Pleasant Hill, Tenn., where she will conduct another young peoples conference of the same order as here. Miss Ayres is a talented woman, and a good preacher, as attested by many who heard her.

Rushon Gibbons has rented his new building, adjacent to the Franklin garage, to a Mr. C. C. Horton, of Courtland, Ala., who has opened a cafe and confection store. Mr. Horton has a wife, who will assist in the store; also two young children. They make their home in the house adjacent to their store, owned by Tom Collins. They seem to be a family of the kind Thorsby likes to have, they are identified with the Baptist denomination. It is hoped our Thorsby people will make some effort to make them feel at home here.

Work has been going on for some time making repairs, improvements and painting the Congregatioal parsonage. Two new windows have been put in for better ventilation of second floor bedrooms, porches have been repaired and making the whole place much more attractive.

The young people's Christian life conference, held in Thorsby beginning Friday night and closing Sunday afternoon, was in some respects the best of its kind ever held in Alabama. The attendance was largger than at any other of these gatherings which have become an annual institution in Thorsby. Though conducted under Congregational auspices, denominational fences are obliterated, and the young people of all denominations mingle freely and take part in the proceedings. Some serious, some for social enjoyment. The leaders were Miss Marguerite Davison, Miss Lucy T. Ayres, Miss Eunice Williamson, Rev. Fred P. Ensminger, and Gerald Smith.

Following is the list of delegates who attended: Mrs. C. R. Percy, Mr. Harris Turner, Miss Mary Frank Smith, Miss Mary Nell Jones, Miss Alice Polk, Mr. Hal Broadhead, Miss Annie Lou Arthur, Miss Hazel Maddox, Miss Jessie Bell Spear, Miss Gulma Traywick, Mr. Taft Gill, Mr. Roy Hayes, Mrs. Robinson, Miss Elsie Turner, Rev. Lucie T. Tyres, Mr. Cecil Adams, Mrs. Tipton, Miss Thelma Stuart, Miss Helen Diefenderfer, Miss Dora Brakins, Dr. Ensminger, Mr. William Each, Mr. Ralph Roy, Miss Mildred Jefferies.

In addition to the religious part of the conference there was a banquet at noon Saturday, with the customary courses and toasts. Clyde King, of Thorsby Institute faculty, was toastmaster. 91 plates were served amid much jollity. At night Saturday the time was given over to social enjoyment.

Mrs. Thornburg, sister of Mr. Conrad Carlson and Sam Gren, Mrs. Carlson's brother, from Chicago were visitors at the Carlson home to attend Robert Carlson's funeral.

Miss Esther Johnson, of Birmingham visited home folks in Thorsby Sunday.

There will be regular preaching service at Thorsby Baptist Church. Rev. J. W. Jones will preach in the morning and Rev. J. H. Meyers of Hartselle, Ala., will preach at the night service.

H. L. Collins has been very sick with measles, but is slowly improving.

H. L. Walker and Grover Bice spent Sunday at Elmore.

Mrs. Leonard Hayes, Mrs. Wilbert Marcus, and Mr. John Harrison Collins and daughter, Polly, went to Birmingham Saturday, to visit Mrs. John Harrison Collins, who is in a hospital there.

Five of the Piedmont College group who came to attend the Christian Life Conference spoke at chapel of Thorsby Institute Monday morning. Two of them, Hazel Maddox and Annie Lou Arthur are graduates of Thorsby. Institute, who are now sophomores at Piedmont; Mr. Taft Gill, a Junior, and Mr. Roy Hayes, a Senior.

The Pushmataha and Philomathic club meetings will be held on Tuesday, April 14, instead of Friday the 10, as originally planned. These meetings are not open to the public as is the Helen Keller Literary Socity night meetings.

The next meeting of the Literary Society will be on April 25 and will be the Russian Operetta "Sonia," the most elaborate operetta given in recent years. Everyone is urged to come. Admission will be 25 cents for adults and 15 for children.

Rev. F. E. Jenkins, president of the board of trustees of the Thorsby Institute, will attend the meeting of the board to be held on Thursday morning of this week.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Carlson and son, Verner, wish to express their thanks and deepest appreciation to the many friends for their help in the sickness and death of their son and brother, Robert, and for the expression of sympathy and the lovely floral offerings. May God bless you, is the wish of Mr. and Mrs. Carlson and Verner.

SINGING AT WALNUT CREEK NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Walnut Creek is the meeting place of the Central Singing Society on next Sunday afternoon. Singing will begin at 2 o'clock and will last until 4 o'clock. All snigers have a cordial invitation.

The society met with the annual Easter singing at Poplar Springs last Sunday and had a fine singing. The singing in the afternoon was exceptionally good. Several singers from the United society were also there, and they had with them their Morris-Henson books which were used in connection with the Stamps-Baxter books belonging to the Central singers.

Several have asked what the Central singing society was going to do when the all day singings begin to come around so often. Of course, there is only one solution to this problem and that is this: If an all day singing is held at either of the eight churches belonging to the society, or if one is held at a church nearby, it will be expedient for the society to call off its afternoon singing for that day and just take up at the next place on the round the following Sunday afternoon. However, we believe that if the churches in the society have an all day singing, they ought to have it on the day that the society regularly would meet with them, if the same is possible. Of course some churches have annual singings on a certain date and that date could not handily be changed. But whenever there is a fifth Sunday, that can be used by a church that has been or will be skipped on account of an all day singing.

Remember the place for next Sunday afternoon, and let's all meet and have another good singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Parrish of Birmingham spent Sunday in Clanton visiting friends and relatives. Mr. Parrish's sister, Inez, accompanied them on the visit.

INTEREST IN PIG CONTEST GROWS

According to County Agent, C. E. Stapp, the interest of boys in Chilton County concerning the Kiwanis Club ton litter pig contest continues to grow. In the Thomas community nine boys are listed in the contest; five at Mt. Pleasant; five at Isabella; two at Fairview. Other boys in different communities are interested and will get in, it is thought.

The county agent and vocational teachers, together with the live stock specialist from Auburn will work with these boys, to see how many tons of hogs can be made out of the pigs by the time for marketing day.

The date for marketing will be set later. The hogs will be brought to Clanton where buyers from packing houses will bid for them on a cash consideration.

FULL PAYMENT OF SOLDIERS BONUS

Congress May Face Prospect Of Disbursing the Entire $3,500,000,000

Washington, April 9.—Administration leaders and officials, both in and out of Congress, have about reached the conclusion they must prepare to pay off the entire soldier bonus of $3,500,000,000 in the next session of Congress, it was learned Thursday.

The comparative ease with which the government is financing the present loan operations, together with reports bonus loans have aided retail business and the campaigns of many service organizations, are believed to make full payment probable.

Dire predictions made before passage of the bill authorizing an increase in the loan value of adjusted compensation certificates to 50 per cent have not materialized. Sponsors of the movement also have been surprised at the volume of loan applications.

The latest figures of the Veterans' Bureau shows 1,661,628 loan applications on file on which more than $500,000,000 "new money" probably will be loaned. While the peak has been passed, applications are expected to continue steadily until up wards of $1,000,000,000 is loaned.

When the new law became effective, $270,965,577 was outstanding in veterans' loans.

Representative McFadden (R), Pennsylvania, chairman of the house banking committee, said the veterans' loans had not affected the treasury's condition.

"It appears borrowings for the loans have not been detrimental to the money market and loans have been a stimulant to business through wide distribution," he said.

"I have seen little evidence the money is being used foolishly as some predicted. For the most part, I believe, it is being spent carefully and wisely."

Representative Hawley (R), Oregon, charman of the ways and means committee, who opposed the loan bill, said his prediction that loans will exceed $1,000,000,000 is being realized. He believes the question of full cash payment of the veterans' compensation certificates is a far more important question financially for Congress to consider than the present treasury deficit.—By William S. Neal, in The Birmingham News.

MAPLESVILLE GIRL KILLED IN WRECK

Selma, Ala., April 10.—Miss Addie Christian, 22, of Maplesville, was thrown from a roadster and instantly killed, while two companions escaped with minor injuries about 9 a. m., Thursday, when the car in which they were riding overturned twice on a curve on the Plantersville road near Riderville.

Earl Schultz, who was driving the car and Snooks Jefferson, of Lawley, escaped with cuts and bruises though they were also thrown from the car. A blunt object fractured the skull of Miss Christian at the base of the brain and her jaw and collarbone were also broken in the accident.

She is survived by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Christian of Maplesville; three sisters, Mrs. C. O. Culp and Mrs. V. B. Bates, both of Selma and Miss Tommie Christian, of Maplesville; and four brothers, Sam Christian of Maplesville; and Clyde, Jess, and Virgil Christian of Mobile.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

When we have a beautiful Sunday we wonder why folks will not attend church and Sunday school. Rain or shine, be in your place next Sunday.

We study the word of God at 9:45 a. m. Your soul needs this living bread as much as your body needs feed and drink.

Next Sunday is "Sunday School Day" in our church, and we are going to make it a day that is worth while. At 10:30 the entire school will assemble for a program that will be full of inspiration.

At 11 a. m., the pastor will have a special message, also at 7:30 at night.

There will be services at the Isabella Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Clanton people are invited to be honor guests at this service. We are expecting a crowded house.

YOUNG MAN DROPPED DEAD AT BEDSIDE OF SICK CHILD

Andrew Howard, Prominent Garage Man of Verbena Died Suddenly Last Thursday

The sudden and altogether unexpected death of Andrew Howard of Verbena occurred at his home there about noon last Thursday, April 9th. Mr. Howard had just finished eating a hearty dinner and went in taking a seat beside the bed on which lay his five-year old son, sick for two weeks with typhoid and pneumonia. The women folks from the kitchen heard a peculiar noise, and rushing into the room found Mr. Howard still in his chair in a dying condition. Help was summoned, but he was dead before anyone could get there.

Mr. Howard was about 31 years old, the son of Mr. T. L. and Mrs. Annie Howard, all of Verbena. both of whom survive him. He also leaves his wife, Mrs. Vallie Naeomi Norris Howard, and three children, Lawrence, 9; Aubrey, 5; and Ruth, 2. The surviving brothers are: Leon Howard of Jordan Dam, Oscar, John and Adolphus Howard of Verbena; sisters, Mrs. Joe M. Mims, Mrs. Jeff Mims, Misses Annie Belle and Edna Howard, all of Verbena.

The funeral was held at Verbena Baptist church Friday at 3 c'clock, conducted by Rev. Metcalf, pastor of the Verbena Methodist church. Martin had charge of the burial.

Mr. Howard was a member of the Verbena Baptist church and was said to be a devout Christian. It is said that one of his daily routines was to read his Bible, and that he was a strict adherent to the belief and practice of tithing.

About thirteen years ago he was married to Miss Vallie Norris, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Norris. Twelve years ago he joined the Baptist church at Corinth, where he was a member until he moved to Verbena nine years ago.

The great amount of flowers placed around the bier presented evidence of the high esteem in which the young husband and father was held among his many friends.

MARCUS-KYNARD MARRIAGE

Mr. Raymond H. Marcus and Miss Ruth Kynard, both of Selma, were married last Thursday. They came through Clanton on their way to Birmingham, and spent a while with Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Marcus, parents of Raymond.

For several years Raymond Marcus has been with Brislin Brothers, undertakers of Selma. He is an embalmer. Miss Kynard was until recently surgical nurse at the Selma Baptist Hospital. More recently she has been engaged in private nursing.

Their many friends in Clanton extend congratulations and best wishes.

Officers Have Busy Week Of Arrests

Arrests for law fractures of one kind and another during the past few days have been thick and regular, according to Chief Deputy James Gillespie. Since last Thursday, April 9th, exactly twelve arrests have been made by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and his deputies. Ten of these were for violations of the prohibition law; one for assault with intent to murder, and one for non-support.

SELMA MAN DIES AT CROSSING

Selma, April 12.—Frederick A. Debardelaben, 68, of the Debardelaben Coal Company, was fatally injured here today when he was struck by a Western of Alabama train at a grade crossing this side of the river bride.

He received a compound fracture of the skull and other injuries which caused his death at the King Memorial Hospital at 3 p.m.

According to the engineer of the train which was pulling into Selma, Mr. Debardelaben started to cross the track, paused a moment, and then stepped over when he was struck by the engine and hurled several feet.

The Debardelaben family is prominently connected with the coal industry in this State.

Funeral will be announced by Brislin brothers. Surviving are his widow and two daughters, Misses Ruth and Margaret; three sons, William of Richmond, Ky., Fred, of Nashville and Lloyd of Selma; a sister, Mrs. Walter Long of Burnsville; and one brother, Holmes H. Debardelaben of Texas.

U. S. Attorney Job Is Still In Doubt

Reynolds Reappointment Still Unsettled; Chilton Choice of Hoovercrats

Washington, April 11.—No early action is indicated at the Department of Justice in regard to the United States attorneyship in the Middle District of Alabama where Grady Reynolds continues to hold office, although his term expired two years ago. Reynolds has not succeeded in placating the prohibition forces of the Middle District who at the time he was reappointed two years ago raised a question as to his vigor in prosecuting cases involving liquor law violations.

Reynolds' renomination failed of action two years ago and was not sent to the Senate again last winter so that he holds office merely because no successor has been named. The hand of Judge Oliver D. Street does not appear clearly in the moves behind this office but it is no secret that Street's leadership of the G. O. P. in Alabama has been challenged by L. H. Reynolds, probate judge of Chilton County and father of the district attorney, who particularly disagreed with Street's influence upon the State Republican convention last summer in declining to put out a party candidate for the Senate.

Pollywogs For Chilton

The name of Arthur Chilton, Montgomery Hoovercrat, continues to be up in connection with the attorneyship for the Middle District. Reports that Street has endorsed Chilton lack confirmation here. Former Senator Heflin has been anxious to see Chilton get the office.

Indications are that a recess appointment is to be given soon to John B. Isbell of Ft. Payne as United States attorney for the Northern District which office has been vacant since the retirement nearly two months ago of Charles B. Kennamer to become judge of the Federal Court for the Middle District.

Judge W. I. Grubb appointed Jim C. Smith acting district attorney on the retirement of Judge Kennamer, but Smith is a Democrat.

Among the Thoughtful

Some half dozen or more faithful Republicans are seeking the Northern District attorneyship. Besides Isbell they include Joseph P. Brown, of Gadsden; Charles Robinson, of Asheville, now an assistant in the office; Theodore W. Johnson, of Oneonta, and Foy Quin, of Russellville.

Although officials of the Department of Justice decline to discuss the matter, all indications point to an earlyl recess appointment for Isbell, who has been prominent in DeKalb County Republican affairs for some years and who last fall was the Republican nominee for Congress in the Seventh District against Representative Allgood. His brother, D. Isbell, formerly was law partner of Judge Street, Republican national committeeman and patronage referee of Alabama, at Guntersville.—By Russell Kent, Staff Correspondent, Montgomery Advertiser.

Rev. James Holland of East Tallassee was here Saturday and Sunday to preach at Liberty Hill. He came to Clanton Sunday morning to meet Dr. L. E. Barton of Montgomery, who preached at Liberty Hill. Sunday at 11 o'clock. Although living in the Tallapoosa town, Rev. Holland is a lifelong booster of Chilton County. He has been preaching at Liberty Hill as pastor for the past five years, and has also conducted a number of summer protracted meetings over the county.

GOODSON INDICTED FOR SHOOTING DAVIS GIRL

Trial Will Be Held In Circuit Court of Chilton County At Clanton On April 22

J. C. Goodson, 22-year old young man, of Autaugaville, who shot and killed his sweetheart, Miss Ruby Davis, at the home of R. A. Aldridge, in Clanton, Saturday night, April 7th, was indicted by the Chilton County Grand Jury last Friday on a charge of first degree murder. The jury had been called into special session by Judge Smoot to investigate the case.

Goodson was returned to the Montgomery County jail to await his trial, which was set for April 22. A special venire of jurymen has been summoned for trial of the case.

Miss Ruby Davis, student in a school at Talladega, was returning to her home at Enterprise, to visit her mother and sisters. She stopped in Clanton to visit a sister, who lives at the Aldridge home. Goodson called on her, and witnesses say that a lover's quarrel between the two resulted in the fatal shooting of the girl.

While Rev. T. J. Deason of Reynolds Addition was burning some trash in his yard Monday he became victim of a rather peculiar accident. A gun shell which happened to be in the trash exploded, inflicting painful and rather severe burns on his legs. However, his condition has improved and is not now considered dangerous.

19 ARE HURT IN GADSDEN WRECK

Gadsden, April 12.—Nineteen senior high school students of Arab, Ala. were injured, seven seriously, today when a bus occupied by them was in collision with an auto on the Gadsden-Chattanooga Highway 20 miles north of here. The injured were brought to a hospital here for treatment.

The students seriously hurt were Lonnie Culpepper, Leland Wright, Ormond Teek, Velma King, Gordon Moore, Marion Skidmore and Levetta Edwards.

There were 23 members of the class in the bus at the time of the accident.

Professor F. E. Cox, principal of the Arab School, accompanied them. The students were enroute to their homes following an excursion trip to Chattanooga.

Professor Cox this afternoon asked Etowah County officials for the arrest of the driver of the automobile figuring in the collision.

The school bus overturned after the collision.

The party included virtually the entire senior class of the Arab high school, the outing being an annual affair of the school year, coming just before graduation.

The students had gone to Chattanooga Friday. Prof. Cox told the Etowah officials that following the accident, a man who said he was the driver of the car figuring in the collision had approached him but the man left before he could obtain his name.

Twelve of the injured were able to be taken to their homes this afternoon. Of the seven seriously hurt, it is reported that all will probably recover, Gordon Moore being the only student believed critically injured.

It won't be long now until Gandhi will have to yield the spotlight to Babe Ruth.

CHILTON COUNTY IS FAST WIPING OUT ILLITERACY

Chilton County has made much progress toward wiping out illiteracy in the past ten years.

According to the federal census we had a school population in 1920 of 7,600 white and negro children, while in 1930 it was 8,078. In 1929 1,365 of these children between the ages of 7 and 20, inclusive, were illiterate, while 813 were shown to be illiterate in 1930. This gave a total of illiteracy in 1920 of 17.996 per cent, while in 1930 it was 10.06 per cent, or a total reduction in percentage of illiteracy of 40.44 per cent.

In 1920 there were 918 white illiterate children within the years of 17 and 20, inclusive. In 1930 it had been reduced to 592. In 1920 14.78 per cent of these children were illiterate, but in 1930 it had been reduced to 8.65 per cent or a net per centage of reduction of 35.51 per cent.

There were 447 negro illiterate children within the years mentioned in the paragraph above, and in 1930 this number had been reduced to 221. This gave 32.14 per cent illiteracy in 1920 and by 1930 it had fallen to 17.85 per cent. There was a net reduction in negro illiteracy of 50.56 per cent. It is interesting to not that the negroes are becoming literate much more rapidly than the white children.

If the ages 10 to 20 are taken instead of the years 7 to 20, as given above, we have 136 illiterate white children in the county, and 78 negro children, or a total of 214. It is clear then that most of our illiterate children are within the ages of 7-9, inclusive.

We have had a slight gain in school population in the county among white children. This gain is 10.16 per cent, while we have 1 per cent decrease in the negro school population.

These figures are encouraging but at the same time they should stimulate us to greater effort toward completely wiping out illiteracy in the county. Through the opportunity school a great number of our adults have been able to learn to read and to write. We do not know whether or not we are going to be able to operate the opportunity schools this year. The County Board has no money with which to do this work, but all of us realize that it is a very important work and we certainly hope that some way can be worked out by which we can operate the opportunity schools as heretofore. If anyone has any suggestions as to how we might work out a plan to have these adult schools we would certainly appreciate it if you would write us or see us. The entire Board is highly in favor of operating the schools, but certainly by this time every citizen in the county knows that a large portion of our state funds are not available and will not be until after the summer is gone.

Your for the schools of Chilton County.—B. Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education.

Full particulars of this event will be carried in the next issue of The Union-Baniner.

MILLER FORCES UNDER ATTACK

Governor Is Lacking In Leadership, Senator Charges On Floor

Montgomery, Ala., April 10.—Criticism of the administration of Gov. Miller resounded sharply in the Legislature Friday—particularly in the Senate, where the governor was taken strongly to task by his fellow-townsman, Senator Bonner, who charged the governor with being lacking in leadership—before the Legislature finally adopted a joint resolution for a two-week recess in order to give the joint finance commission of the House and Senate time to devote its undivided attention to consideration of a revenue program for the administration.

Although both houses showed a tendency to assail the administration on the recess question, Speaker Tunstall, administration chief in the House, and Senator Powell, president pro tem of the upper chamber, and Gov. Miller's floor leader, rushed in to stem the tide of opposition.

Two Houses To Recess

As a result of the Legislature's action in adopting the resolution, the two houses will recess Friday, April 17, and will reconvene at 2 p. m., Tuesday, May 5. Meanwhile, the joint commission, originally composed of 28 members of the two houses, but enlarged to include 33, will meet during the recess and map out a legislative program at the adjourned session.

Decision to offer the recess resolution was reached in a conference Friday morning of the commission, and when the resolution was introduced in the House shortly afterwards by Representative Poole, of Butler County, verbal fireworks began to pop in all corners of the House hall. At a critical moment in the running debate, however, Speaker Tunstall took the floor and quieted the House to the point where the resolution finally was placed to a vote and was adopted by 76 to 6 vote.

Senator Bonner, who let it be known several weeks ago that he had definitely broken with Governor Miller, was the only critic of the governor in the Senate, but his attack on the state's chief executive and his acrimonious condemnation of the governor's program of economy caused many to swarm the Senate chamber and gallery during the 10 minutes he held the floor.

Plunged Into Attack

Senator Bonner plunged into his attack on the governor soon after Senator Powell had explained the reasons why the commission asked for the legislative recess and urged the Senate to follow the House in adopting the resolution.

Senator Bonner opened his attack by inquiring of Senator Powell if members of the commission would receive pay during the recess. Senator Powell replied that although the resolution did not specify salaries for the commission members, he was certain that inasmuch as the members would be devoting their time and trouble to the task of confronting them he presumed they would be paid the regular per diem received by legislators while in session.

"If the situation was not so serious, it would be amusing," Senator Bonner replied. "It seems to me that this resolution is a justification of the position a small minority in this Senate took when we recessed last month. We wanted to recess until summer in order to give the Legislature ample time to work out its financial problems, but just because the big chief downstairs wanted it, we adjourned for a short recess."

No Definite Policy

Senator Bonner added that the governor apparently has no definite policy or program and that "one day he suggests one thing and the next day another."

"We talk about economy," Senator Bonner continued, "and yet by this resolution, members of the Senate and House will receive travel pay again when they return to Montgomery May 5. This will be a costly item for the state at a time when we are told that the state is bankrupt and bleeding from the core."

"Economy?" he asked with a wide gesture, "Would it surprise you if I told you that the salary expenses in the Board of Administration now is 67 per cent higher under the economy administration of Gov. Miller than it was under the Graves administration?"

"Gov. Graves paid Moffett $6,000 a year; Draper $5,000; Schneider, the purchasing agent, $3,000. The total of these salaries was $14,000.

"Now we pay Mr. Feagin—and I have nothing against the gentleman

MT. PLEASANT HIGH SCHOOL

The faculty of the Mt. Pleasant Jr. High school entertains the Jr. High department in honor of the Jr. three class next Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Chambers.

Our school work is progressing nicely, even though a few of the larger boys have withdrawn to assist in the spring farm work.

Everyone is busily engaged receiving the school work of the last six and one-half months in preparation for final examinations next week.

On Saturday, April 25 the Mt. Pleasant school is going to log cabin beach on their annual picnic. Every child is looking forward to a gay and happy time.

The Jr. III class organized several days ago and Renfroe Price was elected president; Eunice Holley, Salutorian; Woodrow Price, Grumbler; Vera Jones, poet; Grady Miner, Class will; Leuttie Cooper, historian; Lawson Bell, statistician; Julie Edwards, prophet. The class colors are green and white. The motto is We're on our way. And the flower is Dogwood.

We are proud to announce that the Mt. Pleasant boys have organized a 4-H club. The prospects for a strong club in this community appear very bright. Over 30 members were enrolled the first meeting.

Another great move was affected last Sunday when the Mt. Pleasant community met and organized a Sunday school. The people have a splendid literary school and building but they have been without a church and Sunday school for some time; both of which are vital to any community's welfare and progress.

These people are to be heartily commended for this meeting. Over 50 members joined. Mr. J. E. Miner was elected superintendent.

Mr. B. H. Duke, chairman of the Trustees made a trip to Montgomery last Tuesday to have the eyes of his youngest son, Melvin, examined and fitted with glasses.

The principal of the Mt. Pleasant school is planning to leave June 1st for Florence, to resume his work at the State Teachers Normal school.

We all regret the loss sustained by Mrs. Olys Bean Smith, our beloved Intermediate teacher, over her mothers illness and death recently. The school and faculty extend to her their deepest sympathy.

Miss Ethyl Mize was in charge of the Intermediate room during Mrs. Smith's absence.

A New York juror while on duty composed a poem and the court excused him from duty for the next four years. Well, it ought to have disqualified him for life.

Bilious, Dizzy, Drowsy Feeling

"WHEN I was a child, if I did not feel well, or if I had a cold, my mother gave me Black-Draught," says Mrs. Orpha Hill, of Wofford, Ky. "When I was married, it became a family medicine in my own home, as it was in my mother's.

"I take it for headache and especially for constipation. When I get bilious, my skin gets yellow and I have a very bad taste in my mouth, and a drowsy feeling all during the day. My eyes burn and I get dizzy, or my head is 'swimming.' When I take Black-Draught, it seems to drive the impurities out of my system and I feel fine. I am seldom without this reliable remedy."

Lesson for April 19

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Curse of Selfishness.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right and Wrong Uses of Wealth.

In this lesson we are afforded a look into two worlds where we see extremes of character and conditions. In this present world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction, begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men with reversed positions—the erstwhile beggar enjoying the richest blessings of heaven while the former rich man suffers the torments of hell. These lives were intended to be representative. The rich man descends from the highest pinnacle of worldly enjoyment to the depths of endless misery. The poor beggar ascends from utter wretchedness and misery to the loftiest heights of blessing.

I. Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The rich man (v. 19).

He lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He fed upon the richest food that could be provided. It should be borne in mind that this man is not accused of having unlawfully gained his riches. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration of others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21).

He was laid at the rich man's gate in the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. No consideration was given him by the rich man, and even the dogs of the street were more kind to him. Lazarus means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life showed through his poverty.

II. Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).

1. The beggar.

He was found dead and his body hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of it by the world, but that he was no longer to be seen at the gate of the rich man.

2. The rich man.

He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held.

III. The Contrasted Destinies (vv. 22, 23).

1. The beggar.

He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death. They go immediately to be with the Lord. Destinies are determined in this life.

2. The rich man.

Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell "being in torments." The positions of these men are now reversed—the poor man is in the company of "just men made perfect," and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The cry for mercy (v. 24).

Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He is keenly conscious, and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25).

This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said: "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell. The one supreme thing to remember will be the cause which led to the awful destiny. Then, too, it will be remembered that the doom is just.

3. The fixedness of life beyond the grave (v. 26).

Human destiny is fixed by the choices made during the earthly life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a state and condition which is unchangeable.

4. God's Word the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31).

Dives requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient—that those who reject Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead. The greatest miracles will not affect the hearts of men who reject the Bible. Lost men will learn too late the value of the soul.

Search the Bible

If the people who are perpetually running about to meetings for crumbs of help and comfort, would only stay at home and search their Bibles, there would be more happiness in the church, and more blessing in the world.—F. B. Meyer.

Most Sacred Channels

I begin to suspect that the common transactions of life are the most sacred channels for the spread of the heavenly leaven.—G. MacDonald.

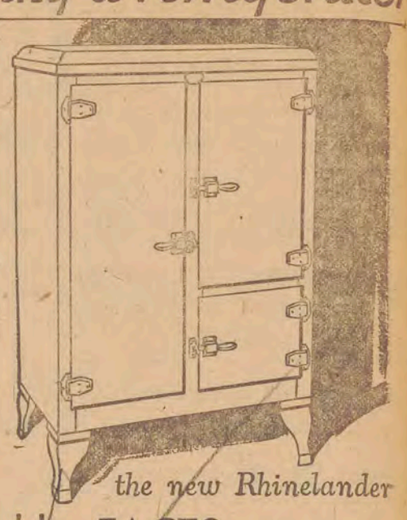
MARCH PRODUCTION WAS LARGER THAN FEBRUARY

March production of the Chevrolet Motor Company was 79,603 cars and trucks and brings the number of new cars built up to April 1, to in excess of 326,000 units, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager announced today.

March output was larger than any month since May, 1930, and final figures for march exceed preliminary reports by more than 4,000 units.

The March performance represents a gain of better than 18 per cent over February production of 67,000 units, and represents an increase of 1,000 units over the number scheduled for March production.

While production of the company is being conservativel increased in line with the upturn of the sales chart, registration figures continue to show that Chevrolet is maintaining leadership as the fastest selling automobile. In December Chevrolet led all other makes of cars in domestic registrations by 2,000 units, in January by 4,000 units, and the 43 states already reported for February show maintenance of that leadership by a comfortable margin.



IN MEMORY OF LITTLE MARION REUBEN CARROLL

On Sunday, April 12th, the death angel enter the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carroll of Jemison and wafted away the sweet spirit of their darling baby, Marion Reuben, to that great heaven above. Had he lived till Monday he would have been three weeks old. Little Marion seemed to be in perfect health Saturday night, but passed out of the arms of mother before day Sunday with bold hives.

We can never understand why God took this darling baby, the shining jewel from our home, and left a place that can never be filled. But God doeth all things well. We can't understand now, but will hereafter. Weep not dear father and mother, for our loss is heaven's gain. Little Marion is resting in the arms of Jesus who giveth and taketh away. May the Lord help each and every one to live a life that will take us safely to Marion Reuben in that beautiful heaven.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. M. Lockhart at Bethany church.

IN MEMORY OF LLOYD GRANT

On April the twelfth about eleven o'clock the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Grant, and took away their dear son, Lloyd.

Lloyd was a little man, even though just three years old. He was quiet and never troubled anyone. Once to see his smiling face was never to forget it, for he had a smile for everyone. Even through his pain and suffering he still wore a smile.

He bore his suffering like a little man; never complaining to anyone. The little babe suffered two long weeks after taking his bed; first with diptheria and then brnochial pneumonia.

Weep not dear loved ones, little Lloyd is in the arms of Jesus. Even though he leaves a dark place here on earth, he makes a bright one in heaven. We miss you, Lloyd, we miss you here on earth below, but if we obey our Jesus Christ, we will meet you in a better world some day. You cannot come back to us, but we can go to our dear babe. We know you leave a vacant place that never can be filled again, but we will just remember we are missing our little man.

We must say good-bye now on earth; but we shall meet in heaven above, where all is peace and love.—One who loved him.

THE SCOUT OATH

UPON MY HONOR—Which is not merely reputation, what people see and think of me, but which in the privacy of my own life composes my real rules of playing a square game of life, I, an individual with life and powers which are the gift of the infinite; with a brain which knows not the limits of space and time; a personality clothed with the dignity and duty of an immortal soul, I

I WILL DO MY BEST—Not any half-hearted effort, but my whole best; it is my solemn pledge given upon my word.

TO DO MY DUTY—my part, which I owe to others; for everybody in the world must do the part which the constant services of others to him demands of him if he is to be a real member of society.

TO GOD—Every man owes to the infinite God whose natural laws control the universe with its life and air, its sun and shades, its plants and trees and running brooks, its songs of birds and its richer songs of friendship and love and service—every man owes to the infinite a duty of being in harmony with this great life and the further obligation not to lessen but to enrich its beauty, its happiness, its service; this is the great moral law.

AND MY COUNTRY—The people, the history, the institutions, the privileges, the laws, the traditions, the ideals, the services each of us contribute to the others, the recognition of the rights of others as the most solemn guaranty of my own, the liberty of responsibility and the responsibility of liberty—all these as much as the bread fields, lofty mountains, majestic rivers—these are the country to which I pledge myself to do my duty by controlling myself, by adding to its wealth and happiness, by obeying its laws, and protecting the common welfare, to die for it if need be or the equally difficulty duty of living for it—my country.

AND TO OBEY THE SCOUT LAW—Not alone in the latter, but in the spirit of the fine citizenship it represents.

TO HELP OTHER PEOPLE AT ALL TIMES—To be a source of strength and right in the world, as the ancient knights pledged themselves to defend the weak, relieve the suffering, oppose wrongs, and injustice and to give a ready joyous help to anyone who needs it, recognizing that I possess strength not for myself but it is mine to use so that those who lack it may find it in me.

TO KEEP MYSELF—Not that the energy of others shall have to be spent in keeping me, but that I shall be responsible for myself that I am sufficiently a man to keep myself—

PHYSICALLY STRONG—For good health is the basis of all happiness and of usefulness in the world—this means that I shall learn about my body and brain and keep them strong, ready to serve and shall avoid those things which will undermine my health or limit my readiness to serve the world; I shall not only abstrain from weakening but I will take active steps to develop and conserve its powers and functions.

MENTALLY AWAKE—My brain, I shall develop more and more, and shall use its powers for useful ends; I shall endeavor to keep my mind growing, learning something more about life every day, striving to become more efficient; to develop all my possibilities.

And Morally Straight—I shall take pride in keeping my thoughts and desires and deeds clean by keeping them directed to lofty things. I shall faithfully guard my creative productive powers and shall not debase them or myself. I shall take pride in being my best and truest self.

A certified accountant has begun an audit of Gadsden's city books. It is planned to ascertain the condition of all departments of municipal government for the six months ending March 31, so that the new City Commission may know where it stands financially.

The Alabama Public Service Commission has approved terms of the sale of property, securties and good will of Warrior Water Company to Alabama Water Company, but stipulated the purchase price should not be used as a basis of fixing rates.

Congressman Miles C. Allgood has opened offices in the Federal Building at Gadsden to aid former service men and farmers who want changes in their mail routes. He is preparing to visit Chambers, Randolph, Tallapoosa and Cleburne Counties, where he will establish additional offices.

Kiwanis Club to Stage New Minstrel Here Soon

Local Civic Club Rehearsing An Amusing Program to be Held On April 24th.

Following in the successful footsteps of the showing of the all-talking picture, "Just Imagine" comes a black-faced minstrel to be presented by members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club. The entire town is talking of the uniqueness of the picture sponsored by the Kiwanis Club shown at the Wadesonian last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and it is believed that record crowds saw the picture each night.

Now comes another treat for the amusement seeking people of this section, when the Kiwanis Club will stage it's black-faced minstrel at the high school auditorium on Friday night, April 24th.

All members of the Club, numbering twenty-two will take part in this laugh-bringing show. Quite a lot of time has been spent in arranging for its presentation, and those witnessing it will see for themselves that even though the Kiwanis club is composed of business and professional men of Clanton, it can still bring a huge amount of fun into the life of it's organization.

Some of the features of the show will be a negro sermon delivered by one who is capable of taking that part in a most perfect manner, W. H. Sartor. The four end-men will bring laugh after laugh to the audience, while various combinations have been arranged for different characters. The music that has been arranged will, in itself, be most entertaining, as those furnishing it are popular musicians of the county, although they are not members of the club, as it was necessary to secure talented young ladies for that part of the program, in order that the music should be the best.

Those wishing to see this performance, which is now being steadily rehearsed, should make plans now to hold Friday night, April 24th open for that purpose.

We understand that the whole inside of the old building will be torn out, and replaced with the most modern steel equipment.

CAN YOU USE THIS FERTILIZER

Dr. Gragg tells us he has a few loads of good manure which he will give to anyone who will haul it away from his place. If you can use it, it will pay you to see him and make arrangements to take it away. It is manure taken from his poultry pens, and is good for any kind of farm fertilization.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Vice President Charles Curtis

The Cheyennes were on the warpath. They were out to exterminate the Kaws. Vastly superior in numbers, they attacked their enemy at the Council Grove reservation. The Kaws were in a perilous position. They faced death.

The chiefs met in council. They had to get a messenger through to Topeka for aid if they were to survive. They selected an eight-year-old boy to carry the news of their plight through the lines of the Cheyennes and across 57 miles of prairie that separated them from Topeka.

Charles Curtis was the lad picked for that hazardous errand. He took a supply of dried buffalo meat, won his way through the Cheyennes, and trotted and trudged all the way to Topeka to get the aid that reached the Kaws in time to save them. That was in 1868, when the West was really wild and woolly, when buffalo roamed the plains, when Indians still fought and scalped.

The boy's father was a white man a New Englander of good birth. His Indian heritage came through his mother, a descendant of White Hair, famous Osage chief. White Hair was the great-great-great-grandfather of the lad who brought relief to the beleaguered Kaws. The boy was attending school at the Kaw agency, living there with his mother's people, when the Cheyennes took the warpath.

The little fellow, destined to become leader of the United States senate and vice president of the United States, was brought up in the Indian tradition that fortitude, ability to stand hardships, and physical superiority were traits to cultivate from the cradle.

Before his mother died, which was when he was three, he had learned to swim and to ride. His mother had put him on the back of an Indian pony when he was a year old. It was she, also, who taught him to swim. He could follow a trail, catch fish and hunt when he was of the kindergarten age of the present generation.

He was born in 1860 in a log cabin, near the banks of the Kansas river, in what is now North Topeka. The great outdoors of the prairie was his early school room. There he learned the lessons that were of so much help to him in getting his feet on the first rungs of the ladder of success.

After his mother's death he went to live with his Indian relatives, but following the Cheyenne raid he rejoined his father, staying with his father's parents at North Topeka. There he entered the grade schools, attending them during the winters until he was sixteen.

Almost born on the back of a pony, he spent his summers as a jockey, riding in races at the country fairs. He was famous as a jockey all over the state and the frontier country by the time he was ten. He rode the horses of his father and other owners in the sprint races that were such a feature of western fairs those days.

He was riding at a Kansas City track when Jesse James and his gang held up the course in 1872. The bandits were after money only, but the lad thinking they might steal his favorite horse, hid the animal until they rode away.

While he got a bad fall when a horse bolted with him in a race, the marks of which he still carries on his face, he didn't quit racing until his wise Indian grandmother advised him to leave horses alone and study, that he might amount to something in life. She gave him this advice after he started with her tribe on a migration to Oklahoma, then Indian territory.

Persuaded by her to return to Topeka, he resumed his schooling. He drove a hack at night to pay his way through high school. He turned down a fine contract as a jockey so he might follow the advice of his Indian grandmother and get an education.

He was a good student, once his mind was made up to find a career for himself. He made particular strides in elocution, and delivered the commencement address when he was graduated. It so impressed the wife of a lawyer in the audience that she induced her husband to take the youngster into his office.

That is how Charles Curtis began the study of law that was to help him reach such high places. He was admitted to the bar in 1881. He went to congress in 1892, rose rapidly to a commanding position as a legislator, and was his party's successful nominee for vice president of the United States.

Odd Refuge for Quail

A trained dog stays when told to drop. Old "Lookout," a hunting dog belonging to Charles Lanier, was told to lie down when two quail flushed silently, indicating that their nest was near.

The dog obeyed immediately, but the young ones could not be found. Finally a curious stirring of the setter's silky "feathers" revealed that 14 baby quail had taken cover beneath the motionless dog.—St. Nicholas.

More Women for Radio Urges Female Vallee

Audrey Marsh, Announcer, Pushes Own Sex Forward

New York City.—More women on the air is the battle cry of Audrey Marsh, known to radio fans as the female Rudy Vallee.

Miss Marsh directs her own orchestra over the air, sings and makes announcements — has entire charge of her own program. She is the only woman to whom any such air responsibility has been delegated.

"More women could do it," she declares, "if they had proper training in diction. Radio announcing is a difficult field for women to enter but it's worth the trouble it takes to get in.

"Incidentally, a woman wants to take great pains to get songs that suit her voice. Some of the new songs are marvelous, some not so good. 'One Heavenly Night,' from the picture 'Heavenly Night,' is the best ever for a woman's voice. It has appeal, sentiment and beauty."

Miss Marsh, a native New Yorker, is keenly interested in the development of radio and is looking forward to the development of television which she thinks is just round the corner.

Perhaps one reason she anticipates television with such interest is that she is extremely youthful and pretty, therefore will gain rather than lose by being seen. There is already such demand for her among fans that she is accorded the unusual privilege of appearing at three different stations during the week.

Kin Vinson, of Millidgeville, Ga., came to Clanton last Saturday to spend a few days with friends and relatives. He returned home Wednesday. Mr. Vinson expects to go to North Carolina in a few days to take up a job with the Central Georgia Lumber Co., operating a plant at Raleigh.

Mell Martin is in Montgomery this week attending the anual convention of the Alabama Funeral Directors Association, of which orgaization he is secretary and treasurer. If you happen to die before he gets back, Samuel will be on hand to take care of you.

HOW TO KILL PLANT LICE

Many have been inquiring about what to do for plant lice attacking cabbage and other leafy plants.

All plant lice can be controlled by spraying with nicotine spray, made according to directions on container of nicotine, or by spraying with kerosene emulsion. The kerosene oil emulsion is the cheapest and can be made at home as follows:

Dissolve one-fourth pound of soap in one quart of warm water. Add one-half gallon of kerosene oil and stir well. When ready to spray, use one part of this mixture to twenty parts of water. This mixture will keep all summer.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FIGHT INSECTS TO HAVE GOOD GARDENS

Auburn, Ala., April 13.—With one or more insects present to attack every vegetable, an essential to making good gardens is effective insect control. Years ago insects were not considered serious enemies, but the insect tribe has increased until W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, says that "people who expect to have good gardens during the year must fight insects because they are sure to appear."

Insects whic hattack vegetables are divided into two groups, based upon method of feeding. One chews and the other sucks. If the leaves are eaten the insects have chewing mouth parts. Generally they can be controlled by spraying or dusting at regular intervals with an arsenical, such as lead arsenate or calcium arsenate.

If the leaves wilt and become discolored, the injury is caused by insects having sucking mouth parts, plant lice or aphids. A spray made of soap, nicotine, and water is effective in the control of these pests. Nicotine sprays should be applied during the warmest part of the day. A similar spray made by using pyrethrum extract is also effective in the control of these pests and can be applied during cool weather, Mr. Ruffin said.

Insecticides for the different insects can be bought already prepared. They are carried by drug-stores, other stores, and by county farm bureaus. Spraying and dusting machines are on the market also and should be used for most insects.

"If in doubt as to what to do consult your county agent or home demonstration agent," said Mr. Ruffin. "A safe plan is o have the machine and poinson ready and apply it as soon as needed, for garden insects are rapid feeders and will do much damage unless control measures are applied."

The American Federation of Labor is of the opinion that the bottom of the business depression has been reached and that in the fall we may look forward to the beginning of a more definite clinb upward toward prosperity.

During the month of February cotton textile spindles in Alabama operated at 109 per cent on a single shift, which was 9 per cent above the rate for January.

Although Russia remains the enigma of the world's sugar situation a recent authoritative article on the subject indicates that Russia can do nothing in exporting sugar for some time because the present production is far below Russian needs.

BETTER BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS SEEN

Auburn, Ala., April 13.—A statement concerning the business situation and outlook, made in the April issue of the Alabama Economic Review, says that "available statistical data indicate that the low point in the depression has passed." It was explained, however, that "there is nowhere evidence of pronounced betterment."

The publication is published monthly by the Bureau of Economic Research and the Department of Agricultural Economics of the Alabama Polytecnic Institute at Auburn.

On the improvement side of the situation the authors pointed out that "the recent improvement in the iron and steel, textile, automobile, and construction industires are that textiles are taking the lead in the revival of business."

Discouraging factors include a further decline in wholesade prices, the continued low volume of freight car loadings, and the decrease in coal output. Factory employment had a smaller increase than usual in February. However, a greater than seasonal increase in payrolls was noted in the automobile, show, woolen goods and clothing industries.

In Alabama the bulletin said that general business was irregular during February and " as a whole the results were not gratifying." The brightest spot was the improvement in construction contracts. There were declines from January in building permits, bank debits, coal output, electric power sales, lumber produced, and life insurance bought.

CORN ACREAGE IS TO BE INCREASED SAYS GIST

Farmers of the United States are reporting an intention to increase their corn acreage this year nearly 5 per cent over last year, reports F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician.

"Should these intentions be carried out, and should yields equal to the average of the past ten years be obtained, a crop of about 2,935,000,000 bushels would be produced. This would be about 41 per cent larger than last year's crop and the largest crop since 1923" Gist said.

It is the intentions of Alabama farmers to increase their corn acreage by 6 per cent over last year, according to Gist who expresses the opinion that "the proposed increase in corn planting in Alabama is not nearly enough to supply the Alabama demand."

Hogs, like other livestock, do best and produce the largest net returns if given plenty of good pasture. In Alabama there are several good pasture crops and the county agents are advising with farmers what to plant, when, and how to plant it.

POULTRY

LIGHTS FOR LAYERS

During the past few years there has been much interest among poultrymen throughout the state in the use of lights as a means of increasing egg production during fall and winter months. Probably no other one factor has more influence on fall and winter egg production than has the length of the hen's working day. The fundamental principle back of the use of lights is that the hen's working day is lengthened, therefore allowing more feed to be consumed and as a result more nutrients are available for building eggs. Poultrymen should bear in mind that lighting is somewhat of an artificial condition and unless certain definite management and feeding practices are followed it may be detrimental. It may be said that lights, used properly, aid materially in increasing egg production during the season that eggs are most valuable. However, experiments have proved that the use of lights does not as a rule increase the annual egg production.

How to Use Lights

Lights serve to the greatest advantage for laying pullets. This of course makes it very necessary to grade the flock according to age and laying qualities. Hens and pullets of different ages are to be kept separate and handled in a different way. Lights for cull pullets and hens are not profitable.

The first essential in using lights is to employ them regularly. There is no benefit to be derived by using lights for two or three week and then suddenly changing. Where lights are used on pullets they should be started about October 1 or November 1 and run to April 1 or later. Should lights be used for hens, it is advisable to wait until they have completed their normal molt.

Morning lights have proven superior to evening lights, or to a combination of both. Turn on lights at 4:30 a. m., and burn them until dawn, or start at such time that during a normal day of 24 hours there will be 12 hours of light and 12 hours of darkness. When lights are turned off in the spring it should be done gradually. A ten-minutes change each day is about all the hens will stand without a molt.

Feeding is very vital in the successful use of lights. The increased working hours can very easily be made a disadvantage if the birds are not fed properly.

The flock should be fed heavily on grain. Without this heavy grain feed a rapid reduction in body weight may be expected, due to heavy production. This loss in weight will cause the birds to go to pieces easily in the spring. Grain should be fed twice each day—morning and afternoon. The heavy feed should be given in the late afternoon. Generally it will take 12 to 14 pounds of grain per 100 hens per day where lights are used.

Methods of Lighting

Electric lights are by far the most commonly used and most satisfactory; however, gas lanterns and barn lanterns can be used to an advantage on small flocks. Electric lights are more economical, require less labor, and offer less danger of fire hazard. Where electric lights are used, two 20-watt bulbs to each 16 by 20 foot house or section of house is sufficient. Swing light in center of the house about 6 feet from the floor. The cost of lights will varv, of course, but the average cost will be around 4 to 5 cents per hen for the entire time lights are used.

TEACH GIRLS TO COOK, THE CLUB WOMEN URGE

Whether the modern girl should learn to cook or not to cook, is the question that is being debated in women's clubs, around the lunch tables and wherever mothers get together at the present time. Some mothers claim that nowadays when a girl is expected to follow some kind of a calling, it is not reasonable to expect her to be as skilled in domestic arts as was her mother. Others advance the theory that if a girl knows the principles of planning well-balanced meals and is familiar with food values, she need only know how to yield a canopener and a bread knife, depending upon the sources of grocery, bakery and delicatessen for the rest.

Many voices are raised in protest against the views, however, and among them, Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, of the Household Science Institute, who claims that ability to bake and cook is not only an asset to a woman but a pleasure as well.

"My daughter is learing to bake," says Mrs. Gray, in addressing club women. "because I believe it will be no small factor in making her married life successful. A recent survey showed financial worries as the cause of domestic friction oftener than any other reason. Home baking is one measure of economy and no small one. Bread, pies, and cakes are always cheaper if made at home than if bought over the counter, not to say better. In fact these figures show them to be from twenty to forty per cent cheaper.

"Besides the economy factor, a wife who can cook and bake is apt to be a better homemaker and hostess than the woman who simply buys over the counter. She knows that her family is geting good nourishing food that is properly cooked. She knows she is using the highest grade of flour, fresh eggs, and pure butter and other ingredients, but such takes a chance on ready made bakery products,"

Despite arguments against home baking, therefore, this home economist concludes, the fact remains that women still flock to cooking schools, pore the magazines for new wrinkles, keep the radio tuned on cooking hours and exchange recipes across the luncheon and bridge tables.

Mrs. R. R. Clark of Chicago, Ill., is visiting her mother and father Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Littleton, of near Thorsby. Mrs. Clark has been in Chicago for thirteen months. Her husband is manager of a luncheonette for the Interstate Company.

ALABAMA FOREST LANDS CAN SUPPORT THE STATE

Montgomery, April 14.—The forest lands of Alabama, under the highest types of forestral management, could support the present population of the state, even though other basic forms of production were to cease practically altogether. This is the estimate of the State Commission of Forestry based upon economic data derived from all available sources.

In the same sense that there is good farming and poor farming, there is also good forestry and poor forestry. Under the best forestral practices it is possible that the 23,000,000 acres of Alabama forest land can be made to produce an annual yield of raw materials valued in place at approximately $100,000,000 per annum. The manufacture of these materials into lumber, poles, crossties, cooperage stock, naval stores and other commodities would increase their value, under normal economic conditions, by $25,000,000. The transportation, distribution and utilization of such forest products together wit hthe general business connected with their entire production and use, would reach an additional amount of $150,000,000, making a total of $500,000,000.

There are about 525,000 families in the state. The total potential income derived directly and indirectly from the forest lands would thus furnish an average income of $925 per family which is somewhat more than the average income of Alabama farm families today.

Such a development of the forest industries can only take place under a much more thorough system of management of forests than can be made effective for many years to come. However, a continuation and expansion of the beginning that has been made will work toward this end, and the passing years may easily bring about the final desired condition.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE ORGANIZED CHURCH

Editor Union-Banner:

As a lay member of an organized church, I desire to express my appreciation for the church and its ordained ministers; for the entire Bible and the comfort that it gives to those who believe and strive to practice its teachings, and for the privileges of living in a country which recognizes the church as a force for good. I'm sorry that I have been slow in expressing my gratitude for these blessings. I am sorry that there are those who do not stop to think how much they owe to these blessings. I am sorry that there are some who are so thoughtless as to ignore them, and that there are some who scoff at, and scorn them but claim and enjoy the safety and privileges which are found only in Christendom.

It is time for everyone to show his gratitude for the Christian preachers by supporting, helping, and defending them in their Christian work. We do not hesitate to call upon them for various needs at a moment's notice. Are we going to allow them to be false accused by a "boosted unorganized religion," which is loading them with the blame for the condition of the country? Will we allow them to be called a selfish, hypocritical group of people preaching for money?

How many preachers do we know who receive a living equal to the living of the people they preach to? In Luke 10:3-4 Christ, when sending out the seventy disciples, said, "Behold I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse nor script." And continuing with his instructions to the 7th verse he said, "The laborer is worthy of his hire." In Romans 10:13-15, we find why people are called to preach, and the 15th verse ends with these words: "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of Peace, and bring glad tidings of good things."

We do allow the preachers to be attacked if we buy, read, believe, and keep in the way of children, the highly colored, boldly embossed books which a band of colporteurs have lately forcel upon the people in the surrounding country, or if we calmly listen in to the program put on by the writer of these books—a lawyer who fits in very nicely with the company of lawyers that tried to tangle or confuse Jesus when he was on earth among men as a man.

A small advertising copy of the class of books written by Judge Rutherford came into my possession uninvited sometime ago. I thought I had burned it, but I came across it the day the colporteurs wasted a lot of my time and patience. This book is a very unreasonable book in which a supposed conversation between a lawyer and preacher takes place. The preacher is represented as a narrow minded, selfish man, while the lawyer is liberal. The argument results in the preacher having to give up and leave. In addition it advertises the larger books. Two pages in the center of the book advertise the entire set. From these two pages the following paragraph is taken, which is the key to the entire set:

"Blind guides, serpents, tools, vipers, hypocrits, whelted sepulchres full of dead men's bones—that's what Jesus called the preachers and priests of his day. A sanctimonious class they were, who made long prayers in public; but who allied themselves with the politicians and rulers of the nation to rob the poor, oppress the people, and enrich themselves. Jesus said their father was the devil; and so it is today. The clergy who poses as representatives of God are themselves responsible for the terrible condition of so-called Christion civilization."

The above paragraph from Judge Rutherford's book is enough to cause every sincere Christian to rebel against such false impressions as the books are expected to cause. Can we really think of one preacher who has enriched himself in a financial way by preaching? Instead, think of the preachers who have to teach school or farm, or do some other work to live.

It would be a great deal more to Christ's glory to pay—notice I say pay, not give—to the preacher the price of one, three, or seven books than to buy one or more books to either offend or poison the minds of all who read them. If you who have bought books of this sort read the books and only the Scripture referred to by them, you will fail to read important portions of the Scripture. If you are deluded into thinking that the writer of these books has knowledge of the Bible, which no other person has, you are setting him up far above any human possibility. We can understand enough of the Bible to have a happy, Christian life here and prepare our souls for a better home in heaven. We need not try to see into the future, for the angels in heaven do not know God's plans.

The one fact that these colporteurs and the books they sell, and their attacks on organized Christianity and Christian clergymen should make every Christian rise in their defense for organized Christianity is the only hope for any nation.

You who have bought these books would do well to burn them. If there is a community where they have not yet been, may you refuse as a community to buy one book. Think too much of your chickens to "swap" one for a book of this sort.—A Reader.

"I want my Telephone Put Back in please"

Almost daily people who discontinued their telephones during the stress of the past twelve months are ordering their service restored. They found that the small cost of the service had been repaid many times each month in convenience, in time and actually in money saved.

Others found that the loss of their telephones would soon mean the loss of friends, because of the lack of close and personal contact made possible only by telephone service. Still others mention that the sacrifice of their telephone meant the loss of many pleasant, impromptu social gatherings when their friends were unable to reach them by telephone.

It is all true, what these subscriber friends of ours say. Telephone service costs so little and the advantages of the service are so many that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Some say they are willing to stand certain amount of Congress because it feels so good when it adjourns.—Detroit News.

Senator Norris offered to resign if the President would sign the Muscle Shoals bill. Some way must be found to protect the executives from the temptations of tremendous bribes.—Washington Post.

Paris style experts predict the early return of crinoline and the bustale. While not especially crinoline-conscious, American merchants are agreed that for business' sake there can't be too much bustle.—Chicago News.

Some of the newly consolidated banks of New York refrain from calling their vice president during business hours. People might fear there was a run on the bank.—Washington Post.

It isn't too early to start talking about campaign issues in the next presidential tiff, and at the moment it seems that certain Democrats are going to stand or fall on the full finner flask.—New York Post.

The Democrats are having one awful time trying to figure out which is the best transportation to the White House, by camel or brass rail.—Ohio State Journal.

This is not saying of course that every politician, whether in office or out, should meekly at all times follow the leader without hesitation and without criticism. There are times certainly when great issues arise, on which it is the duty of every man in public life to take a stand in opposition to the leaders of his party or his faction, when he knows that these leaders are in the wrong and do not represent the best constructive thought ofthe day. There have been many historic crises of this kind in America and the men who have stood out at that time have generally secured a firm place for themselves in history. But these were the real statesmen who were not merely destructive critics, but who had real programs of their own. No carping critic ever wins for himself a place in history by making himself a common political scold. Every man of course should have independence and the courage of his convictions. But if he has these things he will not have to cash in merely on his nuisance value. He will help to write positive and not negative history.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Something of the instability of European affairs is evidenced by the political stir which was caused all over the continent by the mere announcement that Germany and Austria had completed a customs agreement for the elimination of trade barriers between the two nations. In spite of the fact that assurances were given that each nation was to retain its political independence and that other nations would be invited to join the union, the air became thick with suspicions, and there was a revival of war talk and political sanctions.

France and some of her allies immediately asserted that the Germans were seeking to swallow up Austria and make that unfortunate nation a part of the Reich, that the Teutons were seeking to break the Versailles treaty and that something would have to be done about it at once to prevent serious trouble. Remedies for the situation proposed by those who oppose the Austro-German economic agreement ranged all the way from referring the matter to the council of the League, up to taking stern and sharp measures against the two countries.

One point to be emphasized in the controversy is that for years Europe has been talking about a United States of Europe in the economic sense, and a breaking down of trade barriers which would permit a smooth flow of commerce between the various European nations and help full them from the slough of depression. It was averred that nothing would so help to restore peace and prosperity among nations as a lowering of these European trade barriers, and that skillful French diplomat, M. Briand, has been doing his utmost to help bring this much desired situation about.

It would seem to an outsider that Germany and Austria had decided to take the bull by the horns and start a little tearing down of tariff walls of their own just to get beyond the stage of talking about it. But this move is met not by general European approval but with almost universal suspicion and recrimination.

Now it may be that the Germans have an ulterior motive, and that France and some of the Baikan states have sound reasons for the suspicion that what Germany is seeking to do is to annex Austria. But it would seem that the best way to block this would not be to get into another diplomatic imbroglio but to join in the customs union along with Germany and Austria and to see that it is kept on the square. There is no doubt that a customs agreement eliminating undue tariff barriers would greatly facilitate the return of prosperity in Europe. For it is to be remembered that tariffs in Europe are not enacted as they are in our own country, to protect home industries from a lower standard of living, but as political weapons used to gain diplomatic or economic victories over the other fellow.

There is another reason why a general European customs agreement is essential at this time, and that is that Europe must present a united front if she is to be able to cope with the question of Russian dumping, which has already dislocated economic stability everywhere. Therefore it would seem that the best thing to do would be to make the customs agreement entered into between Germany and Austria, pan-European in scope.

It is not to be expected however that this will happen. It would be too much to expect of European statesmen, who never seem happy unless engaged in a quarrel of some sort. It is far more likely that the suspicions will continue and that there will be another schism formed among the capitalistic nations of Europe. This latest development, however, once more emphasizes the importance of Uncle Sam's keeping out of the League of Nations and its ramifications. We do not want to be placed in a position where our representative in Europe would have to take sides in any question concerning European customs agreements. We have enough to do to look after our own economic affairs.

ANOTHER "AMERICAN TRAGEDY"

The society of American literary super-excellents received quite a blow in New York the other evening when Sinclair Lewis, pride of the snobbiata was roundly slapped by Theodore Dreiser, the apostle of American defeatism. So serious and unexpected was the blow that the cheeks of the intelligentsia all over the country must have tingled when it was delivered.

The two warriors of the new thought were dining with a select group of men of letters in the Metropolitan Club when the blow fell. Mr. Lewis stated that he felt disclined to speak in the presence of a man who had stolen 3,000 words from his (Lewis) wife's book on Russia. There was a moment of sience, and then Mr. Dreiser struck out mightely and slapped Mr. Lewis on the cheek.

Not in a long time has so Babbitt-like an episode happened within the confines of the Metropolitan Club. To the unbiased it would seem that Lewis showed great provincialism in accusing his literary compatriot in steoling anything Russian. It is possible that he doesn't know that in things Russian there are no property rights, and that in the fatherland one takes what one wants providing one is big enough to get away with it, which are few, unless they belong to the inner circle.

Mr. Dreiser explains by stating that he did not crib from Mrs. Sinclair's monumental work on Russia but that he got his material from the same source, which was no doubt a release of the soviet publicity bureau, the only difference, being perhaps that Mrs. Sinclair saw it first.

Anyhow it might have been another American tragedy. Suppose that Mr. Dreiser had struck Mr. Sinclair hard enough to extinguish his literary light and then had had his own extinguished by due process of law. America might then have plunged into barbarism. We hope the boys will be more careful in the future, and no doubt they will.

A former dean of Columbia University Law School said in a recent lecture that in visiting Sing Sing he found the prisinors a good deal like university boys. He blamed outbreaks on the prison heads. Maybe the university heads are responsible.

Some of these parlor economists make us laugh. In one breath they will advise the farmer to raise less grain and in the next they will upbraid him for splending so much time in his flivver and not staying at home and attending to his crops.

It now develops the the Farm Board with the power of the Federal Government behind it could not repeal the law of supply and demand. We doubt whether even Congress can do it even if it tries.

Party government and party responsibility seem to have broken down in America, but the same thing is true in Great Britan if you can get any consolation out of the fact.

Some of our correspondents tell us that just at present the Middle West is more excited over basketball than it is over the price of this year's crop.

Wheat is said to be headed for its 1895 price but so far we haven't heard that anyone is going to revive the free silver issue.

One way the housewife could lower the cost of her bread supply would be to reach for the rolling pin instead of a dime.

Henry Ford is reported to be negotiating for the purchase of an idle steel mill in Wales, which will not help the unemployment situation in Detroit to any great extent.

Cheer up: on account of incrased orders, one New England textile mill is advertising for more operatives. Maybe it will spread around.

It will soon be possible to go from New York to San Francisco by air in thirty-one hours. And to think that when Justice Holmes was a boy they were doing it in covered wagons.

It seems strange that some great constitutional statesmen did not discover that pro-ration of oil was unconstitutional until it was proposed to apply it to imports as well as to the output of American oil fields.

A skunk gets publicity by making a nuisance of itself and the same thing is true of the fellow who advertises his jag on a crowded street car.

German astronomers have discovered a rapidly whirling object in the heavens which they say is probably a "peculiar asteroid." Our guess is that it is another of those 1932 Democratic presidental booms getting ready for action.

Progressive senators want the government to operate Muscle Shoals to make more fertilizer for the farmers so they can raise more wheat and reduce the price to a quarter a bushel.

One way the farm board could help the wheat situation would be to make it unfashionable for women to reduce.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper has been doing a little serious thinking during the past week—yes sir, we said serious—and we have arrived at some conclusions which we think it well to pass along to our readers. Now if you folks will lend us ear while we stand the broom over in the corner for a little while, we will try to tell you about some of these thoughts.

The Sweeper seems to have incurred the displeasure of the chief of the editorial emporium who has threatened to consign our little spiel to the waste basket, hence the change to more serious and elevating subjects.

But first, as they say in court, we must lay a "predicate" for our musings. In the first place we would like to state that we are not as young and careful as we once were, and as we grow older life begins to look altogether different to us. In the past we have gone along to a great extent in that happy-go-lucky mien in which one is likely to take the attitude of "come day, go day, God send Sunday" with no thought of what the morrow may bring forth.

In our various and sundry excursions into fields afar, we have been continually thrown in contact with old broken-down men who have followed the trade until they were too old to be of consistent service to their employers, and who have been turned out on their own to make the best of what they may be able to find here and there in the way of a few days work. And to use the words of a friend of mine, when discussing this subject: "This situation caused me to pause and thoughtfully chew my tobacco, and to think that some day, I too, may find myself in this army of tired old men."

After making a careful survey of the conditions of these old men, who have possibly been good mechanics in their trade in the heydey of their life, but who have travelled the road on which there are no caches in which to place a mite against the proverbial rainy day, we have come to a full realization of what is in store for ourselves and others who fail to heed the red flag of warning which is being so flagrantly flown in our faces during the present period of depression. It most certainly behooves all of us to stop and take stock of ourselves and see just where we are going.

Personally, The Sweeper has made up his mind that from now on he si going to see to it that regardless of what he may be doing otherwise, that we shall at all times have something on which to fall back when caught by such a depression as we have been and are still passing through. Of course everyone will not be in a position to do as The Sweeper has done. We were blessed, so to speak, with having a farm on which we can lean for a living and respite.

The farm and the lowly farmer and his calling, which has been spurned and hooted at since time immemorial by a lot of the "city fellers" is rapidly coming into his own, both from a financial standpoint and also socially. Right now, there is literally thousands of people over the country who would be only too glad if they had a little scrap of land and a "hard tail" mule with which to make an humble start at farming.

As we have said in these columns before, and to use the words of a popular song: "When the north winds blow, and we're gonna have snow," it is mighty comforting to be able to sit around a crackling oak fire, with bacon in the smokehouse, corn in the crib, and not have to worry about where your next meal is coming from, and also whether the "boss" will be able to meet the payroll Saturday. If this can be interspersed with the cackling of an industrious hen, the bacon and eggs for breakfast is assured and life is rosy indeed.

True enough, pay-days are few and far between for the average farmer, but also are payrolls for house rent, water bills, light bills, coal bills, and grocers bills, all of which the man who lives in town, works on a salary and lives out of tin cans and paper bags have to settle before he can call a dime his own. And to make the situation even harder, he sometimes does not have enough to go around, much less any for himself or his family to spend for a few of the simple pleasures of life. And you must also remember that "all work and no play makes Jack a very dull boy" indeed.

However, speaking of pay-days for the farmer, he can, by the proper management and care make these come just as often as he wishes or has need for them It only requires a little planning and a departure from the old two-crop system of cotton and corn. A few hens for eggs, a small incubator with which to hatch baby chicks that will be ready for market as broilers and friers in a surprisingly short time and with little expense; a cow or two and a few pigs will provide a source of "pin money" which is sure.

Give The Sweeper such a set-up as this and he would not trade it for any salaried job we ever saw. You folks may think this is a funny spasm we have pulled this week, but here let us remind you that we were reared on the farm, and like many another "hill-billy" saw a great future ahead of us in other fields and left the old homestead for the bright lights of the city. We have worked and played and jumped here and there about the country for the past ten or twelve years and we are speaking from experience when we say that the farmer has the best time and is in a better position to lay up real treasures in this world and in heaven in the form of good living, friendships, helpfulness and a chance to live closer to nature than any other set of people on earth.

We say let the American farmer be glorified and come into his own, as is his right.—The Sweeper.

REGULATING BUSINESS TO DEATH

Commenting on a proposed bill to make it unlawful for utilities to sell electrical appliances in Indiana, the Indianapolis Commercial recently said: "This is only one example to show to what lengths some legislators will go in their endeavors to regulate business. If they had their way, business generally would almost be regulated to death."

The attack on the electric utilities, it should be understood, will not long be confined to that industry if it is measurably successful. The attackers have as their object the eventual socialization, at the public expense, of all basic businesses. They are motivated by a social philosophy directly opposed to the democratic principle of individual initiative.

In the United States the public utility industry is one of our greatest taxpayers and employers, both in good and bad times. In giving employment, in contributing to the cost of government, it is an unexcelled influence for stability. Unfriendly utility legislation will, in the long run, be damaging to every citizen and every business.

An old-timer is a chap who can remember away back when nobody laughted when the United States Senate was referred to as the most dignified body on earth.—Macon, Ga., Telegraph.

THE EVIL PRIMARY SYSTEM

The deterioration of public service and of public political conscience which have followed the advent of the primary have had so profoundly evil effect upon the country that our free institutions actually are trembling in the balance. So far as Congress is concerned, the neutral danger ahead if the present condition persists and grows, is repudiation of the body by the nation, which will presage the end of the republic.

In local and state governments the general situation is even worse than it is in Washnigton, because the dissatisfaction and suspicion extends to the executive and judical branches of government and every year the the difficulties in the way of getting competent officers for the common wealths and their subdivisions increase. Sometimes it seems impossible to find even honest ones, except now and then almost by accident. Good men generally are reluctant to run for office and when they do run there is no longer any reliable representative body to examine the qualifications of candidates and tell the voters which are fit and which are unfit.

Of late there has been considerable contention that palliation may be found through resort to the so-called short ballot system, under which only a few principal officials would be elected and those few given wide appointive powers. Such a move was urged recently with respect to general Michigan state officers.

Under the short ballot plan governors, mayors and so forth, who might or might not be honest and trustworthy, and in the majority of the cases would be given the nominating power formely enjoyed by responsible party conventions, and in addition would be accorded the elective privilege still maintained by the voters.

We fail to see any particular advantage in that sort of thing, in the long run. In the working out it would be one more step along the road to free government.

Unquestionably there is a way of escape for the nation, but it is going to be a hard one to travel, and the sooner a serious effort is made to find it the better for these United States. —Detroit Free Press.

MORE PEACE IN INDUSTORY

A period of business recession usually is marked by a lessening of industrial strife, but the showing on this score for last year is particularly impressive. It is an indication, for one thing, that promises of both labor and industrial leaders to work in harmony, to keep employment at the best possible level and to avoid, as far as possible, reductions in wages, were observed to a marked degree. It is further, evidence that a decline in industrial disturbances which began nearly ten years ago is being continued and quite possible is to become more marked.

The commissioner of labor statistics of the Department of Labor issues a report to the effect that the number of days lost through industrial disputes in 1930 was less than a third that in 1929, with the number of disturbances reduced heavily last year, as well as the number of workers involved. But the year 1929 represented low figures in all these cases, in comparison with years just preceding and following the World War. There is noted a better understanding between the two parties directly concerned in industry, an understandng that has been the gradual growth of years. It seems to afford basis for a hope that the suffering and economic waste of industrial friction are eventually to become a part of an old and unlamented order.—Kansas City Star.

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Some Big Guns From Auburn

One day last week a party of prominent personalities from Auburn stopped in Clanton a few minutes on their way to Birmingham. Numbered among them we understand were P. O. Davis, the publicity manager; Jim High, district farm demonstration agent; L. N. Duncan, director of the experiment station and extension service; and M. J. Funchess, soil expert. These gentlemen stayed here only a few minutes, making a brief visit to the office of County Agent, C. E. Stapp and Mr. Jasper Dennis.

Going To Get Us Next Time

According to Uncle Sam Edwards, the Democrats are going to get the Republicans next time. He assured The Man on the Corner that they were going to start off by electing Governor Roosevelt, of New York, as President of these United States, and then come right on down the line, electing Democrats to every office from there to Constable of Beat 16. That is political optimism, I must say, Uncle Sam; but you never can tell what will happen until it has happened. We will wait until after the next election and then see how good a guesser Mr. Edwards is.

This Should Be Interesting

Fisherman Pete, in Dixie Sportsman, says: I ain't never keered nuthin bout ketchin tarapins. They are jes lack pollyticians. They git yore bait and you haf to cut thair heads off to make them know they air dead.

The Dixie Sportsman

The Dixie Sportsman is the name of a new magazine which is to be published in Montgomery once each month. The first number has been circulated for April. I have found my copy to be full of interest, just as interesting to me as anything I have found on the fishing subject. Anything about fishing interests me any time.

When I Get the Fishing Fever

Below is a little poem in the Dixie Sportsman, which will explain why I went fishing Tuesday. I had just read it and gone up to the corner to see what was passing. Along comes my old friend and fishing pal, Kin Vinson. I was thinking about those speckle beauties, and it had taken my appetite for work. Kin says hey there buddy, let's go fishin'. And I went.

When the Honey-bees are hummin'
An' the birds are singin' sweet,
An' the summer days are comin'
Down the lane on dancin' feet;
When the leaves are lazy swishin'
And there's flowers 'round about
Then I'm wishin' I was fishin'
In a brook for speckle trout.

Lose all interest in my duties,
An' just somehow want to shirk;
Thinkin' 'bout those speckle beauties
Steals my appetite for work;
An' I sit 'til time for quittin'
Just a'wishin' I was there
Where those frisky trout are flittin'
Through the shallows, everywhere.

An' sometimes I get to dreamin'
That my pen's a fishin' pole,
An' my ink-well, just a teeming
Little ripplin' fishin' hole;
An' first thing I know I'm sketchin'
Little fishes dartin' 'bout,
An' pretendin' that I'm ketchin'
Them there little inky trout.

Guess the "Boss" too, gets to snoopin'
Round "dream stream" now and then,
For I've seen his lids a-droopin'
An' I've seen him drop his pen;
Then he'll sit up, eyes a-gleamin'
An' there isn't any doubt
But that he too, has been dreamin'
'Bout those pesky speckle trout.

The Old Trout

This bit of verse, published in the Dixie Sportsman, with apologies to Rollo Shepard, has more philosphy than poetry. There is good advice in it, not only for the fish, but the fisherman as well.

Old Father Trout, deep down in the pool,
Remarked to his son, just home from school,
"If you want to live to a ripe old age,
Pay heed, my boy, to my council sage,
Stick to the depths and avoid the fly
That you see up there where the ripples lie,
It's all very well to "rise" and "break"
And scatter the dragon-flies and shake
Your foolish tail and arch your back,
Some day, you'll jump and "you won't come back!"

I once had a brother, young like you
And there wasn't a thing he wouldn't do,
He was always jumping out of the brook,
And chasing flies, and he got . . the hook.
This, moral son, just stow in your attic,
It's all very well to be acrobatic,
But those surface stunts are mostly show;
The lasting things lie deep below."

There is no more reason for attacking and destroying confidence in any industry as a whole because of the crookedness of a few companies than there is for attacking our whole banking system because of the crookedness of a few banking officials—John J. Raskob.

FALSE EDUCATION OUR GREAT EVIL

Editor Union-Banner:

A certain "constructive, fearless, and independent" paper takes notice of your statement about the distribution of wealth in this country. You class real estate as wealth. The improvements on land are wealth, but land itself is not wealth. It is the source from which wealth is derived, not wealth itself. Land is the gift of nature to all mankind, a spontaneous offering of God to all the generations of men. To make land property is to cause our worst social and economic wrong. Yet our schools teach that the private ownership of land is morally right.

We never had a state superintendent of education who earned his salt. Denny, Knapp, and the other heads of our schools are liabilities to the state, not assets. We have never had a governor who earned half his salary.

We used to teach in our schools that negro slavery was morally right. We have learned better than that. One day we shall learn the great wrong in the private ownership of land, in all tariff laws, and in our unjust banking laws. I am neither a communist nor a socialist, but an individualist. What fools our leaders are. A child that believes the shaking of the leaves makes the wind blow is a clear thinker, a sound logician, a profound philosopher, beside the statesmen who believe we have a decent civilization. Very truly yours,—S. M. Dinkins, Selma, Alabama.

IN MEMORY OF BILLIE WELLS

We miss him, oh we miss him ,
For our Savior called him away,
But we are all praying to meet Billie
In a better world some day.
We know that little Billie is resting
in Paradise above,
We hope some day to meet him,
With joy, peace and love.
No more on earth we'll see his face
His sweet voice we hear no more,
But let us live to meet him,
On that bright and sunny shore.
We love our darling little Billie,
No human tongue can tell,
We said goodbye to little Billie,
But we didn't say farewell.
It was only a few months ago,
We can never forget the sad day,
When came the silent reaper
And took our darling boy away.
Oh how brave good and tender,
He was every day by day,
All the sorrow that he gave us,
Was because he went away.
Billie is not dead but sleeping,
In Jesus' arms forevermore,
But if we live as Jesus has taught us,
We'll meet him on the golden shore
—His parents and sister.

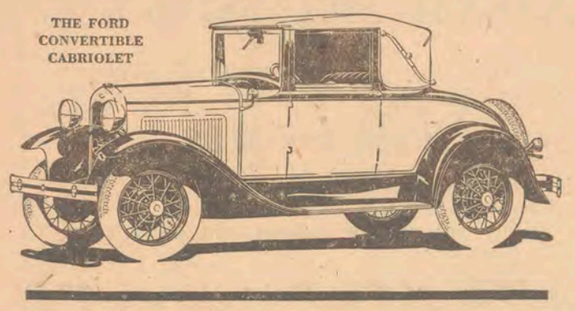
ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF FORD VALUE

Bright, enduring RUSTLESS STEEL is used for many exposed bright metal parts of the Ford



WHEN YOU BUY a Ford you buy enduring beauty. The body finish is made to last for the life of the car and practically all exposed bright metal parts except the bumpers are made of enduring Rustless Steel.

This Rustless Steel has great tensile strength. It is the same bright metal all the way through. A salt test equivalent to forty years' service under the severest weather conditions failed to have any effect on its brilliance. It never requires polishing. All you do is wipe it with a damp cloth, as you do your windshield.

This is just one of many features that show the substantial worth of the Ford. In speed, comfort, safety, economy and long life — in the richness of its finish and upholstery — it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

New Building For C. C. H. S.

We are glad to state that our new combination bus-barn and gymnasium building has been completed. It is eighty by sixty, and will amply accommodate forty or fifty bus bodies which will be stored in it during the summer months. These bus bodies are the property of the county, and quite a bit of expense has been made in order that they may be protected during the time they are not in use. During school, this building may be used for any purpose the school sees fit. In the first place, it will make an ideal basketball court which no doubt will be ready by next playing season. We are proud of our building, and will mean a great deal for the school.

A similar building has been constructed at Jemison for the same purpose.

Originality Week
(By Ruth Maddox)

The week of March 30-April 3, was set aside in our school for self expression of the students in good English, essays, plays, posters, and poems.

Honorable mention for excellent good English posters goes to Joe Hall Johnson, junior one, and Nell Neighbors, junior three. These posters were selected with three points in view: Originality, neatness, and instruction. The best play was that of Jane Roberts, senior two. Honorable mention went to Sallie Mahan and Willie Maude Kelley, senior twos. The best essays went to Homer Carroll, Mary C. Jones, and Helen Roberts.

Good English
(By Dorothy Sessions)

Do not abuse your English tools,
While you are on your way through school;
For when you go to get a job,
Your speech they'll notice first of all;
And if your English is not correct,
It will likely bring you deep regret;
For you will never be judged well in life,
If you say I "ain't," and thinks it's right.

PEANUT ACREAGE MUCH INCREASED

Acreage indicated for peanuts this season is about 31 per cent greater than the acreage harvested last season, says the department of agriculture.

"With yields equal to the average for the last ten years, production in 1931 would be 7 per cent higher than the record crop of 1929 for which growers received especially unfavorable prices."

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician reports that it is the intention of Alabama farmers to plant 40 per cent more peanuts than they planted last year. "This increase for market will be very unwise," he said.

HOME FOR AGED NEGROES

Having received a donation of 120 acres of land from Gulledge Brothers of Verbena, Alabama, to erect a home for dependent and aged negroes of Alabama, knowing as we do, that the only place of refuge in the state for our race is a place of confinement.

Just think for a moment—There are many children that would make good in life, if they only had a chance, and under the hands of a good mother who would advise, take care, teach, and show them the way to go and care for their moral and spiritual training.

The Lord has prepared some one to be instrumental in bringing about a change, and whatever you or anyone do in this direction will be as seed sown in good soil, which will some day bring forth good fruit in the heart of some negro child. This will not only help the child, but will be a blessing to both races and to the state. Please allow me to say the institution owns 200 acres plus the 120 acres donated by Gulledge Brothers, making a total of 320 acres, a three-horse farm under cultivation, 60 acres in timber land, 40 acres in pasture, 3 four-room houses and 2 one-room houses. It is located 25 miles north of Montgomery, 3 miles from the L. & N. Railroad, and is in a good location with an asset to the highway of Montgomery, Wetumpka, and Birmingham, being in a good vicinity where both races are interested in the success of the institution.

We are appealing to every citizen in the state to make a donation toward the erection of this orphanage, and hope you will not feel that your budget is complete without the name of the Booker Washington Association on it as it should. We are asking each church to donate $10; each Sunday school, B. Y. P. U., and Christian Endeavor union, $2; and fraternity organizations, $5 each.—Wm. R. Cowart, President.

HIGH TAX PROTEST GETS DESIRED RESULT

Replying to Commissioner Storrs' protest against Iowa placing prohibitory taxes on cottonseed products, C. O. Dayton, chairman subcommittee of the Iowa House of Represetatives, assures Alabama that Iowa would divide with Alabama its last crust of bread if necessary, and that the bill proposing the high taxes has been definitely postponed.

STORRS OPPOSES THE BUS BILL TAXING THE FARMERS

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and Industries, has asked the Alabama Legislature not to pass a bus and truck bill that will place an additional tax burden upon the farmers because they are already carrying more than their part of the tax burden and it certainly should not be increased.

"I am not interested in the bill only as it affects the farmers. If the bill is amended so as to entirely exempt farmers operating his truck in the conduct of business, I will have nothing more to say," he said.

In a prepared statement regarding the new truck bill that has been introduced in the House of Representatives Commissioner Storrs said.

"The new truck bill in so far as it applies to farmers is fully as bad as the old one, as it proposes to levy and collect unjust additional taxes on the farmer.

Alabama farmers furnished all the land on which highways are built and much of it was donated to the state. A tax survey made by Mr. Mooring of the Tax Commission 3 years ago showed that real estate paid over 75 per cent of the State income at that time, and all agree that farmers are already carrying more than their part of the tax burden, and should not be increased.

"The farmer in operating his truck in the conduct of his business is in no sense a common carrier and should be entirely exempt from the operation of the bill.

"There is no good reason that can be shown why farmers, trucks operated in their own business should be included."—L. O. Brackeen.

SINGING AT REFUGE

The Central Singing Society will meet at Refuge church, five miles north-east of Clanton, next Sunday afternoon, the third Sunday. All singers are cordially invited to attend.

The singing last Sunday afternoon was held at Walnut Creek. There was quite a crowd of listeners and singers present. Prof. L. T. Grant presided.. Every member of the committee was present, who fixed out a program consuming two hours of time. The closing song was sung by the chairman and the benediction invoked by the chaplin, R. M. Robinson.

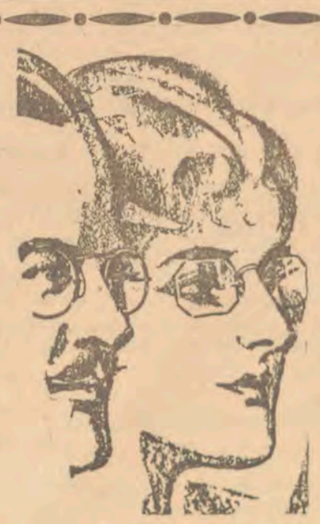
Ex-President Coolidge is author of the statement that "no really great public or private financing is done without our participation. Last year our foreign loans exceeded $9,000,000,000. Those of the British exceeded $550,000,000."

SAFETY IN FREIGHT HANDLING

Since the railroads were released from Federal control in 1920, one of their outstanding achievements has been the remarkable reduction in loss and damage to freight shipments.

From 1921, the first full year of operation after Federal control, to 1929, the number of revenue tons carried increased about 45 per cent; during the same periods, loss and damage to freight were reduced 61 per cent!

The record of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad for this period compares favorably with the national average. With an increase of 59 per cent in tonnage hauled, loss and damage were cut 64 per cent.



This improvement has been made possible both through the wholehearted cooperation of freight shippers and receivers, and through the intensive campaign conducted by the railroads among their employees. These influences have been further aided by the better handling methods and improved equipment developed in recent years.

The Railroads Must Earn To Spend

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad maintains for the benefit of shippers a staff of specialists on shipping and packing problems. These men are qualified to offer valuable suggestions concerning ways of reducing shipping losses. In order that a still greater improvement may be made in this problem of mutual interest, patrons are urged to take advantage of their services.

Getting Nowhere

"At a time when Alabama needs economy more than any time since carpet bagger days, the ship of state is floundering, the leadership you need to follow is getting nowhere."

Senator Bonner also declared that with the costs of the state government soaring the governor is highly commended when he removes from office a $100 a month employe.

Senator McDaniel, Marengo County, was the only member to reply to Senator Bonner, declaring that the statements of the Wilcox County senator were not germane to the subject and that the joint commission, regardless of the opinions of Senator Bonner on administrative matters, needs two weeks to draft a legislative program.

Subsequently, the Senate on an aye and nay vote, adopted the resolution. Only the voice of Senator Brown, of Russell, was heard in opposition.

The joint resolution provoking the outburst was urged for adoption in the Senate by Senator Powell.

Not Much Of Loss

"This resolution is the result of a meeting of 28 elected to try to work out a revenue program and report back to the Legislature a basis for a revenue bill," said Senator Powell. "Members of this commission cannot do the task justice while the Legislature is in session, because of interruptions and conflicting committee meetings. A two-week recess will not be much of a loss of time for the Legislature, but as a matter of fact will save time and expense if the commission is allowed to devote its entire efforts to the work before it. We believe if you give this commission the time needed we will at least have made that much headway."

Senator Powell said the governor is not to be censored for conditions necessitating the recess. He also told the Senate that at present members of the commission have no definite plans before them for revenue legislation, but would be able to work out a program for introduction in the Legislature after a two-weeks recess.

The president pro tem also declared that the revenue commission will provide taxes only necessary to keep the state going, to keep the schools from closing and road work progressing.

The joint resolution in the House brought much criticism from Representative Sparks, of Barbour, who charged Gov Miller with having inadequate knowledge of the conditions confronting the Legislature. Representative Frazier, of Bullock, inquired why the governor had not allowed the proposed recess ways and means committee to work on the revenues problem during the recent recess, and a similar question was voiced by Representative Taylor.

At a moment when a number of representatives were attempting to gain the floor, Speaker Tunstall succeeded in quieting the House with an address urging the House to adopt the resolution "in the name of the governor and the school children of Alabama."—By Hugh W. Sparrow, Age-Herald-News Staff Correspondent.

PROVIDE PLENTY OF HOPPERS FOR CHICKS

Are you providing plenty of hopper space for the chicks? They are growing every day and naturally require more mash hoppers from week to week.

For baby chicks, you should provide at least four feet of hoppers for every 100 chicks. Twice this amount is necessary if they can eat only on one side. Watch the chicks eat occasionally to make sure that they can all eat at the same time and not crowd. Chicks must eat practically all the time to make proper growth, so be sure and give them unlimited opportunity to eat.

When you start to feed fine chick feed, sprinkle it over the mash in the hoppers. To scatter it in the litter or on the ground, is encouraging chick troubles. The litter and soil become filthy and contaminated in no time from the droppings.

IN MEMORY OF LEWIS COX

On Sunday morning, April 12, the beautiful spirit of Lewis Cox responded to the call of Him whose faith keepeth and whose love so tenderly he bore to all.

Lewis was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abna Cox. Lewis was near his 22nd birthday. He was sick only a few days with pneumonia. All was done to keep him with us, and relieve his pain, that loving hands could do. But God loved him more, and sweetly whispered come home. Lewis was patient, and smiled through all his suffering. Several times he would say, I am going home; and asked all his friends to go with him. He sang several beautiful songs.

He was always submissive to the wishes of all. Lewis was a member of Chestnut Creek Baptist church at the time of his death. He gave his life to God, and worked for Him since 1929. Lewis will be missed from his Sunday school class, and by all his friends. How lonely we feel since Lewis left us. His place can never be filled; his sunny smiles are no more on earth, but more beautiful in the beyond. He is sweetly singing across the tide, around the throne of God.

Lewis leaves behind to mourn his loss a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Abna Cox; two brothers, Alton and Raybon Cox; one sister, Marie Cox; besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Weep not, for Lewis is happy over there. Let his life be a bright light that will lead us safely over there to meet him again.

The remains were placed in Chestnut Creek cemetery Monday, April 13. Pall bearers were his cousins—Dewey Deloach, Raybon Deloach, Neubern Jones, Archie Dennis, Herman Patterson, Barney Adams, C. A. Johnson, Roland Bryant.

Rev. Willie Jones and Rev Hand conducted the services, with Martin in charge.

ISABELLA SCHOOL NEWS

On last Thursday, Miss Maddox, Home Economics teacher at Isabella carried six of her students to Montevallo to the inter-state High School meet. The girls have worked hard all the year in order to make a good showing at this contest between the high schools of the state. As a result they brought back second school prize, which was a lovely pewter fruit bowl. Five of the girls won first certificates on their entries. Dorothy Manning won first place on her afternoon dress. Lucile Edwards won second place on cooking uniform and Lena Mae Jones won third place on her school dress. No first prize was given on this entry. Ruth Oden and Lorene Lecroy won second place in Cooking. No first prize was given for this entry.

Elizabeth Mims won recognition on her strut costume in the fashion show which was given on Saturday morning.

The girls and their chaperones, Misses Maddox and Mize, were guests of the college during the contests.

Miss Maddox carried two girls to Montevallo last year who won certificates, but no school prize. This year they worked for more points in order to win a school prize. The bowl will have the names of the girls who won it, engraved on it and will be the property of the Home Economics class.

There are many advantages from meets of this kind. But most of it gives the girls a greater desire to enter college on finishing high school.

These girls, together with the other members of their classes are to be congratulated on the splendid work they have done, not only in foods and clothing, but in home improvement and health work as well.

Foshee, Mrs. Scott from Huntsville, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Renfroe Mullins of Clanton.

EQUIP BROODER HOUSE WITH TEMPORARY ROOSTS

Teaching chicks to roost at an early age tends to promote feather growth and helps materially in carrying the chicks over the critical period when they are most likely to crowd and smother. It is desirable to get the chicks to roost just as soon as they no longer need heat to keep them comfortable.

One of the best ways of getting chicks to roost is to build a sloping roof to the rear of the brooder house or to one side of the house and enclose the underneath side of the roost with a fine mesh wire so that the chicks cannot get at the droppings. They will take to these temporary roosts in no time.

NEGRO MINSTREL STAGED TONIGHT

Clanton Kiwanis Club Will Offer Unique Entertainment, Original Jokes, Funny Stories

Imagine a group of hard boiled business men of Clanton breaking into dramatic exhibition in all the antics that are supposed to go with a negro minstrel. If that don't make you laugh, you simply can't get well, that's all.

Did you ever hear of a fog farm? The description of his uncle's fog farm in the State of Oregon by Cohen Stapp will make you bust your slats.

A human automobile is among the funniest stunts you ever saw. Billy Smith is the driver. Five other members of the Kiwanis Club are the tires. They get flat now and then, much to the exasperation of the driver, who must get there on time.

A most terrible eruption on the subject of matrimony is staged by "Vesuvius" (Mack Wyatt). You ought to hear him tell about the difference between marrying in the East and the West; also the commisary wedding (that didn't take) at Shaw's Mill in Stumps Hills.

"Giggling Lizzie" is the contribution of Earle Thomas to the program of foolishness and fun. Lizzie gets considerably bumfuzzled amid the conflicting directors of a big city.

Brother Urastus Brown (Bill Sartor) climaxes the situation with a sermon in which he discusses that famous text from the 95th verse of 7th chapter of Judas: " You have been tried, but you won't do." He entreats his dying congregation from the heights of the mountains of Hepsidam, where the lion roareth, and the whangdoodle mourneth for her first born.

Raymond Smith, as a distinguished member of the Love and Do Well Lodge, bears down with a weighty exposition on the ever present and fully perplexing subject: "The Status Quo of the Present Situation."

Sam Powers is a traveling expert by the name of Monroe. John Hollis is one of the most aggravating members of the Lodge, and Earl Upchurch is continually butting in with his foolishness, much to the aggravation of the interlocutor, Mr. Kingfish (Sam Ezell).

Don't fail to see this performance tonight (Thursday) at the High School, beginning at 7:45. If you don't enjoy it, you can pay the door keeper another dime as you pass out.

KENNAMER PUTS TWO IN ATLANTA

HELEN PARRISH HURT MONDAY AFTERNOON

Helen Evans Parrish, seven-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Parrish, was hurt Monday afternoon when struck by an automobile on the highway in the business section of Clanton.

The little girl started across the highway near Mr. Parrish's place of business. As she ran out by a truck that was parked by the curb, she came directly in front of a passing automobile.

She was knocked down and rendered unconscious for several minutes. She was carried to Central Alabama Hospital where examination revealed that she was not seriously hurt, after which she was carried to the home of her parents. Tuesday she was reported to be getting along all right. It was a narrow escape for the child. It is fortunate she was not seriously hurt or even killed outright.

ISBELL NAMED U. S. ATTORNEY

Prominent Fort Payne Lawyer Will Succeed To Place of Judge Kennamer In Birmingham

A dispatch from Washington April 18th says John B. Isbell, of Fort Payne, DeKalb County, has been appointed by President Hoover to be United States Attorney for the northern district of Alabama.

Mr. Isbell will occupy the place which was held by Judge Chas. B. Kennamer before his recent appointment to the United States Judgeship in Montgomery. In announcing his appointment, the president said: "Mr. Isbell has been actively engaged in practicing law in Alabama for 30 years, and he stands high in the community in which he lives, both in his profession and in his private life."

Those of us who know Mr. Isbell personally can fully appreciate the truth of what the President says about him. Mr. Isbell is a man of the highest type, an able lawyer, and a citizen who has meant great good to his community.

Politically he has been recognized for many years as one of the leading Republicans of North Alabama. In the last election he was the Republican candidate for Congress in the Seventh District.

Mad Dog Was Here One Day Last Week

The information has come to The Union-Banner that a mad dog created quite a little excitement in the vicinity of Marion Gore's and Arthur Willis's residences one day last week. Several dogs were bitten and it was feared that some children had also been bitten. The head of the stray dog was sent to Montgomery and found to be rabid.

The dog belonged to the Fiquette family and is said to have bitten Cecil Thompson, the young son of Mrs. Mattie Fiquette Thompson. The dog had also snapped at Bill Fiquette when he went to feed him. So, both Bill Fiquette and Cecil Thompson are taking the anti-rabies treatment.

This is only one of many instances that go to show that dogs should not be allowed to run promiscuously. The stray, good for nothing canines are the ones which usually go mad, because the scarcity of the proper nourishment makes a dog susceptible to rabies. However, when one of these dogs gets into a thickly settled community, they usually bite everything that gets in their way.

W. W. HALL DIED

Mr. W. W. Hall of Union Grove community was called in death Saturday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock. He had been feeling fine and had recently moved from his son's in Collins Chapel community. He was sick only six or seven hours.

Mr. Hall was 81 years, one month, and 24 days old. He and his wife were united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the year 1878, and lived happily together these 53 years.

There is left to mourn Mr. Hall's death, his wife and four children, two boys and two girls: Mr. T. D. Hall, Collins Chapel; Mrs. Zalia Atkinson, Pratt City, Ala.; Mr. F. G. Hall, Pratt City, Ala.; Mrs. Maril Duncan, Mobile, Ala.

He had many friends, for one can truly say to know Mr. Hall was to love him.

Mr. Hall was buried at Union Grove; Rev. Zac Appleton conducted the funeral services.

NEHI BOTTLING PLANT MOVED

Horsley White, proprietor of the Nehi Bottling plant in Clanton, announces that he will move his equipment to the Hayes Building formerly occupied by Bates Garage.

Work of transferring the machinery and fixtures has already begun, and will be completed this week.

The new location will be about double the space heretofore occupied by the plant, and will enable Mr. White to add additional equipment to take care of the increased volume of Nehi business.

GOODSON GIVEN LIFE-TIME IMPRISONMENT WEDNESDAY

Jury Reaches Verdict About 9 O'clock After Four Hours Deliberation

J. C. Goodson, young white man, of Autaugaville, will serve a life sentence in the penitentiary for the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Ruby Davis, whom he shot to death at the home of R. A. Aldridge in Clanton on Saturday night, April 4th. Such is the verdict of the jury which decided the fate of the young man in the Circuit Court of Chilton County on Wednesday.

The trial of J. C. Goodson, charged with murder in the first degree, was called in the Circuit Court of Chilton County Wednesday morning by Judge George F. Smoot.

A record crowd of spectators was on hand to hear the trial. The courtroom was filled by eight o'clock, and court officials were compelled to close the doors. Every seat and every inch of standing room was taken long before the court was called to order. Enough people to fill the courtroom several times were gathered about the courthouse all Wednesday morning hoping that they might get a chance to get in and hear the evidence.

The defendant, J. C. Goodson, was brought here from Montgomery County jail, by Sheriff Gillespie early Wednesday morning. Court was called by Judge Smoot, and the process of striking the jury was first undertaken. A venire of 75 special jurymen had been summoned, and out of this number twelve men were chosen to decide the fate of the young man who shot his sweetheart, Miss Ruby Davis, to death at the home of R. A. Aldridge, in Clanton, Saturday night, April 4th.

Following are the names of the jurymen in whose hands the fate of Goodson lies:

R. E. L. Ward, James E. Resberry, Wilburn Ward, E. D. White, J. Shirley Davis, Curtis LeCroy, Stanley M. Jones, H. Brewer Glenn, W. W. Hand, L. Dewey Hughes, Geo. W. Robinson, Green D. Melton.

When the State rested its case Wednesday, adjournment of court for lunch was announced. There was a scramble for seats in the courtroom for the afternoon session. So many were trying to get in that those who were in could not get out. Deputies had great difficulty in keeping the traffic from getting conjested in the halls and doorways.

Goodson, the defendant in this, the most sensational murder trial in the annals of Chilton County, sat in court all morning, leaning over to hide his face from the view of spectators, sobbing and crying continuously. It was said that he never looked up at anything or anybody during the whole morning.

The trial began after a jury of twelve had been selected from a total of 75 special veniremen who had been summoned.

For the prosecution of the case Solicitor Winston Huddleston opened by presenting the charge against Goodson, which was the indictment by the grand jury, charging the defendant with murder in the first degree. Cecil Alexander, of Prattville, counsel for defense, presented a plea of not guilty on account of insanity.

Mrs. W. C. Davis, of Enterprise, mother of the girl whom Goodson killed was the first witness to take the stand. Her testimony was used by the State to identify the girl, Ruby Davis, who was shot by the defendant.

Miss Pauline Davis, sister of Ruby Davis, was the next witness. She told how Goodson came to the Dixie Cafe on Saturday night, April 4th, and asked her where Ruby was. Goodson, she said, after visiting the Dixie Cafe, came to the Aldridge home, and told Ruby that she had to go with him. Ruby told him she could not go. According to the testimony of Pauline, Goodson again came to the Aldridge home where she and Ruby and Hub Griffin were. He stayed a while and became very insistent that Ruby go with him.

When the argument between Ruby and Goodson became intense, Pauline said she went into the room where they were and told them that they must get through with their talking and that Goodson must leave. Ruby then told Pauline it looked like she must go with him, because he would not leave without her.

Then, Pauline stated, she started to call Mr. Aldridge and Goodson told her she had better not do that. She went on and knocked on the door of Mr. Aldridge, but before she got back in the room Goodson had shot twice. Pauline stated that she then went out on the porch and called for help, and by the time she had got back in the house Goodson had shot Ruby three times in the back. Ruby was trying to get away from the young man when he shot her, Pauline said.

Hub Griffin, who was at the Aldridge home when the shooting occurred, testified that he saw Goodson hit Ruby over the head with his pistol after she had sank to the floor from the effects of the pistol wounds in the body.

Mr. Aldridge, at whose home the grim tragedy was enacted, said on the witness stand that he saw Goodson hit the girl once with his pistol. Also Mr. Aldridge related that when he entered the room an instant after the shots were fired, Goodson threw his gun down and left.

Testimony of Robert Alred and Ernest Moore, of Clanton, revealed that Goodson had sought to obtain a pistol and cartridges from them about eight o'clock on the night of the shooting. The girl was shot about 10:15 o'clock.

The principal effort of counsel for the defense was to prove that Goodson was insane. Among the witnesses to testify in behalf of the boy were J. M. Willet, of Autaugaville; Mrs. Zeke Goodson, of Autaugaville, mother of the defendant; and Horace Lowe, of Autaugaville. While on the stand Mrs. Goodson collapsed and had to be carried from the courtroom.

In the rebuttal of the insanity plea of the defense, the State produced a number of witnesses from both Autaugaville and Enterprise, who said they had never noticed any indications of insanity in the actions and conduct of Goodson.

Testimony had been completed, arguments of counsel made, and the charge of the court was delivered to the jury about six o'clock Wednesday night. The verdict of the jury pronouncing Goodson guilty of the charge of murder, and imposing the life sentence was rendered to the court about nine o'clock Wednesday night. Goodson was present in court when the verdict was returned, and when asked by Judge Smoot if he had anything to say, made no reply.

Immediately after the verdict was rendered, Sheriff Gillespie carried Goodson back to jail in Montgomery.

A trace of relief was registered in the face of Goodson after the life sentence was pronounced, according to spectators, indicating that the young man must have feared and perhaps really expected the death penalty.

Already several crates have come in and have been shipped by express. Some uneasiness is felt over reports of the damage being done by the strawberry bug.

County Agent Stapp has taken the matter up with Auburn, and is working hard to help the berry growers ward off any serious damage that might be done by this little insect.

Mr. E. G. Mullins brought the first two crates of berries to Clanton Monday, and they were shipped to Birmingham by express through the Clanton Berry Growers Association, according to L. E. Diefenderfer, in charge of marketing.

PROTECTION FOR WILD PHEASANTS

Dr. Gragg Puts Pheasants On Farms Of G. C. Mims and Dr. P. T. Hinkle

A few years ago Dr. V. J. Gragg, of Clanton, defying every prediction by autohorities on the subject that it couldn't be done in Alabama, set out upon the experiment of growing pheasants. At very great expense to himself he secured a trio each of Mongolian and Chinese Ring Necks from a grower in California, and rigged up a place to keep them and their offspring. Such discouraging predictions were made about the offspring that he was not sure there would be any, but he made preparation for them just the same.

It was not very long until the birds began to lay. He set the eggs under Bantam hens, and before the first season was over he had a group of nearly a hundred young pheasants. They grew so well that it was soon necessary to provide larger quarters. Nearly a whole block of space near the hospital was enclosed around and overhead with wire to keep them confined. Still they grew.

Then a very great calamity befell the venture. A dog got into the pen and destroyed the whole colony of birds at one lick. The doctor was not to be outdone. More adult pheasant stock was secured from the far west, and the process begun all over again. It was as successful as the first; and even more so.

By this time the plans of Dr. Gragg have progressed so far that he is able to begin to turn the birds loose to grow wild in parts of Chilton County. He has already released a group out on Mulberry at the place of Cleve Mims, and another group near Clanton at the farm of Dr. P. T. Hinkle. The hope of the promoter of these birds is that they may eventually grow and increase in numbers to such an extent that they may be classed as plentiful wild game birds in this part of the country. The experiment is certainly worthy of the interest and cooperation of every citizen and sportsman in our county.

Many years ago a certain Judge Denny introduced the pheasant to the State of Oregon, much in the same manner as has been pursued by Dr. Gragg here. Today it is said that there are more pheasants in Oregon than in the whole Chinese empire, which is their native home. There is every reason to believe that the pheasant will live and prosper in Alabama. If it can it will be a game bird that will challenge the sportsman's very best sense of strategy.

Absolute protection for the birds that have been liberated is necessary, however, and Dr. Gragg appeals to everybody to help out in providing this protection. It is said that effort has already been made by some in the neighborhood to kill the birds. This regrettable, and every sportsman hopes that such attitude will be abandoned.

Doubtless in a few years if these birds are left alone they will be more plentiful in Chilton County than quail. Under favorable conditions the hen will raise two broods a season. They are large producers of eggs. Therefore they increase rapidly if properly protected.

Investigation has proven that the pheasant is a valuable friend of the farmer, because it is a vicious destroyer of insects, snails, spiders, earthworms, acorns, berries, weed and grass seeds. From the standpoint of the agriculturist and forester, the pheasant is far more beneficial than injurious.

Judge Denny is memorialized in Oregon for the introduction of this finest of all game birds into the State. We hope that Dr. Gragg may some day be so acclaimed by the sportsmen of Alabama. Many have expressed an interest in his venture. Let us spread the news to every person in the county and get universal protection for the pheasants.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Our hearts rejoiced last Sunday as our attendance at Sunday school reached 148. That broke all records for the past few years, but it is still below what our average should be. Help us to reach two hundred.

Collins Chapel Community

(Fifty Years Ago)

We continue our series of stories about Collins Chapel Community Fifty Years Ago, with a history of the family of T. J. (Sank) Collins. The wife of Sank Collins was Malissa Bean. Mr. Collins was born and reared in Chilton, and his wife was a native of Coosa County. Fifty years ago they lived about half way between where Collins Chapel Church and Collins Chapel School are now located. Mat Benson now lives at the same place. Mr. and Mrs. Collins lived at this place, reared their family, and died there.

Mary Lou was the oldest child of the Sank Collins family. She married John Mims, and they now live at Thorsby. They have four children, three daughters and one son. These children are Mrs. Jim Honeycutt (Millie) of Birmingham; Mrs. David Childress (Evie) of Thorsby; Sam Mims, of Thorsby; Mrs. Earl Marcus (Malissa) of Thorsby.

The next child of Sank Collins was John Harrison Collins, whose wife is Lizzie Mims, daughter of Akins Mims. They have five children: Mrs. Walter Robinson (Genie) of Lay Dam; Mrs. Leonard Hays (Hersey) of Thorsby; Grady, still at home at Thorsby; Akins Collins, of Thorsby; Polly, the baby girl at home.

Two members of the family of John Harrison Collins have gained prominence in the public affairs of Chilton County. Miss Genie Collins served one term as Treasurer of Chilton County. Besides her service in the office of County Treasurer, she has devoted a number of years to work as clerk in the office of the Tax Assessor. Genie Collins bears the distinction of being the first woman to be elected to public office in Chilton County.

Akins Collins was elected Tax Assessor of Chilton County at the last general election. He will succeed Sam Pate in this important office some time this summer.

Martha Collins, the third child of the Sank Collins family, married first to John Burnett. Their children are Mrs. Judge Culver (Ada) of Birmingham; Mrs. Patterson (Flossie); Mrs. LaFayette Watts (Johnnie); Dudley Burnett, who married a Miss Middlebrooks.

The second marriage of Martha Collins was to Joe Littleton. They have one daughter, whose name we could not find out.

Arline was the fourth member of the Sank Collins family. She married John Littleton. Their children are Mrs. Commie Collins (Lillian); Mrs. Elijah Mims (Lillie); Woodfin Littleton; Volley Littleton; and Mrs. Jadie Cox.

The fifth child of the Sank Collins family was Ada, who died at the age of 18 years.

Dudley Collins was the sixth of the Sank Collins household. His wife was Miss Mattie Green. They have two children, J. D. Collins, Jr., who married Miss Sarah Lambert; and Mrs. J. B. Gillespie (Lennie). Public service has been a portion of the career of Dudley Collins. He was elected Tax Collector of Chilton County in 1912, and served in that office for twelve years. Again in 1926 he was elected Sheriff, in which office he served four years, until he was succeeded by Walter Gillespie, present Sheriff.

Gladstone Collins, the seventh member of the Sank Collins family, died at the age of 15 years.

Julia Collins (Mrs. Mat Benson) is the eighth child of Sank Collins. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Benson are Dewey, who married in Bibb County; Miles, who married Miss Hilyer; Clarence, Jack, and Warren, not married; a daughter who married Mr. Hill, lives in Birmingham.

Susie Collins (Mrs. Bill Benson) is the ninth of the Sank Collins children. They have two children, Estelle and Paul, both at home. Bill Benson is well known in Chilton County, being the originator of a famous political song, "There'll be no Pickens There."

Sam W. Collins is the tenth member of the Sank Collins family. He was married to Miss Rosa Cooley, daughter of Jim Cooley, a former Sheriff of Chilton County. They have one son, Morgan, 14 years of age. Sam Collins was elected Circuit Clerk of Chilton County in 1904, in which office he served six years.

Sank Collins and his wife were Baptists. They were among the charter members of New Salem Church. Later when Collins Chapel Church was organized, they removed their membership there.

"Before I took Cardui, I was nervous, restless, blue and out of heart. I felt depressed all the time. After I took Cardui, all this disappeared.

LOADS OF CABBAGE HERE

W. W. Broadhead, Robert Moore, and S. B. Williams, of Enterprise community, were in Clanton Monday afternoon, on their way to Birmingham with a truck load of fine headed cabbage. They were grown on the farm of J. H. Moore, whose entire crop this year is about 1,000 heads. Robert Moore has around 1,200 heads on his farm.

According to Robert Moore, the plants were set out about the first of November. They passed through the winter in good shape and are now nicely headed, and ready for the market.

FLOYD SINGING

Our singing was called to order by our president, Bro. J. M. Williams, after which the following sang three songs each: J. T. Burkhalter, C. A. Biard, E. F. Taylor, from Montgomery, Marshall Burkhalter, P. H. Headley.

During the afternoon there were several special songs sung by Mr. A. A. Biard, E. F. Taylor, Mr. Till and Miss Mearl Walker, with Miss Blackwell as organist, which was enjoyed by all.

It was also a pleasure to have with us some of our old friends from Montgomery, and we are glad to give them a hearty welcome at all times. We also had several singers from other communities, which we invite to come again.

Remember, that every third Sunday afternoon we have singing; and every second Saturday night and Sunday we have preaching; and Sunday school every Sunday at ten o'clock. Everybody is invited to our services.

A TRIBUTE TO LEWIS COX

Death leaves a shining mark, said a writer of old. And so thought we, when on last Sunday morning, April 12th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cox, eight miles south of Clanton, and bore away the spirit of Lewis Cox, a fine son of the home, just before his 22nd birthday.

Lewis was a bright, genial young man, who numbered his friends by his acquaintances. He will be missed by his friends, but most especially in the home, where he always carried his part, and tried to relieve his parents of any thing to lighten their burdens.

He was only sick five days, but pneumonia took its toll, and he has gone. So we can only look up into the face of Him who doeth all things well and say, Lord, thy will be done. —One who loved him.

SOME TIMELY ARGUMENTS AGAINST WOODS FIRES

Of the $1,316,403.00 actual money damage done by woods fires for the first half of 1930 in Alabama, according to the State Commission of Forestry, $996,462.00 was estimated as the damage to young growth. It is a long accepted fact that "as the twig is bent the tree will grow," but if "the twig is bunrt"—well, there just won't be any tree at all. Many thousands of acres of waste land on farms in Alabama are naturally reseeding to a good stand of baby pines each year only to be parched up by the very unnecessary fire to sweep it in the winter and spring. Just observe how these seedlings will take over a piece of such land where fire is kept out for three or four years. They will take hold on soiil where grass and weeds will hardly grow. They are our hope for reforestation of this waste land which will otherwise pay nothing.

A heavy damage is caused to marketable timber by actual destruction of portions of the lower part of the trees which are the most valuable cuts of the greatest volume. It also destroys small trees that are reaching up to develop into poles, sawlogs, etc., by actually killing them.

The grade of merchantable timber to be cut is lowered by damage to the most valuable cuts near the ground.

Fire scars on the butts of growing trees seriously impede their progress. The destruction of the humus laid down by leaves and straw causes a serious reduction in plant food, lowers the water holding capacity of the soil and greatly reduces the annual growth of the tree crop. It is likely that growth is retarded one-half to two-thirds by light annual burning.

Fire injury and weakening of trees promote attack by disease and insects which would not molest healthy trees.

In turpentine areas it is generally conceded that the yield of turpentine is lowered by burning.

Poorly covered soil in the woods permits a heavy run off after rains and as a result floods.

Rain water which runs off rapidly leaves a thirsty soil in the woods, and the atmosphere in poorly wooded areas is not supplied with the heavy transpariation of trees which causes more frequent rains.

Soils made bare by burning off the humus are subject to serious erosion—one of the South's greatest problems.

Destroyed tangible resources of a community raises the taxes on that which is left. A certain amount of money must be obtained in some way to care for the usual expenses of government.

Boll Weevils, according to southern authorities are not destroyed and woods burning does not reduce the damage by this pest. Snakes are either buried up in the holes or are too fast to let a wood fire overtake them. Better let them stay in the woods than run them out into the fields and under the houses.

Game birds are dependent largely on weed seeds, tender growth and other food destroyed by fire. They also must have cover from bad weather and a supply of water, which is materially reduced by fires. Droughts are very destructive to game. Spring and summer fires burn quail nests and young as well as other ground game.

As are the streams so are the fish. Poor ill-kept streams are not conductive to a good supply of fish. As the woods are destroyed the running streams usually dwindle to insignificance.

Farm houses, fences, and other improvements and pastures are damaged by fire. $127,000 was the damage to these by fires the first half of the 1929-30 season.

Burned woods and smoke are poor spectacles and are avoided by tourists when possible.

REVISED TIMBER ESTIMATE FOR ALABAMA

Montgomery, April 20.—Mr. A. R. Spillers, an official of the United States Forest Experiment Station of the southern district, has arrived at Montgomery to secure data in cooperation with the State Commission of Forestry for the purpose of bringing up to date the estimate of the amount of timber in Alabama. This work is being carried on in all of the states by the Federal Government in cooperation with the state forestry authorities.

Mr. Spillers states that on account of extensive cuttings since the last compilation was made in 1920, and for the further reason that additional growth has ensued as a consequence of the adoption of fire protection and other forestry measures, the older figures have little present application. The revised figures are required by President Hoover's recently apopinted Timber Board which is vested with the responsibility of informing Congress and the nation at large on the actual timber situation in the United States.

It is expected that the new information will be compiled in its final form some time during the coming summer and will be published in convenient form soon thereafter. The lumber, naval stores, paper pulp and other forest industries will then be in a position to get their bearings on the ever present question of permanent supply of raw material.

INFLUENCE OF THE FARM BOARD'S OPERATION ON PRESENT COTTON PRICES

There seems no doubt that for several months after the original announcement of the Farm Board's loan policy for the 1929 crop, throughout the trying period of the stock market crash of 1929 and until the latter part of January, 1930, the influence of the Board contributed to sustaining cotton prices. This was at a time when it was to the especial advantage of the cotton grower in the marketing of his crop. The sustaining influence of the Farm Board was seen in the fact that cotton prices declined much more slowly than the prices of securities during the period of the stock market crash, and afterwards for about three months were stabilized within the narrow range of about 75 points.

The influence of the Farm Board was felt partly through its willingness to buy cotton at a fixed price, and partly through the intimidation of short-sellers by fear of what the Board might accomplish in the way of boosting prices.

During the latter part of January, 1930, the markets became top-heavy because of the accumulation of contracts in the hands of weak speculative holders, and a severe decline in —a decline that inevitably resulted from the depression in industry and the reduced demand for cotton.

During the period from the early part of March to the last of May, 1930, there is no doubt that the operations of the Farm Board lifted spot prices above the level at which they would otherwise have sold. This is shown not only by price studies, which indicate that cotton prices during April and May averaged nearly a cent higher than they would normally have averaged, but also by the fact that prices in this country were raised considerably above their normal parity with prices abroad.

The third period from the end of May to date has been characterized by declining prices to the middle of December, followed by a gradual rise up to the present. Buring the past several months, cotton prices have averaged somewhat higher than would normally be indicated under the prevailing demand and supply conditions. Prices in this country have recently been ruling abnormally close to Liverpool prices. Both of these indications seem to be evidence that prices are being supported above their normal levels, which support must be attributed to the operations of the Farm Board through the Stabilization Corporation and the Cotton Cooperatives.

To argue that these prices would not have gone lower had the more than three million bales of cotton held by the Cooperatives and the Stabilization Corporation been forced during the harvesting period on the already over-supplied market is to challenge the law of gravity, as well as the law of supply and demand. We maintain that avoiding the extreme decline in price to which cotton would have gone without the support of the Farm Board was a distinct service during this period of business depression to business and industry, as well as to farmers. Bankruptcy, financial ruin, and untold social consequences, suicide, ect., were avoided by the timely governmental device that gave aid to poverty stricken and prostrate agricultural communities.

Some of the erstwhile critics of the Farm Board and the Cooperatives do not appear to know that the place of the supply and time of the demand are moveable and temporarily controllable factors in the operation of this much discussed, but little understood law of supply and demand. There is no disposition of the Cooperatives to question the ultimate consequences of price action when supply and demand cannot be brought into balance, but we regard it as unthinkable to deny the great basic industry of agriculture the only means which modern business ingenuity and political and socal economy have ever devised to protect the inadequately organized farmer from the unshielded law of the jungle. The avoidance of the extreme price consequences in any single year of bountiful harvests or temporarily reduced demand gives the farmer opportunity for adjusting his planting operations in the succeeding year to help equalize the supply and demand equation. This, of course, the farmer must do, as it would manifestly be unsound and impracticable to continue to pile indifinitely one surplus on another. There is nothing unholy or unsound in theory or practice in this procedure—in fact, it is exactly what every well regulated industry and business does. It is concurred in by some of the chief industrial and financial leaders of the country —than whom there are nono more able than President Hoover and former Chairman Legge. It is agriculture's immediate hope for an equality of opportunity.

FEWER PEOPLE ARE LEAVING THE FARM

Fewer people are leaving the farms and more people are moving to farms, reports F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician who declares "that the farm population has increased for the first time in ten years."

"The number of persons who left farms for towns and cities in 1930 was 1,543,000 compared with 1,876,000 persons in 1929, and a peak movement of 2,155,000 persons in 1926, according to estimates by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics," Gist said.

"The movement from cities to farms, in 1930 was the largest since 1924. Last year 1,392,000 persons moved from cities to farms, compared with a peak movement of 1,396,000 persons in 1924."

"The net movement away from farms was 151,000 persons last year, but a normal increase of 359,000 births over deaths on farms last year brought the total population on January 1, 1931, to 27,430,000 persons on farms compared with 27,222,000 persons on January 1, 1930."

"This is the first gain in farm population in the 10 years for which annual estimates have been made. The tendency to leave farms appears to have received a decided check in the Middle Atlantic, South Atlantic, West South Central, and East North Central States, in which areas 262,000 fewer persons left farms in 1930, than in 1929."

"Then the movement of 151,000 persons from farms in 1930 was the smallest since 1922 when the bureau began to make estimates of farm population movement. It compares with a net movement of 619,000 persons from farms in 1929; 576,000 yp 1928; 604,000 in 1927; 1,030,000 in 1925; 679,000 in 1924; and 1,120,000 in 1922."

FOUR TRENCH SILOS FOR MONROE COUNTY

Monroeville, Ala.—Four Monroe County farmers, have reported to A. V. Culpepper, county agent, that they will build trench silos this year. They are planting crops this spring to be readp for their silos in the fall, Mr. Culpepper said. Sorghum is recommended, the Texas seeded ribbon variety being preferred.

PLANT A ROCK GARDEN SAYS AUBURN PROFESSOR

Auburn, Ala., April 20.—Unsightly side and backyards in Alabama may be easily beautified by the planting of rock gardens in which natural mountain plants may be grown between a suitable arrangement of stones, says John W. Hyde, professor of landscape architecture at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Never place a rock garden in the front lawn between the house and the street," cautioned Professor Hyde. "But if you have a stream or small branch near your home, use it and develop it. The character of all native rock gardens is wildness, privacy, and seclusion, so it should be placed to the side or in the back or your lawn or garden.

"Natural rock should be used and not artificial boulders and stones of cement. Use stones of 8 to 20 inches in length of yarying thickness.

"The rock wall or garden should be sloping and not vertical. The stones should appear to set into the side of the slope or hill.

"Drainage is most important. Soggy or ill-drained soil will not support the type of plant growth desired. However, watering thoroughly for an hour or more once or twice a week is important and much more effective than daily waterings of 15 minutes.

"A few of the many plants suitable for Alabama rock gardens are: bulbous, crocus, muscari, narcissus (small flowering), scilla (squill), and iris (bulbous). Annuals: egeratum (blue and white), sweet allysum, portulaca, globe amaranth. Perennials: yarrow or achillia, yellow allysum, anchusa bugloss, columbines, arabis or rock cress. Shrubs: yucca, pfitzer, cotoneaster, English ivy, and jasamines."

PECAN GROWERS WILL SELL ON CO-OP PLAN

Bay Minnette, Ala.—Seventy Baldwin County growers who produce annually 100,000 pounds of nuts have become members of the cooperative marketing association to market Baldwin County pecans, according to County Agent E. E. Hale. Potatoes, corn, and other products are being marketed on the co-op plan.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp. County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

COMPLETE SPRING PLANTINGS AND START PLANTINGS FOR THE SUMMER VEGETABLE GARDEN

Recent statistics showed that 11.5 per cent of the farms in Alabama did not have a garden in 1930. These figures may appear to be of little significance, but they do mean that approximately 25,000 Alabama farmers are not making any effort to provide vegetables for their families. To go one step further, there is another point which is probably of greater importance, but to which these figures do not relate: that is the "kind of garden" had by a large per cent of those reporting gardens.

A large number who report themselves as having a garden plant only a few of the oldest and most common vegetables, and these plantings are restricted to the spring months which provide only a light harvest over a limited period of time. Recent trips out into the State have reflected very plainly this condition. There is perhaps more interest in gardens and the production of vegetables for home use than ever before, but unlesss you add other vegetables to your planting list, increase your variety and make later plantings, summer months will find the garden the same as in preceding years. Those farmers experiencing a great deal of diffciulty in "getting by" during these "hard times," who fail to grow plenty to eat at home this year, will be hopelessly lost again next year. Study closely your plans for continuous supply of vegetables.

Check over your March garden letter. Have you planted enough of those vegetables to insure a good supply? Have you ordered enough seed to make additional plantings of such crops as snap beans, greens, etc., to make sure you will have a supply of these during the summer months?

Protect Your Plants By Destroying Old Flowering Plants

Another very noticeable mistake being made in a large number of the gardens is the fact that so many allow old vegetables to remain there in the late winter and early spring, even though there is no hope of ever making any other harvests from them. These "yellow flowers" appear very attractive to insects, and the plants provide food for them until other vegetables are large enough for them to attack. You can do much more toward controlling these insects by destroying the old vegetables early in the spring than you can after these insects have appeared in your younger crops.

The average date of the last killing frost in the spring is April 10th for extreme north Alabama, which means that you will be safe in planting even the most tender vegetables after that date. Plant a wide variety. Make additional plantings of the short lived vegetables. Plant New Zealand spinach immediately if this has not already been planted. Either soak seed or break hard seed coat before planting.

Side Dressing Important At This Season

Side dress young leafy vegetables with nitrate of sode, sulphate of ammounia, or some other quick acting form of nitrogen. By encouraging more rapid growth, the quality of these vegetables is greatly improved. Side dress Irish potatoes as soon as they are up to a stand. The last side dressing should be applied to cabbage not later than the time the central leaves begin to cup for head formation.

MORE ACRES IN FEED CROPS RECOMMENDED

Auburn, Ala., April 20.—Although the official estimate indicates that Alabama farmers wil lincrease their areas in feed crops this year over last total production, based upon intentions to plant, will not be sufficient for the needs of the State next year, and extension workers of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute have suggested an acreage larger than the present intentions.

A further increase in the acreage of corn, hay, and other feed crops will improve the agricultural situation of the State, they declare. Another suggestion is that gardens be given close attention throughout the year. Planting, fertilizing, and working every few days are advised. Without such attention gardens will be productive only a portion of the year.

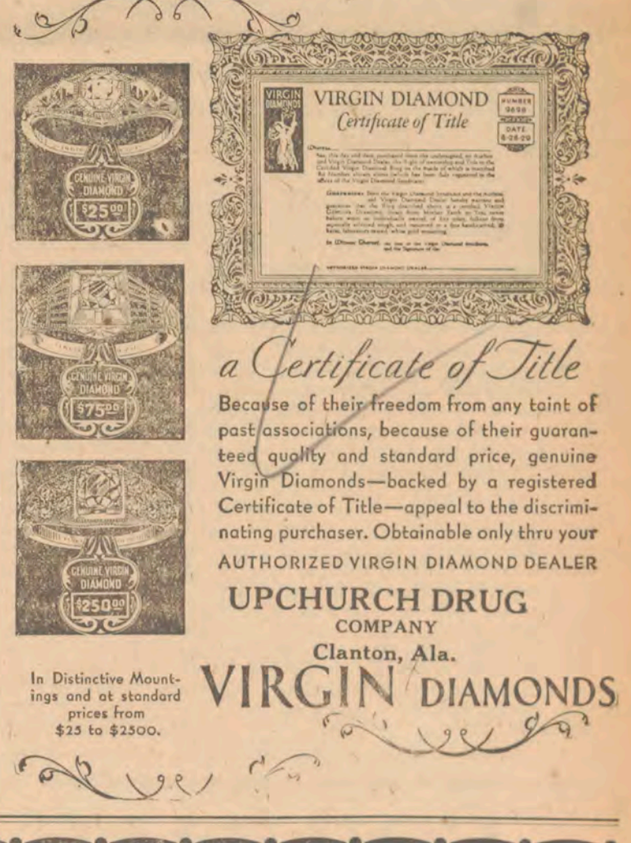
"Too often," said Julian Brown, extension horticulturist, "we see good gardens during the spring and up to early summer. Thereafter we see very few vegetables in the garden but a lot of weeds and grass.

"This means that the garden is useless during most of the year and productive only during a short season—from spring until early summer."

The Auburn workers say that it is not too late to revise acreage plans and increase the areas planted to food and feed crops. Thep point out that home production of food and feed means living at home, and living at home means that expenses are reduced so that the net returns are greater than they would be if most of the food and feed is bought.

Geese are good hoe hands in cotton fields and they are also good for controlling and killing nut grass when properly managed. Experiences have revealed this to be true. By using them in his cotton field B. L. Moss, Mississippi cotton farmer, was able to increase by 50 per cent the acreage worked per family with a corresponding increase in yield per family unit.

At the end of last year 11,289 farms in Alabama were using electric service, this being an increase of 40 per cent for Alabama as compared to 16.3 per cent for the United States. Arkansas and Tennessee were the only states showing a greater percentage increase, but in these states only 1 per cent of the farms were electrified at the end of 1930, according to the National Electric Light Association.



Alabama produced 16,007,405 tons of coal in 1930, of which Jefferson County sent from its mines 8,223,495, or more than half of the total. Walker County followed Jefferson with a total output of 4,483,726 tons.

NEWS IN BRIEF

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan and Mrs. Reagan's sisters, Mrs. J. M. Bosworth and Miss Naemi Turnquist, returned to Thorsby Saturday afternoon from Waseca, Minn., where they went by auto nearly two weeks ago, to attend the funeral of their brother-in-law, Mr. Samuel A. Thorson, well known to early residents of Thorsby.

The round trip covered 2,804 miles and was made in six days. In only one instance did they drive all night. This was an average of nearly 470 miles a day, and in actual running time equaled if not excelled travelling by railroad.

Mr. Thorson and his brother, T. T. Thorson, now living at Decatur, Ala., were prominent in the inception and establishment of Thorsby. He with his wife, visited for several days in Thorsby in January 1930, after an absence of 25 years. They were amazed and delighted to see the improvement and changes for the better. After leaving Thorsby, he spent three years in Calera as agent for a developing company, and one year in another Alabama town.

Mr. Thorson leaves a widow and one son and three daughters, all grown. For many years past he has been connected with a prominent insurance company. For the past ten months, he suffered from cancer, which finally caused his death. Mr. Thorson was a member of Odd Fellows, Woodmen of the World, and an Episcopal church. Rev. James Hedburg, formery of Thorsby, a brother-in-law of Mr. Thorson, assisted the rector of the church in conducting the funeral service, which was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends of the family. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pate, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Gray, motored to Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

Messrs. Frank Wood and Willis Peterson, Thorsby Institute boys, are laid up with the Measles at their respective homes in Thorsby.

Rev. Ernest Riggs, D. D. A. secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, was a visitor to Thorsby last Thursday. Mr. Riggs is a son of Missionary parents. He was born in Turkey and spent many years in missionary work in that country. He spoke at T. I. Chapel Thursday morning, giving a graphic account of conditions there. It will be remembered that the people of that country used to be spoken of as "the Unspeakable Turks" during the World War the were allies of Germany, and committed many massacres and other atrocities on Armenians and Greeks, among whom American missionaries had established schools and churches, because they were amenable to Christianity, while the Turks were not, being moslems and enemies of Christianity

At the close of the great war, in the settlement of terms of peace, the Turks demanded and received permission to have Turkey for the Turks, without and Mandate, or supervision by other nations. They proceeded to drive out all American missionaries and forbidding the teaching of Christianity or reading the Bible in any school or gathering of the people.

About half of the missionaries left Turkey, the others who remained, adopted a policy of teaching Christianity by example, which is in such contrast to the Moslem religion that it is proving effective and bearing fruit. Mr. Riggs also spoke in the afternoon at the Lutheran Ladies Aid Social, on the International Conference of Christianity at Jerusalem, which he attended.

Arthur Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterson, and his wife arrived from Detroit, to spend their vacation with home folks and old time friends.

The regular monthly social of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby will be held at the nome of Mrs. W. L. Leary this week, Thursday afternono.

Rev. W. H. Tillman and Rev. N. A. Long, also Miss Nora Brackin, stopped with friends in Thorsby overnight on the return from the Rural Church School at Nashville.

Misses Anna Werness and Bertha Littleton were Birmingham visitors to the home of their folks in Thorsby Sunday.

Word has come from the C. M. Williams family at Guntersville that Mr. Williams' mother has suffered a stroke of some kind and is very low.

Miss Clara Vines gave a picnic to the public school children in her room as a reward for selling the most tickets for the P.-T. A. chicken dinner. They report having a fine afternoon for it and a heap of fun.

Dr. Frank Smith of Bessemer and formerly of Thorsby, with his wife and children were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Schive.

Mrs. George Graves and two children and Mrs. Clyde Evans and son, spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Mack Gray Friday.

Mrs. Arthur P. Villadsen of Lincoln, Ala., is spending a week with her mother, Mrs. T. W. Robinson. Mr. Villadsen is employed by the State as an engineer in highway Construction.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Ringham of Chicago, on their way to Florida, stopped at Thorsby to leave greetings from Rev. Helland and family. Mr. Helland was formerly pastor of the Lutheran Norwegian church in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Lurell and son, George, and son-in-law, J. L. Moore, and grandson, John Moore, all of Birmingham spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell in Thorsby.

Messrs. Mack Gray, B. M. Gray, and Henry Robinson, spent Friday fishing at Shaw's old mill.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Schive were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Townsend of Birmingham paid a brief visit to Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell.

The stereopticion lecture given last Sunday night at the Congregational church was very informing as to the results of missionary work among the American Indians, also the enlightened and humane and civilized policy the present U. S. Government administration is pursuing with them. There are now very few wild Indians in this country. Through schools and other educative projects they are being civilized and prepared for citizenship, instead of being exploited by Indian agents and other bad white men. Instead of dying out they have actually increased by 16,000 during the past ten years. Rev. Each was suffering from a bad cold and R. A. Madox very acceptably read the lecture.

Mr. H. S. Higdon and father, and R. R. and Horace Franklin and Macy Riggins spent Wednesday fishing.

The Russian operetta, "Sonia," will be presented by the choruses of Thorsby Institute under the direction of Miss Thoromon on Saturday night, April 25, at 7:30. Admission is 15 cents for students and children, and 25 cents for adults.

A group of college students, led by Sonia Markova, plan a surprise party for Professor Smythe, the absent minded professor. Sonia's aunt, Martha Mayflower, a prim lady of much lineage makes her appearance and is much disturbed by the frivolity of modern college life, and threatens to take her niece out of school. Sonia has never seen her father, a Russian nobleman who was imprisoned by the Bolsheviki during the revolution. She receives a letter that he is in a Siberian prison and will be able to escape if money is sent. Pat Dunn, the popular hero at college, is in love with Sonia. He mistrusts the source of the letter. The conspirators appear in Russian disguise and Sonia prepares to pay over the money, but decides to go to Russia herself and find her father. She arrives at the castle in Siberia, the ancient home of the Markovas. She and her American college chums decide to stage a rehearsal of a musical comedy in which there is a Bolshevik mob scene. During the rehearsal a real Bolsheviki revolt breaks out. Pat overhears a plot to have Count Ginwhiski impersonate the lost father. He waylays him and affects the disguise himself. Pat unravels the mystery and wins his reward. The absent minded professor, Maurice, Peggy and Aunt Martha furnish a lot of wholesome fun. Don't miss it.

This operetta is given by permission of the Willis Music Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. I. L. SMITH

Sweet Beulah's gone, but not forgotten,
Never will her memories fade;
Sweet thoughts will ever linger,
Around the grave where she laid.

There's a beautiful home far up in the sky,
And mansions prepared by our Saviour on high;
He wants us to live in that country so fair,
Where she has gone, shall we meet her up there?

In that beautiful land no sorrow will come,
We will all be singing around the great white throne;
A beautiful robe and a crown we shall wear,
And live there with Jesus, shall we meet her up there?

No night will be there, 'tis one endless day,
No tears will be shed, but all wiped away;
No sickness, no dying, no pain, we shall bear,
No parting with loved ones, shall we meet her up there?

Her work here is done, the angels have come,
And took her to live in that beautiful home;
For loved ones are waiting to welcome her there,
She has gone to see Jesus, yes, we will meet her up there.

BOY SCOUT ITEMS
By Dan Smith

Jamboree

Auburn is all prepared for the Annual Scoutcraft Jamboree slated for May 1st. It goes without saying that your scouts will attend. I trust that every scout will have a part in some event. The day promises to be a big one. Come early enough to enter your project display in one of the show windows in the down town section. Promptly at 10:30 the three scoutcraft events will be run off. At noon a free barbecue, which promises to be better than ever, will be served to all Scouts and Scouters. At 1:30 we renew our events at Drake field. From 4 to 4:15 the awards will be broadcast over station WAPI from the field. Following this event every scout and scouter will be the guest of the Tiger Theatre to see Rango. What a day! Be sure and come. Don't forget to advise the Council office by April 20th how many of your group expect to take part in the barbecue.

Reunion

How many of your scouts wish to take part in the Confederate Veterans Reunion Community Service, June 1st—June 6th, to be held in Montgomery? Every scout who has a full uniform and is at least of second class rank, who has both, Scoutmaster's and parent's written consent is eligible to participate. Scouts must bring only personal belongings such as tooth brush, underclothing, etc., blankets, cots, etc., will be furnished by the government. Scouts will be encamped in a tent city of their own near the Lanier High School, which will be the headquarters for the Reunion. Here is a real opportunity for service. Special application blanks will be distributed when you register at the Scoutcraft Jamboree May 1st. Scouts are to arrive in Montgomery after dinner on June 1st. The last meal will be served with breakfast Saturday, June 6th.

Council Camp Spring Villa

There is much activity out at Camp Spring Villa this week. The new mess hall is being built. We want to have every Boy Scout to spend at least one week in this council camp this year. Be sure to come according to sections. Troops from Auburn, Clanton, Marion Junction, Ashland, Minter, Camp Hill and Scouts from troops 1, 3, and 4 of Opelika should register from the first section, June 6th-June 13th. Troops from Uniontown, Tallassee, Hurtsboro, Selma, McKenzie, Lay Dam and scouts from troops 2 and 5 of Opelika are to encamp the second session, June 13th through 20th. Troops from Alexander City, Plantersville, Society Hill, Greenville, Camden and Dadeville are to encamp June 20th through 27th. Remember that scouts who have registration card in the council office by May 1st come for $5.00 a week. Registration after May 1st will be $5.50 a week. Camping Chairman O. H. Tatum, and his committee insists that no exceptions be made to this rule. A scout is thrifty. Let's register at once and save that 50c. It could be used at camp for handicraft material. Stay two weeks if possible.

FRIGIDAIRE BEING DEMONSTRATED HERE

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Heath of Montevallo have on display in the Wright building here, one of the latest Frigidaires. They are explaining the wonderful machine to everyone who wishes to take a look into it. The Frigidarie is the product of General Motors, and was one of the very first electric refrigerators ever to be built. Gradual and substantial improvements have been added to the machine ever since the first one was put on the market over twenty years ago.

Mr. Heath invites the people of Clanton to call and look over the Frigidaire. It does not mean that you will have to buy one, but he and Mrs. Heath will take pleasure in showing you the many attractive features about the new Frigidaire.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our dear friends and relatives and to Dr. John Eiland and Dr. J. S. Harmon for what they did to try and save the life of our dear wife and mother during her sickness and death. We pray God's richest blessings upon each and every one.

Dear mother, how we miss you; but the Lord doeth all things well. We know you are just asleep in Jesus, in that happy home above, where all is joy, peace and love. Dear one how we miss you, but we will meet you in heaven some day where there will be no more sad partings and no more good bys. God bless and keep your soul, dear one, is our prayer.

"Sunset and golden glow.
The peace of a soul at rest;
Life's clouds afire with the artist's touch,
And the glory of love expressed.
Sunset on earth, and peace—
Day's hour most blest.
Peace on the silent sea,
Sunset—and rest,
Sunset on earth, my dear,
In love God given,
Sunset on earth—and peace—
Sunrise in Heaven."—I. L. Smith and children.

PULLETS ON RANGE NEED GROWING MASH

Most poultrymen appreciate the value of a good chick starter for their baby chicks. Many, though, fail to feed a good growing mash and in turn lose much of the good effects of the chick starter.

A chick at six weeks is only half grown. Growth, health and ability to lay eggs depend entirely upon the nourishment the chicks receive after the sixth week. Many good pullets have been ruined simply because of faulty nutrition after they were old enough to eat growing mash.

In the selection of the ration for growing stock, the same care should be exercised as in the selection of the chick starter. It wants to be rich in available proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins, and minerals that are combined in proper proportions so that the birds do not waste any part of the ration. It must not only grow the pullets rapidly so that they are heavy for their age, but it must produce strong bones, large frames, goor plumage and keep them healthy.

To make a flock of pullets shift for a living during the growing period and then in the fall put them on an egg mash and expect them to lay eggs through the fall and winter months when eggs bring a good price, is expecting the impossible. Such pullets simply have not had the chance to develop the frame nor reserve to do it.

OUR BAND

"Our Band" is still on the air every Saturday afternoon, and everyone enjoys our programs, too. We want to thank all who have voted for us, and the ones who have not voted for us we want you to send in a vote. Now is the time we need them.

Mr. Gardner announced Saturday afternoon that he was glad to say that "Our Band" from Clanton was in the lead. Just send your vote addressed to "Our Band" in care of Station WAPI, Birmingham, Ala. But please do not send a big list in one letter. "Our Band" had the pleasure of playing for the Amerlean Legion last Wednesday night at the Bankhead Hotel in Birmingham. We had a nice time.

Don't froget to send in your vote in the contest, it is only three weeks off now. We will play three more weeks if not longer. It is so far off that we can't afford to go just to get to play a few minutes, although we enjoy the privilege of broadcasting over WAPI in Birmingham.—Rheuby Chasteen.

Mrs. Ked Duke of Prattville made a business trip here Tuesday.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our son, Lewis. We want to thank the doctors and nurses, and also Mr. Martin. We want to thank the people, too, for the beautiful flowers. May God's richest blessings rest on them all.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cox.

Mesdames J. Renfroe and John Mullins, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Scott, of Huntsville, spent Monday in Montgomery.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George Wyatt Wednesday, a baby girl. They have named her Nell.

MRS. BESSIE DURBIN HARRIS DIED LAST SATURDAY

Mrs. Bessie Durbin Harris, age 40 years, wife of Grover C. Harris, rural mail carrier on Route three, Clanton, died last Saturday morning in Memorial Hospital at Montgomery. She had undergone an operation a few days before her death, and was apparently getting along well, when her condition suddenly grew serious Saturday morning, death following in a short time. Her husband was down to Montgomery to see her Friday afternoon and a while Friday night, and she appeared to be bright and cheerful and doing fine in every way. He came back home and was making his round on the mail route Saturday morning when news came that she was dead.

Mrs. Harris was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Durbin, of Fairview community. Her father died several years ago. Her mother is living yet. She has two brothers, Oscar and Glaucus Durbin; three sisters, Mrs. John Moore, of Clanton Route 3; Mrs. P. R. Redding (Pearl) of Mobile; and Mrs. .....

In her own home circle she is survived by her husband; one son, Grover Harris, Jr., a student at the University of Alabama; and one daughter, Elizabeth Harris.

Mrs. Harris was a devotedly religious woman, and gave her very best devotion to her church activities. She joined the church when a young girl 28 years ago. She was for a long time actively identified with the work of the Clanton Baptist Church and Sunday School, being at one time leader of the Sunbeam Band and Superintendent of the Beginners Department. She had also served as President of the W. M. U. of Unity Association.

About five years ago her health began to fail, and she had been sick a great deal during those last years of her life. She had spent a great deal of the time in hospitals, undergoing surgical operations at different times.

The funeral of Mrs. Harris was held at Clanton Baptist Church Sunday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, Rev. S. J. Ezell. Burial was in charge of Martin. Six young men, nephews of the deceased, acted as pall bearers. The board of deacons of Clanton Baptist Church and the Board of Directors of Peoples Savings Bank were honorary pall bearers.

A vast array of beautiful flowers expressed the tribute of many friends of Mrs. Harris, and the great gathering of people to pay their last respects bore testimony of the love which was in every sad heart for this good woman.

BRING YOUR CHICKENS THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

The Chilton County Farm Bureau gives notice that they will buy chickens on Thursdays and Fridays of each week, and request that farmers who have chickens to sell bring them on those days.

This announcement is made in order that a uniform shipping arrangement may be carried out, and to prevent having to take care of poultry here all through the week.

THE ELECTION OF TROOP 51

Last Friday, April 18th, Troop 51 had a wonderful meeting. We opened up the meeting by the Scout oath, and went on with our business and other objects we had in view.

We are making two log cabins for each patrol to make a patrol den. After we got over this we started an election of who's who.

Searcy Martin was elected the most efficient scout; Thomas Marcus the best all round, and most loyal scout; Owen Deal the most handsome and friendliest; Irby Wood the most courteous scout; Bobby Powers, best sport; J. C. Connell, bravest; Eugene Wilkinson, wittiest and most pleasant; Hayes Marcus, biggest booster; Julius Martin, neatest; Horace Vinson, most trustworthy scout.

We ended by the Scout Law Scribe of Flying Eagle.

Mrs. R. A. Hardy from Birmingham is the guest of Mrs. Minnie P. Mims the week of April 20th.

IN MEMORY OF LLOYD GRANT

On April 12th, about eleven o'clock the great silent reaper visited St. Margarets Hospital and took away our darling little nephew, Lloyd Thomas Grant. Lloyd had been in the hospital two weeks. First with diptheria and then pneumonia. Oh how he suffered, but through all his suffering he always wore a smile.

Lloyd was only three years of age, although he was a little man. He was always humble and never troubled anyone. It seems so hard never to see his dear little face on earth again, but we can live to meet him over yonder, for we know he is sweetly sleeping in the arms of Jesus.

Weep not father and mother, for our loss is heaven's gain. There is a vacant place here, but he is a shining light in heaven.

Little Lloyd leaves to mourn his loss a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Grant; two brothers, Melvin and Calvin; one sister, Nellie; and a host of other relatives and friends, for everyone loved him.

Lloyd was laid to rest in Chestnut Creek cemetery, April 13th. Rev. Hand conducted the funeral services, with Martin in charge.—Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Spear.

All liquids do not begin to freeze at the same temperature. Fresh water, of course, does at 32 degrees Fahrenheit; whereas salt water requires 28.5 degrees Fahrenheit. Mercury does not freeze until 39 degrees below zero is reached and alcohol will not become solid above 202 degrees below. The freezing point is lowered in each instance by the application of pressure.

GIVE THE HENS CLEAN COMFORTABLE QUARTERS

A thorough cleaning of the laying house at this time will freshen up the surroundings for the hens and will keep them happier through the summer months. If you wait until later to clean the hen house, other more important work may come along and force you to leave the house all summer without cleaning. A dirty hen house makes an ideal place for parasites and disease germs to live and breed.

When cleaning the hen house everything movable should be taken out, cleaned and disinfected. Walls and ceiling should be brushed and all the litter taken out. Dirt stuck to the floor should be scraped loose and taken out. Then the walls should be given a coat of whitewash to which add a pint of disinfectant to the gallon of whitewash. This will make the house lighter, cleaner in appearance, and aid in disfinficting the place.

Your hens will return to you in eggs just what you put into them in the way of care and feed. Just because the hens will be running outdoors is no sign that they can do without egg mash. The range will supply a limited amount of certain food nutrients but will be completely lacking in others. And egg mash should be kept before the hens the year round. The extra eggs you will get from the flock will pay for what mash they will eat and give you a nice profit besides.

FARMERS INCREASE "LIVE AT HOME" CROPS IN 1931

Alabama farmers are planting more gardens and feed crops and are expanding their mik, egg, and poultry production in response to an appeal voiced early in the year to live at home in 1931.

This is reported in a survey of the farming situation in Alabama issued by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, who said "there is a strong disposition to keep down expenses, which is being expressed in decreasing purchahses of fertilizers and an effort to economize in every possible way."

"Oat acreage has been heavily increased, which will supplement the feed shortage by the midddle of May," Mr. Gist said. "Peaches are promising a better yield this year, with a present condition of 78 against 65 last spring at this time. The condition of Irish potatoes is at present 79 per cent of normal compared with 72 per cent a year ago.

"The scaracity of feed supplies on the farm is reflected in the fact that the percentage of corn now on farms from the crop of last year is 32, while a year ago there was 41 per cent of the 1929 crop still on farms.

"Egg production on April 1 averaged 48 eggs per day per 100 hens, compared with 50 a year ago; but the hatchings of chicks this year amount to 84 per cent of the number of hens against hatching of 71 per cent last April.

"The production of milk per cow giving milk this year averages 1.43 gallons, compared with 1.55 last April; but the proportion of all cows giving milk at present is 55 against 51 a year ago.

"Pasture conditions are not so favorable this spring, the condition being 60 per cent of normal compared with 67 last spring at this time.

PILGRIMS REST

Thankful to say, health of this community is doing very well at present, and after such a good rain everybody may continue planting their crops.

Sunday was our regular preaching day, and we had a fine sermon delivered by our pastor, Rev. Norris. We also had a good Sunday school with several visitors.

Mrs. Alice Herrod from Haynes is visiting friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stroud spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ousley.

Several from around here attended the play, "Eyes of Love," at Billingsley Saturday night.

Mr. Andrew McCollough spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Ousley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Apperson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Browning.

Friday was the last day of school at Pilgrims Rest; so Mr. E. M. Ousley carried a truck load of school children and patrons to Montgomery. All enjoyed the day fine, going through the Capitol and watching the airplanes. Mr. Ousley took an 8-minute ride in one. We also visited the deer part at Prattville. The school was taught by Miss Leila Belle Smith, a fine young lady, which we all regretted to see leave. Everyone seemed to love her so much, and we feel sure of the fact that she made lots of friends while in our midst. She was a fine teacher, dearly loved by all her pupils, and not only this communtiy, but surrounding communities.

We all are hoping she will be with us again next year, as our teacher. Also looking for her to visit us this summer. We feel that she did her part in trying to teach her pupils.

Mr. E. M. Ousley, Mr. Eugene Walker, and Mrs. Henry Ousley made a business trip to Clanton Monday.

CONTEST PRACTICING

All of the scouts of this council are going to Auburn may 1, to the Scout Jamboree." We have been practicing on the following tests: Rescue race, water boiling and first aid. We hope we will be able to carry off a few honors.

Then in June, 4 of our troop are going to Montgomery, Ala., to the Veterans National Reunion.—Reporter of Troop 51.

AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY IS FAST PICKING UP

Confidence in the outlook for the entire automotive industry, once the reaction from the recent depression has passed, was expressed by L. E. Diefenderfer, Goodyear dealer at Clanton, on his return from a meeting at Birmingham, Alabama, where he attended an unusual business conference of Goodyear dealers from this section of the state.

A feature of the meeting was the use of sound movies showing modern merchandising practices, and throwing an interesting side light as well on the airship activities of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation in the construction of two great dirigibles for the United States Navy at Akron, Ohio.

The picture, entitled "Every Third Wheel," centers around Perkins, an unsuccessful tire dealer, who scoffs at modern sales methods. One day he calls on Webster, a tire dealer in a neighboring town who ha sbuilt up a substantian business and has made a place for himself as a leading business man. As Perkins watches, he gets an idea why the other man has succeeded.

A customer comes in and Webster inquires about his driving needs, road conditions, how long he expects to keep his car. He makes sure that the customer gets the right tire. He gets out a supertwist demonstration machine and shows the resiliency of the fabric used in quality tires, how easily they will stretch and snap back into place and go stand up over rough roads. Webster explains the traction and no-skid qualities which a tire tread furnishes. He urged regular tire inspection to avoid road trouble.

The unsuccessful dealer learns that Webster not only uses newspaper advertising but plans copy and position and scheduling to fit into his selling campaign.

In the story Perkins is convinced of the importance of improving his merchandising, goes back to apply the principles in his own place.

Other interesting features of the picture are an address by R. S. Wilson, vice president and sales manager of Goodyear and a number of shots illustrating the construction of the giant Navq airship at Agron. There are also views of the various Goodyear tire and fabric factories around the world and the vast cotton and rubber plantations in Arizona and Sumatra.

Lesson for April 26

HOW TO PRAY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is True Prayer?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Why Pray?

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray" (v. 1).

Prayer is absolutely necessary to the spiritual life. It is to the spiritual like what breathing is to the physical life. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstances—in times of sorrow and burdens for strength to endure, in times of joy and success for grace to behave aright. Prayer ought to be persisted in even when the answer is not immediately seen. "All men pray at times." To the Christian alone belongs faith-filled and persistent prayer.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was to prove the justice of her claim by her persistence. Even this did not gain access to his heart for he feared not God nor regarded man. He complied with her request to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If such action can be secured on the part of a godless judge by persistence, how much surer will the help of God be given to his elect who cry unto him day and night. The helpless widow pictures the church in this age suffering the deprivation of her rights. It is not the church praying for vengeance upon her enemies, but suing for the possession of her rights by virtue of her covenant relation in Christ. The inheritance of the church will be actualized at the coming of Christ. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is so vital to Christianity, and why so disastrous consequences follow the loss of this blessed hope. Every prayer offered by the church will surely be answered. The apparent delay in the vindication of the church may dishearten some and cause others to mock (II Peter 3:4). Jesus' question should be a solemn warning against allowing apparent delay of the coming of the Lord to crowd out our praying. Though many may give up, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ shall be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1. He took a striking attitude (v. 11).

The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of an ostentatious position. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv. 11, 12).

He used the name of God, but it was really a soliloquy. He pretended to be thanking God when he was really complimenting himself—rehearsing his own goodness. His whole thought centered in himself. He congratulated himself for his morality (v. 11). He thanked God that he was not as other men are, such as extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican who was standing afar off. One who has been kept from these gross sins ought to be grateful to God but should not set himself above his fellow men because of it. He congratulated himself for his religious merits (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did more than what was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

In contrast with this supposed saint stood the publican, whose shame kept him from even looking up to heaven, beating upon his breast as a sign of anguish of soul and crying out to God to be merciful to him, a sinner.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ declared that the publican went uway justified rather than the Pharisee. The one great and urgent need on the part of men is the confession of sin and a willingness to cry unto God for mercy.

The Ear of God

A friend of any kind and to any extent or degree is something in this cold and lonely world, but to have a friend who has the ear of God, and who fills God's ear from time to time with our name and our cause, Oh, who shall find such a friend in me!—Alexander Whyte.

Trusting in God

Surely it is a poor creed that will only allow us to trust in God for ourselves.—George Macdonald.

Plans For Senior II Picnic Changed
(By Jane Roberts)

Instead of a formal entertainment of the Senior III class by the Senior II's, they have decided to have a picnic on the river, Friday evening, April 25. By this arrangement, quite a nice balance will be carried over from the proceeds of the Senior II play, which has already been put on time deposit in the bank for the purpose of buying a very expensive dedication to be left to C. Chief White Elk Visits C. C. H. S.
(By Dan Smith)

Everyone enjoyed Chief White Elk's visit to the high school last Tuesday. His talk was on "The Indians of Yesterday, and the Indians of Today." This Indian is well educated. He holds a degree from the University of Chicago, and has license to practice medicine, but can't do it because he has never given up his allegiance to his tribe. He asked the student body questions relating to the Indians and the white man. The one answering the nearest the correct word wanted, received a present from Chief White Elk. Frances Davis won the prize for the girls, and Paul Cox won for the boys. The Chief's talk was well received by all who heard him. He plans to come again in September, bringing with him a number of native Indian girls who are musicians. They will put on a musical program.

Play Day At Montevallo
(By Nell Neighbors)

Physical education in high school is now a part of school work. This work begins in September, and continues until school closes. We receive points for different things we do during the year. We are supposed to make 1,000 points during the year. Our school did not make that many, but we did make enough to qualify us to enter the Annual Play Day at Montevallo, which is held each year in April. Those qualifying to enter and make the trip this year under the direction of Miss Wells as directress are: Nell Neighbors, Ethel Wilkerson, Roselle Gentry, Mary Charles Cox, Alice Petty, Pauline and Grace Plyler. Miss Wells and the class wishes to thank Mrs. N. R. Plyler and Mr. W. H. Sartor, who so kindly furnished their cars to make the trip.

SINGERS MEET AT POPLAR SPRINGS SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Poplar Springs is the meeting place of the Central Singing Society next Sunday afternoon. Singing will begin at 2 o'clock and will continue for about two hours. The public has a cordial invitation to attend. All singers are especially invited.

The meeting place last Sunday afternoon was Refuge. Prof. O. L. Devaughn presided, and the singing was very good. The crowd was small, but the interest was good. Services were opened with prayer by the chaplin, R. M. Robinson, and closed with prayer by Rev. M. Lockhart.

We will face another all day singing next month, the fourth Sunday in May, which will interfere with the regular afternoon at Friendship; however, there is a fifth Sunday in May, and the chances are that the society will meet at Friendship on the fifth Sunday afternoon instead of the fourth. And this is the date the United Society has promised to meet with us; so, if this works out, everything will be pretty. Both societies as well as other singers, please bear this in mind and watch for further announcements.

THANKS FROM JONIFER HEADLEY

Mr. Jonifer Headley requests us to express his thanks to neighbors and friends who helped him so valiantly last Friday when his home was destroyed by fire. By hard work most of his house things were saved from destruction, and the fire was prevented from spreading to adjoining buildings. He especially thanks the Clanton Fire Department for its invaluable assistance in keeping the fire under control.

According to Mr. Headley, it is not known just how the fire started. It was first descovered under the house where some kindling was stored. It is thought perhaps some children with matches might have unintentionally started the blaze.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AT CHAVIES, ALABAMA

Last Sunday, April 19th, Mr. C. L. Glasscock and wife, Mrs. Ada Glasscock, entertained a large group of friends and relatives in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary with a bountiful dinner.

Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Deshields, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Linch, Messrs John and Tom Culver, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Jones and son, Woodson, all of Chovies, Ala., Luther J. Glasscock and son, Luther Jr., of Rockmills, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wood and family of Arab, Ala., Miss Hattie Belle Glasscock of Chattanooga, Tenn., Mr. Sim Langston and sons, Willis and Clem, of Bessemer, Ala., Mr. Monroe Johnson of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Miss Ennis Banks of Rockmills, Ala., Miss Littlejohn of Lawley, Ala., Mr. G. N. Glasscock of Ensley, Ala., Messrs A. H. Glasscock, Harvey Langston, E. L. Glasscock, Leonard Glasscock and Mrs. James A. Campbell of Jemison, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Glasscock were married on Sunday, April 19th, 1891, by Rev. J. M. Gothard, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rock Langston of Jemison, Ala. After a short honeymoon they settled down on a neat little farm near Jemison, and remained there until 1913, when they moved to their present home on Sand Mountain. God blessed them with 9 children, 5 boys and 4 girls; 2 having died, one in infancy, the other in 1921, after contracting T. B., in the United States Navy. The others were all present except 2 boys, still serving Uncle Sam; having joined the navy quite early in life.

Mr. and Mrs. Glasscock were converted early in life, joined the Methodist church, lived consecrated, Christian lives, and are highly respected as such in the community in which they live.

The occasion was a great success, and enjoyed by all present; and their many friends wish them many more happy and prosperous years of married life; and hope to again hear the call to attend many more occasions of this kind; and may the good Lord help all of us to live so close to Him that we may some sweet day reach that place where we will not have to say good by any more, but it will be one eternal good morning.—E. L. Glasscock, emison, Alabama.

The trouble with most of us is that we don't wait until April 1 to have some one make a fool of us.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Chief Justice Chas. E. Hughes

Kindergarten certainly wasn't any place, even for a boy of five, when the lad was able to outline a plan of study for the classics to his father. Rev. David Hughes, Baptist minister in Oswego, N. Y., made up his mind to that effect when his son, Charles, presented such a plan to him shortly after he had been entered in the infant class.

The result was that the boy was taken out of school and tutored by his mother and father. Mrs. Hughes had been a school teacher before her marriage. Few parents were so well equipped to teach a bright lad at home.

Charles Evans Hughes was a precocious child, as his formulation of a plan to study the classics when he was in kindergarten will bear out. He was born in 1862 in Glens Falls, N. Y., where his father had a small congregation. He was delicate as a child and didn't romp and play much with other little boys and girls.

Perhaps because he was not particularly robust his parents devoted more time to him than might ordinarily have been the case. His mind developed rapidly. He showed a decided interest in books as soon as he was able to talk. He was reading nursery rhymes when he was three and a half years old. He was five when his father was transferred to a church in Oswego when Charles was summarily removed from kindergarten.

When he was eight, and the family was living in Newark, N. J., the lad was able to translate the Bible from the Greek. He was also a wide reader of Shakespeare's works at this early age.

He later went to school in New York city where he was graduated from high school in 1875 at the age of thirteen as salutatorian of his class. His oration, because of its scholarly tone and the fine delivery of the orator, surprised a big crowd that attended the exercises in the old Academy of Music in that city.

While attending high school he wrote essays on such subjects as, "The Limitation of the Human Mind," "Self Help," and "The Evils of Light Literature." He was marked even then as a deep student and thinker.

The Rev. Mr. Hughes wanted his son to become a clergyman, if the boy felt a real call to the religious life. Young Charles had not made up his mind definitely as to his future career when he entered Colgate at the age of fourteen. He was a slight boy at the time and timid, save when it came to questions of scholarship. Then he would talk well and enthusiastically, even with his elders. Mentally he was more mature than his classmates.

The boy spent two years at Colgate. From there he went to Brown university, entering as a sophomore in 1878. He immediately showed all the promise indicated in his high school days. He was a brilliant student, but modest and retiring in disposition.

He gained many scholastic honors at Brown. He won the prize for the highest standing in English literature when he was a junior. Upon graduation, at the age of nineteen, he was awarded the prize as the student showing the most all-around promise. He was honor man in his class.

By this time he had finally made up his mind not to become a clergyman. Deciding against following the career for which his father had hoped, he went from Brown university to Delphi, N. Y. There he taught mathematics in the Delaware academy.

He studied law at Columbia university at night after returning to New York city and was admitted to the bar when he was twenty-two years old.

While the young lawyer had been sickly as a child he showed great physical capacity for work in the next three years. He was engaged as a clerk in a law office during the day. At night he acted as a teacher and tutor at Columbia.

Finally his health suffered under the strain. He was ordered to take a vacation. He spent it as a teacher of commercial and contract law at Cornell university.

The upstate climate agreed with him. When he returned to New York city he was able to throw himself vigorously into the duties of his profession as a practitioner. He first attracted wide public attention as counsel for the gas investigation committee. He added to his reputation as an outstanding lawyer by his conduct of the insurance investigation, another New York state inquiry.

Later he was elected governor of New York and re-elected, resigning to become a United States Supreme court justice. He retired from the bench to be his party's candidate for the Presidency. He lost the highest office within the gift of the American people because of a factional squabble in California. Later he served as Secretary of State and is now chief justice of the United States Supreme court.

WILSON Q. SANDERS

Again it becomes my sad duty to write about one near and dear to our hearts, but words fail to express the sorrow that has befallen this family in giving up our dear father and husband, Wilson Q. Sanders, who departed life at 10:20 Saturday morning, April 18th.

He had been in failing health for several years, and the last three months had been confined to his bed.

The last three days he gradually grew worse, and his suffering was heart rending to see, although he appeared unconscious of it.

During the time we were trying to reconcile ourselves to the fact that it would be much better to see him breathe his last and rest in peace than to remain on this earth to gratify our selfish pleasure. But it was so hard to give him up, he who had been so good and noble, so generous and fine. It is consoling, however, to know that our loss was heaven's gain, for he has lived a good clean Christian life—a generous, sacrificing life ever since I, his daughter, can remember, and others testify to his goodness prior to my knowledge of him.

He joined the Primitive Baptist church many years ago, serving as deacon the greater part of that time, and in that capacity he will be sorely missed, but it can be truly said of him, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter into the joys of thy Lord, prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

He leaves to mourn his passing wife and one son, Lorenzo Sanders, and three daughters, Mrs. May Mims, Mrs. Henry Lee Moates, and Mrs. Era Culver, the youngest, Essie, having departed life a little more than three weeks ago. Now there are several sleeping side by side in New Harmony cemetery. (Lomax)

His step-mother, Mrs. Mary M. Sanders, age 89 years survives him, also several brothers and sisters. A brother, Dr. A. J. Sanders, of Notasulga came to witness the last rites of the deceased.

A great host of sympathetic relatives and friends were there to pay their last tribute, and after the funeral service by the pastor, Elder A. T. Davis, the songs our dear papa loved to sing were beautifully rendered over his body.

We especially liked "Never Grow Old," a favorite of his, and "I'm Going Home" impressed us all more that he really was going home—had gone home to meet his own in the better world. There were other songs that were dear to him and us.

The beautiful floral offerings from the many kind, good friends were divine and their messages met with gratified response from us who loved him. We can't thank you kind good neighbors, who were so diligent in rendering every possible service in the last days of him who has gone to die no more. May you all receive the blessings of Him who gave.

I beg to sign myself as he called me.—Daughter, (Mrs. Era Sanders Culver.)

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness shown during the illness and death of our dear mother, Mrs. M. M. Henderson. We want to thank all who gave the beautiful flowers and Bro. Deason for his wonderful words of sympathy. Especially do we thank Mr. Samuel Martin for all his kindness. May God's richest blessings rest on each and all for all they did in any way for the sad and bereaved family.—The Children.

CARD OF THANKS

We sincerely thank the good people of Cooper community and also in Montgomery for their kindness during the sickness of our children, and the death of our dear baby, which the angels took away on April 12. He was at St. Margaret's Hospital. Everything was done for him that loving hands could do, but our God knew best. We also thank Mr. Martin of Clanton for his kindness.

Little Lloyd was only three years and eight months old. And was sick only 18 days. We miss him, oh how we miss him. There's a vacant place that can never be filled; but he is waiting for us in that home above.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Grant.

Utilizing Our Swamp Lands

Once again I hear some talk about doing something with the swamp lands around Clanton. Judge Reynolds expresses keen interest in getting the lands cleared before further effort to ditch and drain. This is a good idea, and is practical. As one of the owners of lands in the swamps, Judge Reynolds has demonstrated that this land can be made of great value as pasture for cattle and hogs, merely by clearing the timber and undergrowth away. When this is done, the grass will grow profusely, and make the finest kind of pasture. It has been indicated that an organized effort will be made this summer to start clearing off the swamp lands. If this were done, the vicinity of Clanton could be made the best and most profitable cattle and hog raising section of Alabama.

Now Comes the Strawberry Bug

If it isn't one thing, it is two, to worry and perplex friend farmer. We have been shaking in our boots for several years fearful of boll weevils, bean beetles, tater bugs, plant lice, army worms, cabbage snakes, and what not. Now a new pest has arisen to devour us. It is the strawberry bug. Just as we were about ready to harvest a fine crop, which we so severely need, along comes this plagued thing and begins to pester our strawberry plants. County Agent Stapp reports numerous complaints about the new bug. He has promptly appealed to the bug department at Auburn for all available information about our newest menace. Elsewhere we are publishing the report of Auburn in full. If you have strawberries, it may be well for you to see Stapp and get your plans made ready to defend yourself from attack.

A "Sight" Which I Saw Not

Verily, this is a day of new things, new practices, new customs, etc. One of the latest fads of these modern times was revealed last Sunday morning, when a certain man of Clanton was observed taking a shower bath on the roof of one of the buildings in the business district. It was a bright, clear morning. No indication of rain in sight. Yet, it was curiously observed by a number of people that a profuse quantity of water was issuing from a downspout on the building of Elmore's store. Much speculation was indulged in as to the reason for this strange phenomenon. Some who saw it said the same thing had been observed at the same place several times in recent weeks. Finally some bright chap in the crowd figured out that some light on the subject might be obtained by a visit to the roof where the water was coming from. Up they went, a couple or so of them. What did they see? A certain man who has an office up stairs in an adjoining building, was out on the roof of Elmores. naked as a jay bird, taking a shower bath.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

During the past few months, due to the effects of the depression, the jam in Congress and the results of the congressional campaign of 1930 the newspapers have devoted most of their space to the airing of the troubles of the Republican Party. But now it becomes very evident that the Democratic Party is to have its share of troubles in the coming campaign. The first indication of this came with the meeting of the Democratic National Committee in Washington during which a sharp difference of opinion developed between Chairman Raskob and his friends on the one hand and the dry Southern leaders of the party on the other. Of course, Mr. Raskob and his friends hold the machinery of the committee but that they are not to be given continued control without a fight is evidenced by the recent activities of the Southern leaders. The meeting held recently by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Senator Swanson of Virginia, Senator Hull of Tennessee and former Governor Byrd of Virginia indicate that the dry leaders of the party will make some concerted effort to block the efforts of the Northern Democrats under Chairman Raskob to commit the party to the wet cause and nominate an out and out wet candidate for the presidency. The issue is still a burning one in national politics and it is possible that a rift in the party may seriously impair what a few months ago looked like the glowing prospects of the party in the 1932 election.

On the other hand, the rift in the Republican party between the regulars and the progressives has not been healed. Just what will come of it no one at this time can tell. The economic condition of the country a year hence will of course have a great deal to do with the future developments so far as the Republicans are concerned. Up to this time the progressives have made no announcements for a third party or for a candidate of their own before the Republican convention, and friends of the administration express the confidence that Mr. Hoover will be renominated virtually without opposition. On the other hand, there have been rumors of storm clouds in various quarters during the past few weeks. One report is to the effect that there will be a content for Republican delegates in the South and that anti-administration delegations may be brought to the convention by Col. Horace A. Mann, a Southern Republican leader, who was prominent in the campaign to win the South for Hoover in 1928. Colonel Mann refuses to confirm or deny these stories except to state that "Southern Republicans in 1932 will be represented by delegates who represent the party in the South and not the federal office-holders." Contesting delegations from the South might be especially important if there should be a real fight for control in the convention. However, Southern Republican leaders like Bascom Slemp of Virginia unhesitatingly state that the Southern Republican delegates will be for Hoover in 1932. The future of American politics of course is in the "lap of the gods" but at any rate the 1932 campaign will be upon us before we know it.

WHERE SYMPATHY IS DUE

Frederick Landis, Indiana ex-congressman, editor, orator, and philosopher, made a good point in a recent radio address when he said that the present wave of sympathhy for inmates of prisons did not appeal to him, in view of the fact that there were so many people in trouble outside of prisons to sympathize with—hard-working men and women struggling against adverse circumstances to earn a living by the sweat of their brows rather than at the point if a gun.

It is true that there are many inmates of prisoners who are the victims of circumstances and who could not be classified as professional criminals. It is true also that due to the activity of criminals it has not been possible for states to build penitentiaries as fast as criminals develop to fill them. Great progress has been made in the last 20 years in improving prison conditions. As compared with the prisons of a half century ago they are pleasure resorts. Indeed, it has seemed to many people that in some instances too much trouble has been taken to render prison life attractive.

But the class of prisoners who raise revolts in penitentiaries are not of the type entitled to public sympathy. They are the desperate criminals who place no value on human life and who would rather kill than work.

It is an interesting fact that there has grown up in this particular professional criminal element the same justifying philosophy that is being broadcast by well intentioned educators, social workers of a certain type and even some ministers of the gospel, that men have not the power of choice between right and wrong, but that they are the product and the victim of environment and institutions. From this premise they proceed to the idea that they are justified in warring upon the society which is responsible for them.

The warden of the Illinois prison in which revolt recently broke out, was of the reform type. He had done much to improve conditions in the institution under his direction. Yet there was a widespread effort outside the penitentiary to justify the effort of prisoners to burn the institution to the ground.

As Mr. Landis says, there is plenty of room for the use of sympathy among the well-disposed members of society—those who are making a brave fight for the maintenance of themselves and their dependants without resorting to criminal tactics to gain their ends. There never has been and probably there never will be a social order under which a criminal element will not exist, including many who are wolves in human form and are entitled to no sympathy, and who must be for the safety of others treated with sternness and even severity.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper feels a little better this week, having enjoyed a whole day's rest during the week. Yes sir, we had a holiday from our sweepings. Imagine our surprise and relief when one morning the first of the week when we were a little late getting down to the office for work and found that the "devil" had had one of his frequent attacks of industry and had swept the place as clean as a whistle, cinders and all. Naturally we felt like hollering, but the town was not big enough. So, after expressing our appreciation for this kindly assistance, we stood the broom over in the corner and took the day off.

We wanted to go fishing that day, but we did not wish to go off on such a pleasurable jaunt without having our friend and colleague, The Man on the Corner, go along with us, and find him we couldn't. Bet he had laready slipped off to the river again like he did with Kin Vinson last week. Since he has found out that he can get off to go fishing on Tuesday and get away with it, there just simply will not be any keeping him anywhere near the Corner anymore as long as the weather stays so ideal for following the trials of Ike Walton.

Typographical Error

The Sweeper wishes to call the attention of the readers to a certain clause in last week's paper which changed the meaning on what we were endeavoring to convey. The clause referred to reads "we are not as young and carful as we once were." This should have read "we are not as young and carefree as we once were." We make mention of this so that our readers may get the exact meaning of what we are trying to convey in our writings last week.

Hurrah for Kiwanis

Among other things the Kiwanis are doing for the city and county, they certainly know a good show and how to pick them. After much arduous scrubbing and washing we managed to get the cinders sufficiently cleared from our eyes and from behind our ears to be fairly presentable in a crowd and betook ourselves to the Wadesonian to see "Just Imagine." Boy, if they are going to do things like that by the end of the next fifty years, me for living in that day.

We are not so hot for that idea of dropping names and using numbers instead, as we are right fond of our name, but the girls—hot ziggity! And wouldn't we like to try our hand on those "wild wimmin" of Mars.

While we are speaking of the Wadesonian, we would like to say that we are of the opinion that Friend Bill is making that prize door mat for the best mail carrier in the county. We base such opinion on the fact that search as we could for chewing gum on the other side of our seat the other night none was to be found. Bill surely has collected all the gum available to use in his prize.

Heap Big Injun

Chief White Elk surely made a gorgeous sight in his royal robes and decorations when he made a personal appearance at the Theatre in Clanton last Monday night and introduced "Just Imagine" and his Co-star and worker in the movies, El Brendel. Chief White Elk will be remembered as the player in "Show Boat" who sang "Old Man River." Chief White Elk promises to return to Clanton at an early date with a troupe of 12 Indians all of whom are recognized as actors and actresses and pull off some real Injun stunts. Plan now to see this perforamnce when it is put on. Take our word for it that it will be well worth the time and money—and very interesting, especially to those who have never seen any real honest-to-goodness Indians of the educated and better class.

During the past few days we have had little time on our hands between sweepings, and we have made use of it to look around over the country a little. The farmers are hard at work and seem to have experienced a sudden desire to grow a lot of cheap cotton this year. Earlier we had reports that the acreage would materially be reduced, but from present planting indications there will be as much or even more raised this year than last. We refer to acreage here, as the harvest of course is in doubt since the quantity of fertilizer is being reduced considerably.

We were in hopes that there would not be more than half a crop of the fleecy staple raised this year. This would have helped the price a little, at least. Personally, we can not see any reason why the people should want to cutivate five acres of land, pick and gather two bales of cotton for which they may get $100, when they could raise one bale on a little more than one acre, and get about the same $100 for it. This would leave about four acres more land on which to raise foods and feed. Thing this over, farmers, before you plant too much cotton!

The farmer seem also to be very much in need of a very good rain. Fields are getting dusty and crops will not come up with the present amount of moisture available.

Guess we had better be a-sweeping along now. The cinders are getting pretty thick on the floor. We are still looking for the Man on the Corner to go fishing with us. Maybe we will get hold of both him and Friend Bill and have a whale of a time one of these days.—The Sweeper.

DROUGHT AREAS RECOVERING

Independent testimony is forthcoming as to the good work done by the Red Cross in the heart of the drought-stricken districts of the Midwest and of greatly improved conditions there. This report comes as a result of the trip of Representative Frank Clague and Paul J. Kvale, of Minnesota. Returning from Arkansas, Mr. Clague says all classes of people in the state join in praise of the Red Cross relief work, which was handled with 100 per cent efficiency.

The two members of Congress visited the worst stricken districts, personally investigated conditions, and talked with people of every station and condition. While the situation has not yet returned to normal great improvement is evident. Mr. Clague says: "Thousands and thousands of people in the state, both children and adults, are for the first time in their lives receiving sufficient nourishment and a balanced diet through the agency of the Red Cross, while teachers everywhere told us the children had never been so healthy."

The good word from Arkansas is not limited to the emergency relief. Applications for loans made through the local committees of the Department of Agriculture are being promptly attended to and as a rule the money is available to a borrower within four or five days after making his application. But best of all is the fact that abundant rains have fallen in the districts that were parched last year, and the distribution of garden seeds alone to thousands who have never had them in any quantity before will provide summer food and a supply for preserving. Adding to this the fact that there is spring work available for all, the situation is so greatly improved that the people are facing the future with hope and courage.—Washington Post.

ANDREW JACKSON HOWARD

We miss him, oh we miss him,
For our Saviour called him away;
But we are praying to meet him,
In the better world some day.

We know that he is resting,
In Paradise above;
We hope some day to meet him,
In joy, peace, and love.

No more on earth we see his face,
His sweet voice we hear no more;
But only let us live to meet him,
On that bright and sunny shore.

How we loved him,
No human tongue can tell;
We said good bye to Andrew,
But we never said farewell.

It was only a few days ago,
We can never forget that sad day;
When God called him away,
To live with Him above.

Oh how brave and tender,
He was every day;
Andrew is not dead, but sleeping,
'Neath the silent clay.

In the old graveyard not far away,
Sleeping in Jesus's arms for evermore;
And if we live as Jesus taught us,
We'll meet, our Andrew, on that bright and golden shore.

The Anniston-Selma-Mobile Highway

The officers and directors of the Anniston-Selma-Mobile Highway Association are getting in some timely licks toward their first objectives in the interest of the paved highway from Cedartown to Mobile. Monday a delegation led by Judge Reynolds, president of the Association, went before Governor Miller to talk over the project. In the delegation were United States Senator Harris, of Georgia; Max Wellborn, former governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, of Atlanta; and F. A. Steele, general manager of the Goodyear Tire plant, at Gadsden. The first objective of the association, which was organized at Clanton a few weeks ago is the paving of a link of the highway from Piedmont to the Georgia line, which will complete paving from Gadsden to Cedartown.

The big potato looking thing, weighing in all perhaps thirty pounds, was plowed up by Odis Jones, in an old field near Maplesville. Dr. Bill says he wants it for the medicine qualities it contains. We will give it to him, and some of you folks who go to him for herb juice will doubtless get the biled spirits or dried contents of this big wild potato, which we candidly believe is without name or value.

MORAL ECHOES

By D. W. Haskew

I lived for four years on St. Andrews Bay, known the world around as the fisherman's paradise, but I declare to you that I have seen more evidence of Sunday fishing since I have been in Clanton, than I ever saw down there. What does it all mean? I fail to read in the Bible, "And it came to pass that while it was yet dark, Jesus arose and took His twelve apostles and hurried away to the Lake of Galilee to spend the day fishing." I do read that Jesus went to the Synagogue to worship as was his custom on the Sabbath. No Sunday fishing for Jesus. Can you tell me what has become of the Christian conscience? How on earth can a man who must stand before the bar of God, get his consent to spend God's holy day fishing?

From Moffat's translation of the Bible I read this simple little story that should make all of us sit up and take notice: "When the Israelites were in the desert a man was caught gathering wood for fuel on the Sabbath day. Those who caught him gathering fuel brought him before Moses and Aaron and all the community, who put him under arrest, as there was no clear law about how he was to be punished. The Eternal said to Moses: 'The man must certainly be put to death, the community must all stone him to death on the outside of the camp.' So the community all took him outside the camp, and stoned him until he died, as the Eternal had ordered Moses." If all the people in this section were to be stoned when they were seen working on the Sabbath day, who would escape? Listen to me as I tell you what God has said: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

A book agent entered a country home and canvassed the lady of the house, showing to her the seven new volumes that he wished to sell. The lady was a widow, the mother of a ten year old son. She wanted the books ever so much for her boy; but alas, there was no money in the purse. She told her story to the agent and with tears flowing down her cheeks she said to him: "I do wish I could buy those books for my boy, but I cannot." The heart of the man was touched and he said to her: "My good woman, I understand, and I am going to give you six of those books for your boy, but the seventh is precious to me, and I will keep it for myself." The mother could not express her gratitude in language, so she invited the man to have dinner with her. While they were out at the noon meal, the boy, to whom the six books had been given, slipped around and stole the seventh. Do you think that he deserved any one of the six? God has given us six days in which to do all of our work, and yet we are not satisfied. We slip and steal the seventh, that day that God has reserved for himself. God is saying: "Sharper than a serpent's tooth is an ungrateful man." How mean we are when we gobble up the six days and then steal the seventh.

This could have happened in Chilton County, but it happened in another county in Alabama. The phone rang about noon on Saturday and a voice at the other end of the line said: "Hello Mother, Sallie and I and the kids are coming down to spend Sunday with you. Yes, we will get there about ten-thirty." That mother loved her church and she loved her children. What must she do? She would have fifteen for dinner on Sunday and the pot must boil to the brim. It is out of the question for that mother to rest on God's holy day. Her heart was hungering all the week for the living bread that comes down from above, but she must slave all day that she may fill the stomachs of her relatives. No church for her. On Monday that poor mother is a wilted flower. If I understand the Bible God never intended that we should make the Sabbath a feasting day. We do wrong when we make it a day of "family parties," leaving God and His church out of our program. God must be first, or He will not be at all.

Here is how I think that everyone should spend the holy Sabbath. We should not allow business on Saturday to interfere with our Sabbath duties. We should get up as soon on Sunday as we do on other days. We should go quietly about whatever duties must be done. At the breakfast hour the Bible should be read and prayer offered. After breakfast the bed rooms may be put in order. All house cleaning should be left untouched. Everyone should don himself in his best and leave home in time to be on time at the service in the house of God. The two services should be attended if possible, never less than one. The noon meal should be simple and easily prepared. After dinner each one should have a quiet hour in which to rest, read and worship. Then a visit can be made to see relatives, or friends, or a ride can be taken to see the beauties of nature, and to worship the God of nature. If you will try this out in your Sabbath observance, you will not come to the close of the day with your nerves exposed and your soul starved. O how we do need to make the Sabbath a day of rest and worship. A voice out of heaven is saying: "Be still and know that I am God."

WE CAN PRODUCE OUR OWN SOY BEANS

1. To produce seed give more space.
2. Plant around the middle of May or first of June.
3. Fertilize with basic phosphate or acid phosphate.
4. Cut when seed are mature.
5. Where small quantity is produced take them to your crib where floor is tight.
6. When weather is hot and dry Mammoth Yellows and Laredoes thrash out readily by stirring and shaking them. Otootans must be thrashed harder by taking them in bunches and frailing.
7. Where large quantity is produced use thrasher or secure a seed soy bean harvester.

Most farmers can make as many seed soy beans as they will need by planting a row or two in their watermelon middles or on terraces.

Where produced in quantity for the market plant in 3-foot rows and use 400 pounds basic phosphate. Plant at the following rates: Otootans and Laredos 1 bushel to 6 acres; Mammoth Yellows 1 bushel to 3 acres.

Editor Union-Banner:

I asked one of our mail carriers a few days ago, why did the the road machines go over the roads all around his route, and scrape them good and smooth, including private roads, and did not scrape his road.

He said, well, I asked them why they did not scrape my road, and they said we just forgot it.

Discrimination against Uncle Sam's employes, and little school children, by our county officials will cause them to be a failure, and also the party they represent.

"THE TARNISHED LADY" AT ALABAMA THEATRE

Girl From Alabama Appears In Her First Talking Picture Saturday

Tallulah Bankhead, Alabama's most distinguished stage actress, will make her debut as a motion picture star at the Alabama Theatre Saturday, April 25, in her first Paramount talking production, "The Tarnished Lady." Heading the cast of fine players with Alabama's most famous daughter is Clive Brook, one of the best leading men on the screen.

Miss Bankhead, daughter of Congressman W. B. Bankhead and niece of Senator John H. Bankhead, returned to America three months ago after seven years in London as one of its outstanding stars. Whatever stage production in which she appeared was an immediate success. Always was she known as the girl from Alabama.

When she came back to America to make her first picture, "The Tarnished Lady," the Alabama immediately started to make arrangements for the first showing of the new production, and the theatre was successful. "The Tarnished Lady" will open in London April 26, the day after it shows in the Alabama.

"The Tarnished Lady," aside from the interest attaching to the fact that it is Miss Bankhead's first talking production, is one of the outstanding dramatic hits of the year. It gives her an opportunity to show the talent which made her the talk of London, and Clive Brook has one of his strongest roles.

Lawrence Tibbett in "The Southerner," a full length feature in which the famous baritone sings several songs, and short subjects will be offered on the same program.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIVAL CAMPAIGN IN PROGRESS

We are pleased to report that the Simultaneous Sunday School Revival Campaign of the Unity and Chilton County Associations is now in progress. The following churches are conducting schools: Big Springs, Indian Grave and Liberty in Autauga County; Collins Chapel, Maple Springs, Jemison, Thorsby and Union Springs in this county. This work is under the supervision of County Sunday School Superintendent H. A. Harris, and I. W. Myers of Vinemont, general director.

The attendance at these schools this week has been very gratifying. A large number of schools will be taught next week.

Notice of Mass Meeting

Special attention is called to the Mass Meeting to be held Sunday afternoon at the first Baptist church, Clanton. The hour for this meeting is 2:30. All Sunday schools in both associations are urged to send representatives to this mass meeting.

Reports from schools being taught this week will be received at this meeting. All teachers of these schools are urged to make these reports without fail. Mr. Harris, the county superintendent, will give special instructions for schools next week.

MONTGOMERY TRUCK DRIVER HURT IN HIGHWAY CRASH

W. W. Farmer, truck driver for the Dave Cody Company, 507 Bibb Street, Montgomery was cut and bruised when his machine collided with another truck on the Montgomery highway near Verbena at noon Monday.

When brought to a Clanton hospital, Farmer was partially unconscious. Examination revealed no serious injuries.

The southbound truck was loaded with about fifty crates of eggs, and over half of them were broken and scattered over a quarter of an acre. This was some mess of scrambled eggs.

WE CAN KEEP SWEET POTATOES

Due to improper handling, most of the enormous and fine crop of sweet potatoes grown for home use are lost. There are few farmers in Chilton County who have sweet potatoes after January 1st. This condition can be corrected very easily.

How To Keep Sweet Potatoes

1. Secure plants free from black rot.
2. Dig at least two weeks before frost danger.
3. The dryer the ground when dug, the better they will keep.
4. Do not bruise in handling (handle them as you would eggs).
5. For later use 5 to 10 bushels in 1 bushel crates (these crates can be built at home), place them in kitchen for 10 days in order that they may cure or dry out; then put these back in dry cellar or crib. Pack old quilts or hay around them where danger of freezing. The balance can be hilled in as usual for early use.
6. Where produced for the market provide a stroage house and handle in crates of 1 bushel each.
7. Never let sweet potatoes chill before or after rigging.

Yours for a full winter and spring supply of sweet potatoes in every farm home in Chilton County, I am—
C. E. Stapp.

LAWLEY NEWS

We are so glad to state that the many who are sick in this community are some better, and we hope they will soon be well again.

Mrs. Perry Hicks, Mrs. John Mount and Mrs. J. W. Wright attended the quarterly meeting of the Bibb County W. M. U. at Piper last Friday. They report a wonderful meeting, and some very inspirational messages brought to the women of Bibb County by Miss Monroe and Mrs. Williams of Birmingham, on young people's work.

Mr. Morgan Hayes and family of Tuscaloosa spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Collins, who has been sick for some time.

The literary school closed here last Friday night. This has been a very successful school year at this place. Mr. Harry Raley, Mrs. Sarah Cottingham and Mrs. Virginia Jones, our teachers, have done everything possible to make the school a success. Not one word of complaint has been uttered against the teachers, and this is out of the ordinary. They have done what they could. We are so happy because of the results of this school year. And hope we can have them next year.

Miss Mary Mount of Birmingham spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mount.

The W. M. S. here will meet the first Saturday afternoon and elect leaders for the Y. W. A.'s, R. A.'s, and Sunbeams; also the members will deliver an interesting missionary program. Miss Mildred Hicks will lead the devotional.

Mr. Tom Tucker and family of Birmingham were week end visitors of Mr. T. V. Hicks last week. Mr. Tucker was once a resident of this community, and his friends were glad to see him.

Mr. Jim Clevel, Mr. Sam Lawrence Mr. Jesse Latham and Mr. Russell Shoults went fishing last week, over on Coosa River, and caught several nice fish.

THE MAY QUEEN CONTEST

The May Queen Contest, which is being sponsored by the Clanton Grammar School, has aroused a great deal of interest. It is already very evident that there will be a spirited race among the young ladies for the honor of being crowned May Queen in the special exercises which will culminate this campaign on the first day of next month.

The older people of Clanton, and especially the patrons of the school are reminded that there is a purpose behind this campaign that is much deeper and much more important than the mere matter of which girl shall be May Queen. The main object in view is to raise sufficient money to carry the school term out to the full nine months.

It should be remembered that the available public school funds this year would have run our school only seven months. The trustees appealed to the County board for additional aid, which was granted on the condition that the Clanton school district would provide half of the amount required. The town council agreed to provide half the amount that was required of the district. This leaves the people of the town and school district a fourth of the amount to raise, and the May Queen Contest is the means adopted to raise the money.

Of course wou are expected to vote for your candidate just as much as you can or will. Put her over the top if you can. But remember that your money is not being idly spent. It is going to help provide a full nine months school for the children. This is mearly a means of providing a necessary supplement fund.

Again we print below the names of the candidates from among whom the May Queen will be chosen, depending upon which one gets the most votes.

The Clanton Grammar School is putting on a contest to determine who will be May Queen of the school. The contestants have been chosen from the different grades of the school, which are as follow:

First grade—Sarah Nell Sessions; teacher, Miss Pollard.

First grade—Clara Marie Cooper; teacher, Miss Morris.

Second grade — Francis Popwell; teacher, Miss Benagh.

Second grade — Lillian Smith; teacher, Miss Sherwood.

Third Grade—Anne Cordelia Smith; teacher, Miss Grantham.

Fourth grade—Theda Wyatt and Nell Rockett; teacher, Miss Pack.

Fifth grade — Thelma White; teacher, Mrs. Thomas.

Sixth grade—Jane Pitts; teacher, Miss Thomas.

Boxes have been placed in all stores and filling stations in Clanton. The votes, which only costs five cents each may be placed in these boxes at any time during the contest.

Each afternoon the votes will be counted and placed on a bulletin board at Upchurch Drug Co., so you can watch this board and not let your favorite little lady get behind.

Full particulars of May Day Program will be carried in the next issue of the Union-Banner.

Alabama Merchants Oppose Farm Bureau

Move Is On Foot To Seek Relief By Action of State Legislature

Montgomery, Ala., April 27.—Merchants of Alabama are lined up solidly in support of a bill to be introduced in the Alabama Legislature on the 5th day of May, which will prevent the Extension Department at Auburn, with its county farm demonstration agents, county home demonstration agents and other extension workers, from carrying on the active management of the affairs of the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association, a corporation operating stores throughout the State of Alabama. This bill will also prevent the college at Auburn from giving this corporation its exclusive endorsement of various supplies.

United corporation of merchants, large and small, in defense of their asserted rights was pledged at a mass meeting at the Jefferson Davis Hotel on April 23rd, and three hundred merchants were in attendance, many of whom stated that these corporation stores were being operated without paying license or taxes and were doing an extensive mercantile business, which was carried on largely by the county agents, who are state paid teachers, and who have no right whatsoever to engage in the mercantile business for anyone.

In addition to the enthusiastic support demonstrated when the proposed bill was outlined by Mr. Edmund W. Pettus, Selma, their attorney, the state dealers were encouraged by the promise of Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, that he would make a complete report of the merchants' protest to his board of trustees.

Speakers at the meeting cited instances where they said county demonstration agents and other extension workers maintained their offices in the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association's stores and in some instances these county agents maintained their offices in court houses, where they carried a stock of merchandise for sale.

These agents, it was reported at the meeting, in many instances were actively engaged in the solicitation of business, not only from the members of the Farm Bureau, but anyone who wanted to buy.

J. C. Hodges, of Birmingham, presided over the meeting, outlining the purpose of the session, and calling particular attention to the fact that merchants of Alabama had no objection whatsoever to the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association being in the mercantile business, but stated that the merchants of Alabama resented the participation of the college in it's approval and endorsement of brands and the manner in which the state paid county agents and other extension workers were actively carrying on the business for this corporation.

A statement was read from a pamphlet put out by the Alabama Farm Bureau citing a statement by Edward A. O'Neal, its former president, to the effect that the Association had enjoyed a mercantile business of seventeen million dollars in Alabama in 1930 at an operating cost of 1.3 per cent.

Subsequent speakers, including Mr. Pettus, contended that this was done because this corporation had no license, and no taxes to pay, and had the endorsement and support of the state agricultural college and its agents.

Organizations represented at the present meeting including the Alabama Merchants Association, Alabama Retail Grocers' Association, Associated Industries of Alabama, Southeastern Hardware and Implement Association and the Alabama Retail Hardware Dealers Association.

"CROOKS FOR A MONTH"

The Senior Class of C. C. H. S. presents "Crooks for a Month," a three-act comedy, at the High School auditorium Thursday night, May 7, at 8 o'clock.

James Bentwood, the worried real estate man, is played by Homer Carroll. Winfield Bentwood and his college chums, Jack Yorke and Marty Copping, conceive the idea of selling horoscopes to help Mr. Bentwood. They establish "the Temple of the Occult," and then the fun begins. Frank McMurray plays the part of the Hindu mystic, "The Great Rawjah," and his assistants are John P. Lawrence and Jack Burks. Mary Heard as "Doreen, the Masked Dancer," is inspired by the great rawjah. These, and many more as interesting scenes, all go to make this play a howling success.

GIRL HURT WHEN SHE JUMPED FROM AUTO

Last Saturday night a girl was hurt when she jumped from a fast running automobile at the crossing of the railroad and Second Avenue. The girl, whose name was not given out, said she was in a car with a man, supposed to be taking her to a show. She said when another man boarded the car, the driver, instead of stopping at the picture show, increased the speed of the car. She said that she feared trouble, and jumped out of the car.

Chief of Police, Boockholdt, arrived at the scene promptly, and was told that the girl fell out of the car. When he suggested that the men take her to the hospital in the car from which she jumped, the girl refused to get into the car. She asked the policeman to let her tell him what had happened. They drew aside a short distance, and while the girl was explaining, the car was cranked up and whisked away.

G. R. DUKE HOME BURNED LAST WEDNESDAY AT NOON

The Union-Banner was somewhat in error about the house in which Earl Vinson was burned to death last Wednesday about noon. We have learned later that it was not a deserted dwelling house, but that it was the home of Mr. G. R. Duke. Practically all of Mr. Duke's household goods, clothing, etc., were in the building and were destroyed by the fire. Mr. Duke and his family were partly living with Mr. Duke's father, W. J. Duke, only a short distance away, and partly living at their own home, but they had not moved from their own home. Practically everything G. R. Duke and family had was destroyed in the blaze. The house belonged to Mr. Duke, and was on what was known at the old Joe Foshee place a mile southeast of Poplar Springs church.

A LONG DISTANCE PIG

Here is a believe it or not story for you. But you might as well believe this one, because it is true. If you remember, Jodie R. Connell had a want adv. in the Union-Banner last week about a lost pig. Well, the pig was found and Jodie went after him Tuesday. Now, where do you guess the pig was. He was at the home of P. G. Eiland down below Mt. Pisgah, a distance of at least 12 miles on a bee line. The pig left Jodie's, who lives near Clint Connell's up on Rocky Creek, on Friday, April 7th, and he got to Mr. Eiland's on Sunday following. He was seen to pass through the farm of T. G. Wyatt some time Saturday.

Mr. Connell had bought the pig, a red Jersey, down in Autauga County two weeks before it got away from him. So, we presume that it had started back home. The pig was only 8 or 9 weeks old.

Earl Parrish expects to go to Biloxi, Mississippi in a few days to spend a week on a fishing trip. He won the trip for his services as a representative of the New York Life Insurance Company in this territory.

STEWART TWIN BROTHERS FROM COOSA COUNTY HERE

Two very pleasant visitors to Clanton Thursday of last week were Messrs. W. O. and J. O. Stewart, from Weogufka, Coosa County. These are about the finest pair of twin brothers we have ever met. J. O. is a farmer and W. O. is rural mail carrier from Weogufka, which job he has been holding for 26 years. W. O. says that although he has been working for Uncle Sam over a quarter of a century, he hardly knows what an inspector looks like. Such men as these twins do not need inspecting.

They had gone from their home to Jordan Dam to fish, but found conditions unfavorable, so they did not fish, but came on up to Clanton to see some friends and attend to a little other business. We hope that the Messrs. Stewart visit us regular and often from now on.

ALABAMA IS THIRD IN COTTON PRODUCTION

By producing 1,472,992 bales of cotton in 1930 Alabama took third position in the list of states in the amount of cotton produced for that year, reports the Department of Agriculture and Industries. Alabama was surpassed by Texas, which produced 4,029,141 bales, and Georgia, which produced 1,592,319 bales. Mississippi with a production of 1,464,247, took fourth place.

Alabama's Unified School Program

Designed To Solve Present Crisis Which Confronts Rural Public Schools of the State

Citizens of Alabama, in view of the disturbed and uncertain situations which have more or less upset the educational program of the State, will be keenly interested to know that the unified legislative program of the Alabama Education Association, which negotiations were begun last fall, has been completed.

At a recent meeting of the Legislative Committee of the Association the unfied program which is given below was adopted without a dissenting vote. The unqualified support of this program by all school officials and educators of the State is assured.

The Unified Program

1. That all moneys appropriated for educational purposes prior to the meeting of the present legislature remain intact.

2. That the legislature be asked to recoup to the public elementary schools by providing additional funds any losses sustained as the result of the decrease in property assessments.

3. That in view of the present crisis confronting the rural schools, an emergency appropriation of two million dollars per year be requested of the legislature.

4. That all divisions or units of the educational system of Alabama, other than the public elementary schools, waive for the time being the presentation or consideration of any bills or measures asking increased appropriations, directly or indirectly, for any service for which they are responsible.

By way of explanation, it might be said that the agreement of all educational forces to the stipulations of the above outlined program means that the way is made open for the legislature of Alabama to hold intact the present appropriations to higher institutions of learning, and to make all increased appropriations of funds available for hte benefit of the rural elementary schools.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE MAY BE HAD BY ALL VETERANS

Contrary to what seems to be a prevalent opinion among veterans of the World War, government insurance can now be applied for by any veteran, whether he had insurance while in the service or not, in amounts from $1,000 up to $10,000, according to an announcement by T. J. Calvert, regional manager of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau in Birmingham this week.

Through the Veterans' Bureau, the government is writing life insurance on seven different plans, including the low rate term insurance on up through the ordinary life, twenty- and thirty-pay life and the endowment policies.

Just now when the government is distributing some $12,000,000 in the state in the form of loans on adjusted service certificates, special efforts are being made by the veterans' bureau to inform the veterans of their rights, in order that they may take advantage of the opportunity to use part of the loan for buying protection for themselves and dependents.

The fact that the government is writing a popular form of insurance is shown by the amount now in force. At the close of the last fiscal year on June 30, 1930, there were 648,044 policyholders, and there was in effect $3,041,601,101.08 insurance.

It is further pointed out that government life insurance pays dividends, has loan and cash surrender values and paid-up and extended insurance features. All policies also carry the total and permanent disability benefit clause.

Further information and the necessary blank forms can be obtained by writing the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, Birmingham, Alabama.

COOKE PLAYERS WILL SPEND TWO WEEKS IN CHILTON CO.

Word this week from Mr. Harry M. Cooke at Mobile says that the famous Cooke Players will be in Chilton for two weeks, beginning next Monday. The week beginning May 4th, they will be in Maplesville, and beginning the 11th they will be in Thorsby for a full week. For the past ten or twelve years, Mr. Cooke and his big troupe of players have been playing at these places every Spring. They appear in Clanton most every fall; and they have friends by the score all over the county. Mr. Cooke and his talented wife, who plays the piano for the show, are fine people, and we are always glad to hear that they age going to be in our midst.

Broke In Courthouse

Theft of More Than Forty Dollars From Office of Tax Collector

When various officials of the county went to their offices on Monday morning, it was found that a thief had broken into some of the places some time Saturday night or Sunday night.

The sum of $46.33 was missing from the cash drawer in the office of Tom Rockett, Tax Collector of Chilton County. The burglar also entered the office of Judge Reynolds and attempted to break open the large iron safe. The combination dial was broken off, but the safe had not been opened. A small amount of cash in a cash drawer aside from the safe had not been molested.

The office of Sheriff Gilespie also received a visit from the burglar, but nothing was found missing.

No clue has been found leading to the identity of the person who committed the burglary.

HAYES BEATS OWN RECORD FOR FINE BERRIES

Mr. J. J. Hayes, who lives on the W. C. Robinson place this side of Dr. Masin's has beat his record of last year for fine strawberries. He brought a sample of his product to The Union-Banner office Monday afternoon. There were exactly 40 berries in the full quart cup. Last year it required 60 of his berries to fill the quart.

Mr. Hayes stated Monday that his berry crop has been cut about half by the ravages of the late model strawberry bug which was reported last week.

Dr. Knapp to Deliver High School Address

President of Auburn To Speak Here On Night of May 25th

The people of Clanton and surrounding community will have more than usual interest in the graduating address of the Chilton County High School this year. The speaker will be Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn. He will speak to the graduating class on Monday night, May 25, and of course it will be an occasion in which everybody may have a part by attending upon this auspicious occasion.

Dr. Knapp is known throughout the South for his broadness and depth of knowledge. He is ripe in experience, and never fails to draw packed houses wherever he speaks.

We congratulate Prof. Warr and the graduating class upon securing Dr. Knapp for this occasion. They could not have secured a speaker of more forceful appeal to the public than is the president of Alabama's agricultural college.

CLANTON SCOUTS TO AID CONFEDERATE VETERANS MONTGOMERY JUNE 1-6

Word comes from the scout executive that Clanton Boy Scouts are to help in a large way the National Confederate Veterans Reunion to be held in Montgomery June 2nd to 6th.

Over a dozen of the local scouts will enter the scout tent city near the Lanier High School Monday afternoon, June 1st, in readiness to assist the Confederate veterans in their reunion which opens the next morning.

Scouts are to serve as guides and ushers. They will be on traffic duty and in charge of information booths. These plus a thousand and one other small services will help in a large measure to make the National Convention a success.

Col. Millard Westcott, Scout Executive for Montgomery, will be ably assisted by Scout Executive Simcox of Birmingham and John J. Sigwald of this council taking charge of the 900 boy scouts who are to assist on this occasion.

The boys are coming not only from this state but from adjoining states. The government is feeding this large contingent. One hundred tents will be ready on a large lot across the street, and two blocks from the Lanier High School, which place will be the headquarters for the entire reunion.

While this will not exactly be a frolic for the boys it will be a wonderful opportunity for service and one which every scout will thoroughly enjoy. C. E. Stapp, local chairman, has the application blanks in his office and those who are not already signed up after meeting the requirements as outlined by Civic Service Chairman Percy Pitts, are urged to call at the county agent's office without further delay.

Scouting has a "learning by doing" method of teaching its members in the two phases of the program, namely, character development and citizenship training. Surely the wonderful training in connection with this last reunion of the Confederate veterans so appropriately held in the "Cradle of the Confederacy" is carrying out these phrases.

Senior Class Play and Memorial

The annual senior class play is always looked upon as a part of the commencement season. It means more than was formerly thought of. It is really the spirit of the occasion rather than the form of it.

Anoher side of the custom of the senior play is the volunteer movement on the part of the seniors who graduate earh year to leave a memorial of some type that will be dedicated to the school by them. This year, the class plans to leave a system of lights on the two brick posts first started by the class of 1930. This will add a great deal to the attractiveness of the campus at night, when it is lighted up. The class hopes also to leave an art square and some rugs for the stage.

The above expenditure will come out of the proceeds of the play. The class very urgently requests that a full house greets them on next Thursday night, May 8th. This play is not only entertaining, but some amateur talent will be seen that night. Miss Bernice Williams is coaching the play.

Junior Senior Picnic
(By Ethel Mae Jones)

On last Friday night the Juniors entertained the Seniors at a delightful picnic at Log Cabin Beach. Several of the teachers were present, and the majority of the two classes.

After arriving at the places of destination, large camp fires were built, and everyone gathered around them. Later on enjoyable picnic lunch of sandwiches and drinks were served. Among the features enjoyed was the stump speech by Coach Walker. Despite the inclement weather, everyone seemed to have enjoyed a most delightful time.

Biology and Chemistry Class Presents Program

Last Wednesday the biology and chemestry classes, under the direction of Mr. Varnell, presented a combined program at the chapel hour. The first scene showed the life of Luther Burbank. This part was played by James Tiffin, who was interviewed by Margaret Jones, a reporter of the New York Times. The stage was decorated with flowers and other plants to testify Mr. Burbanks, famous garden.

The other scenes depicited lives of the following famous biologists and chemists: Antonio Van Leevenhock, (Clarence Fiquette) Charles Darwin, (Durwood Robinson) Lewis Pasteur (Warren Riggins). The entire story of each was told in the first person. A chemical experiment, that of the preparation of the valuable nitrogen gas from the air was successfully completed by Herman Harris and Homer Carroll. This program was greatly enjoyed, and was educational as well as interesting.

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes a Bad Man Good.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Makes Zacchaeus Want to Do Right.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Beginning a New Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance and Restitution.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as a stronghold of the Canaanites which was miraculously delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith, Joshua 6, and also for the faith of Rahab which saved her from destruction with the city Heb. (11:31). Two notorious sinners, Rahab and Zacchaeus, were saved at Jericho.

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4)

1. His object (v. 3).

He sought to see who Jesus was. He doubtless had heard of Jesus' kind treatment of publicans, so was prompted to see what kind of a man he was.

2. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3).

(1) His infamous business (v. 2).

He was a tax collector of the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then, since he was rich, it was evident that he had practiced extortion in collecting taxes. By virtue of his traitorous act in accepting such an office from the Romans and his extortion in collecting taxes, he was ostracized from society. Many men have a hard time in coming to Christ because of their unpopular business relations.

(2) His shortness of stature (v. 3).

He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the people, they had thrust him aside no doubt, with taunts and jeers.

3. His persistence (v. 4).

He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he was determined should be made up by the height of the tree. Zacchaeus seems to have been of that temperament which knows no defeat. The obstacles placed before him he brushed aside; those he could not brush aside he climbed over, his heart set upon the goal.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case, when desire is stirred up in a heart to see Jesus. Jesus is seeking that one. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Jesus called him by name, but did not utter a word which would humiliate Zacchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt with him accordingly. All souls who earnestly seek Jesus shall be found of him. Zacchaeus quickly responded. He came down, and with joy received Jesus. He acted wisely in that he did not hesitate. A moment's indecision and waiting would have kept Zacchaeus from Jesus—from Jesus and salvation.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7).

They said just what they say today when sinners come to Christ. They call to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ saying that he had gone to be a guest with this notorious extortioner, the tax collector. That for which they reproached Jesus was his glory. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10).

2. What Zacchaeus said (v. 8).

His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half of his goods to the poor. The man who a little while ago was a grafter was now a generous giver. His conversion got hold of his pocketbook. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongly exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the past of the sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will seek to make right all wrongs, be they unkind words or unrighteous deeds. Sorrow for sin is not enough when restitution is possible.

3. What Jesus said (vv. 9, 10).

"Today is salvation come to thy house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvation is a present reality to those who receive Jesus Christ.

GIVING SPRING PIGS A START

In building the superior ration for swine in the heart of swine-producing America, the basal farm grown feeds provide the bulk of the ration, and there are none superior to good old yellow corn, fed or on the cob, with ground wheat and ground barley for close competitors, from the standpoint of efficiency.

But all of the basic carbohydrates or starchy feeds are low in proteins, minerals and vitamins, hence they in themselves are insufficient for providing the kind and amount of nutritive elements that porkers must have to prosper and make money. This means that the basic farm grain, whether corn, wheat barley, rye, or dry land sorghums, or a combination of these, must be liberally fortified with high protein, high vitamin, high mineral supplement which is well compounded, rightly blended and properly mixed.

Such a supplemental feed rounds out the farm grain from the nutritive standpoint, making it more efficient so that the pigs may grow on a lesser number of pounds of feed per 100 pounds of grain. Such a supplement puts profitable pep into rations because it provides those essential ingredients of animal nutrition which the pigs must absolutely have in order that they may make the most of the farm grown grains; healthier pigs and greater profits logically follow.

It is mighty wise to allow the pigs to have free access to good pastures during the grazing season. Whether the pigs are grown and fattened on pasture or in dry lot, it is emintly good practice to full feed both the basic farm feed and the supplement in separate feeders, so that the pigs may joyously balance their own rations to their hearts' content as well as provide profit-making joys for the man who owns them.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS
By Jay Taylor

More than a thousand million game fish will be placed this year in our lakes and rivers by the state and federal agencies.

In February the United States had a favorable international trade balance of 50 million dollars. Our imports from Europe were 51 million and from Asia 49 million. The five countries from which our largest purchases came were Canada, Japan, Brazil, Germany and the Phillipines, in the order named.

Noting the fact that a province in Australia has recently failed to meet its financial obligations, one of our philosophers makes the observation that a good place to invest our savings is in the United States of America.

Agents of foreign interests operating in this country, who are working hard to make the United States a European province, are now trying to organize tlong military lines in order to force their views on the American people.

The remains of more than two hundred irrigation canals in Arizona, built by the Indians a thousand years ago, furnish evidence of the culture of the early inhabitants of the Southwest.

California is trying to stimulate a demand in Germany for California-grown fresh fruits. The first experiment with fresh plums and grapes forwarded in regrigerator holds was a success. All of the shipment was sold at auction on the day after its arrival in Hamburg.

Another good way to increase the danger of war is for the United States to disarm, as an example to others, and thus attempt some ambitious and reckless nation to attack us.

A TRIBUTE TO OUR MOTHER

The days roll on, mother dearest, that bring us nearer to you, but you have seemed so far away. The wheels of time have lost their tracks on all about it, but your dear face has remained just the same. What you said to us and the memories of what you did for us come back and back, to your children in the silent seasons of the night, and the busy hours of the morning, and there is not a sickness nor a trial nor joy but what you are present in some form.

More than a thousand times since you journeyed on, we have said if only mother were here, we might say the word or do the thing we postponed or forgot.—J. L. Smith and children.

We wish to express our thanks to Rev. A. C. Nelson for the beautiful scripture he read and the wonderful message he brought us at our dear wife and mother's funeral.

IN MEMORY OF EARL VINSON

On Wednesday at noon, April 22, 1931, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Newt Vinson of Bethel community and carried away their beloved son, Earl, to the sweet beyond where there will be no pain nor sorrow, only smiles and sunshine.

Weep not, dear father, mother, and all, for our Lord loved him better than we, and has seen fit to take him away from this world of pain and woe. It was so hard for us all to give him up, but the Lord doeth all things well. There is a vacant chair that can never be filled, but our loss is heaven's gain. His smiles will be missed by everyone who knew him. He was only eighteen years of age, and was a friend to everyone he met. He had a smile for everyone. But he has gone to rest where we'll all see him once more on that bright and shining shore.

He leaves to mourn his loss father and mother; one sister, Mrs. Charlie Mims, of Clanton; one brother, Julian, of Montgomery; and a host of relatives and friends.

He was laid to rest at Maple Springs cemetery. Rev. A. C. Nelson conducted the funeral, with Martin in charge.

The stock market is receding and it may be discounting the fact that Congress meets again next winter.

Have you had your horoscope read? See what "The Great Rawjah" tells them in "Crook for a Month."

JAMES CLARENCE HUETT

On last Monday morning, April 13, the death angel visited the community, and bore away the sweet spirit of a close friend and brother, Mr. Clarence Huett. He was sick about 2 months. On April the 1st he was carried to Montgomery to a hospital, and on Thursday underwent an operation. The following Monday he passed out to the great beyond. He bore his sufferings without any grumble.

He told his mother that there was not but one reason that he hated to die and that was that he would have to leave his wife and baby behind. He was a member of the Floyd Church and had been for a number of years. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, Mrs. Jewel Huett, who was Miss Jewel Strength before marriage, and one child; a father and mother; five brothers, Oscar, Cecil, Louis, Curtis and Donald and a host of friends and relatives. He was born Aug. 1, 1905 and died April 13, 1931. He was laid to rest at the Verbena cemetery. Bro. J. L. Culpepper conducted the funeral.

PEOPLE VS. GOVERNMENT

One hundred and one years ago, writing in the Edinburgh Review for January, 1830, Thomas Macauley said: "Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the people by strctly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties—by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodities their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment—by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the state.

"Let the government to this—the people will assuredly do the rest."

Macauley's injunction is as true and apt today as when it was written. Almost all our social and economic problems have arisen when government has failed to confine itself to its legitimate duties and has entered the sphere of the individual and of business. The greatest issue now before the American public is people versus government—bureaucracy versus individualism and fundamental democratic principles.

Modern officeholders would do well to reflect on the words of a man who lived a century ago and observed government with an insight that is all too rare.

TOP-DRESSING WITH NITROGEN ADVISED

Auburn, Ala., April 27.—By top dressing with a nitrogen fertilizer the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn has found that yields of cotton, corn, and grass hays are substantially increased and net costs reduced. Nitrogen fertilizers recommended for top dressing are nitrate of soda, nitrate of lime, and on lime land only sulphate of amonia.

The home mixed fertilizers recommended for cotton include 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda (or equivalent) per acre. One-fourth of this is applied with all the superphosphate (200 to 400) pounds and all the potash (25 to 50 pounds of muriate) at time of planting and the remaining three-fourths is applied as a top dressing immediately after chopping and before squares begin to form. Most ready mixed fertilizers do not contain enough nitrogen for best results with cotton and, where this is true, a top dressing will pay.

The corn recommendation is 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda (or equivalent) applied as a top dressing 30 to 40 days after planting. Sudan grass for hay should receive the same amount as corn and it should be applied when the plants are about 2 weeks old.

For top dressing the Alabama station makes no distinction between nitrate fo soda and nitrate of lime. Sulphate of ammonia is recommended for lime land only. It contains about 25 per cent more nitrogen and, if used, the amount per acre should be reduced accordingly in comparison to either of the other two.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The production of metallic zinc of more than 99.9 per cent purity as comparatively low cost looms as a definite probability as a result of research by the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce, details of which are to be announced at an early date.

Establishment of federal employment bureaus in all states with a view to placing prospective workers in contact with jobs was announced recently by Secrtary of Labor William N. Doak. There will be at least one of these offices in each state and all will be coordinated for the best service as a whole.

A further decline in the index of wholesale prices as computed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Bureau of Labor was reported for the month of March. The index number includes 550 commodities weighted according to the importance of each article and based upon 1926 prices as 100. The decline for March was from 75.5 to 74.5.

The Colorado legislature recently passed a bill giving to aged and indigent citizens of the State who are more than 65 years old and have lived in the State at least 10 years $1.00 per day for personal maintenance. The bill will become effective in all counties by September and in several counties before that date.

Foreign trade of the United States showed an increase of $49,000,000 in March over February, the total for March being $448,000,000. Much of this increase, however, was attributed by Dr. Julius Klein to seasonal improvement, although some of it reflected improvement in business conditions, he said.

SOY BEANS WILL MAKE HAY THIS YEAR TOO

It will soon be time to plant soy beans for hay. A large number of farmers over the county made splendid yields of hay from soy beans last year.

Mr. L. G. Posey, west of Jemison, reports that on 12 acres last year he baled 165 bales of oat hay, averaging about 100 pounds to the bale; and that he followed his oats with soy beans and put up 214 bales of soy bean hay that averaged 65 pounds to the bale. Mr. Posey plants about one peck of soy beans to the acre and has bought four bushels of soy beans to plant this year.

Mr. G. A. Plier of the Mineral Springs community planted one gallon of Otootan soy beans for hay last year and saved three good, two-horse wagon loads of hay from them. He says his mules quit eating corn to eat the soy bean hay.

One of the club boys last year reported 14 large two-horse wagon loads of hay saved from two acres of soy beans.

Mr. O. R. Robinson, east of Clanton, says that he has never had any land to turn out as high quality hay as he got from a piece of land planted to soy beans last year.

The Exepriment Station recommends Otootan and Laredo soy beans for hay and Mammoth Yellow soy beans for grazing with hoghs. Let's make an effort this year to grow plenty hay for every head of livestock in the county.

SAVING SOY BEAN SEED IS ADVISED

Auburn, Ala., April 27.—If Alabama farmers ever produce soy beans as extensively as they produce such crops as corn and cotton they must produce and save their soybean seed, in the opinion of the Experiment Station and Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Seed production," said R. Y. Bailey of the Experiment Station, "is essential to increased acreage in soybeans in Alabama. With cheaper cotton there is a greater need for home production of hay from soybeans; and on the other hand, there is less money from cotton to buy seed. Hence the importance of saving them."

With a view to saving seed next fall either special seed plots should be planted this spring or preparations made for preserving a portion of the regular planting for seed, Mr. Bailey said. County agents over the state are assisting farmers in making preparation this spring to save soy bean seed next fall.

The Experiment Station has found that saving soy bean seed is feasible in Alabama. The seven-year average of the Otootan variety on the Experiment Station at Auburn was 5.4 bushels per acre; Laredo, 6.4 bushels.

While preparing for seed they are also planting soybeans for hay and for grazing. Laredo and Otootan are the two leading varieties for hay. Mammoth yellow is grown extensively in north Alabama for hay and for grazing.

As a fertilizer the Experiment Station recommends either 400 to 600 pounds of basic slag per acre or 400 pounds of acid phosphate per acre.

Soy Beans should be planted in rows about 30 inches apart and cultivated as many times as needed to control weeds and grass. Only shallow cultivation is needed.

CHILTON FARMERS NEED TO GROW THEIR OWN MEAT

Did you know that 95 per cent of the farmers in this county do not have a brood sow and 40 per cent do not have a pig of any kind?

We must get more hogs in this county to take care of our meat supply and a few pigs for sale will add to our farm income.

Sows should be bred in May for September litters. Let's go a step further and breed all of our sows to purebred boars.

A recent experiment at Auburn shows the following remarkable results in comparing scrub hogs with first-, second-, and third-cross grades:

1. Each 100 pounds of gain produced on scrub hogs required 465.3 pounds of feed; the first-cross grades 403.3 pounds; second-cross grades, 387.6 pounds; and the third-cross grades, 381.5 pounds.

2. The average feed cost of 100 pounds of gain under dry lot conditions was: scrubs, $9.31; first-cross grades, $8.07; second-cross grades, $7.75; third-cross grades, $7.63.

On one litter of 10 pigs grown out to a weight of 2,000 pounds you would save $24.80 by breeding to a good purebred boar instead of a scrub.

If you do not have a good purebred boar in your community we will be glad to help you locate one. We can't afford to lose hog dollars by using a scrub boar this year. Let's breed all of our sows to purebred boars in May.

"HOG POTATO" IS CALLED TUCCAHO

Editor Union-Banner:

In this week's paper the Man on the Corner tells of the "Hog Potato" or Indian Bread. Says that he believes it is without a name. My grand father, Eliga Miears, said that the Indians called it Tuccaho. So it has a name alright. Grand father Miears lived with the Indians, the Greeks, on the other side of Coosa River. So he knew what they called it.—Martha J. Prim.

FARM LABOR SUPPLY HIGHER; WAGES LOWER

Last year at this time the supply of farm labor was only 99 per cent of normal, while on the first of this April it is 154 per cent, reports F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician, who said the demand a year ago was 85 per cent of normal; at present it is but 72.

"These figures mean that while labor is offering itself for farm work this spring in increased volume, farmers are not accepting the offers by 13 per cent in a large volume as a year ago," Gist said. "This situation reflects the intention of farmers to curtail their activities and reduce their outlays.

"Also the farm wages rates this spring are about 65 per cent of those paid a year ago. Last April the rate per month with board was $20; it is now $13. Day wages with board a year ago were $1.06; now 70 cents. These figures are averages for the state.

"Cash land rents this April average $3.25 per acre, against $3.60 last spring, while land values have declined from $30 an acre to $25."

FIRST YEAR OF BULL RING GETS GOOD RETURNS

The directors of the Dale County Bull Association met in the county agents office last Saturday afternoon and troop reports on club activities during the last year.

R. E. Hayes reported the Haw Ridge bull in good shape and wit a breeding record of 30 cows for the year. Charles Weed reported 39 cows for the Ariton bull. Ab Payne and Grover Flowers reported 45 for the Ozark bull.

This is a total of 164 calves that have been sired by these four bulls during the twelve months they have been in the county. They are all reported in good shape and sufficiently appreciated by the people to maintain them.

Every service fee of $3.00 was reported collected or secured and all four communities in sound financial condition. The number of services could be practically doubled the second year to the advantage of all concerned.

The value of these high bred bulls might be computed in this manner. Of the 164 calves dropped 82 will be heifer calves and 82 bull calves. At an average value of $37.50 each for the heifer calves, and they can't be bought for that, they will be worth $3,075.00. The bull calves should easily be worth $10.00 each, on an average, and that is $820.00, or a total enhanced value of dairy cattle by $3,895.00 for this first year.

Over a long period it is hard to figure the real value of these better bred animals and what they will mean to the average of the livestock in the county.

It would be hard to buy better bred bulls than these four association bulls, regardless of the price paid for them. A farmer could better afford to haul his cattle a considerable distance than to use scrub bulls.

Grover Flowers was re-elected president of the association; J. R. Helms, vice president; and T. J. Trawick, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Flowers presided at the Saturday meeting.

Mr. Stapp announces that a meeting of the members of the Chilton County Bull Association will meet at his office the third Saturday in May. Several of the best bulls will be shown at that time.

ALABAMA WAGON SCALES TESTED FOR ACCURACY

All wagon scales in Alabama have been tested for accuracy by the Weight and Measure Division of the Department of Agriculture and inspectors of the division have started their second test of the scales of the state, reports H. S. Holloway, chief.

Mr. Holloway reports that all the wagon scales will be tested yearly for accuracy. "This assures correct weights," said Holloway, when he declared that the service is being appreciated more than ever before, and that he is receiving calls frequently for special service.

POULTRY

AVOID PUDDLES AND COCCIDIOSIS

(By Prof. Walter B. Krueck)

Placing the brooder house upon a heavy sod seems to help control and eliminate coccidiosis.

Even where sandy soils are used there is a tendency for the surface soil to become puddled close to the brooder houses where the chicks congregate. As a result of the stamping of this soil about the brooder house, puddles will form following most of our spring rains.

Professor Halpin at the University of Wisconsin Experiment Station placed chicks upon sandy soil that had not been used for poultry for a great many years. In less than five weeks an infection of coccidiosis appeared in the flock. In adjoining lots where good bluegrass sod was maintained, no difficulty was encountered.

As a result of the above experience, Professor Halpin would recommend that the brooder house be placed upon sod, even though the pullets are allowed to run into cultivated corn fields.

Moving the brooder house often, also, will help keep a good sod around the brooder house where the chicks tend to congregate and will help to prevent the development of the disease.

As coccidiosis has been quite detrimental to growing pullets and also to pullets in the laying house during the winter months, an ounce of prevention here is worth a great many pounds of cure. A few minutes time in moving the brooder house often during the growing period will help to grow stronger, healthier, and better pullets and make more profit for the farmer and the poultryman.

Listen! You tired business men. A visit to "The Temple of the Occult," solved Mr. Bentwood's problems in "Crook for a month."

It is very difficult to transport live octopi even from place to place on the sea coast, and this difficulty becomes almost insurmountable to a spot far inland. Octopi must be kept in running sea water of equable temperature, and the feeding presents a difficult problem since octopi relish small fish and mollusks, which should be alive. There is no way to prevent an octopus from discharging the black fluid which it employs as a protection, and the water becomes clear after such a discharge only when the discolored water is all run out.

Alabama's New 4-H Cotton Champion

Clifton Ryland, 15-year-old boy of Repton, won the 4-H Cotton Club Contest with a production of 1,920 pounds of seed cotton on a one-acre field.

Final plans have been announced for the crop-growing contests to be conducted among Alabama farm folks this year.

The new projects include a cotton contest for 4-H Club members and a home garden contest for farm women. Copies of the rules, with the list of prizes, may be obtained from county agents or the Alabama Agricultural Extension Service.

"It is impossible to measure the value of crop-production contests in this State," says M. H. Pearson, Alabama manager of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau which is sponsoring the projects. "They have served as an effective medium for acquainting farmers young and old with the value of good seed, adequate fertilizer, and the control of diseases and insect pests. The entrants in the contests have found that the same methods used in making a high yield on a three or five-acre field may be profitably applied to the entire farm.

"Higher yields are necessary in the State," he declares, "in order to make profits at present low prices. It is only through large yields that the cost of production, say of a pound of cotton or a bushel of corn, can be kept below the market prices."

SINGING AT CONCORD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The Central Singing Society will meet at Concord church next Sunday afternoon, and we expect to have a fine singing. Members of the United Society have a special invitation to meet with us at Concord, since they will not meet at their regular place. All singers and lovers of music in this vicinity are cordially invited.

The singing last Sunday afternoon at Poplar Springs was real good. Visitors from far off were Messrs. Hammonds and Devaughn from Elmore County. Prof. G. C. Weldon was there, but he is no longer considered a visitor but a full-fledged member of the society.

Negotiations are under way to exchange books with the United Society for a few weeks. We hoped to have their Morris-Henson books to use at Concord next Sunday afternoon, but have been unable so far to get action from all concerned, however, we hope to do so in the near future.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

Strawberry harvest is now well started in Thorsby. Weather conditions have been the most favorable in years, and barring a lack of moisture for the balance of the season, the crop will be the largest and the best in quality ever grown in Thorsby. The first carload, 370 crates went to Birmingham Friday night for Saturday's market. Another car was loaded Saturday and three more Monday. The first car sold for $4.00 per crate of 24 quarts each, and the other four cars were started, unsold to northern markets. This is often done, and by the time they reach the Ohio River, information has been received by our fruit association as to where berries are most needed together with prevailing prices and each car is then routed to the city where most favorable conditions exist. Often the car of berries is sold before it reaches its destination.

This can only be done where confidence has been established between the shipper and the buyer, each treating the other honestly, and with regard to mutual interest. The Thorsby Association, and its products have in years past experience become well and favorably known to buyers in northern markets, and so satisfactorily has been the management to the growers that the same officers are re-elected year after year.

Thorsby public school closed on Tuesday of this week, and the youngsters will now be available as pickers, which at 2 cents a basket, makes attractive employment for hundreds of them. As an instance of how the little folks are interested, we yesterday, called at the C. R. Foss home, where the older members of the family were picking berries, while Carl, John and Bobby, were all busy making crates in a shed, each doing a part in team work fashion.

A successful berry season has come to mean very much to the people of this section. It turns a lot of money loose for the benefit of the whole community, at a season when money is most needed to carry on other farming activities. It pays accumulated winter bills, and often permits deposit of a snug sum in the bank or other investment that is apt to be profitable.

The operetta presented Saturday night at the Thorsby Institute, by the Helen Keller Literary Society, composed exclusively of T. I. students was a remarkable exhibition of careful study on the part of more than forty members of the student body and effective training on the part of their instructor, Miss Jennie Thorman, head of the T. I. music department. The operetta was slightly hindered by some of the participants dropping out with the measles durthe time of practice.

One seldom sees an amateur play so varied in scope, so well done in every part. We have heard only commendation of it from anyone who saw it. The bright young faces, the beautiful costumes, the agility of the dancers and the quality of the lialogues, declamations, solos, and choruses, were appreciated, and will be remembered as a very successful play.

Thorsby P.-T. A. will sponsor a benefit party at the public school building, Thursday night, April 30th at 7:30. Games including Dominoes, Rook and Caroms will be played, after which refreshments will be served. Tickets will be 25 cents. Everybody come, young and old. The proceeds will go to try and clear up the debt on the electric school pump.

The home of the late J. P. Sorenson was sold last week to Mr. N. Laurell of Birmingham, father of A. N. Laurell, of Thorsby. The elder Laurell has been for the past 18 years an instructor in Manual arts in the Phillips High school in Birmingham, and has arrived at an age when teachers in city scools are apt to be retired for younger ones, and has chosen Thorsby as a desireable place in which to spend his declining years.

His wife will take possesion of the property within the next few days, accompanied by a young grandaughter, and Mr. Laurell will spend week ends and vacation months with her here.

Thorsby has a new doctor that has moved here. Dr. J. F. Lee has several times looked over the situatiou here, and although for more than 14 years he has been engaged in the general practice of medicine in Birmingham, he has decided that for what he really wants, Thorsby offers a good opening. He came here about a week ago and finally secured from the Alabama Power Company the 3 rooms occupied by them as Thorsby headquarters.

Mr. I. S. Gerald and sister, Ruth, and Miss Sara Malpas, all of Birmingham, were week end visitors at the home of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

A letter received from Mrs. Ollie Tagg, by Miss Lois Leech, states that she is suffering from cataracts, on both eyes, and can hardly see, and is not allowed to write. She wanted her Thorsby friends to know the reason she did not answer their letters. She will be exceedingly glad if they will write, even though she cannot answer. Mrs. Taggs' address is, 412 Franklin, St. Greenville, Michigan.

Howard Brothers have a good stock of blooming Geraniums for Mothers Day.

Mr. Arthur Villadsen was a week end visitor to the home folks, returning to his home in Lincoln, Ala. He took his wife and two children, who had been spending a week with Mrs. T. W. Robinson.

Mesdames A. E. Reagan, C. R. Foss, James Bosworth, Naomi Turnquist and Ruth Foss made a short visit to friends in Fairfield Sunday.

Word has been received from a sister of Grandma Williams at Guntersville, that Mrs. Williams is so far improved after her stroke, as to be able to talk a little and sit propped up in bed.

Announcement is made that Miss Ethel Thompson, and Turner Gamble were married Thursday afternoon, April 23 at the home of the parents of the bridegroom in Dadeville, Ala. After spending a few days in Columbus, Ga., the couple came to Thorsby, where for the present they will make their home with Dudley Thompson and family. Mr. Gamble will assist in some capacity in their business.

The Congregational Ladies Aid social will be held at the Thorsby Institute Thursday afternoon, May 7. Misses Leech and Jenkins will be hostesses.

Mrs. E. W. Butler was hostess for an evening of entertainment of the Thorsby Institute Faculty last Monday evening. Candy making and popping corn were among the stunts provided.

Mrs. Burton Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Higgins were week end visitors to Dadeville.

Mrs. J. H. Goddard entertained ten ladies at a quilting party last Wednesday.

Dr. Horace Franklin was a week end guest at the home of his folks in Thorsby.

The Misess Brown Russel, Ruth Pitts, Catheryn Stallings and Camilla McCullum were Sunday guests of Miss Edna Raybon.

There will be the usual monthly singing service at the Congregational church Sunday night, May 3rd, at 7:15.

Miss Vivan Roebuck and Miss Mildred Langford of Birmingham spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lucas and son, Ronald, and daughter, Mrs. Mills, with her baby, left Monday by auto for Flint, Michigan, where they will make an indefinite stay. They will stop for short visits to friends enroute.

Mrs. J. P. Sorenson, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Brink, with whom Mrs. Sorenson will make her home left for Chicago, where they reside, on train No. 4, Sunday night.

Having recovered from the measles the little folks to the number of eleven, attended Junior Christian Endeavor, Sunday afternoon.

Gene Bergmann and Anita Tulley Bergmann head the comany of experienced play folk who will present Frank Craven's delightful comedy, "New Brooms" the last of the Thorsby Institute Lyceum courses, here on the evening of May 8th at 7:45. They have had important appearances on Broadway, and have toured many parts of the country.

In the Frank Craven comedy of American Life, "New Brooms," they present a play that is filled with absorbing interest and most unusual and laugh provoking situations.

Admission will be 50 cents for adults, 35c for teachers and students. Those who have season tickets, be sure bring them.

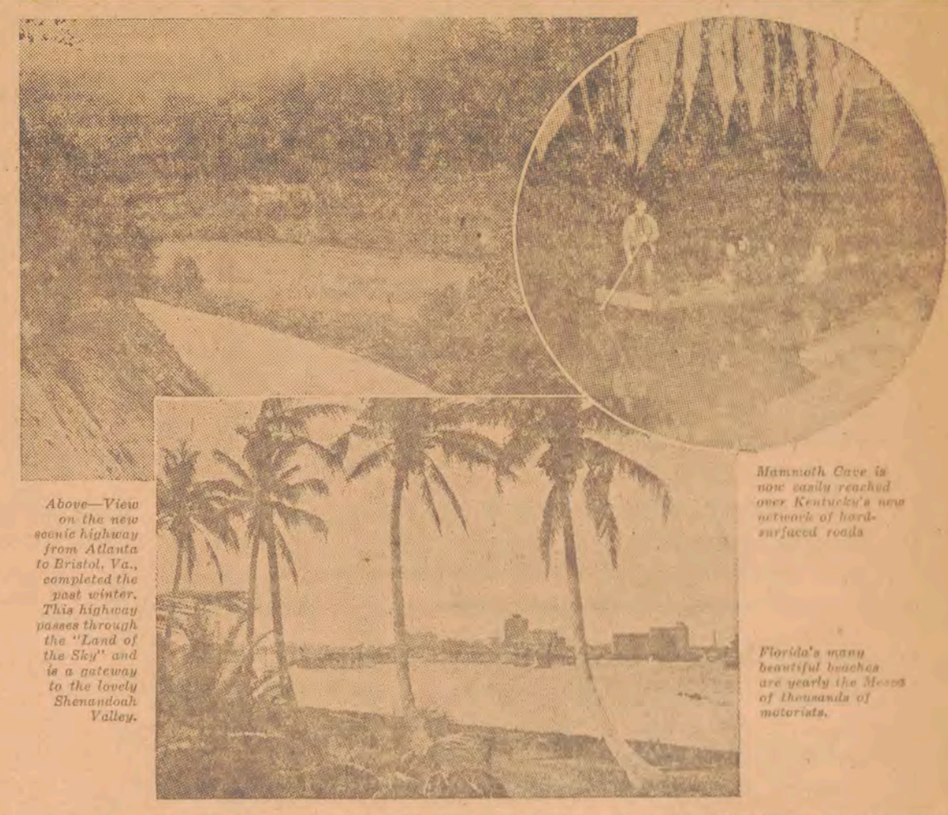
Christian Endeavor met at the Congregational church Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The leader was Cecil Each. The main topic was "Unmet Needs of the World." Among the unmet needs of the world discussed were needs of Japan, Newfoundland and India. Special music was rendered by Miss McKee, a violin solo, "Perfect Day."

Last Sunday evening there was held at the Thorsby Grammar School building a union church service, marking the last Sunday of their school year, Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, preached the sermon from the text, "What is Life," and brought a good message. Other local ministers had a place on the program. There was a large attendance and evident interest in the service.

On last Monday evening a full house greeted the presentation of the operatta given by the Thorsby Public School. The title of the play was "A Day in Flowerdom," and the entire cast of characters was from children below the seventh grade. Mrs. E. N. Bentley trained the children for their parts and she is certainly to be congratulated on the fine way they performed. The children were all in costume, representing the various flowers of the garden, and each one did their part beautifully. The songs and choruses were all well rendered. A drill by nine little girls in costume, between acts fitted in nicely with the operetta and was thought by some to be a part. Miss Clara Vines trained the girls for the drill. The closing scene was a party where all the flowers of the garden were gathered in which they crowned their queen. The stage was beautifully decorated with flowers and greenery and made a lovely setting for the play. It was a fine entertainment and judging by the applause and expressions of pleasure, was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance.

At the close Prof. W. T. Bean presented diplomas to the class finishing the sixth grade.

The W. M. U. quarterly meeting was held at Sardis last Thursday with a nice representation from the different churches. Thorsby was represented by the following: Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Jones, Mrs. Ella Hall, Mrs. W. H. Raybon, Mrs. M. E. Willis, Mrs. Donald Merchant, Mrs. L. H. Lowery, Mrs. Tom Robinson, Mrs. G. F. Harper and Mrs. S. J. Davenport. The day was very much enjoyed by all, inspiring talks were given by one of the state workers and others.



The W. M. U. circle meeting was held at the Baptsit Church Wednesday faternoon, a good program was rendered.

We are studying the Sunday school manual at the Baptist Church which will be a great help to us all if we will just go and study it. We are now at the teachers division and we urge all the teachers t obe with us Wednesday night, April 29th, so they can learn more about their duties.

Some who have been sick were back in Sunday school Sunday, we were glad to see them. Let's get to work and make our congregation reach 150 and more.

New Highways Are Offering Many Delightful Trips to Southern Motorists

Above—View on the new scenic highway from Atlanta to Bristol, Va., completed the past winter. This highway passes through the "Land of the Sky" and is a gateway to the lovely Shenandoah Valley.

Mammoth Cave is now easily reached over Kentucky's new network of hard-surfaced roads

Florida's many beautiful beaches are yearly the Mecca of thousands of motorists.

Standard Oil Touring Service Will Route Trips Free

In an effort to aid drought and unemployment relief during the Fall and Winter of 1930, much additional highway construction was undertaken in practically every state in the Union. This was particularly true of the South, where mild winters permit the continuance of construction through the winter months.

Many new through highways have been completed, many unpaved gaps in highways have been hard-surfaced, so that this spring the roads of the South offer the Thorsby motorist the most alluring picture they have ever presented.

Following the example of North Carolina, which floated large bond issues several years ago in order to build hard-surfaced roads throughout the state, many other Southern states have floated bond issues and there has been an almost immediate improvement in the main highways. Construction work for the past months has been at high pitch in these states.

In whatever direction the Southern motorist wishes to go—north, east, south or west — to the mountains, to the seashore, to the metropolitan cities, to the National Parks—he can travel for hundreds of miles without leaving hard-surfaced highways.

Since last summer, an all-hard-surfaced short route has been completed between Atlanta and Bristol, Va., (gateway to the valley of Virginia) that cuts off 64 miles from the old route. This establishes a new and better connection for motorists who are headed for "the land of the sky." For those extending their trip north from Bristol, much improvement will be noted in U. S. Highway No. 11 through this historic and scenic region.

The last unpaved gaps in the main route through Alabama, between Tallahassee and Nashville, Tenn., will be completed in the immediate future. Extensive improvements in the main highways in Georgia, Kentucky and Florida have and are being made.

Progress has been rapid during the last few months in bringing Mammoth Cave in Kentucky to the status of a National Park. There is now a hard-surfaced highway to the cave, and improvements have already been made in the grounds.

The Standard Oil Touring Service is a free bureau of road information, operated by the Standard Oil Company Incorporated in Kentucky for the benefit of Southern motorists. This Touring Service keeps in constant touch with road conditions in every state in the Union, and routes trips for motorists over the best roads and by the shortest way. Address a letter or card to Standard Oil Touring Service, 426 West Bloom Avenue, Louisville, Ky., stating the starting point and destination of your trip, and maps and complete road information will be sent you free of charge.

DEPARTMENT DECREASES EXPENSES BY $83,051.32

Following an economy program, the expenses of the Department of Agriculture and Industries has been reduced $83,051.32 per year, with further reduction planned, reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner, to Governor Miller.

After explaining that on January 2, 1931, the State Board of Agriculture, at his suggestion, approved a general program of economy and retreachment, Commissoiner Storrs said:

"Last year the expenses of this department were $401,854.03, which was an average monthly expense of $33,487.83. We have nearly completel the program of retrenchment and our average monthly expense for the months of February and March was $26,420.72, a reduction of $6,912.61 per month, or $83,-051.32 per annum, which you will not is a reduction of more than 20 per cent from last year's expense.

"Two additional people will be dropped before the first of June and we believe that the monthly expenses will be reduced to a minimum of around $25,000.00 which would give us a still larger percentage of savings."

Governor Miller expressed his appreciation of the cooperation of Commissioner Storrs and the Board of Agriculture by saying in part:

I appreciate the cooperation of yourself and the State Board of Agriculture in the program we are seeking to carry out of reducing the expenses of the State."

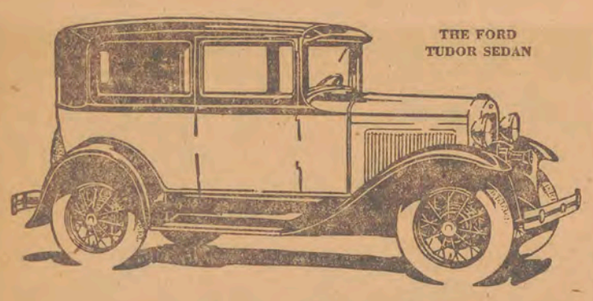
IMPROVEMENT IS MADE IN GRADE AND STAPLE

Of 13,730,600 bales of American upland cotton ginned during the past season, 87.1 per cent was estimated to be white in color, compared with 84.3 per cent ginned last year; 69.3 per cent was white, middling and better compared with 63.3 per cent; cotton other than white and extra white was 9.3 per cent, compared with 12.5 per cent last year, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

From the standpoint of tenderability in settlement of contracts made subject to the U. S. cotton futures act, and analysis of the figures indicates a total of 11,621,100 bales, or 84.6 per cent tenderable, compared with 75.7 per cent tenderability in the case of cotton ginned last year. Of tenderable cotton, 10,221,100 bales, or 74.4 per cent of total upland, ranged in staple from 7-8 inch to 1 1-32 inches, inclusive, and 1,400,000 bales were over 1 1-32 inches in staple.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF EARL MAYO VINSON

On Wednesday morning, April 22. Earl dressed himself, smiling as usual. He told his mother and dad he would soon be back. But little did he know he would never return.



For the past four months he has been in ill health; although after taking several treatments from a specialist his health at the present was much better. He bore all his illness with patience. All was done for him that loving hands could do, until the final call came, then he was away from home. We none know what Earl suffered during the last; but the time was short and his suffering was over. He was 18 years of age at the time of his death.

The children of God are like unto a flower, they spring up, and are then cut down. God chooseth His children not all of on old age, but some who are in the bloom of life; as we choose our flowers for a vase, not only do we choose old ones that have already given all their beauty; we choose them for their fragrance, and the buds and the ones that have just bloomed out for their beauty. So like unto this God chose Earl in the bloom of life.

He leaves to mourn his loss his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Newt A. Vinson; one sister, Mrs. Elva Mims; all of Bethel community; one brother, Julian C. Vinson, of Montgomery; and a host of relatives and friends.

FORD RELIABILITY

Long, hard use shows the value of good materials and simplicity of design

EVERYWHERE you go you hear reports of the good performance and reliability of the Ford.

One owner writes—"The Ford Tudor Sedan I am driving has covered 59,300 miles through all kinds of weather. It is still giving perfect satisfaction."

Another owner describes a trip of 3217 miles in 93 hours over bad roads and through heavy rain and sleet in the mountains. "Throughout the entire trip," he writes, "the Ford performed excellently and no mechanical trouble of any kind was experienced. The shatter-proof glass undoubtedly saved us from serious injury when a prairie chicken struck the windshield while we were traveling at 65 miles an hour."

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Gen. John J. Pershing

The competitive examination for West Point was on. It was a close contest between two of the candidates. The Missouri congressman, conducting the examination for his district, had a hard time grading them. Finally, he decided that one of the two leaders rated just one point better than the other. He named John Joseph Pershing as the winner and appointed him as a cadet to the United States Military academy.

It was by this narrow margin that Uncle Sam obtained the general who was to command the greatest armed host ever raised in the United States and to lead it to victory with the allies in the greatest war in the world's history.

No ambition nurtured from early boyhood prompted John Pershing to seek admission to West Point. He had no set ideas on becoming a soldier when he was a little fellow. In fact, he was headed for a career as a teacher or a lawyer, and was a student in the Kirksville Normal school when he won the appointment to the Military academy.

He saw his congressman's notice of the examination in a newspaper and asked his sister, who was also attending the Kirksville school, if she would advise him to try the test. She certainly would, she told him. This coincided with his own ideas on the subject, so his military career may be said to have had its first impetus in the reading of a newspaper advertisement.

General Pershing was born in 1860 at Laclede, Mo., a hamlet of some 700 inhabitants. His father, whose ancestors had come from Alsace, had the general store at Laclede and also owned a farm on the outskirts of the town. The future commander of the A. E. F. was the oldest of six children. He assumed much responsibility in helping to care for them.

The Pershing youngsters spent considerable time on the farm. Young John developed into a capable worker in the fields even as a boy. The outdoor life and exercise made him a fine upstanding and vigorous youth. He was known as a good fighter when he had to use his fists, but he was never one to go out looking for trouble.

He could ride horseback, fish, swim and hunt when he was a little shaver. Such training fell to the lot of all boys in the West in those days. His mother taught him his first book lessons and instilled in him the desire for a good education.

If he wasn't a brilliant student, he was a conscientious one and stood well in his classes. Fellow pupils of the Laclede days can recall that when John Pershing had a problem to solve he worked at it until he had the correct answer. While he was quiet as a boy, he was full of fun and enjoyed playing pranks with the youngsters of his own age.

Before he entered the Kirksville Normal school he taught for two terms at Prairie Mound, a few miles distant from Laclede. He was eighteen at the time. Some of his pupils were older than that. One day he had to chastise an unruly pupil. The lad's father, well over six feet tall and big in proportion, appeared the next day to demand satisfaction of the teacher.

He had a gun in his pocket. He stormed about and roared threats. First the young teacher took the gun from the man. Then he handed him a sound thrashing with his fists.

Young Pershing was a leader among the students at Kirksville. He was equally prominent at West Point. They tell the story that when a group of hazers tried to put the new cadet through the mill, he thrashed two of them soundly.

He was serious, persistent and determined in his efforts to become an excellent soldier during his student days at the Military academy. He made a good record in his studies, ranking thirtieth in his class when he was graduated in 1886: He was senior cadet captain and was elected president of his class.

The newly made second lieutenant was assigned to the cavalry. He saw service as a young officer under Nelson A. Miles in the Apache, Geronimo and Wounded Knee campaigns. Then he taught military tactics at the University of Nebraska, also acting as assistant professor of mathematics.

He studied law while assigned to Nebraska, was graduated with honors and admitted to the bar. Then he was ordered to West Point as an instructor. From there he was detailed to duty in Cuba, serving under General Shafter in the Spanish-American war. He was promoted for bravery at the battle of El Caney.

He made a brilliant record in the Philippines and led the expedition into Mexico before being put in command of the A. E. F. Uncle Sam was fortunate, indeed, that John Pershing topped his rival in the West Point competitive examination for his district by the narrow margin of that single point.

IN MEMORY OF J. P. RAINWATER

On Thursday morning, April 9th, the death angel visited the home of my dear uncle, James Rainwater, and took the one light that had always shone, the greatest pleasure in our home. He had been in ill health for the past three years. He was 71 year of age. His home was in Lawrence County; and was reared in Decatur and Moulton, Alabama, and lived there until he was past 35 years of age. He has lived most of his life since in and around Billingsley. Most everyone who knew him loved him. He greeted everyone he met with a friendly smile.

Even though Uncle Jim is gone, the smile and sweet words are stlil left for us to pattern after. We all feel sure that our loss was heaven's gain. He said so many times before death overtook him that he was ready to die. Though we knew his misery was great while here on earth, it is hard for us to realize that we could give him up; but God knew best and called him to that sweet eternal home where there will be no more suffering or burdens to bear.

If everyone could live and show that they were as willing to die as Uncle Jim was, we could all be better satisfied.

Uncle Jim left a widow and two brothers, Mr. T. B. Rainwater, of Pletcher, Alabama; and Mr. H. E. Rainwater, of Prattville, Alabama; besides a host of friends to mourn his death.—A Niece, Ruby Wells.

IN MEMORY OF MISS ADDIE CHRISTIAN

On the evening of April 9th, about 8:30 o'clock the angel of death came and carried from our midst a very dear and authentic young lady, Addie Christian, who was just in the bloom of life. Addie, with two young men companions, was on her way to Selma to see her sister, Tommye, when the Chrysler roadster in which she was riding became uncontrolable and overturned about one mile south of Plantersville, throwing her out. Her skull was crushed and death was instantaneous.

Her death was a dreadful shock to relatives and a multitude of friends, who will miss her sweet voice and ever tender smile. But weep not, dear bereaved ones, for she has gone to a world of happiness, and wishes the ones she left behind to live the life He would have us live, so as to be prepared to join her in the heavenly world above; as our going may too be unexpected, and sudden, as was hers.

Funeral services were held for this dear girl at Maplesville Baptist Church, Saturday, April 11th, at eleven a. m., with interment in the city cemetery; with Brislin Brothers of Selma in charge.—A Devoted Pal.

CONCORD 4-H CLUB

The 4-H Club of Concord community held a meeting Monday night, April 20th, 7:30. There was not very many present. Our next meeting will be held Monday night, May 11th, 7:30. We want all members present. We gave out the record books and farm bulletins to each member to make a talk on next meeting night. We have a total enrollment of 45 members, and are expecting others to join.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. JIM BRAND

On Wednesday afternoon, April 15th, 1931, the beautiful spirit of Maggie Knox Brand responded to the call of Him whose faith keepeth and whose love so tenderly he bore to all. She was sick for quite a while with flu and then pneumonia. All was done for her that loving hands could do, but God knew best and took her soul home to sweet rest.

She leaves to mourn her loss a father, two brothers, three sisters, a husband and four children, besides a host of friends and relatives.

She was laid to rest in Mt. Springs cemetery Thursday, Rev. Ingram conducting the funeral services with Howard and Dardin of Sylacauga in charge.

THE RUTHERFORD LITERATURE

Editor Union-Banner:

After reading a piece in your paper last week from a reader in regard to the books being put out by Judge Rutherford, I want to say I am sorry I had the misfortune of getting hold of some of these books, and want to say for the benefit of our country to beware of such teaching. Spend your money for supporting the poor and needy, and to somebody to carry the message of Jesus Christ to this lost world rather than to uphold any such doctrine as Rutherford is putting out.

Souls of men and women are too precious for such fascinating teaching to come in their reach; such stirs up my heart to read the Word of God more than ever. My advice is to read your Bibles and leave off such hearsay as this. He claims that the preachers of our land are hatred to God's creation because they preach the truth; claims the Bible in some places have been mistranslated in our language to uphold this doctrine. We don't believe no such rot. May these few lines stir you up to read the Word of God more than ever.—Ellis Cleckler, Clanton, Route 2.

TIMBER LOSSES SEVERE WHEN FIELD AGENTS LEAVE

Montgomery, Ala., April 27.—Several Alabama counties which for a number of years suffered very little from forest fires were burned very severly during the past year. In each of these cases the losses occurred after the local forestry agents had been withdrawn on account of lack of funds for the state forestry department to continue its work of cooperation with the landowners.

Out of a total of twenty-three million acres of forest land in the state approximately thirteen and a half million acres, comprising the portions subjected to the greatest hazard, were included in forestry districts with a local agent in charge of each. The annual fire losses in this organized territory brought down to four or five per cent of the forest land area. When the service was discontinued in many of the counties, however, on account of lack of funds, the results were immediate and grievous. It is expected that over much of this area the losses during the current year will reach eight or nine per cent.

Collins Chapel Community

(Fifty Years Ago)

THE BEAN FAMILY

Fifty years ago there lived in the Collins Chapel community two families of Beans. The heads of those families were Mat Bean and Dock Bean, brothers, who came here from Coosa County when they were small boys.

Mat Bean married Amanda Gentry, and settled on the tract of land where Collins Chapel school house is now located. He lived and reared his family at the place where Henry Cox now lives. In the family were seven boys and four girls.

Laura Bean, the first child of Mat Bean, became the wife of W. P. Cleckler, of Mineral Springs community, where she yet lives and owns her home.

Madison Bean was the second child. He became a prominent citizen of the community, where he lived until his death in 1906. He was killed when he fell from a telephone pole. He was the father of Harlem Bean, and a number of other children who live in this county.

Next was Alabama Bean, who married Charley Littleton. Several years ago they moved to Jefferson County, and reared a large family.

Anna Bean was the next child. She was the wife of Anderson Marcus. They reared a large family of children. Mrs. Marcus now lives at Thorsby.

William Bean was mirried to Alma Bates. They lived in this community a number of years, and then moved to Jefferson County. Mr. Bean died about five years ago.

John Bean was the next child of Mat Bean. He married a Miss Huett. They lived in Jefferson County, and have four or five children.

Elbert Bean lives north of Clanton, near the cotton mill. His first wife was Mattie Nix. His second wife was Mrs. Ella Thompson.

Robert Bean was the only one of the children of Mat Bean who lived his life and died on the old home place. His wife was a Miss Bussey. At the time of his death Robert Bean was a member of the County Board of Education of Chilton County, to which office he was elected about four years ago.

Arizona Bean became the wife of Joe Littleton, a son of Aaron Littleton. They had several children, most of whom died when young. Mrs. Littleton died about five years ago.

Oscar Bean, who now lives at Thorsby, was married to a daughter of Uncle John Hayes, of Jemison.

Jadie Bean, who is now keeper of the Chilton County Alms House, was the last child of Mat Bean. His wife was a Miss Cleckler.

Dock Bean, brother of Mat Bean, lived just one-half mile north of Collins Chapel Church. His wife was Eliza Martin. They lived at the same place until the entire family several years ago moved to Shelby County, near Montevallo. Dock Bean has been dead for several years. The only one of the family we now know of is a Mrs. Wallace, who still lives near Montevallo.

Mat and Dock Bean were brothers of W. H. Bean, who lived for many years and died near Mineral Springs.

Carolina Woman Lost 47 Pounds

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Gruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends say.

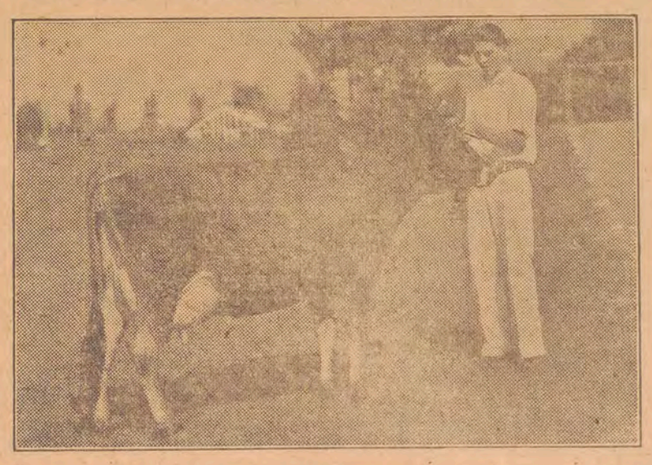
"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C., Jan., 1930. "P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Co., and druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty mtats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

CENTER HILL

Health here is greatly improved. The flu has about died down, and no new cases of mumps have been reported. All are well of the mumps except Mr. B. L. Cobb, who is still confined to his room. We hope for him a speedy recovery; we sure miss him in our singings.



Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cobb and children went to Blocton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Price and daughters, Mary and Eula, spent the week end with their daughter and sister, Mrs. Ward Thrash, in Dry Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Linnie Cherry, Mrs. Wesley Cherry, Mrs. Mattie Chandler and children of Birmingham spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Webb.

Sunday afternoon was our singing day at this place. The crowd was small on account of an all day singing at Ashby; but the singing was good. On account of our president being absent, Mr. Claudy Scott acted in his place. The following directed several songs each: Messrs. Claudy Scott, Burble Price, W. R. Scott, William Price, W. J. Northcutt, Leo Cobb, Richard Durens. Organists were Mrs. Carrie Northcutt, Miss Effie Cofer, and Mrs. B. L. Cobb.

PAUL ROLFSMEIER AND MARY LUCILE BESS 813221

Accomplishing the unusual feat of breaking two Jersey world records for production in her age class, 305-day official tests, Mary Lucile Bess, a senior 2-year-old Jersey cow owned by Herman and Paul Rolfsmeier, Seward, Neb., recently yielded 761.13 pounds of butterfat, 13,216 pounds of milk in 305 days.

With her milk yield of 13,216 pounds, the equivalent of 6,146 quarts, she exceeds by more than 1,000 pounds the world milk record for senior 2-year-olds, 305-day tests made by Fern's Fair Adelaide tested by Clawson Y. Cannon, Provo, Utah. At the same time, with her butterfat yield of 761.13 pounds, the equivalent of 951 pounds of butter, she supersedes Fon Sayda, owned by E. J. Cornish, Cold Spring, N. Y., as senior 2-year-old world champion butterfat producer of teh Jersey breed, 305-day tests. Fern's Fair Adelaide's record was completed in 1922 and Fon Sayda's in 1929.

Mary Lucile Bess is the highest producing Jersey, all ages, 305-day tests, in Nebraska and is the first cow of her breed in the state to break a world record for either milk or butterfat production. Seven different supervisors from the Nebraska College of Agriculture checked her production while she was making her world records. During the entire test she was milked by machine along with the other purebred Jerseys in the large Rolfsmeier herd.

Estimated at 14 cents per quart, the average price at which milk from the Rolfsmeier dairy was sold while she was on test, the amount of milk Mary Lucile Bess produced in the 350 days was worth $860.44.

Mary Lucile Bess was bred by Herman Rolfsmeier and several of the animals in the first two generations of her pedigree were bred by Walter L. Hunter of Lincoln, Neb., while others were bred in Texas by J. A. Pate, Wills Point, and the late J. Riley Green, Wolfe City.

Herman and Paul Rolfsmeier, the owners of Mary Lucile Bess are the sons of Mrs. Katherine Rolfsmeier and have always lived on a farm near Seward, Neb., where they carry on their dairy business under the firm name of Rolfsmeier Brothers.

Paul, who cared for Mary Lucile Bess during her test, is 17 years of age and has owned Jerseys since 1926. He is an outstanding figure in 4-H Club work in Nebraska, and of all the achievements completed by Nebraska 4-H Club members during 1929, he won every honor one individual could win including a gold medal for showmanship, the gold medal for judging, and a trip to the National Dairy Exposition in St. Louis. In addition he was selected as the 1930 4-H Club dairy champion of Nebraska. During 1929 his herd of ten purebred Jerseys completed the outstanding production average of 570 pounds of butterfat per cow in a local cow testing association.

The man who says his wife doesn't understand him probably doesn't talk in the same language as in the days of his courtship.

Listen! You tired business men. A visit to "The Temple of the Occult," solved Mr. Bentwood's problems in "Crook for a month."

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The vocational students have gathered 20,000 big stem potato plants off of the two flue-heated beds at the school house. Also several thousand tomato plants. These beds were built to serve as a model in this community. They have proved highly successful. Numbers of farmers have visited them. If the big stem jersey potato enterprise proves successful this season, there will no doubt be a number of flue heated beds built next year.

The boys in horticulture have sprayed a number of orchards lately. More emphasis is being laid each year to the teaching of the control of insects and fungeous disease of the orchard, garden and truck crops. The interest in spraying fruit trees is growing in this section. The department of vocational agriculture keeps on hand, a supply of spray material for the convenience of the farmers.

The vocational boys have just finished making twelve screen windows for the house economics department. These screens extend the entire distance of the windows and are hinged at the top.

The boys taking field crops have just completed their four year project outlines. The desire of the vocational teacher is that each boy plan to have continuation projects as much so as possible. The field crop boys have now sharpened scooter plows and scrapes in the shop. The sharpening of scooter plows and the scrapes is not so difficult but the setting of a scrape is difficult and they have not yet mastered that practice.

The students in vocational agriculture have had some very practical experience lately in working on the bus body building that has just been constructed on the campus. It would be fortunate if the vocational boys had an opportunity every year to do carpentry work on some frame building.

The purpose of the department of vocational agriculture is to teach a practical course in agriculture. Any constructive suggestions from parents or interested individuals will be appreciated by the teacher.

DR. GRAGG AND THE POULTRY INDUSTRY

Besides being one of our most prominent physicians and surgeons, Dr. V. J. Gragg has recently become one of our most progressive and successful poultrymen. It is really interesting to visit his place and see the several breeds of chickens, some of which are not to be found anywhere else in this section of the country.

The White Giant Chicken and Chinese Pheasants are the specialties of Dr. Gragg. He has two different breeds of pheasants, and some of the finest White Giants in the South.

Dr. Gragg's place is equipped with some of the latest and most modern poultry equipment on the market, among which is a battery brooder of 3,200 baby chick capacity. He has grown chicks of various breeds that weighed one pound and thirteen ounces at seven weeks old. Some of his White Giants weighed two and a quarter pounds at this age.

Dr. and Mrs. Gragg always welcome visitors and are glad to furnish particulars regarding any of their poultry equipment and methods. Any poultryman will find something interesting there.

Incidentally, the writer happened to ask about the feeding of the chicks, and was told that Purina Chows had been used exclusively. And of course everyone knows of the successful record of Purina, the feed which is sold by Jeff Ruffin, at the Checkerboard Store.

CITY-OWNED RAILWAY PRODUCES DEFICITS

The glories of municipal ownership of business are reflected in a recent news dispatch from Seattle. That city's famous street railway has a shortage of more than $800,000 in the moratorium sinking fund.

The railway was purchased, in 1918, from private interests for the tidy sum of $15,000,000, in order to provide cheap transportation "without cost to the taxpayers." So far it has only proven a burden to the taxpayers, and the charge per ride has been ten cents or three rides for a quarter for many years.

Here is something for those who are now advocating power development "without cost to the taxpayers," to think about.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The Progressive Labor World, an American Federation of Labor publication, recently carried the following brief and interesting editorial comment under the caption "Socialism or Not?"

"Those who advocate having the government do this and that, plunge into this field and that, take over this and that, had better say right out where they intend to go. Have they any terminal facilities? It is even more important that the people in general should know.

"If socialism is the objective, let us find out about it. If it is, then do we want all of it, or only half of it? And if we want only half, can we take only half without taking all of it? And is that the direction in which we want to go anyway? It is unwise to start without knowing what is to be the direction and what is to be the finish.

"There has been too much lack of definition already. It is time to take stock and get onto some basic philosophy and then lay down some definite policy. Which way go we hence?"

It would seem to the casual observer that here is a list of questions and suggestions which observe more than passing attention. There has never been a time in our history, at least not within the memory of living man, when so many patent political nostrums, and finespun and elusive theories were being offered to the public in an effort to solve some of our economic and political difficulties. During our days of prosperity we did not hear so much about them, although the germs were of course there. But as soon as depression struck us the seeds of radicalism blossomed into full flower.

A great many of the remedies offered us are called new by their vendors, but as a matter of fact they are old fallacies, clad in new clothing, and have been with us more or less in some form, since the days of the Athenian democracy. Why isn't it about time then, to stop for a moment to consider seriously what it is all about, and to inquire of these busy brethren of ours just what they are trying to do? They represent every cult from pseudo-liberalism to communism. Many of them are either too timid or too modest to say that what they are advocating is out and out socialism, and many of them shudder at the thought of communism, or worse yet, try to laugh it out of existence as something not to be considered dangerous. But all of their doctrines and all of their activities move toward the "left" as they put it in Europe.

Especially noisy are those which are seeking government control through the creation of additional bulwarks of bureaucracy at Washington. They seem to be a little hazy on the subject of just how far they are going. If they desire out and out government ownership, if they want to make the citizen the ward of the state and take away from him the right to better himself by his own individual efforts, why don't they say so? If one is an out and out government ownership man, a theoretical socialist, why not acknowledge the corn, and not seek to hide the light of his intentions under some basket with an innocuous label.

Either the government will eventually run private business or business will be left to private enterprise. The more undue government regulation we have the more we tend toward the "left," toward government ownership and the inevitable socialist state. Isn't it about time, as the editorial quoted above suggests, that we take an inventory of our faddists, and our teachers of "new political" principles to see just where they stand and where they intend to take us, if given the opportunity? The theoretical gentlemen in the twilight zone seem to evade the situation. Either they don't know where they are going or they are afraid to tell us. The second possibility is the more likely. For they must know that there is enough sound Americanism in the great body of the American people to cast their socialist teachings into the depths of the ocean, once these principles come to be recognized in their true light. And then what would become of the political fortunes and lecture value of the purveyors of these unmasked principles?

DIRECT PRIMARY— CHEAPER MEN

The direct primary is in growing disrepute and the Massachusetts committee of the general court on election laws is considering substitute measures, one of which provides for convention nominations outright. The old axiom that the office should seek the man is repudiated by the direct primary system. The man must seek the office and sign a paper that he will take it before his name can appear on the ballot.

For one thing, voters at large shirk their responsibility and do not participate in the primaries. People do not begin to become serious, politically, until the nominations are made. A small, but active minority of a party makes the nomination. Many able and qualified men who might be drafted by a convention, out of a spirit of patriotism, will not participate in the ballyhoo and make a fight for the office. Unfit men, who would not be considered in a party convention, secure nomination for the high office of United States Senator. The nominee is under obligation to small minorities. Party responsibility is weakened.

The convention system does not interfere with the principle of government by the people. The voters always held control of the business in the choice of delegates to the convention. Representative government is maintained.

There is nothing in a system or device that will afford a perfect candidate, but under the direct primary there has been a deterioration in the quality of the men who represent us in the legislature, in Congress and high places.—New Bedford Mercury.

PRESIDENT AND C. M. T. C.

Certain pacificists makt capital of the claim that President Hoover is an advocate of world peace at almost any price, even to the endangering of the national security.

The President, as are all rational persons, is in favor of peace, hates war and hopes for a day when there will be no war, but also knows that the day of universal peace is probably far off. Nothing that he has said, or done, either as a private citizen or public official, can warrant the claim of the extreme radicals and altruists. Perhaps his letter to Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely may serve to repudiate the statements of the pacifist cult.

President Hoover, in his recent indorsement of citizens' military training camps, wrote:

"The citizens' military training camps through ten years have proved physical and moral health in the the individual and of civic welfare in the nation.

"I commend the citizens' military training camps to all fathers and mothers and to young men of suitable age in the hope and belief that the camps will show themselves as useful in the future as they have been in the past."

This will not be harmonious with the continuous flow of pacifist opinion, but it is in perfect harmony with that sanity of thought which continues to guide the American nation in the ways of prosperity and security.—Cincinnati Inquirer.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

While we were making a special effort to round up all the cinders this week, and incidentally looking for some especially large clinkers on which to elucidate, we spied the Man on the Corner and asked his help in selecting a subject. His reply was: "Search me. If I have an idea I will use it myself." And now I have to tax my own brain for an idea.

Just as a passing thought while getting around to our main theme, we would like to ask just what The Honorable Governor Miller is planning to do with all that money he is going to save the people of Alabama by raising the taxes? We wonder if that tax "hist" is his idea of "Saving Millions With Miller."

It is also noteworthy that backfire from the present gubernational administration is the fact that several of the counties of the state which gave Mr. Miller the heaviest votes in the primary have turned their backs on the administration and are holding meetings protesting the administration's support of the proposed increase in taxes. Looks as though no matter who is elected governor, we would have been better off had we elected the other fellow.

The Sweeper has had some phases of the general conditions existing in our town on his mind for some time and we have decided that we would speak our mind and risk the consequences. The subject we refer to has to do with the civic development of our city. Suppose some stranger should park out down alongside Upchurch's and begin telling one and all who came along that Clanton is a "hick" town. Wouldn't we all get maddern' a wet hen? To be sure we would and demand to be shown wherein the accusations were true. We would ask the gentleman to look around him and observe our up-to-date mercantile establishments and progressive merchants, our imposing churches and magnificient county courthouse, our school plants, paved streets and police force with the shiny brass buttons, the Kiwanis Club and numerous other new and modern things, including of course our fine and adequate hospital, and say "now show me something hick about Clanton."

The Sweeper aims to take the position of the stranger and try to point out a few of the things in which our city is still in the "hick" class.

To begin with show us a town or city of the size and otherwise progressive spirit of Clanton which does not have a City Hall in which the city transacts its business and where the various officials of the city may be found when needed. How many of the citizens of the city and of Chilton County know where the Mayor's office is, or that of the City Clerk? Take a look at the system under which the fire department is operated. We have individual criticism to offer for the members of the volunteer fire department. They are stalwart fellows who respond admirably when occasion arises. But it takes too long as a rule for the driver of the truck to reach the city garage and get going after the alarm is sounded. Clanton should have a City Hall building with the fire station in connection where at least two full time firemen are on duty at all hours day and night. Such an arrangement would reduce the insurance rates to such an extent to more than balance the cost of the full time firemen.

A city of the size of Clanton should certainly have signal semaphores to control the traffic on our two main thoroughfares. One of these traffic lights should be installed at each of the crossings of side streets and the Montgomery and Birmingham highway. This would place one at Dief's, Upchurch's, the Ford place and Maddox's corner. This would make a total of four and from information we have could be installed for around five hundred dollars. They can be arranged to operate automatically and at different change intervals. The installation of such equipment would put an end to the many traffic jams which are caused at these crossings by a misunderstanding of what each driver should do.

Most cities of the state of the size of Clanton and which are as otherwise progressive as we are all have some kind of street lighting system approaching a "white way." Clanton should have a real white way in its down-town section. Give Clanton a City Hall, a fire station with full time firemen, a system of traffic lights at the points mentioned, and a white way along the streets which we have in these columns already described at an earlier date, and we will then be able to demand to be shown wherein we are "hick." Such a series of improvements coupled with the progressive merchandising systems our merchants practice and a thorough clean-up campaign such as is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club will certainly make our visitors stop and look twice before they say we are back numbers. Let's all get our shoulders to the wheel and push like the dickens until some of these things have been accomplished.

Of course they cannot all be done at once, but we can certainly do them if we will but try. Trusting that our explanation has been sufficient to justify the accusation, we will go to sweeping.—The Sweeper.

From Friend Bill

Dear Friend Sweeper:

After reading the Cinder Pile this last weeek, I believe you have had a part of your summer vacation already; and glad you feel better. You should feel better; you went fishing all day and then the Kiwanis Club treated you to seat at the Wadesonian Theatre to see "Just Imagine." Sweeper, I'm glad you have so many friends, and gee, you must sure have a good boss, to let you off so much. Maybe you don't have to tell him your grandma died in order to get off to see a ball game or go fishing. Pat yourself on the back for you're lucky in having such fine boss to work for.

See where the Kiwanis Club sponsors "clean-up campaign," week of April 27, and where our Mayor and Chief of Police have pledged the co-operation with the Silvertown Safety League. These are two good moves started, and hope they win with flying colors.

Sweeper, honest I didn't see the Man on the Corner all last week, much less go fishing with him. Wish I could have gone with him. But I'm so busy trying to raise a stone mountain watermelon to cope the prize Parrish the seed man offers for the largest one grown from seed purchased from him. Well, if the one I bring isn't big enough I'll bring it to The Banner office and we'll eat it.—Your Friend Bill, Rte 7.

Farm surplus: The sad result of overlooking the fact that tractors don't eat.—Los Angeles Times.

Although 1931, politically speaking, is one of the periods generally characterized as an "off year," already the national politicians, quiescent for several months, now are beginning to bestir themselves. There are no elections of national importance this year, but we must keep in mind the fact that only a few short months must pass until the beginning of another national campaign will be upon us.

LOOKING SOME FACTS IN THE FACE

In asking that the national Democratic party declare itself on the prohibition question, and require Democratic candidates for Congress in all the districts of the country to stand by this declaration, Chairman Raskob, in his zeal for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, is asking what every person of common sense knows is impossible.

National party committees and conventions lack this authority. In face of the fact, especially, that nominations are made by primary in most states, they are in no position to control the platforms of local candidates.

Therein lies the ineffectiveness, and even the hypocrisy of much of the discussion of prohibition as a party issue. It is not as a matter of fact an issue between the parties. The Democrats and Republicans have wet constituencies in many districts of the East and North, and dry constituencies in the West and South. Any national platform declaration by either party on the question of prohibition is meaningless, because candidates for the House and Senate in dry states and districts are not going to run counter to what they know to be public sentiment, and vice versa. If they do, they are not going to be elected, and getting elected is one of the objectives of a candidate.

If the Democrats in their next national convention declare against prohibition, still they will send to Congress enough dry members of House and Senate to prevent congressional action. If the Republicans declare for prohibition, nevertheless they will send to Congress from wet districts in the big cities, Republicans who will declaim against prohibition.

Prohibition is now, and is going to remain, a local issue. Action upon it will depend upon the attitude of individual senators and representatives, and their attitude will reflect majority sentiment among their own constituents.

Some good Democrat ought to tip off Chairman Raskob that he is writing too many letters.

Governor Pinchot says that in the official Pennsylvania letter writing such insane phrases as "yours at hand and contents noted and thanking you, we remain," are to be eliminated. If they are going to reform letter-writing the hackneyed phrase we would like to see eliminated from all letters is "please remit."

About the only conclusion Bill Thompson has out of the election is that he wasn't beaten by one of King George's men. It took a guy from Bohemia to do it.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Perhaps It Is a Cannon Ball

Workmen on the Chilton County jail job dug out from a mortar joint in the old rock wall a round steel ball about two inches in diameter. They sent it over to The Man on the Corner to be named and writ up. I guessed it is an old Confederate cannon ball that was used in the Civil War. For all I know it might have killed a whole squad of Yankee soldiers; and then again it may be just an innocent and meaningless lump of iron. The old jail from which the ball was taken was built in 1886. Therefore I feel safe in asserting one thing for sure about the ball. It has had a long and peaceful rest from the time it was buried in the mortar in 1886 until it was disturbed Monday, April 27, 1931.

One Evidence of Cleap Up Week

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James shows evidences of clean up and paint up week in Clanton. Crowson Brothers have about completed the job of going over the house inside and out, and it looks mighty good. I didn't ask what kind of paint they used, but I am reasonably sure it was Lucas. That's the kind Frank sells to other folks to paint houses with.

Legion Meeting Monday Night

Joe Calloway is busy this week whooping things up for the regular monthly meeting of the American Legion in Clanton next Monday night. This, however, will be much more than the regular monthly meeting. United States Senator Hugo Black, of Birmingham has accepted the invitation of the Post to speak on this occasion, and the soldier boys are pulling hard for a big crowd. They want not only the ex-soldiers, but every other person who can do so, to come and hear our distinguished United States Senator speak. Mr. Black is a very charming speaker, indeed he is one of our very smartest men. He has many friends in Clanton and Chilton County who will be right here to greet him Monday night.

All Kiwanis Night Meeting

In announcing "All Kiwanis Night Meeting" a year or so ago, some smart alec in the crowd asked me if I said all night meeting of the Kiwanis. The event this year will be held at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James on Mt. Manning. Next Monday night is the time. At 8:15 o'clock every Kiwanis Club in the United States and Canada will be assembled to receive the message of International President, Raymond M. Crossman, at the International Convention which will be in session at Miami. No, it will not be an all night meeting.

The Kiwanis Negro Minstrel

I think the Kiwanis negro minstrel at the High School last Thursday night was a complete surprise to everybody. First, I think those who attended were surprised to get so much fun out of the show; and second, I think those who put on the show were surprised at so many folks going to see it. However, that does not matter. The Kiwanis Club was delighted with the fine attendance, and the blackface boys did their very best to put it over so the spectators would have a good time. If you had as much fun as Vesuvius, you are perhaps not fully recovered yet. I am not. And I did not see anybody drop another dime into the hat of the Right Reverend U. Rastus Johnson Brown, as they went out.

Going to Miami. My, Am I?

If something don't go wrong with the calculations, The Man on the Corner expects by this time next week to be on the extreme southeast corner of the United States, instead of my usual corner on the streets of Clanton. Mell Martin and I, with perhaps another one or two members of the Kiwanis Club, plan to pull out Friday morning to Miami, Florida, where we will attend the International Convention of Kiwanis from Sunday to Friday of the following week. If you do not find my column in the Banner next week, just remember I am having such a big time I couldn't get a chance to write it.

We Pay Rent on This Place

A party called me by a place Tuesday to note the progress that was being made in cleaning up a certain piece of property that has been the subject of some of our clean up orators. I found that much improvement in the appearance has been made, much to my satisfaction. As I was leaving I heard an expression something like this: "We pay rent on this place . . . ." and the rest of the outburst was unintelligible to me as I made my get away. The impression I got was that considerable wrath has been stirred up because somebody has brought about the pressure to cause some of our ugly spots to be cleaned up. We pay rent on this place, and therefore we ought to be allowed to make as big a mess of it as we choose, is a mighty bad spirit for anybody to have.

A lot of people want to have compulsory military training abolished in our state schools. The American Legion boys who saw the serious effects of lack of training in wartime, think compulsory training in the colleges is a good thing. They know something about the matter of adjusting a gas mask or digging in to protect themselves. Compulsory training in our colleges isn't going to get us into war.—Allison Tribune.

Two horns of a Democratic dilemma; Owen Young and Owin' Raskob.—Washington Post.

The two parties have one thing in common. Each hopes the other will bring out a wet in 1932.—Los Angeles Times.

It seems strange that President Hoover should insist on a Republican directing the unemployment probe when everybody knows the Democrats have had far more experience in being out of jobs.—Dayton (Ohio) News.

Observing Mothers Day

Who can estimate the wonderful influence of the mothers of their land, and every land. The mothers are greater than our greatest men; greater in love, in thought, in will and in largeness of heart. In life you may have the fondest of friends, and dear friends, but never again will you have the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother can bestow. Mother's love never varies, never falters.

You go out into the world against the trials of the world for success and no amount of difficulty or shortcomings can change mother's love and hope. We can never repay our mothers for all they have done for us no matter how hard we try.

So let's everyone pay respect to our dear mothers and have a heart to heart talk with her. If she is far off, write her your fondest wishes, and not only remember her on one day in the year, but make every day mothers day. Let's don't crowd in upon her where she will have to cook most of the day, but carry her out to dinner or still better, bring her into your home for dinner, and a day of perfect rest. Remember whatever we are we owe it to our mothers.

Personally, I wish every mother in the world every happiness and contentment the world affords.—Friend Bill on Route 7.

MT. PLEASANT SCHOOL NEWS

School closed at Mt. Pleasant last Friday, April 24th. There were eight Jnior III pupils who received their diplomas. They were: Renfroe Price, Grady Minor, Woodrow Price, Lawson Bell, Eunice Holley, Julia Edwards, Luettie Cooper, Vera Jones.

Dr. D. W. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church, delivered the address to the graduating class. His subject was: "Reliable Men and Women," and was delivered in a most pleasing manner. Prof. Warr, from the Chilton County High School, was present and also made an inspirational talk to the class, touching on the subject of "The Purpose and Object of Education."

The exercise was held Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock in the large Junior High class room. A large number of patrons were present.

The following day, Saturday, the Mt. Pleasant school went on their annual picnic. This year it was given at Log Cabin Beach, below Mitchell Dam. 109 pupils from the school, and a good number of parents and young people not in school were present to share in the festivities of the day. Three members of the faculty were present, the principal, R. B. Johnson, Miss Mildred Raney, the primary instructor, and Miss Littlejohn, sixth grade teacher.

Various forms of amusement were engaged in, such as boat riding, games for the little folks, kodaking, flower gathering, swimming, music, etc. No accident or misfortune came to anyone. The day was warm and fair, making it ideal for picnicers. Everyone had a great time.

Also, the Christian Endeavor program was very commendable, but there is plenty of room for improvements, and we would like very much to have a larger attendance.

UNION AND BANNER MERGED 19 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

It has been exactly nineteen years since The Banner, edited by Frank Crichton and The Union, edited by Wallace C. Edler, consolidated and became one paper, The Union-Banner. The publishers called themselves the Union Publishing Company. J. E. Robinson was president, M. D. Foshee was secretary-treasurer, and L. C. Crutcher was editor of the newly formed paper. This was in April, 1912. Later editors were F. B. Ticknor, Osce Bird, W. M. Wyatt, E. C. Powell, T. E. Wyatt, and lastly W. M. Wyatt. The paper has been running under the management of W. M. Wyatt and T. E. Wyatt for the past twelve years.

This paper will celebrate its fortieth birthday in October of next year; and incidentally W. M. Wyatt becomes forty years old during the same month. The first issue of The Banner appeared on Thursday, October 18, 1892; W. M. Wyatt was born on October 20, 1892.

When the consolidation came about The Banner was in its twentieth year and The Union was in its ninth year.

FARMERS HOLD MASS MEETING HERE SATURDAY

Farmers Meet in Protest of Proposed Bill Drawn By Certain Interests in the State Who Are Against County Agents and Cooperative Buying and Selling By Farm Organizations.

On April 23 certain interests were represented in a meeting in Montgomery at which bills were prepared that if passed by the legislature would practically eliminate the services of county agents, vocational teachers and specialists from Auburn from aiding farmers and their various associations in any of their marketing problems.

According to the proposed bill it will be unlawful for county agents, vocational teachers or specialists to aid in the forming of associations for the marketing of farm produce or even aid in the placing of any farm product a farmer may have for sale, or aid any farmer in the purchase of any seed or any other materials he may need.

The proposed bill provides that when it becomes a law, a penalty of one hundred dollars and six months hard labor, for any agent or vocational teacher or specialist guilty of violation of said law.

A meeting of some two hundred farmers and other interested citizens of Chilton County met at he court house in Clanton Saurday, May 2, in protest of the proposed bill prepared by the group who met in Montgomery on April 23.

The following resolutions were drawn and approved and some two hundred signed a petition to the Governor and Legislature to consider the resolutions:

To the Honorable B. M. Miller, Governor of Alabama, and, to the Members of the Alabama Legislature:

Gentlemen:

In view of the fact that certain interests met in Montgomery April 23, and prepared certain bills to be presented to the legislature pracically eliminating a much needed service of county and home agents, vocational teachers and other educational interests working directly with the farmers of the state, and prohibiting the cooperative buying and selling of materials that go into production of farm crops and livestock and sale of farm crops and livestock, and whereas,

We, of Chilton County, have been and now are benefitting from cooperative sale of such farm products as strawberries, sweet potatoes, watermelons, cream, poultry, eggs, etc., and whereas,

The rural elementary schools are facing an emergency, be it resolved, that:

1. We deplore the fight of certain interests headed by Mr. J. C. Hodges of the Cosby-Hodges Milling Company, Birmingham, Alabama, manufacturers of Jazz feeds, and by Mr. Tom Kidd, of the Farmers' and Ginners Cotton Oil Company, Birmingham, and their associates, placing such restrictions on the operation of the farmers' cooperative organization in Chilton County, and the other counties in Alabama, as will interfere with the service of this organization to the farmers.

2. We endorse cooperative buying of materials as go into economical production, which includes fertilizers, feeds, seeds, spray materials, strawberry crates, plants, etc.

3. We endorse the activities of the Federal Farm Board in aiding in cooperative selling of cotton, eggs, pecans, and other products the board may be able to give us assistance in marketing.

4. We endorse cooperative selling of poultry, strawberries, watermelons, eggs, pecans, cattle, hogs, and othe farm products that we may think to our advantage to market cooperatively.

5. We endorse and pledge active support of the bill sponsored by Dr. A. F. Harmon and the county superintendents of education for an increase of two million dollars for the public rural schools of Alabama.

6. We express our appreciation for Auburn and its Experiment Station and Extension Service, and their complete confidence in the work of these, our agencies, set up for our instruction, leadership, and benefit.

Bride of Five Days Sees Mate Taken In Custody for Theft

While honeymooning in Albany, Ga., Johnny Jenkins, 21, of Montgomery was arrested Friday night, on a charge of stealing an automobile from S. E. Duckworth also of Montgomery, that day that bride and groom are said to have left on their wedding trip. A warrant charging grand larceny has been signed by Duckworth, who was to leave Saturday with Sheriff Sam D. Stearns and a county deputy for Albany to return Jenkins.

Sheriff Stearns said that Jenkins had waived requisition. He was arrested in an Albany hotel upon complaint of Montgomery authorities. Jenkins ,according to the sheriff, was married to Miss Mary Baker of Clanton, at Prattville Monday, returning to the city that night. Jenkins is alleged to have stolen Duckworth's automobile the next day and left on his wedding trip. Sheriff Stearns lost no time in wiring cities and towns in Alabama, Ga., Florida and Mississippi to look out for Jenkins and to seize him on the grand larceny charge. Stearns was notified last night that Jenkins had been arrested in Albany.

Jenkins, officers stated, had known his bride only a short time. She was attending business college in Montgomery when they were married.

Sheriff Stearns disclosed that young Jenkins is an ex-convict, having been out of prison only a few months.

ONE OF CHILTON'S MOST DISTINGUISHED CITIZENS

William Job Reynolds was born at Tuskegee, Ala., on March 24th, 1844. He joined the Confederate army in 1861 at Tuskegee, under captain W. S. Goodwin. On October 8th, 1862 he was shot with a Minnie ball at Parville, Ky. and carried north to a barrack without an surgical operation or treatment. He caried this ball in the underbone which held his brain for 48 years until July 5th, 1910. Dr. Charlie Thigpen of Montgomery took the ball out in 1910. Anyone who wants to see this Minie ball may see it at Jemison, Ala., his widow having the same. While in the Confederate service he was a member of Company K, 45th Alabama regiment.

He died at Jemison on April 19, 1923 at the age of 79, on the 24th day of March. He had in his possession, and is now retained by his youngest son, W. J. Reynolds, an old powder horn that is about 200 years old. It was given to his father, W. L. Reynolds, by an uncle, James R. Reynolds.

William Job Reynolds was the father of 13 children—five girls and eight boys; has fifty grand children, 31 great grand children. His first wife was Susie Jordan, whom he married in 1863. Ten children were born by his first wife. 1894 he was married to Sallie Busby and to this union were born three children.

JULIUS W. REYNOLDS SUCCUMBS TO ATTACK PNEUMONIA HERE

Julius W. Reynolds died at the home of his father, W. A. Reynolds, in Clanton Sunday morning about 3 o'clock. He had suffered with pneumonia for about twelve days. He contracted the malady at his home at Waugh, Ala., near Montgomery, where he was in the lumber business, and was later removed here to the home of his parents. The funeral was conducted at the home Monday morning at 10 o'clock and interment made in the Clanton cemetery.

Besides his father and mother, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Stanfield Reynolds, and two children —Margaret Ann, 7, and Mary Alice, 5. The brothers are Reuben L., of Atlanta, Ga., and Hoyt B., of Clanton. The sisters are Mrs. Joseph Hammack of Childersburg, Mrs. Guy H. Roberts and Mrs. Percy M. Pitts of Clanton, and Mrs. Sam Box, of Birmingham.

Two large truck loads of people from his adopted home town, Waugh, were here at the funeral to join the other hundreds of sorrowing relatives and friends in paying the last sad respects to the eartly form of the departed. Julius was a member of the Clanton Methodist church and had been from early childhood.

ABOUT TELEPHONE FEES FOR LAST HALF OF YEAR

Some have inquired about whether or not they could pay telephone dues just for the last half of the year. This matter was settled by the board of directors in session last Saturday afternoon. People who have just put in their phone can now pay half the regular fee and get service for the last half of the year; or if a phoneholder has been deprived of getting central service the first half of the year on account of a bad line of some defect in his phone, then he can pay for the last half and get service. Any person who has been having connection with central the whole year but has not paid his fee will have to pay the full $2.50 in order to get service.

The Peoples Telephone is in fair shape. Good service has been given those who have paid, and the same is going to continue on until the end of the telephone year. When the new year begins in November it is hoped that there will be renewed interest and that the company will be able to travel in excellent fashion next year. The prospects look good now.

SAYS WARN PEOPLE AGAINST THE RUTHERFORD LITERATURE

Rev. A. D. Huett of Howard College asks the editor of The Union-Banner to warn the people of Chilton County against the danger of buying and reading the books put out by Judge Rutherford. He says that they are contrary to the teachings of the Bible and that their object is the destruction of the church of God. There are other Christian men and women over the county sending out the same warning. Preachers are attacking the books from the pulpit, and it seems that they are stirring up a general commotion in religious circles.

CLANTON LAUNDRY AND CLEANING COMPANY ADDS NEW POWER EQUIPMENT

Latest Improved Automatic Water Feed System Installed on Boiler

Leo Thompson, manager of The Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Company, announces that he has recently installed one of the latest and most modern automatic water supply and feed systems on his boiler, thus bringing his power equipment up to a par with the largest plants of the country.

The function of this new machine is to collect all the condensation of steam from the various machines in the plant, returning it to an auxiliary tank, which is located above the main steam boiler. This tank in turn feeds the warm water into a still larger tank equipped with a tilting float which when filled to a certain point tilts and opening a valve lets steam from the boiler into the other end of the chamber, thus forcing the water into the boiler.

The addition of this warm water, which is in reality the condensed steam from the various machines, eliminates the old troubles of suddenly lowered temperatures of the boiler by the addition of cold water and the subsequent lowering of the steam pressure. This procedure allows for the more nearly accurate maintenance of the required steam pressure on the machines for the best results. All this will result in Mr. Thompson being able to better serve his customers in the future. Since the boiler and power plant of this popular and well-equipped laundry and cleaning plant has for some time been equipped with an automatic stoker which feeds the coal to the boiler, the addition of this water feed system, makes the action and operation of the boiler entirely automatic, thus relieving the employees of unpleasant work and allowing them to spend more time in looking after the welfare of your clothes while in the process of being cleaned.

Mr. Thompson invites the public to visit his plant at any time and inspect not only this new equipment, but the entire plant.

SPECIAL MOTHERS DAY SERVICE AT M. E. CHURCH

Dr. Haskew, pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church, has announced a special Mothers Day service at his church next Sunday at 11 a. m. The public is most cordialy invited to be present. The subject of the sermon to be delivered is "Mothers of Men." The occasion will not be a time of shedding tears, but a time of greatful appreciation of mother and her influence.

Each member of the church has been asked to bring as many pennies or cents as is the age of his mother. This special donation is to be given as an expression of gratitude for the mother. This amount will be applied on the Conference assessments for the church, and it is thought that a neat sum will be given. It is Dr. Haskew's opinion that love without sacrifice loses its sweetness, and he is calling for this sum as an expression of appreciation of mother and her influence.

MIAMI WELCOMES KIWANIANS OF U. S., CANADA

Clanton Delegates to Convention are: J. Mell Martin, W. M. Wyatt, Maurice Lande and C. E. Stapp.

Miami, Fla., May 5.—Kiwanians from all parts of the United States and Canada arrived here yesterday for the 15th annual convention of Kiwanis International and are making plans for group study this week of community problems in child welfare, health and sanitation, urban-rural relations, juvenile delinquency, crime and adult education. The theme for the entire convention is "Kiwanis a Vitalizing Force in Community, National, and International Life," Dr. J. J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida, is to deliver the keynote address.

The service organization, which was founded in Detroit in 1915, now has 1,876 club units in the communities of the United States and Canada, according to Fred. C. W. Parker, of Chicago, International secretary, who made his annual report to delegates.

"Kiwanis develops an organization of representative business and professional men united in genuine fellowship for service in their community," declared Mr. Parker. "The Kiwanis of tomorrow can be built on the Kiwanis of today, because the organization has produced an abiding value to society. Indeed the future is secure! The total and scope of the achievements in civic service and community betterment is amazing! However great the past of Kiwanis has been, it is my conviction that the future gives promise of a greater field of community endeavor for Kiwanis."

Raymond M. Crossman, of Omaha, president of Kiwanis International, in his annual message to delegates today said: "The strength of Kiwanis is in the high type of membership in our clubs. Many years ago we departed from the proposition that Kiwanis was an avenue of business and professional relations for profit. Kiwanis is essentially a power for community achievement."

Organization Officials

Other officials who are taking part in the convention are, International officers: Harper Gatton, Madisonville, Ky., and Capt. C. E. Jeakins, Brantford, Ontario, vice presidents, and Walter R. Weiser, of Daytona Beach, Florida, treasurer. Members of the board of trustees are: Dr. William J. Carrington, Atlantic City, N. J.; Joshua L. Johns, Appleton, Wis.; Jerry H. Lammers, Wessington Springs, S. D.; Rev. Ernest F. McGregor, Norwalk, Conn.; Albert Snedeker, Wheeling, W. Va.; Dr. C. C. Tatham, Edmonton, Alberta; Carl E. Endicott, Huntington, Ind.; William O. Harris, Los Angeles, Calif.; Howard T. Hill, Manhattan, Kan.; Herbert A. Moore, DuBois, Pa.; and Edmond C. van Diest, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Over 1,800 Kiwanis clubs in towns in the U. S. and Canada met Monday night simultaneously at 9:15 o'clock (eastern standard time). This united fellowship occasion brought together over 95,000 men for an expression of gratitude for the community betterment and welfare work of Kiwanis during the past year.

The sessions come to a close today (Thursday). Six members of the board of trustees of Kiwanis International will today end their two-year term of office. They are: Carl E. Endicott, of Huntington, Ind.; T. Harry Gowman, Seattle; William O. Harris, Los Angeles; Howard T. Hill, Manhattan, Kan.; Herbert A. Moore, Du Bois, Pa.; and Edmond C. van Diest, Colorado Springs, Colo. Two vice presidents, Harper Gatton, of Madisonville, Ky.; and Capt. C. E. Jeakins, of Brantford, Ontario, and Dr. Walter R. Weiser, of Daytona Beach, Fla., treasurer, will also retire from office today.

Trustees to continue in office for another year are: Dr. William J. Carrington, Atlantic City, N. J.; Joshua L. Johns, Appleton, Wis.; Jerry H. Lammers, Wessington Springs, S. D.; Rev. Ernest F. McGregor, Norwalk, Conn.; Albert Snedeker, Wheeling, W. Va.; and Dr. C. C. Tatham, Edmonton, Alberta.

Delegates will today decide the 1932 convention city for Kiwanis. Five cities, Toronto, Washington, D. C., Detroit, Cleveland, and Chicago, seek the honor.

The 4th annual championship golf tournament is to be played at the beautiful Miami country club this afternoon. Visitors after the close of the convention today will leave on tours to Havana, throughout the southland, and along the Atlantic coast.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

CLUB GIRLS WILL MEET AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., May 4.—The annual state short course for 4-H Club girls of Alabama will be held at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, from June 2 to 6. Four outstanding club girls in each county having a home demonstration agent will attend for instruction and entertainment.

The county representatives are being selected upon a basis of the work which they have done and the results obtained. All phases of the work are considered by the home demonstration agents and others in selecting the county winners.

Training at the short course, said Miss Bess Fleming, state leader of 4-H Club girls, Auburn, will be given in leadership, foods, clothing, home improvement, health, poultry, etc. The aim is to give these county winners additional training in order that they may serve as leaders in the work, thereby adding four trained leaders in each county.

Recreation and entertainment will be combined with instruction. As usual, it will be the biggest annual event for the 4-H Club girls of Alabama. Winning a trip to a state short course at Auburn is a goal to which alert 4-H Club girls look forward from one year to another.

While in Auburn they will live in college dormitories as college girls live during college sessions. In addition to their regular program they will be addressed by Bradford Knapp, president, and other members of the faculty of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

BETTER FEEDING OF COWS IS EXPLAINED

Auburn, Ala., May 4.—The cheapest food for a dairy cow is that which she obtains from a good pasture, but pasture alone is not sufficient for high-producing cows, according to F. W. Burns, extension animal husbandman at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn. He declared that every dairyman should have a good pasture and that feeding should be based upon the amount and condition of the pasture.

For example, grasses are watery in the early spring and do not supply as much food as later grazings will supply. On the other hand, pastures become dry and tough and less palatable in the late summer. Consequently dairymen should take these facts into consideration in feeding.

"When pastures are good," said Mr. Burns, "it is doubtful if it is profitable to feed any concentrates to cows giving less than 20 pounds of milk per day. Those producing 25 to 30 pounds of milk daily should receive one pound of concentrate for each five pounds of milk; and those producing more than 30 pounds should receive one pound of concentrate for each four pounds of milk. Early in the spring and late in the fall it is usually wise to feed the full grain ration."

Any of the following formulas will be satisfactory for summer feeding:

1. Two hundred pounds of corn and cob meal, 50 pounds ground oats; and 50 pounds cottonseed meal.
2. Two hundred pounds corn and cob meal; 50 pounds wheat bran; and 50 pounds cottonseed meal.
3. Two hundred pounds corn and cob meal; 50 pounds velvet bean meal; 50 pounds cottonseed meal.

For more information about feeding their cows, dairymen should consult their county agents.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the beautiful flowers and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement.—N. A. Vinson and wife, Julian C. Vinson, and sister.

A backwood mountaineer one day found a mirror which a tourist had lost.

"Well if it ain't my old dad," he said, as he looked in the mirror. "I never knowed he had his pitcher tuck."

He took the mirror home and stole into the attic to hide it. But his actions didn't escape his suspicious wife. That night while he slept she slipped up into the attic and found the mirror.

"Hum-um," she said, looking into it, "so that's the old hag he's been chasin."

YOU know the fine crops many farmers around here get year after year with Chilean Nitrate of Soda. They side dress with Chilean and it pays them well. This year with Chilean selling at the lowest price in years, there's no sense in thinking you can economize with unproved fertilizers. Use plenty of Chilean and you'll get a good profitable crop.

Your Fertilizer Dealer

AND when you order, be sure to specify "Chilean". It contains rare elements in addition to Nitrogen that make it the supernitrate. It is Nitrogen PLUS, for it contains iodine, boron, magnesium, plant foods in themselves. Remember that Chilean is the proved fertilizer. Side dress your crops with it. At the new low price and in the new 100 lb. bag, it is a better buy than ever before. Remember the two kinds—Original Chilean (Crystalline) and Champion Brand (Granulated) both natural nitrate.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Owen D. Young

The life of a county boy in rural New York fifty years ago was made up of much work and little play. It meant getting up before daybreak on the cold winter mornings, helping with the stock, cleaning stables. It meant cutting and hauling wood, plowing, seeding and harvesting in season. Early to bed and early to rise was the program.

Most of the day during the summer was spent in tasks that made for a strong body. The development of the mind was left largely for the winter. Then a boy took his books and sometimes trudged miles through the snow to the little rural school house. He had to quit a warm bed, dress by candlelight in a chilly room and do his share of the chores before he set out on his tramp to school in quest of an education.

That was the sort of a life Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, financial genius and diplomat, led as a boy. He was born in Van Hornesville, N. Y., in 1874. His ancestors had settled there before the Revolution. His father owned a farm five miles from the town. The boy had to perform all the tasks that fell to the lot of other youngsters in the same environment.

The Young farm was 15 miles from the railroad. Itinerant peddlers were its chief contact with the outside world. Their coming was eagerly awaited. Trips to town were taken only when necessary. Such excursions meant much lost time in the days of the horse-drawn wagon and poor roads. Electric power, which has lightened the work in rural sections, the radio, which has put the farmer in touch with the world and its affairs, were not thought of as farm equipment when Owen D. Young was a boy. They were made largely possible for the farmer through his genius for organization.

Education, beyond the rural school was seldom considered worth while for farm boys of the time unless they planned on a professional life in town or city. If they could read and write and do simple problems in arithmetic, they soon qualified for the job of running a farm. Such a rudimentary training with books was bolstered by hard and practical schooling in matters of agriculture.

Owen D. Young was not the average farm boy. He walked five miles a day to the rural school and back during the term, helping his father the while with the chores. He was an only son.

It was a red letter day in the boy's life when he was taken to Cooperstown, the county seat of Herkimer. Dressed in blue jeans he went to the courthouse and heard the lawyers argue a case. They wore boiled shirts, stiff collars, black ties and broadcloth, impressive garb to the little boy from the farm. Their arguments fascinated him. He decided that when he grew up he would be a lawyer.

But there were many obstacles in his path. He had to obtain a better education than the rural school offered, if he was to qualify for his chosen profession. Any effort to gain advanced schooling meant that he would have to leave home. His father needed him on the farm.

When an uncle came to help his father the way to an education opened for the lad. He went to the East Springfield academy, encouraged by his parents in his ambitions.

His father drove Owen to school each week and brought him back home on Friday. His mother prepared the food on which he lived while away from home. Each week the boy carried away with him, packed in a big box, the good things his mother cooked for him to eat.

He was ready for college when he was fifteen years old. He wanted to go to Cornell, thinking he could win one of the state scholarships there. But he was too young to be eligible to try the competitive examinations. So he returned home to help his father again. He became interested in church work and conducted the Sunday school in the little church in Van Hornesville.

Alpheus Baker Harvey, then president of St. Lawrence university, came to the town to preach. He heard Owen Young speak in church. The lad interested him so much that the educator persuaded the elder Young that the boy was deserving of a college education even at a great sacrifice to his parents.

So the father borrowed $1,000 and on that money, and his own earnings, Owen D. Young went through college. He got his bachelor of arts degree from St. Lawrence in 1894.

He still held to his ambition to be a lawyer. He entered Boston university, knowing that he would have to work his way through the law school. He served as a librarian and tutor to earn all the money needed to meet his modest expenses. He completed the three-year course in two years.

After being admitted to the Massachusetts bar he went to work for the General Electric company. His promotion was rapid. The farm boy of 50 years ago is now the organizing genius of the electrical industry and one of the financial wizards of his time.

NEWS IN BRIEF

During the last 18 months motor vehicle deaths in the United States totaled 50,900. This was slightly more than the World War casualty list of 50,510. In New Jersey alone 1,251 persons were killed by automobiles.

The American Association hopes to have ten million trees planted as a part of the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of Geo. Washington's birthday. One of these trees, an American elm, was planted on the White House grounds by President Hoover.

In 1930 fifty thousand school busses went the daily rounds carrying two million children to and from seventeen thousand schools in the United States. A government estimate places the cost for the year at forty million dollars. School busses operated in practically every state.

Last year (1929) 1,345 banks in the United States suspended either permanently or temporarily. Deposits of these banks totaled $868,000,000, according to a report of the American Bankers Association. Of the total failures 344 closed in December but since the beginning of 1931 there has been "a very distinct change for the better," said the report.

Greater use of soy beans for human food is advocated by Dr. A. A. Horvath of the United States Bureau of Mines. He said that nearly half of the world's population now uses soy beans daily as a protein food, replacing meat. One hundred generations of Chinese have been raised on soy bean protein. Dr. Hovath says that one pound of soy beans costing wholesale two cents contains as much protein and fat as two pounds of beef.

WHOLE WHEAT IS VALUABLE FOOD

Auburn, Ala., May 4.—Because of its excellent qualities as a food, four concrete suggestions as to the use of whole wheat are offered. They are:

Whole wheat may be substituted for rice or macaroni and served with meats and gravy.

Whole wheat may be added to soups as a substitute for rice or macaroni.

Use any good rice pulling recipe substituting amount of wheat for rice.

For a breakfast food serve hot with milk or cream. Stewed or fresh fruit may be served with it.

These suggestions are offered by Miss Helen Kennedy, specialist in foods and nutrition of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn. Whole wheat is high in food value. The protein it contains builds and repairs the tissues. The starches and fats give heat and energy. Its minerals, such as iron, calcium, phosphorus, copper, magnesium, chlorine, and sodium, are body needs. They build bone, muscles, and blood, and help regulate the body processes. The vitamins A, B, D, E, and G are found in whole wheat.

Miss Kennedy gave several recipes in which whole wheat is included. The home demonstration agents have been supplied with copies of these recipes.

CONCERNING THE RIGHT OF THE FARMERS TO DO THINGS

There are those who deny the right of the farmer to organize and through cooperative purchasing lower the cost of production. No one objects to other manufacturers buying at wholesale. But the farmer, who is a manufacturer of cotton, fruits, vegetables, and other crops is denied this right. Some groups also deny the right of the farmer to market his own crops.

The reason is simple. There is an army of middlemen, who for decades, have levied a rich tribute on supplies and produce of the farmer. They consider an organization, that enables a farmer to escape from their clutches, and buy and sell intelligently, an unholy institution.

These groups include certain, not all, grain, fertilizer, feed, and cotton dealers are now waging a vigorous war against the Farm Bureau. In their enthusiasm to destroy the fine organization set up by the farmers of Alabama, they are resorting to many types of misrepresentation.

The question which confronts us as members of the farming group is: shall farm organizations be disbanded and shall we revert to a marketing and purchasing system which has brought ruin and misery to millions of homes which should by reason of their nearness to nature's blessings be the happiest homes in our land?

Self preservation is regarded as the first law of nature, hence it is difficult to criticise severly those who seek to retain a privilege which has been long theirs, but by the same law the farmers should fight with determination to hold that ground which they have gained and further extend their control over the products of their land and labor.

And while we are speaking of the rights, it is well, we think, to mention that in our opinion, no one has a right to block the progress. Cooperation is the modern, up-to-date, progressive way of doing business. Those who oppose the farm bureau and organized organizations are, figuratively, sticking a knife in the back of progress.

Throughout all history, certain reactionary groups have resisted progress. They nailed Jesus to the cross. He had some new ideas which did not jibe with the interests of those who thought they were in charge.

Not many hundreds of years ago men were burned at the stake for performing surgical operations.

But in spite of the efforts of destructionists mankind has always gone forward to a better day. There is no hope for those who resist the course of progress. Their cause will fail.

This is 1931 and the cooperative way of doing business is the 1931 way. It matters not who opposes or who favors it, success is as sure as the fact that the sun rises and sets. Progress cannot be permanently halted.

Let us awake to the fact that history is in the making. From the ranks of that group engaged in the great agricultural industry, there is being recruited a potent army ready and willing to fight for their rights, and the result of their battle must determine the welfare of their children and children's children. Let the country banker, the country merchant, and the country editor and the professioal man who resides in or near an agricultural community give his full support to that group on which he is so largely dependent.

The same groups who are opposed to rural cooperation, have been opposed to it from the beginning. They said little as long as the cooperatives were weak. Now that they are daily growing in strength and are a strong influence for better economic and social conditions on the farm, the opposing groups have raised their voices But this noise will go the way of all objectionable things. Farmers will see to that.—Alabama Farm Bureau News.

PAINS QUIT COMING
"When I was a girl, I suffered periodically with terrible pains in my back and sides. Often I would bend almost double with the intense pain. This would last for hours and I could get no relief.
"I tried almost everything that was recommended to me, but found nothing that would help until I began taking Cardui. My mother thought it would be good for me, so she got a bottle of Cardui and started me taking it. I soon improved. The bad spells quit coming. I was soon in normal health."

THE PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:11-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Do Our Best.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Do Our Best.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Partners With Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Money.

The purpose of this parable was to correct the misapprehension of the disciples as to the immediate establishment of the kingdom. They were on the way to Jerusalem, and the disciples thought that immediately upon their arrival there Jesus would begin the exercise of his kingdom rule. Christ taught the disciples the reality of his coming and the setting up of a real kingdom, but indicated that there would be a long delay after his ascension before he would return.

I. The Absent Nobleman (v. 12).

Going away to receive a kingdom was a common occurrence among the Jews. Members of the Herodian family had gone to Rome and secured their appointment to rule over Palestine. This pictures Jesus going back to God to receive his kingdom. Jesus ascended on high to receive from God the Father a kingdom. He will return when the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. Though the time of his return be unknown, and even delayed, let no one mistake the certainty of his coming.

II. The Distribution of the Pounds (v. 13).

These pounds represent Christ's gifts to his servants. When Christ ascended he gave gifts to men (Ephesians 4:7-12). To each servant was given the same amount, showing that to all a certain gift had been given and therefore all will be held responsible for its use. The distribution was made by the sovereign. The servants did not choose as to whether they would have a gift at all, or even its amount. It was also a purposeful distribution. They were to put their gifts to use during his absence. What the nobleman demanded was faithfulness.

III. The Rebellious Citizens (v. 14).

They hated him and sent messengers after him, notifying him of their refusal to be subject to him. This pictures the unbelief of the Jews after Christ's ascension, and their repudiation of his rule. It also pictures the unbelieving world in its hatred and rejection of Christ.

IV. The Accounting (vv. 15-27).

1. Its certainty (v. 15).

Christ will surely bring every one to account for the use made of his gifts. Men may go on in proud unbelief and rebellion, but God never forgets. He has appointed a day in which he will judge the world (Acts 17:31).

2. The time (v. 15)

It will take place when Jesus comes back to the earth. His return will take place when he has received his kingdom. He will receive his kingdom when he asks the Father (Ps. 2:8). His delay in asking the Father for his kingdom is because of his long suffering mercy, extending grace to as many as will receive him as Savior.

3. Rewards given for faithfulness (vv. 16-19).

(1) The first report (vv. 16, 17).

He did not say, "I have made ten pounds," but "Thy pound hath gained ten pounds." He recognized the Lord's ownership. To this the Lord replied by commendation. He praised him and promoted him, making him ruler over ten cities.

(2) The second report (vv. 18, 19)

In this case the pound had gained five pounds. He did not get the Lord's commendation for he had not done so well, but was appointed to a place of rulership over five cities. The reward in each case was proportioned to faithfulness during the Lord's absence.

4. Judgment upon the unfaithful (vv. 20-27).

(1) His report (vv. 20, 21).

This report was entirely bad. He had not put the pound to use but laid it away, throwing the blame upon the Lord. He asserted that the character of the Lord was such as to produce fear.

(2) Condemnation (vv. 22, 23).

The wicked servant is judged out of his own mouth. His excuse increased his guilt. He is called wicked. To fail to use our opportunities to serve Christ is the basest wickedness.

(3) Stripped of the pound (vv. 24-26).

To fail to use one's gifts means to lose them. One of the losses of the next world will be the deprivation of what we now have.

Must Battle With Evil

Evil never surrenders its hold without a sore fight. We never pass into any spiritual inheritance through the delightful exercises of a picnic, but always through the grim contentions of the battlefield. Every faculty which wins its spiritual freedom does so at the price of blood.—J. H. Jowett.

CENTRAL SINGERS TO VACATE FOR THREE ALL DAY AFFAIRS

The Central Singing Society met in regular session last Sunday afternoon. Prof. L. T. Grant presided, and the singing was good for about two hours. At the close of the singing it was decided that the society not hold its regular meetings for the next three Sunday afernoons on account of all day singings at Walnut Creek, Refuge and Providence, respectively. The matter of the fifth Sunday afternoon in this month was left up to the committee; they will report later.

The society decided to order two dozen of the Morris-Henson books. There are at least a dozen already among the members of the society; so this will give us enough to use. Both the Stamps and Henson books will be used at Walnut Creek next Sunday. There will be some of the latter for sale if anyone wants one.

SCIENTIST SEES WAY TO RID SOUTH OF PELLAGRA

Chicago, May 4—Improved quality of diet is the chief essential for ridding the South of pellagra.

Such is the assertion of Dr. E. V. McCollum, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, internationally noted authority on nutrition. Dr. McCollum outlined the new developments in nutrition in an address here to members of the American Dry Milk Institute at their annual meting.

Pellagra, now somewhat common in the South, is caused by a deficiency in Vitamin G, Dr. McCollum declared, adding that foods richest in this particular vitamin are yeast, eggs, lean meat, and milk.

"Those who have given most careful attention to pellagra are agreed that the one way to eradicate it is by improvement in the quality of the diet," said Dr. McCollum.

"And this can be done through use of the foods richest in Vitamin G."

Use of dry skim milk in the making of bread is a contributing factor in increasing the nutrition of this bakery product, he said.

Dr. McCollum stated that the texture of the bread for different classes of the trade would be the important determining factor in the amount of milk that should be used in bread.

He was emphatic, however, that the proteins of milk solids, which include dry milk are better than products for supplementing the protein of cereals, and utilizes the former to a greater degree than any other ingredient because of the beneficial effects of the various combinations.

AUSTRALIA'S FINANCIAL PLIGHT

Australia is now facing a crisis in her government fiscal policies. Briefly, Mr. Lang, prime minister of New South Wales, proposes that the Australian commonwealth and state governments shall pay no more interest on their bonds, mainly held in England, until, first, Britain scales down Australia's debt as we did Britain's war debt to us; second, domestic holders of bonds agree to accept a reduction of interest to 3 per cent; and third, the commonwealth government definitely abandons the gold standard.

The importance of Mr. Lang's proposal comes from the fact that the debt of New South Wales exceeds that of any of the other states and that he frankly advocates partial repudiation. London does not fear the adoption of this plan of open repudiation but it does not fear an alterative plan recommended by Mr. Theodore, federal treasurer, which means inflation that would further increase the present crisis.

The sound but drastic plan to reduce the Australian government expenditures, to revise old age, invalid, and war pensions downward, excited too much opposition to be adopted. Before the war, Australia had embarked on ambitious but ill-considered socialistic plans that fastened extraordinary heavy charges on the public treasury. The war placed additional strains on an already hard-pressed treasury. The government hesitates to inaugurate the only sound method of restoring Australian solvency.

Advices from London indicate that Britain will come to the finincial aid of her dominion if necessary to prevent her bankruptcy. But this will only mean an additional burden on the treasury of the United Kingdom. Even schoolboys should realize by now that governments as well as individuals must balance budgets, but enthusiastic advocates of state aid for various worthy enterprises always forget the teaching of experience and cheerfully look into the government's purse for some miraculous supply of gold only to find that the government has no money except that provided by the taxpayers. Our Congress and state legislatures will do well to ponder Australia's condition when confronted with wholesale demands for government aid, all of which have to be financed by the citizens' money.—Scientific American.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

The matter of prime importance to Thorsby residents just at the present is the 1931 strawebrry crop. Never in its history has the Thorsby Fruit and truck growers Association gathered and shipped so many cars of such excellent berries in the first ten days of a season's harvest.

Beginning Friday night, April 24, with a shipment of one car, and continuing till Monday night May 4th, 27 carloads were shipped, 18 of them had been sold for upward of $21,000, most of them from the track at Thorsby.

A singular incidence occurred in Monday's selling. One of the buyers who came to Thorsby representing northern customers, was one from a Cincinnatti concern. During last week he was taken sick with the measles—did he quit? Not a bit of it. While too sick to get out, he asked for samples of the berries to be shown him, and actually bought four cars at a good price.

Monday of this week was a decidedly rainy day, and yet, before and between showers, seven carloads were gathered in good shape to ship. Tuesday forenoon was misty and also cloudy, and comparatively few berries were picked, but toward noon the rain ceased and a gentle wind dried off the plant and the berries began to come in, although three iced cars stood ready to receive berries we heard arrangements being made to order more cars.

Monday night we saw in the waiting line of autos, and trucks with their loads of crated berries, one truck having 75 crates. In astonishment we asked the driver how he found time between showers to pick so many berries. He replied, "We didn't pick them, others did that and we haled them." On inquiry as to where they came from, he replied "Mineral Springs, a section about seven miles from Thorsby." What a boon to Central Chilton County, is a bumper crop of Strawberries.

Thorsby Congregational Ladies Aid social will be held at the Thorsby Institute, Thursday afternoon of this week. Misses Jenkins and Leech will be hostesses.

Rev. Each announces a special Mothers Day program at the Congregational church at 11 a.m. next Sunday. A cordial invitation is extended to mothers.

The P.-T. A. benefit party, given at the public school building last Thursday night, was a very pleasing and interesting affair. The arangements for entertainment were unique and under skilled management. The assembly hall was transformed into conveniently arranged setting for the several different kinds of games, that were well occupied. The net proceeds were nearly $20. and that will leave only a comparatively small sum to be secured to complete payment on the school pump.

Rev. and Mrs. Each entertained at dinner last Sunday, the three men, of Thorsby Institute, and the boys in the boarding house. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by the family and guests.

Mr. Charles Peterson left Thorsby on train No. 1 Tuesday morning for Dr. L. V. Stabler's hospital at Greenville, where he expects to take treatment for about three weeks, in preparation for a serious operation . Mr. Peterson has been in poor health for some time and it is hoped that he may be helped by the course he is pursuing.

Although not leaderless the program was put on the blackboard and each member took part as his topic appeared on the board. The members were divided into two groups, those whose birthday came between January and June, and those whose came from July to December. There was no roll call, the roll being marked as each took part.

Mr. H. V. Thompson of Birmingham and Mrs. L. P. Henderson of Memphis are visitors this week at the home of Mrs. E. L. Thornbough.

Miss Jennie May Thoroman was a visitor to Birmingham Friday night and Saturday.

Saturday night, May 2, the Junior Class entertained the Senior Class at Ella Howard's home. The plans of entertainment showed careful arrangement. The home was adorned with beautiful roses and flowers from the greenhouse.

After several interesting games were played every one was served dlicious punch.

Th refreshments were very attractive and delicious. They were carried out in the color scheme of the Senior Class colors—green and white. Two kinds of cookies with green and white frosting were served with green and white brick ice cream.

Each person was given an address book as a souvenir and some time was spent in writting names and addresses in these books.

Miss Mabel Johnson, Mr. James Thomas, of Birmingham, and Mr. Clyde Campbell of Buffalo, N. Y., visited Miss Edna Raybon Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker had as their guests last Thursday Mrs. J. N. Foreman, and daughter Edna Earl, Mr. W. M. Nixon, Mrs. Crawford and Mr. Marshall Foreman, all of Deatsville.

The play written by Frank Craven and in which he starred in New York City for several seasons, "New Brooms," is to be presented here on the evening of May 8, at Thorsby Institute, by the well known Bergman Players.

Father and Son Play

"New Brooms" is a humorously human story of a father and a son. The son, just graduated from college, has his own ideas of how his father's broom factory should be run. His theory of success is to be courteous, polite, obliging, ever smiling, and to never lose his temper. The father, a successful, hard-headed business man, who occasionally loses his temper, wants to take his son into business with him, and in this way, hopes to continue the success of the firm. This, Tom Bates, Jr., refuses to do, unless he can run the business according to his own ideas. Tom Bates, Sr., thinks this preposterous, but since he cannot convince his son otherwise, he finally, in desperation, turns over the entire business to the boy, for him to run in his own way, for one year. In addition, the son is to manage the household, pay all bills, and give his father an allowance equal to his own while he was in college.

Enter the Girl

The agreement has just been completed when the daughter of a former schoolmate of Tom Sr's comes to him, asking him to help her find employment, made necessary by the death of her father. Tom, Jr., engages the inexperienced girl as housekeeper. She and the crab, as Tom calls his father, grow to be firm friends. Everyone mistakes this friendship for love. Tom accepts this with a smile, as well as a good many other trying situations and is considered as a hail fellow well met by all. However, people soon begin to take advantage of his good humor, until he is forced to use the same sort of tactics as his fahtre employed. He eventually discharges the youthful housekeeper, whom his father immediately takes to Florida with him for the winter season. Ultimately, Tom breaks his engagement with his finance.

When the year is up, the father and the girl return. The son admits his defeat, and applies for a position. New brooms may sweep clean, but the sweeper must also use a little comon sense. There is a bit of pathos in the old grab's advice to his son, as he again takes over the business. It gives one a real insight into his character and shows how human and lovable he really is. The story is completed by Tom Jr.'s confessing his love to the vivacious little housekeeper, which he didn't realize until after he had discharged her and she was gone.

Anita Tulley plays the part of the housekeeper, who has lovable ways of creeping into the heart of the old crab, played by Gene Bergman.

Admission tickets or single admission 50 cents. For all students or teachers at the pulic school or at the Institute, 35 cents.

As each person left he or she was also given a beautiful rose as a souvenir by Mr. Howard.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

We are proud to say that we have a Sunday school. We had 51 present Sunday. Some were out on account of sickness. Our superintendent was out for the first time in a long time, as he and his family went to Jacksonville to see his daughter, Miss Mabel Wilkins, who has been sick for a few days. We are glad to report that she is better and going back to school.

Let us pray that we might all be interested enough in our Sunday school, to do our duty. Surely we all believe in God. He says fail not to assemble ourselves together. We have a little work for everyone.

Friends let us study the spirit of the Lord a little each day. Pray that we might do better and better. Let us learn to love one another, as he said, "Each one of us know ourselves by the way we feel toward our fellowman. Pray God to remove that we can meet each other with that robe of righteousness on. The Lord will smile down on us and pour us out a blessing. The Lord said, "Try me," My prayer would be: "Turn in with the Lord, and what a glorious time it would be."

Remember Sunday school next Sunday morning. Come and bring someone with you.

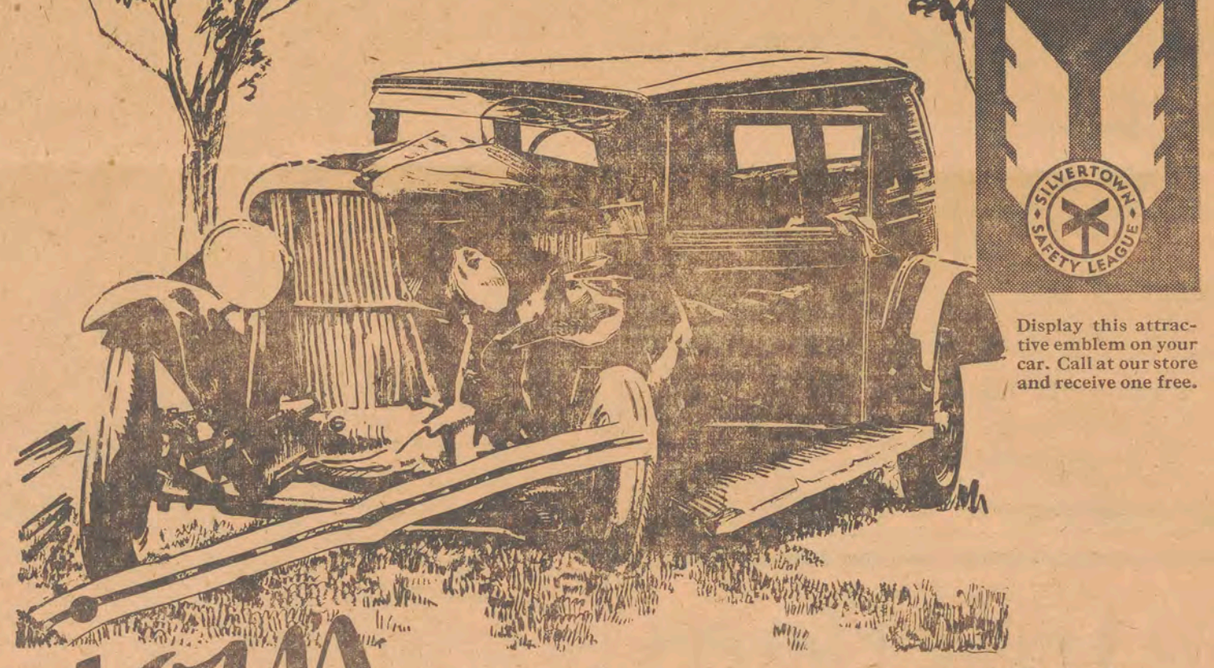
FIFTY BERRIES TO A QUART

Mr. E. H. Mims, of Concord, donated a quart of very fine strawberries to The Union-Banner Tuesday evening. When he left them he said: "Here are a few stunted berries that I gathered from my outside row." When we counted them we found that there were exactly fifty to a quart. Twenty of the largest ones filled the cup two-thirds full.



Henry Popwell of Mt. Pisgah was in Clanton Tuesday getting some war papers signed up. He is applying for disability aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lande are in Miami, Fla., this week attending the Kiwanis International assembly. They intend to take a trip over into Cuba while down there.

Late word from W. M. Wyatt and J. Mell Martin, in Miami, Fla., says that they are having a wonderful time and are seeing lots of the beauties of the land of flowers.

We are sorry to learn of the illness of Mr. Harry M. Cooke of the Cooke Players. Hope that he will be able to be with his troupe at Thorsby next week. They are showing in Maplesville this week.

IN MEMORY OF LEWIS COX

On Sunday morning, April 12, 1931, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abna Cox and bore away the beautiful spirit of a dear loved one, Lewis. All was done to keep him with us, but God loved him best, and He called him home. On this earth we'll never see his face, but we can live to see him in a better home some day.

We loved him, yes we loved him,
But angels loved him more;
And they have sweetly called him,
To yonder shining shore.

We loved him, yes we loved him,
More than human tongue can tell;
We told him good bye,
But we didn't say farewell.

Men Easier to Handle Than Women, Says She

Florence Richardson, Orchestra Leader, Compares Sexes

New York City.—Men are easier to handle than women, but only if they don't suspect they are being handled.

This is the conviction of Florence Richardson, only woman leader of a nationally-famous jazz orchestra now playing at the Paramount Hotel. Her group is composed of men, all college graduates, who have been together for four years.

"It takes more than good musicians to make an orchestra," says Miss Richardson.

"Musicianship is important, of course, but if the men are to play as one man, they must have been together for some time and there must have grown up among them an affection and a community of interests that breeds good fellowship.

"I say that men are easier to handle than women because it really seems to me that they are simpler, less given to jealousy and more equable in temperament. At the same time, I do not try to 'handle' them in the usual sense. I find that the fewer requests I make, the better everything goes."

Miss Richardson's orchestra has often had the experience of "making" a popular song. One of these, "My Love for You," is a great favorite of the leader, herself, because, she says, of its grace and rhythm.

Miss Richardson, whose work as a conductor has been highly praised by men orchestra leaders, uses a baton presented to her by Paul Whiteman, who also bestowed upon her the title of Queen of Jazz.

Says Other Half of Insurance Certificates Will Likely Be Cashed at Next Congress Session

Senator Hugo L. Black spoke to a big crowd of ex-soldiers and others at the court house in Clanton Monday night. It was a regular meeting of the American Legion local post, and Senator Black was the speaker of the evening.

The speech dealt principally on the detailed explanation of the ex-soldiers adjusted compensation, how and why it originatd, the legislation affecting it, and the way in which ex-service men should make application for same with the least trouble to themselves and to the Veterans Bureau.

Senator Black also made remarks very pleasing to the boys when he assured them that very likely when the next Congress meets in December the additional fifty per cent of the adjusted compensation certificates will be cashed by the government. If this is done, the same will go a long way toward relieving the depressed condition of the ex-soldiers as well as everybody else over the country generally.

In touching on the present depression of the country Senator Black explained it was caused by the bulk of the money of the country being held by so few men. He stated that 504 men in the United States held enough money to have bought all of the cotton and the wheat raised in the country last year at a substantial price. It stands to reason that such conditions in the financial world will cause a general stagnation.

At this meeting 4 new members were added to the local post, bringing the total up to 110. Also 4 new members were added to the Auxiliary, making their total 28.

It was announced that this year's fish fry will be held on May 22nd just above Lay Dam near the R. F. Bates place.

While in Clanton Senator Black and his secretary, Mr. Grant, were entertained at the home of Prof. and Mrs. L. C. Warr.

Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby was in Clanton Tuesday shaking hands with his many friends and acquaintances. We are always glad to have Rev. Jones call to see us.

INCREASED TAXATION

Birmingham, Ala., May 4.—In a statement issued today, H. Key Milner, well known in business circles over the state and the South, protested strongly against any increase in taxation at this time. Mr. Milner is a member of a pioneer Birmingham family and is known for his interest in good government as well as for his keen business judgment and his words would seem to reflect the thought of many leaders in the business life of the state.

"The entire country is now in the depths of perhaps the greatest financial depression that has existed during the last fifty years," said Mr. Milner. "The prices of various farm products, such as cotton, wheat, corn, and so forth, as well as other commodities, are lower than they have been for many, many years. The incomes of the farmer, the merchant and the manufacturer are perhaps lower than they have been in a generation. The purchasing power of the public is the lowest for the past forty years."

"Under conditions like the present," Mr. Milner's statement continued, "it seems to me that a state, or any other governing body, should exercise the same prudence, caution, and foresight that would be expected of an individual. Practically everyone, which includes farmers, business concerns and manufacturing enterprises, as well as individuals, is living from hand to mouth. It would seem, therefore, most injudicious and unwise to impose any additional taxes on the people. Any thoughtful and prudent individual or commercial institution in times of stress reduces its expenditures in accordance with is receipts or revenues. A state, in my opinion, should do the same thing. It should retrench and cut its expenditures and appropriations for all purposes, including institutions of all kinds, regardless of what they may be, so that they will come within the state's income without any additional taxes.

"It would be a most grievous burden to saddle additional taxes on an already weakened and staggering public. The people cannot bear any additional financial burdens and keep going."

Mr. Milner is urging his friends and business associates to join him in an active protest against proposed increases in taxation schedules during times such as we are passing through.

Uncle Sam's Trade With Chile Growing

Our Manufacturers Supply One-third of Imports to That Country

Chile is one of Uncle Sam's best customers, according to the U. S. Department of Commerce. Thirty-three cents of every dollar she spends abroad comes to the United States. In 1929 this amounted to sixty million dollars, or more than double the amount spent in any other country. Chile's imported goods amounted to $44 per capita that year.

Unloading Cargo American Made Locomotives in Valparaiso, Chile

The principal products purchased from the United States included cotton fabrics, automobiles, trucks, gasoline and iron and steel manufactured products. Since these and many other products are manufactured in this country in excess of the home demand the development of markets in other countries is essential to the future prosperity of our country.

In exchange for the products sold to Chile, the United States bought raw materials, principally copper to be converted into manufactured products and nitrate of soda to be used by farmers in producing profitable crops. Governments of both countries actively encourage this exchange of trade. Our commerce officials have shown that American manufacturers can enlarge their markets in South America. Nearly all these countries have raw products to exchange for the goods we produce.

ON BEING A KING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"I often wish that I were king,
And then I could do anything."

It is A. A. Milne's little Christopher Robin who makes the statement and who believes as do many little boys, and big ones, too, no doubt, that positions of distinction bring one freedom from responsibility and the conventions which ordinary people must expect. If little Christopher Robin were king, as he so much desires, he would most likely find that instead of not being required to brush his hair, he would have to keep it in the most perfect order so as to set a good example to his subjects. Being king in whatever kingdom one finds himself does not often give one much more liberty than does being a slave. It is not an easy job, and it is not one which allows one a great deal of freedom this being a king.

I have seen the king of England a few times, and once in Europe I ran onto another king, hedged in, surrounded by soldiery, doing the most conventional things in a deadly conventional way. They had no freedom no chance to do as they pleased.

Conway is the head and chief owner of a great industry which does annually a business worth a good many millions of dollars. In theory he can come and go as he pleases. He need hold himself to no regular office hours. If a man in his employ does not please him Conway can fire him and hire him over again if he wishes. He can go off on a vacation whenever he pleases and charge the cost of it to expenses. He is king. It looks to a cursory observer that if Conway wants to take his hat off in the rain or leave his hair unbrushed, there is no one to say him nay.

But these things are only seeming. Conway is really a greater slave than the man who works for him by the hour.

It is a mistake that too many inexperienced men make that the boss or the president, or the manager or the dean, or whoever in the domain in which you work is king, can do as he pleases. No one can do so less.

Little Christopher Robin was wrong. A king is very much restricted in his activities, no matter where his kingdom lies.

DAVID W. WILLIAMS

David W. Williams was born August 12, 1862, and died April 30, 1931. He was united in matrimony to Miss Sarah Ellen McClendon, April 28, 1880. To this union was born 11 children; 6 boys and 5 girls, two of them having died in infancy. And at the time of his death he had 30 grand children, and 9 great grand children.

Uncle Dave, as he was called, leaves a devoted wife, 2 brothers, and one sister, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. But God saw fit in His goodness to take him home to reign throughout the endless ages of eternity. He brought sunshine and happiness into the home. His seat is now vacant, and the cloud of sadness has now found its way into the home; but God does all things well.

May we all be so submissive to His will that we can say "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." When God speaks, may we all be silent. When he sends the heavenly message and says, "it is enough, come home," his mission on earth is finished.

It is so sad to think that this dear one can never visit his home again; but it is wonderful to think that he is living with the blessed Saviour, who is able and willing to take care of us all if we will only trust him. Friends, the only way to ever meet Uncle Dave is to trust in Jesus and prepare to meet him in that city of God, where cometh no separation.

We feel assured that we shall meet him on the morning of the resurrection, when God shall call His faithful children home.

He was a faithful soldier of the Cross, and lived the life of a true Christian. We cannot understand why God called one so good as he, but he doeth all things well, and we only see through a glass, darkly now, but some sweet day, if we are faithful to the end, all things shall be made plain. His influence will live on, though his spirit has gone to its reward.

Our hearts ache for the devoted wife and mother, as she comes in to behold the vacant chair, and weep. For she, too, is a consecrated Christian. She looks through tears and beholds Calvary; then submits to God's will, and says let faith exalt her joyful voice, and now in triumph say, "Oh grave where is thy victory, oh death where is thy sting?"

We miss him, oh we miss him,
For our Saviour called him away;
But we are praying to meet him,
In the better world some day.

We know that he is resting,
In Paradise above;
We hope some day to meet him,
In joy, peace, and love.

No more on earth we see his face,
His sweet voice we hear no more;
But only let us live to meet him,
On that bright and sunny shore.

We loved our daddy dearly,
No human tongue can tell;
We said good bye for a little while,
And said farewell, but not forever.

It was only a few days ago,
We can never forget the hour,
When the silent reaper came,
And carried our daddy away.

Oh how brave and tender,
He was every day;
And all the sorrow he gave us,
Was because he went away.

He is not dead, just sweetly resting,
From life's labors and cares,
And if we live as Jesus taught us,
We'll meet him in the land of bliss.

Sleep on, dear daddy,
Take thy rest,
God has called thee home,
And he knew best.

Mr. Williams is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ellen Williams, four sons and five daughters. The sons are: Barton of Fairfield; Erasmus of Monmoth; Robert of Bessemer and Burnie of Jemison; the daughters are: Mrs. E. L. Glasscock, Mrs. W. J. Northcutt and Mrs. Clyde Matthews, all of Jemison; Mrs. Bud Long of Monmoth; and Miss Golda Williams of Bessemer.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. M. Honeycutt. A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends attended. His body was laid to rest under a beautiful flower mound in the Oak Grove cemetery, to await the resurrection of the dead in Christ at His second coming.—E. L. Glasscock, Jemison, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM'S NEW MUNICIPAL AIRPORT

Above is Birmingham's $1,000,000 municipal airport, one of the finest in the South. It will be opened officially with a three-day dedication May 30 and 31 and June 1. The left insert is Steadham Acker, manager of the new air park, and the right insert is an architect's drawing of the Terminal Building which will be completed when the port is opened.

BIRMINGHAM AIRPORT TO BE DEDICATED

Birmingham, Ala., May 4.—Birmingham's just completed $1,000,000 municipal airport, nationally acclaimed as one of the finest in the South, will be officially dedicated with an appropriate three-day ceremony, May 30 and 31 and June 1.

The Senior and Junior Chambers of Commerce of Birmingham will have charge jointly of the dedication ceremonies and all arrangements attendant to throwing open the big air park.

It is estimated that between 250 and 300 airplanes of all types will visit the field during the three day celebration. Certainly, Birmingham will be well prepared to welcome and entertain as many aviators and "ground" visitors as can come here for the opening.

Such internationally known aviators as Jimmie Doolittle, former army flyer; Dale Jackson, endurance flyer and his noted ship "Greater St. Louis," and Dr. J. D. Brock, round the world flyer, have already informed the Chamber of Commerce that they will attend the opening. Other famous flyers to be here include Eddie Stinson, Maj. W. H. Everson of the Militia Bureau, Capt. Frank Hawks, now in Europe and Col. Clarence Young, head of the U. S. Department of Commerce Aviation Division.

Plans have been made to receive about 30 regular army planes, 40 national guard ships and dozens of airplanes from the Pensacola Naval Base and the Quantico Marine Base. "The Puritan," huge blimp of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., will also visit the new port, as well as hundreds of commercial ships. The opening will mark the beginning of through trans-continental passenger service of the S. A. F. E. Company.

Birmingham's new airport is four and a quarter miles from the heart of the downtown district, 15 minutes driving time over paved highways.

It contains 315 acres and lies in the northeastern section of the city, the freest site from smoke, fog, and similar atmospheric conditions that could be found.

It is an all-way field with one runway at present, running north and south at a slight angle. The runway is paved with asphalt and the balance of the entire field will be sodded. The field is fully equipped for night flying and has sufficient buildings of the latest design for the housing of planes and the comfort of passengers and pilots. It is equipped with meteorological radio station and teletype and radio range beacons.

Atop the roof of the Terminal Building, which is designed after "Mount Vernon" is a large flat electric sign with letters 12 feet high spelling "Birmingham." Immediately above the name is an illuminated 18-foot letter "M" which is the Department of Commerce designation of a municipal airport.

Citizens of Birmingham voted two-to-one in favor of a bond issue of $1,000,000 for purchase of the site and building of the airport and buildings.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

DEATH OF MRS. CLEVE BAKER

On the morning of April 17th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Cleve Baker and bore away the spirit of his loving wife, Mrs. Belle Baker; one who was a faithful wife and loving mother. To know her was to love her; and to associate with her closely one could fully appreciate her many fine qualities.

She loved her family and friends, and was most charitable to all. She was a devoted church member of the Temple Church. We shall miss her; her husband, children, and sisters will miss her. But in this thought we find a great consolation: Heaven has been made brighter by the transplanting of this beautiful flower. She was endeared to her many friends by the tenderest cares of love and sympathy, and we deeply feel the shadow which falls upon us when one so great, so beloved, as a mother, is called to the great beyond.

We tender our sympathy to the members of the family from whose circle a golden link has been broken, but some day if we live the life she lived, we shall meet her where there is no more sorrow, pain, or death. Let us think of her as having taken the journey ahead of us and try somehow to rejoice as she rejoices Somewhere beyond these voices there is peace; there is a brighter side. It is just through a thin veil where Christ is, and where she is, too. Now she sees and knows what we can only apprehend by faith in the Word of a loving Saviour.

She leaves behind to mourn her loss a husband, six children, four girls, Ethel Alma, Erie Mae, and Irene; and two boys, Ernest and Clifford. Three sister who are Mrs. Lou Patterson of Mitchell Dam, Mrs. Tom Traywick of Clanton and Mrs. John White of Georgia. All were present at the funeral except Mrs. John White.

The funeral services were held Friday afternoon. Rev. Ezell of the Clanton Baptist church officiating. Interment was made in Temple cemetery, with Mell Martin in charge. Her grave was banked with beautiful flowers, tenderly placed by loving hands. It was all we could do, and yet it seemed so little in loving remembrance to the place she held in our hearts. She now peacefully sleeps, awaiting ressurection morning, when friends and loved ones again shall be united to part no more.—A Friend.

WEST CHILTON

The harp and harmony singers of Chilton County were in session at Pleasant Grove church Sunday. It was one of the most successful and joyful sessions in the convention history. Great crowds of people came. Dinners were rich and abundant. Deep spirituality was much in evidence. Good will abounded.

The singing was enthusiastic and in great volume. We had some beautiful quartets, such as "Jesus died for me" and "Touch the harp gently," etc.

The memorial songs in memory of T. F. Jackson, W. Q. Sanders, Mrs. Essie Cleckler, Walton Latham, Mrs. Susan Johnson, were well rendered and very impressive.

The following resolutions relative to T. F. Jackson were adopted:

Whereas, as one of our greatest founders of this convention, in 1906, Mr. Thomas Jefferson Jackson, has passed away, and whereas, he was one of its greatest leaders, undaunted to the end. And whereas, he loved the music of this convention. Therefore resolved, that we ever cherish his memory. That we thank the great author of sacred music for Mr. Jacnson's life, and labors. And that we extend to his loved ones our sympathy in their bereavement. That we look with hope to the glorious conevention beyond the grave, whereat, we expect to meet Mr. Jackson along with Prof. White and other great music leaders, where music will be perfect.

Resolved that a special page in the convention record be kept sacred to his memory.

Then there was Mr. Wilson Q. Sanders, a noble man, a Christian gentleman, a lover of this convention, a man in whom we had unbounded confidence. He too is gone.

There was his talented and accomplished daughter, Mrs. Essie Cleckler, whose home was in New Hampshire, and was one of the finest singers in this convention. But recently in her tender years has passed away into the shadows. Her remains rest in her beloved sunny south.

There was Walter Latham, another one that loved the convention, is gone.

There was Mrs. Susan Johnson, who devoted to the convention, has passed away. Alas, by one they are going. Our sympathy goes out to their loved ones.

The passing of these devoted members is an appeal that comes in the thunder storms to the young members and old too. It wants us to arouse with renewed energy and reconsecrecrate themselves to the cause of sacred music. This is, more singers, deeper study, more music schools There is no time to loose. An awakening all along the line is needed.

The convention has passed into history, and will be long remembered. Next session goes to Lomax Last but not least. The beautiful flowers that kind friends have placed before the convention spoke columns. They spoke welcome. Our words fail to duly express our appreciation of such human kindness and real thoughtfulness.

CONCORD-BILLINGSLEY

Our singing which was held here last Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by those present, although the crowd was small. But the Lord said, where two or three are gathered together in His name, He would be in the midst.

After the opening song prayer was offered by Mr. T. L. Williams. Mr. Hudson Williams was elected chairman of this singing society. The directors were as follows: Messrs. Olin, Hudson, R. P., Charlie and Horace Williams; Misses Virginia Little, and Bessie Williams, and Mrs. Girtie Mae Little. The organists were Messrs Olin and Hudson Williams and Mrs. Girtie Mae Little.

Also, two quartets were sung, "Sitting at the feet of Jesus," and "Prayer is the Key."

We hope that it will be convenient for us to arrange a quartet band for each singing afternoon. We didn't have many visitors with us, but we hope everybody will learn about our regular singing afternoon, which is every first Sunday afternon, and come every time possible, especially all singers.

Health in this community seems to be improving some. The flu is kindly dieing down, we are glad to say. We hope the Christian Endeavor and Sunday school attendance will be better now.

A. C. NELSON WRITES ABOUT DANGEROUS LITERATURE

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please permit me space in your paper to say a few words of warning to the people? There has been some book agents going over Chilton County selling books and leaving literature. When they could not get the cash they would take eggs, chickens, turnips, or a piece of cake, and leave the books. Their aim is to leave some books in every home.

They are fighting the churches, and teaching dangerous doctrine. Those books are not fit for young people or children to read, and will not do older ones any good to read them. Don't be deceived and buy these books; and if you have already bought some of them, burn them, as some have done. You would do a good deed to burn them if you have any of them.

Jesus spoke a parable and said a man sowed good seed in his field, but while men slept the enemy came and sowed tares. Are ministers and churches going to sleep and let the enemy sow the field full of tares? Why not wake up?

These agents say they have no home, and don't belong to any church. Why not spend your money with people who have a place they call home, and who you know something about, their life and the things they stand for. If you want good books, get them at some reliable book store, or from some one you know, and know what they stand for. Do not be deceived; take a stand for Christ and the church.

Yours for Christ and the church—A. C. Nelson.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

A legal notice appeared in The Chilton County News, last issue, of complaint by the State of Alabama, against one Chevrolet coach, owned by E. M. McKee, and that he did transport prohibited liquor and beverages.

These charges were brought against me but they are absolutely untrue. I have never transported any kind of beverages in any county or state.

The writer was not shown any courtesy when arrested. They would not allow me to use the telephone to send a message to my home, neither would they allow friends to see me. And a number of my friends who were willing and O. K., were not permitted to make my bond. In fact, in the opinion of my friends, as well as personally, I was regarded more as a criminal than a citizen, where I was born and raised, in Clanton, a citizen who was unfortunately placed in a set of unavoidable circumstances. Understand, I did not expect any more courtesy than a prisoner should be shown, even though I am a respectable citizen.

I came clean with the truth to the Sheriff and officers, and I am coming clean with my friends of Clanton and Chilton County, that I have never transported any liquors, and will never do so.—E. M. McKee, Mt. Creek, Ala., Route 1.

ALABAMA COTTON BETTER IN 1930 THAN IN 1929

Alabama cotton showed improvement in grade, staple and tenderability in 1930 over 1929, reports the United States Department of Agriculture.

F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, released a report showing that 73.3 per cent of the 1930 crop was found to be white middling and better compared with 71.4 per cent of the 1929 crop. "Of white strict low and low middling there were 13.9 per cent from the 1930 crop and 12.8 from the 1929 crop. Of the grades below low middling there were 12.8 per cent in 1930 and 15.6 in 1929.

"The greatest improvement was found in the matter of tenderability on contrast," Mr. Gist said. "Total tenderable in 1930 was 60.2 per cent compared with 53.9 in 1929. Untenderable on account of short staple in 1930 was 39.8 per cent, while in 1929 the total untender 37 per cent was tenderable on acderable was 46.1 per cent. In 1930 count of short staple, while in 1929 short staple accounted for 42 per cent.

"In the longer staple lengths there were in 1930, 12,400 bales full inch and longer, while in 1929 only 4,800 bales were in this class. In 1929 only 100 bales were found in the state of 1 1-8 inch and longer, while in 1930 there were 600 bales of these lengths.

"This report indicates rather marked improvement due to the effort of growers, since the season of 1930 was not considered so favorable for longer staples as that of 1929. Of course Alabama has quite a long ways to go yet in the matter of really good cotton, since more than a half million bales in 1930 were under 7-8 inch, but the above figures indicate a start in the direction of improvement."

RURAL, COMMON SCHOOLS TO GET ADDITIONAL CASH

Added Appropriation Of At Least $2,000,000 To Extend Term Expected

Montgomery, Ala., May 5. — The joint legislative committee which for more than two weeks has conducted an exhaustive investigation into the condition of schools in the State met Tuesday morning to draft its recommendations for presentation to the general assembly.

Members of the committee are in hearty accord with the suggestion of Dr. A. F. Harman and members of the Alabama Education Association that the common schools of the rural section of the State should be given first consideration.

It is the sentiment of the committee, it was learned, that the need for improving the rural and common school is the paramount need in Alabama education system, and leaders indicated that the common schools would be the only part of the system for which any additional funds will be recommended.

It is the consensus of the committee, it was said, that the higher institutions of learning are adequately provided for under appropriations of the past administration, in the light of the present economic distress.

$2,000,000 Additional

To the end that the common schools may come nearer their goal of the seven months, school, it is expected that the Committee will recommend additional annual appropriations of at least $2,000,000, that the country boy and girl may in reality be given a better chance for an education.

FIFTEEN ARRESTS SINCE REPORT TWO WEEKS AGO

Since The Union-Banner carried the report of activities of the Sheriff's office on April 23rd, there have been fifteen arrests made by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and his deputies. Four of these were for assault and battery and the rest were for violation of the prohibition laws.

Since that time three insane persons have been taken into custody, two white men and one negro. They of course were carried to Montgomery and placed in jail until the proper papers can be executed to have them entered into the insane asylum.

Carleton Beals in an article published recently in The Outlook tells the difficulties he had to contend with as a foreign correspondent for American newspapers. In about three-fourths of the civilized world, he says, the news is controlled by governmental censorship. Never before in history have so many nations attempted to shape the news in their own favor. This entire problem of securing accurate and intelligently interpreted news, observes this writer, is crucial for any enlightened guidance of our foreign policies. And he sounds the warning that until we have the right information from abroad, we are likely to be led ever deeper into foreign situations, which may affect our whole national destiny.

America, as everyone knows, is for peace. And yet our so-called peace societies are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars every year educating Americans against war. Why don't these societies spend their money in Europe where such educational work is needed? Some observers are unkind enough to say that many of our American peace societies are agencies of European propaganda, that are not working for peace at all, but rather to get America so involved in European affairs that when certain countries over there wish to promote their own selfish national programs, we will be bound to help them with our money and also with our men if necessary.

URGES FARMERS TO CO-OPERATE

I wish to say to the people of Chilton County, and especially to the farmers, that the time has come when we need genuine co-operation. Why? Because the merchants seem to be saying "Bring me every penny and everything that you make on your farm, for we are going to have plenty to eat and sufficient clothes. We are going to eat, sing and be merry, while you farmers can cry, weep, mourn, starve and go naked." Farmer friends, let's demand our rights. So long as the merchants treat us right and do not try to gobble our liberties, we will stick to them, but when they just continue to knock us, what else can we do but patronize the mail order houses? No one has the right to force us to bring our crops and our earnings and place them in their hands.

Let's help our county agent by sticking to him. Let him put in a full line of all the goods the farmers need and let's give him our trade. With all due respect to everybody, you can easily see what he has done for us and what he is trying to do in the future. Let these merchants who are so hard against us stand on their own feet. I am for the farmers, education, Christ and His church.

Now, I can see nothing wrong in the people knowing through The Union-Banner who the merchants are that signed this bill, so that we might know who are our friends and who are not.—A Subscriber, J. A. Headley.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

A significant statement came out of Washington the other day to the effect that for the first time in the history of the United States more people are now leaving the republic than are entering it. This means that the tide of immigration, which set in at the very beginning of our history has turned, temporarily at least, and that we are now losing more aliens than we are gaining. The change is due partly of course to the depression, but it is accelerated by our new immigration laws and by the efforts now being made by our givernment to help in the unemployment situation by curtailing the number of alien immigrants, and assisting those who desire it, to return to their native homes.

The present administration is now making the most energetic effort in our history to solve this alien problem. Four plans have been adopted in the work: first, consular visas are being withheld abroad from prospective immigrants who are considered likely to become public charges after they have arrived in the United States; second, the Department of Labor is making a special effort to round up and deport the aliens who have no right under our laws to remain in the United States; third, the Department is searching out deserters from foreign ships, who were recently declared by the Supreme Court to be liable to deportation regardless of how long they may have been in America; fourth, the government is offering free transportation back home to aliens who desire to return to the homes of their birth.

The first of these policies was announced several months ago. In view of the depression and growth of unemployment, it was deemed inadvisable to permit to enter the country persons of uncertain means who would be apt sooner or later, to become public charges in a nation whose charitable efforts are already being taxed. As a result of this policy our consular representatives abroad were instructeed to refuse visas to prospective immigrants who could not show pretty conclusively that they would not have to call for public help if permitted to come into the United States. This policy has resulted in checking the flow of immigration to a considerable degree. The Department of Labor has also commenced a special effort to rid the country of aliens, who were smuggled into the country and have no legal right to remain here. Many of these, it is said, are radicals, against the present form of government in the United States. There are said to be 100,000 aleins of this kind in the United States.

The Supreme Court recently held that a man who deserted from a foreign ship to remain in the United States, was subject to deportation no matter how long he had been here. The Department is looking after cases of this kind, too. Then a little known provision of the law of 1927 was dug out which authorizes the Labor Department to transport back to his native country any alien who has become a public charge within three years of his arrival here and desires to go home. It is said that there are already 200 applications for back home trips by aliens of this kind, and that it is expected the number will reach 200 a month when the provision becomes generally known. It is to be understood that aliens who go back under this provision go back "in good standing" and are not to be characterized as having been deported.

It is said that immigration has been reduced by 10,000 a month through the refusal of visas, that 1,500 a month are being deported, and that 200 a month will soon be going back voluntarily. There were only 3,147 alien admittances in February against 13,585 in February, 1930. Surely this energetic action of the administration is helping to solve the immigration problem. In reducing and restricting immigration America is not seeking to assert its superiority to other nations. We well realize the value that immigration has been to the nation in the past. But times have changed now and with about 5,000,000 of our people now unemployed, certainly the government is acting wisely in its present immigration policy.

"There is no such thing as pain," says a psychologist. Then what is it some folks give us?—Boston Transcript.

In just about eight months the Republican National Committee can be expected to meet in Washington and name the time and the place for the holding of the Republican national convention in 1932. Then the political pot will begin to boil.

NOW'S THE TIME TO BUILD

The time is coming rapidly when there should be an increase in building in this community as well as in the other progressive towns of the nation. If there is no reason in the building activity, it will be because the people do not realize that the opportune time is at hand. One of the things counted on to restore normal prosperity is the building industry.

How often have we heard in the past years the expressions of our friends to the effect that they would like to build themselves a new home but could not do so on account of the cost of construction.

Well, all of that has changed now. Costs of buildings are extremely low. They are not going lower; very soon they will rise, and those prospective home-builders, home-owners, who have not availed themselves of rock-bottom prices will be holding regrets rather than profits. The same is true of owners whose property is in need of repair. See your contractor and get the work done now; it will never be done at any lower cost.

Money is available now at reasonable rates for the financing of new realty enterprises. Property is about to be reappraised for taxation and the appraisal, which will stand during six years of advancing values, promises to be favorable.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper has been mighty busy this week—cinders galore all round the office and we have had to pinch hit for The Man on the Corner in the mechanical department of the shop. Kept us on the hump all the time. We are not wise enough to pinch hit for the gentleman when it comes to writing all those good things he always tells us about.

We made a visit with The Man on the Corner to the establishment of Mr. Crawford, the tailor, last week, while he was getting all dolled up for the trip to Miami. Business: To get a certain very loud and classy pair of white flannel trousers altered in which to trip the light fantastic while in the city of the tall grasses and gentle breezes. These trousers were all nice and stripped with a black pin stripe, and it leaked out before The Man on the Corner got away that he had bought new white socks with a black clocking to wear with these "britches." According to Mr. Crawford, he thinks that it would have been a wise thing for the Mrs. Man on the Corner to have gone along to sorta keep an eye on the old Man.

Just seems like I am going to have to use my very best and newest broom on that ornery type setter, he just will make me say the wrong thing. Last week we meant to say we had no criticism to offer for the present fire department, and lo and behold! we read "we have individual criticism" when we most certainly have nothing of the kind! We are only interested in seeing the present system and methods improved upon.

It is not often that The Sweeper envies any person their position. However, this week we just can't help wishing we could belong to that Kiwanis Club and be whooping it up down in Miami with "the boys" for we are certain they will have a most wonderful time. Unfortunately though, we are not financially able to belong to the club and were we so able, it is doubtful if we could have managed to make the trip at this time. We will just have to content ourselves with listening to the yarns The Man on the Corner, Mell Martin, Maurice Lande and Stapp spin when they return. Be prepared to hear some prize winners!

We still hear a continual harping of "hard times" and depression. Merchants and bankers will talk of nothing else, and say that business has never been worse:—and yet they have money with which to buy new automobiles and gas and oil with which to run them. Notice if you please how many brand new cars have been bought in Clanton recently—and in each case a bigger and better one than previously owned. Probably we put our heading a little strong; maybe they have just been a little careless with the truth when referring to money conditions in Clanton.

Our good friend Bill, from Route 7 was in to see us Saturday, but The Sweeper was out on one of his rounds and failed to see him. Nevertheless, we would not have you fail to win that prize from Evan Parrish for anything, Bill, but we do hope you can manage to raise at least two of those large melons and bring us one anyway. If all stays well, The Sweeper might bring in a frying size chicken or two after while, we could round up The Man on The Corner, The Editor and the "devil" and all have a good time eating barbecued chicken and watermelon. How does that sound to you, Bill?

Oh, yes, to be sure I have one of the best of bosses. He just lets me run loose and free around the office, and do just about as I please so long as I see to it that all the cinders and clinkers are nicely rounded up for each week. Yes, I did have a nice days rest, but didn't get off fishing as you thought, however I am much refreshed. And just to show you that the boss really is good to me, will say that he let me off to run down to Montgomery last Saturday with Mr. Walker from out on Mulberry, to take in the May Day Festival at Womans College. Never saw so much fried chicken in all my life—and good-looking girls by the score. We have been suffering from eye strainn ever since we got back.

And while we are talking about May Day, we would like to say a few words about our own program which was put on by the local grammar school here last Friday. Considerable effort was manifest by those working in the campaign for May Queen and a tidy little sum was raised for the school, we have been reliably informed. The contest resulted in little Miss Lillian Smith, daughter of Hon. J. Lee Smith, Mayor of Clanton, being declared Queen and being so crowned by her dad at the close of the ceremony which was held in the square in front of the court house.

Remember "The Two Black Crows" watching that excursion train leave the station and making the remark that excursions seemed to have a habit of happening when they were broke? Well, The Sweeper finds himself in just such a predicament this week. Cooke Players are over at Maplesville on their regular engagement at that place, and will be in Thorsby all next week, and here we are so broke we have almost forgotten what a dollar looks like. But then that is always the way it happens to us. And just think! We had been in high hopes that the show folks would come through with some press passes for the week for we fellows around the shop, as has been the custom for a long time, but imagine our surprise when the show representative came in Monday and paid the advertising bill and calmly walked out without so much as mentioning a pass! Oh, well.

Mr. Cooke will miss a good patron but Mr. Wade will gain one! We will just get peeved and take advantage of our pass to the Wadesonia instead. Been seeing some mighty good shows there lately anyway, and we might miss one.

The Sweeper wishes to endorse the movement that is being started over the state in opposition to the proposed bill to legislate the Farm Bureau and its cooperative merchandising system out of the state. Go to it farmers! You certainly need to have some organization which will look out for your interests and help you combat the high-priced organized merchants and trusts. The Farm Bureau Cooperative stores are saving the farmers of Alabama thousands of dollars every year and we say to keep them if we have to go down to Montgomery and hog-tie every member of the legislature.

Looks like all that big noise that Heflin was going to stir up with his contest and exposure of election frauds is just about where it was when it was started. Dispatches from Washington state that after "wrasseling" with the recount for two weeks, the Nye committee has succeeded in changing the result only 101 votes in Heflin's favor. This is certainly not going to get anybody anywhere at that rate. It begins to look like if there really was fraud at the polls, that those who had to do with its perpetration were sufficiently clever to cover up their actions beyond detection. We will be glad when the noise ceases entirely.

MILITARY TRAINING

Armed with the inevitable petition of 10,000 names, a delegation is converging on Washington to urge Congress and the President to outlaw military training from American colleges and universities. The delegation is said to be made up of Red radicals, as well as pacifists.

In most schools the training is in no way compulsory. Those who take such courses, whether by election or school rules, spend but few hours a week in studies that embrace drill, rifle practice, and military history and science. They are physically and morally benefited. Superabundant energy which might readily be engaged in more harmful occupations is directed into useful channels.

The officers of the United States army who conduct this training are selected for their good records and high appreciation of their responsibilities in assisting the heads of other college departments to inculcate in the young men under them a higher appreciation of their future duties as citizens.

In every College where military training has been installed there is also a little crowd of active opponents. They comprise the budding bolsheviks of the school, youths with distorted minds and unhealthy propensites, who only too often are misled by half-baked professors. It can safely be left to the good sense of the American people as to which group most merits attention and suppression, any action is needed.—Washington Post.

EXTREME MEASURES UNWISE

That the busses, on the whole, are paying their way and contributing a constantly increasing sum to the cost of government is shown by a recent survey conducted by the National Association of Motor Bus Operators.

There are now 46,000 busses engaged in common carrier business, paying an annual tax bill in excess of $30,000,000. Taxes paid by busses have increased 146 per cent in five years, as compared to a gain of but 23 per cent in number. The average bus now pays twenty times the tax paid by the average automobile.

This is not to say that the "bus problem" has been settled to the advantage of all concerned. But it does show that extreme proposals for regulating and taxing the bus lines are unwise, and against the public interest. Recent testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission, by unbiased auhorities, brought out that busses exert but little more wear on highways than do private cars—yet they pay a vastly greater proportional share of taxation.

In many states proposals are pending which would unduly restrict length and width of busses, force them to build their own roads, and so on. These cannot be justified on the score of safety—the records prove that busses are the safest users of streets and highways. The proposals, if passed, might mean that substantial part of the traveling public would be deprived of an economical form of transportation.

Every transport business, bus, water, rails, or air, is entitled to fair treatment from states and the federal government. Extreme measures defeat their own purpose, at the expense of the public and of industrial progress.

MORAL ECHOES

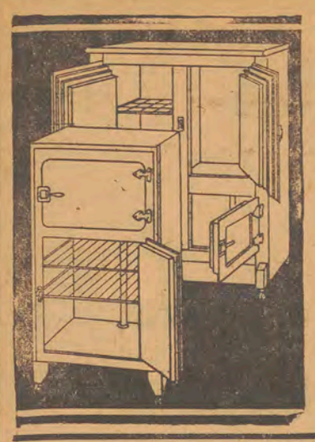
By D. W. Haskew

In the year 1908 Miss Annie Jarvis of Philadelphia observed the first "Mothers Day" in memory of her own mother. Believing that others shared with her a like feeling, she began a nation wide movement to have the day observed. She met with a responsive chord in nearly every heart, and little by little the plan grew until the day is now, not only nation-wide, but world-wide.

Well may we pause to pay honor to her who, after Jesus Christ, is God's best gift to men—Mother. It was her who shared her life with us, and then walked down into the very shadow of death that we might live. Her arms became a circle of protection to use, while her breast became a soft couch for our repose. There we found the play ground for our infant glee. As we older grew those same arms became the place of our refuge, and that bosom was always aglow with love for us. It was mother who taught our lips to speak, it was mother who taught our baby feet to go, and, none but mother put the book under our arm and started us off to school. Best of all, it was mother who taught our baby lips to utter the name of Jesus, and then taught us how to approach Him in love and devotion.

Now that this is Mothers Day, a thousand memories, like the coming of angels, flood our very soul. Mother comes back to us as she was in the log ago, and we behold her in our hearts, and hold her in our loving embrace, as we wish that we had done in those days. Today we wear the carnation in her memory, and honor her for what she was, is and will ever be to us. We know that when they were the principal actors on the stage of life that they knew well of the opportunity that came to them in being made the mothers of men. Our lives came into their possession as a bundle of eternity, and they took us to their hearts and loved us to life and action. They watched our every step and selected all of our companions. They trained our minds and guarded our morals. By them we were instructed how to climb the ladder of life, and how to love and appreciate truth, honor and purity. Coming from under the artistic touch of their hand, we can join in the sentiment of Lincoln when he said, "All that I am all that I hope to be, I owe it to my angel mother."

Our mothers felt the responsibility that was cast upon them when our little souls were placed in their tender care. They did not take the poodle dog and carry it out for a walk, while the babe was left hebind with an irresponsible nurse. We honor them because they felt so keenly the responsibility of protecting our bodies, our minds and our souls. They well knew that they were making the presidents, the congressmen, the lawyers, the doctors, the wives and the preachers for the next generation, and that if they failed in their task that our national, social and religious life would meet with disaster and ruin. It was so grand of them to know that the—"Hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world."



As we take this backward look at our mothers, we readily conclude that they enjoyed a partnership divine. It was God who said to Sarah, the wife of Abraham—"I will bless her, and she shall be the mother of many nations." It is a fact that our mothers have been specially blessed of God. They have many a blessing that none but a mother can possess. There is evidence of that divine partnership when mother is possessed with the power of transmitting life. When she can watch over us with angelic concern and then love us in spite of our imperfections. Somehow it is so easy for us to associate our mothers with God. In the order of things they seem to belong together.

As we look at the mothers of today, and then think of motherhood in the future, do we become apprehensive about world conditions? Because there is a disposition on the part of a great many mothers to bob their hair and take an active part in business and civic life, is no indication that mother is going to lose her place in the hearts of men. Mother love today is just the same that it was thousands of years ago, only it is finer and sweeter because of cultivation, and we need not be apprehensive that she is going to be hurled from her throne in the rapid movements of this age. Mother is not going to leave her sacred place in the home. She may broaden the scope of her influence, but still she will hold the world in her heart, while she demands that world conditions shall yield to the power of her grip. A new mother may come on the stage of action, but she will be mother still.

We hope that the spirit of Mothers Day will continue to increase in magnitude until the greatest monument in our land will be erected to her. Magnificient indeed is the Washington monument, overlooking the Potomac River, and overshadowing the capitol of our nation. Close beside the one that is erected to the Father of our country, should one be built that is taller and more magnificent, and across its base should be written in letters of gold. "To the Mothers of our Nation."

The proponents of socialism slide out from under all financial responsibility and generally attach themselves to a fat public salary which comes out of the pockets of the taxpayers who, experience so far has shown, receive in return restricted personal rights and enlarged public debts—as evidence of this, look over increased taxation after every orgy of spending by a legislative body.

Somebody has estimated that the legislatures of the 48 states of the country are costing us in the neighborhood of $15,000,000 this year. If that were the only cost we might be willing to give them a bonus to stay at home.—Los Angeles Times.

LETTER FROM J. C. EDWARDS

The prophet says when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me. God keeps His secrets until His due time to reveal them; then He makes known His purposes to those who fear to displease Him, and who therefore love Him, and serves Him faithfully and unselfishly. Jehovah God is light, and it is the light from Him to those who love Him that makes known His purposes to them; that which makes manifest is light. If God's children walk in the light which He gives them, they have partnership with God and with Christ in understanding and doing God's will; and partnership in the work he assigns them to do.

The greatest favor that man can enjoy is a knowledge of God, and then to walk in the light which God reveals to him. In 2 Peter 1:3 we read His divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness. God alone can give life everlasting, because He is the fountain of life for with thee is the fountain of life, in thy light shall we see light. There is no exception to this divine rule. It includes His beloved Son the King of Glory. He asked His life of thee, and thou gaveth it him even length of days for ever and ever.

All creations who will live forever must know these truths and conform themselves thereto. There is but one true God. Jehovah is His name. There is a false mighty one; or God who may well be called the mimic God. The kingdom of this God, Satan, is darkness and death, and the end thereof shall be everlasting destruction. The kingdom of God is light and life and blessed are they that flee into it.

We should remember that obedience is better than sacrafice, and that Jesus said not everyone who saith Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom. But he that doeth the will of my father, which is in heaven.

When that disciple, Peter, answered a question and said thou art the Son of the living God; Jesus said, thou art Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. Jesus also said if any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take his cross and follow me. There are many people who have their names written in some creed church book, who are not searching the Scripture to see what the Lord's will is. Those who know that Jesus came to do His father's will also know that in order to follow Christ they must do the Lord's will. The people who are doing God's will to the best of their ability can think of Isaiah 12th chapter 3rd verse: "Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation." Water is a symbol of truth. But the knowledge of truth alone does not bring salvation. It is the truth known and used according to God's will which brings his approval. Only those who receive the truth and hold it in the love of it and obey the Lord's commandments, draw water from the wells of salvation. Others draw from their own wells. This is shown by the words of the prophet: "For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

Therefore, we should learn of the gift of God and get the living water. "Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath, for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.—J. C. Edwards.

AUBURN WORKERS STATE FARM RULE

Auburn, Ala., May 4.—Instead of being a self-sustaining business as it was in the main a half century age, successful farming today requires the production of food, feed, and other products plus the production of sufficient products for sale to bring an income commensurate with family needs.

This was declared by workers in agriculture of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn in connection with the suggestion that Alabama farmers return to the old practice of log-rollings, corn-huskings, rail-splittings, house-raisings, and other such things of this nature.

"Such things," said the statement, were essential in the pioneer days when land was being cleared and homes built. In those pioneer days farmers needed only a very small income because they did very little buying. They made most of their tools and implements, instead of buying wire they made rails for fencing, they produced their own food and feed supply, and they even made or bought very little household equipment. Most of their clothes were made at home. Hence, very few things were bought. Consequently, there were few merchants because there was little demand for them.

"Under present conditions the successful farmer provides for a living at home and for an income in order to have for himself and his family the numerous things which they need but can have only by buying with money.

"It is suggested that farmers provide for living at home and also for producing as much as they can for sale. All costs should be reduced to the minimum in order that the net income may be large, because the net income determines the extent of the farmer's purchasing power."

MAY DAY FESTIVAL WOMANS COLLEGE WAS HUGE SUCCESS

Alumni Association Holds Annual Conclave; New Officers Elected; Business Attended To

FIELD DAY MEET HELD

Two Hundred Girls from High Schools of State Compete In Events on College Greens

(By Guy H. de Shazo)

The May Day Festival and meeting of the Alumni Association of Womans College at Montgomery, events which are held annually on the first Saturday in May, were held on the campus of that institution on last Saturday, May 2. In connection with the regular events of the day, the meeting of the alumni and the staging of the regular court of the Gueen o' the May, there was held also field day exercises for girls athletic teams from several of the high schools of the state. There were approximately two hundred of these girls present and taking part in the field day activities.

During the morning hours and while the field day trials were being held on the campus, the Alumni Association held its business sessions in The Hut. Considerable enthusiasm was manifest at this meeting and a wholehearted support of the school and its drive for a million dollar endowment fund was pledged by the members of the association who were present. At the conclusion of the field trials and the alumni meet, a picnic luncheon was served to all the visiting high school girls on the south side of Julia Pratt Hall. The Alumni Association, the members of the class of 1931 and their friends and members of their families were served an elaborate family style luncheon in the main dining room of Pratt Hall. The luncheon menu included fruit cocktail, fried chicken, stewed potatoes in cream, asparagus tips, pickled peaches, frozen fruit salad, hot rolls and butter, strawberry short cake and coffee, salted and roasted almonds. The writer has attended a number of similar luncheons and we feel safe in saying that this luncheon was the best we have ever had the pleasure of attending.

During the course of the luncheon, which by the way, lasted about two hours, a specialty program was put on by the entertainment committee. This program was in the nature of what those in charge were pleased to call a radio broadcast, in which some unique features were introduced, including an experiment in "visible broadcasting," which proved a decided success. A number of short talks were made by various members of the faculty, notable among which were Dr. Walter D. Agnew, president of the college and Miss Stone. Owing to the hud-dub in the dining room, it was impossible for the writer to get all the names of those who made short talks.

The May Day Festival was staged in the natural amphitheatre just to the south of Flowers Hall. Adequate seating arrangements were provided for the crowd of more than 2,000 friends of the college who witnessed the crowning of Miss Mary Pruitt as Queen o' the May.

The festival was opened with the inaugural procession which included the members of the class of 1931, the incoming and outgoing executive boards of the student council, the retiring and incoming presidents of the student body, and Dr. Agnew. The inaugural tradition was given by Miss Fannie Corbitt, the retiring student president, who returned the gavel of authority to Dr. Agnew, who in turn gave the gavel to Miss Montine Lisenby, administering the oath of office as president of the student body for 1931-32.

Next came the presentation of gifts and tokens of love and fidelity by each class of the school. At the conclusion of these activities the Primrose Festival was held.

The entire story of the May Festival and the fair princess who must on that day choose a husband, was pantomined. Practically the entire student body took part in this huge and colorful carnival which was staged for the amusement of Her Highness. There were ten beautifully costumed dances which included jesters and fools, gypsies, and jugglers, marionettes, hoops and balloons, suitors, gnomes, clouds, fairies, drama and priests. The transfiguration of the dwarfed prince into a spry and lovely suitor took place during the dance of the clouds and won the love of the fair princess, the twain being wedded by the High Priest during the Dance of the Priests and legend has it that they lived happily ever after.

The Inaugural reception was then held in "The Hut," to which every friend of the College was invited. In the receiving line were Miss Corbitt, the retiring student president, Miss Lisenby, the incumbent with her father; Dr. and Mrs. Agnew and their Royal Highness, the King and the Queen, Saidee Crook and Mary Pruitt, respectively.

Aside from the activities of the day, the writer was impressed with the cordiality of each and every member of the faculty and student body with whom we had the pleasure to come in contact. No effort was spared to make the day one of pleasure and comfort for every visitor. Being single, the writer of course was interested in the girls more or less, and we would say here that a fellow certainly could find one to his liking no matter how hard he might be to please! There are short girls, long girls, blond girls, brunette girls, thin girls, older girls, younger girls, fat girls and—Jap girls! Walk right up fellows and take your picn!

Personally, the writer wishes to take this occasion to publicly thank Dr. Agnew and his able faculty and the entire student body for one of the most enjoyable days we have spent in many a moon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

Rev. A. E. Trice, M. D. Dickey, J. W. Hamilton and J. B. Coe motored down to Lay Dam last Friday at noon and fished Friday night for the Highland Sunday School.

Saturday morning followed Mr. J. S. Lockhart's school bus with thirty-five members, together with others to enjoy a full day of picnicing and fish frying. Plenty of nice lunches were carried from home, which were certainly enjoyed about noon, together with an abundance of fried fish. Thanks to Rev. Trice and his party who did the fishing.

The afternoon was spent boat riding and strolling about the camp grounds. Everybody enjoyed the day and came home feeling much better and rejoicing over the nice time we had. The only regret was the entire Sunday school couldn't have been along. Hoping we will all live to see another nice time in the future.—A Member.

THE FIRST AMERICAN WAR MOTHER

On Mothers Day, May 10 the American mothers will hold ceremonies at Arlington Amphitheatre, Washington, D. C., that will be linked with the memory of George Washington through an address to be delivered on "The First American War Mother," George Washington's Mother, by Hon. Sol Bloom, Associate Director of the United States. Congressman Bloom will dwell upon Mary Ball Washington's great service in the gift of her son to America and to the world, and on the strain on her courage during his dangerous days in battle.

The address will also be upon all the war mothers, especially, to join their efforts with those of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission in its plans for the celebration of the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington in 1932.

The ceremonies arranged by the War mothers for this occassion at Arlington on Mothers Day will be most solemn and impressive. Most striking of all will be an Aisle of Honor, formed by the Gold Star War Mothers, carrying garlands of laurel and white carnations—the carnations cerving as the Mother's symbol, and the laurel as the heroes' emblem. Through this living aisle will pass representatives of 35 patriotic organizations, to place flowers on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

"CROOKS FOR A MONTH"

The annual senior play which will be staged at the High School tonight, Thursday, bids fair to excell any attraction offered here in a long time. Miss Bernice Williams, who has coached quite a number of entertainments that were pleasantly received in Clanton, states that she feels this type of amusement will appeal to any one desiring to attend a good clean show.

James Bentwood, played by Homer Carroll; Fosdick, Alvin Davis; Winfield Bentwood, John P. Lawrence; Doris Bentwood, Mary Heard; Mrs. Bentwood, Clotilde Johnson; Jack Yorke, Frank McMurray; Marty Copping, Jack Burks; Eunice Cassels, Janice Danforth; Hilda Fields, Bernice Walliams.

Don't fail to come and see this show, because this is your talent made possible by the seniors who have been lighting their candles at dear old C. C. H. S. for the last four years, and who are leaving it to take up further work along life's pathway.

There will be preaching at this place again next Sunday, May 10 at eleven o'clock by Rev. M. J. Parrish.

IS THIS FREE AMERICA?

Editor Union-Banner:

Some articles have appeared in your paper recently suggesting that the people should not read the books written by J. G. Rutherford. I wonder if the reading, thinking public likes to be told what to read and what not to read. Are we still living in the dark ages, when it was customary to burn Bibles to keep the dear common people from reading them? Or, are we removed far enough from it to think for ourselves? Do we need dictators, priests or preachers to think for us?

Mr. Rutherford is known as one of the best Bible students in the world today, whose publications have reached the circulation of ninety-three and one-half million, and are published in 48 languages, and whose voice is heard each week over more than 200 broadcasting stations. He has been referred to by the president of the Church Federation of America as the best authority on some Bible subjects.

Who are the narrow-minded little two-by-four men who presume to tell the Chilton County people not to use their own good judgment about what they should read? The truths in these books are God's truths and not man's. One book of 360 pages cites and quotes 2,110 scriptures. We are responsible for the way we handle the word of God. Those who do not wish to read are at perfect liberty to leave it alone. But they should beware lest they come under the condemnation pronounced by Jesus in Luke 11:52, where he cacuses them of not entering into the knowledge of the Gospel themselves, and hindering others who would do so if let alone.

They call the Rutherford books dangerous, and they truly are dangerous to hypocrites and to all selfish interests. The old saying that "the hit dog always howls," shows the reason for the above mentioned articles that have appeared.

Many people are sick and tired of the collection plate, or hat, being shoved under their noses every time they enter a church house, "pay, pay, pay," continually as one contributor suggests, and what do they get in return? Husks, and that which does not satisfy.

Isaiah 56:10-11 very fitly describes some of the religious leaders and D. D.'s. Jeremiah 50:6 also tells the effect upon the people of the bad advice of these false shepherds. Jesus is the good shepherd, and He tells in John 10:12-13 about the hirelings who ask always for money and more money.

Columbus once said that the earth is round. People then said "rot," and put him in prison. When the automobile was first invented many people said "rot, a horseless carriage is impossible." When Jesus preached His message of the Kingdom, the religious leaders said "away with him." Now in this enlightened twentieth century, in "good Chritian America," Judge Rutherford is proclaiming that same message of God's Kingdom on earth, and narrow-minded people cry "rot." Many, however, rejoice in the truths contained in these books.

If all men would take the advice of Gamaliel to the religious fanatics, who were opposing Peter and John (Acts 5:38-39) to let them alone lest they should be found fighting against God, they would save themselves much trouble and sorrow. "Truth is mighty, and shall prevail."—W. L. Bowen, Clanton, Ala.

VERBENA SCHOOL CLOSING PLANS

Dr. Harry Clark, President of Judson Will Deliver Sermon Sunday

Commencement plans announced by Principal W. E. G. Sutton for Verbena High School show that a very high type of closing exercises will be presented in the high school auditorium during the period of May 15-22.

Sunday morning, May 17, at eleven o'clock, Dr. Harry Clark, president of Judson College, will deliver the commencement sermon. Verbena is to be complimented on securing the services of this much-sought-after speaker, who is not only prominent in position but is noted as one of the most pleasing and instructive speakers of the state.

Tuesday evening, May 19, at 8 p. m., will be presented the Senior II Class play, "Educating Esther," a farce in three acts, by J. C. McMullen. This is a royalty play, full of interest and replete with humorous situations. Miss Mae Wible is directing the production. This play is produced by special arrangements with Walter H. Baker Co., of Boston, Mass.

Thursday evening, May 21, at 8 o'clock the Senior IIII Class play, "It Happened in Hollywood," a three-act comedy by Katherine Kavanaugh, is a royalty play also, and is produced by special arrangements with the Dramatic Publishing Company, of Chicago. This play is built around the theme of a young man breaking into the movies by impersonating a prince. This theme is developed in a much more pleasing way than is usual in most plays; situations full of humor arising, and much comedy resulting. This play is directed by Mrs. W. E. G. Sutton.

Verbena High School assures the general public that these plays are good, they measure in quality with the best that have been presented, and the acting is on the high standard usual with plays presented at Verbena. Prices will be, for the plays, 15 cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

Friday night, May 22nd, graduating exercises will be held for the Senior III Class. Ten students are candidates for diplomas: Mary Frances Boyd, Rachel Messer, Queenie Pinson, Addie Sue Sharp, Mabelle Stange, Justin Dupree, Lloyd Pinson, Milton Sharp, Archie Stroud, and G. C. Weldon; Velma Patterson, class of 1927, is also a member of the class doing special study.

The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. W. L. Spencer, head of division of secondary education of the state. Dr. Spencer is a forceful speaker who knows more of the high school of Alabama, possibly, than any other man. He is a hard worker, a very earnest and forceful speaker, direct and pleasing. Those who will come to hear him are assured of food for thought.

There will be a picnic at Pilgrims Rest Church Saturday, May 16. Everybody is invited to come and bring a well filled basket.—J. F. Anderson.

Devaughn, and followed with a prayer by Mr. John Baker. Prof. Devaughn Mr. I. D. Huett, R. E. Powell, and Marion Easterling all directed a lesson before the service was turned over to the pastor for the preaching service.

The house was filled to its seating capacity for the morning service. Prof. Devaughn had charge of the singing during the preaching hour, who directed several songs appropriate for Mothers Day. Full details of the plans, purposes, and history of this event will be given in the papers next week.

DELEGATION TO MAKE A VISIT TO MONTGOMERY

A large delegation of farmers of Chilton County will go to Montgomery today (Thursday) to join with other farmers from all over Alabama in protesting the bill now before the legislature concerning the matter of co-operative buying by farmers' organizations.

The bill very radically affects the work of county agents and vocational teachers in assisting the farmers co-operative movements. It is expected that the hearing before the Senate committee Thursday will bring more farmers to the State Capitol than any other occasion in many years.

Agitation on this subject, and the introduction of the proposed bill in the legislature has come about from independent merchants raising objections to county agents helping the farmer buy certain farm commodities co-operatively.

Must Pay Taxes Now Says Rockett

Extension To August 1st Is Nullified By Attorney General of Ala.

Mr. J. T. Rockett, Tax Collector of Chilton County, this week issues the call to all property owners in Chilton County who have not paid their State and County taxes to do so at once. The law which allowed certain taxes to be withheld until August 1st has been declared unconstitutional. Therefore, Mr. Rockett says that he will make arrangements at once to begin to advertise all property for sale on which taxes are delinquent.

Property owners of the county are urged to "attend to this matter now without fail if you wish to avoid further costs to you."

Read further explanation by the Tax Collector elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner.

WORKING AT PROVIDENCE

There will a working at Providence, Beat 16, on Thursday, May 21st, for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and church grounds. All who are interested are urged to come and bring tools needed.—J. M. Robinson, Church Clerk.

BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT THURSDAY NIGHT

Acting as Judge, Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald will preside over the court. G. C. Walker and J. B. Atkinson will be counsel for Miss Orr. The defense will be represented by Omar Reynolds and Raymond Smith.

It is expected that evidence which will be brought out by witnesses in this case will be very exciting and highly entertaining. Of course it is all a sham proposition, all for fun. The judge, the lawyers, the witnesses, and the principals in this trial, will be as funny and comical as they possibly can.

Don't fail to see and hear it. You will surely enjoy it surely. Proceeds will go toward helping the Clanton Grammar school to have a full nine months term of school. Price of admission will be 15 cents for children and 35 cents for adults.

Strawberries are moving out of Chilton County now in a big way. Figures gathered Tuesday afternoon showed that twenty-nine cars have been shipped from Clanton, sixty-senven from Thorsby, and twenty-one from Jemison. Shipping is expected to last about two weeks longer, and officials of the strawberry association here estimate that the total of shipments from the county for this season will reach 150 cars.

Quite a record is being made on the farm of O. O. Roper, near Samaria church. Monday there were picked from his field 196 crates. Since he began picking two weeks ago he has gathered a total of 1,000 crates. His patch is about six acres.

BILLINGSLEY ELECTED ON SCHOOL BOARD

While in session Tuesday the Chilton County Board of Educatoin elected Wm. J. Billingsley, of Clanton, as a member of the Board to succeed J. N. Dennis, who resigned a few weeks ago.

Mr. Dennis was serving, by election of the board, on the unexpired term of Robert Bean, who died a year or more ago. He found that his personal business matters were so numerous that he felt compelled to give up the place on the school board.

The election of William Billingsley brings back to the County Board of Education a man who has had much experience in school matters. For many years Mr. Billingsley was chairman of the board, and served long and faithfully in the interest of Chilton County schools. He has a great number of friends throughout the county who will be glad to know that he is again a member of our school administration board.

Mat Ware is in South Highlands Infirmary, Birmingham, recovering from a recent surgical operation. Reports Wednesday morning stated that he is getting along nicely.

RCBERTA CURRY DARNELL IS MOVING TO CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The many friends in Clanton of Mrs. Wm. Darnell, nee Miss Roberta Curry, will be interested to learn that she and Mr. Darnell are this week moving from New York to Chicago, Ill. The change in location is being made on account of a transfer and promotion of the latter, who is a geologist connected with a stock company.

Before moving from the metropolis, however, Mrs. Darnell, accompanied by Dr. Mary Sue Mullins, paid a two weeks visit to friends at Castleton-on-the-Hudson. Dr. Mullins, the daughter of Mrs. P. D. Wilson here, is connected with the St. Luke's Hospital in New York City.

High School Student To Receive Award

Improvement In School Work for Year Is Basis for Award

A very kindly gentleman in Clanton, who requests that his name be withheld stated to L. C. Warr last September that he desired to give a $5.00 gold piece to the boy or girl in Chilton County High School who showed the greatest improvement every way in his school work during the school year of 1930-31.

This is something new in the history of our school, and we feel that too much cannot be said in commendation of the good citizen and substantial business man of our town who voluntarily offers this most coveted prize for them. We approve most highly the spirit that prompted this praiseworthy movement to inspire and encourage a pupil to discover himself and develop his aptitudes, attitudes, and capacities revealed to him during the year.

The faculty finds it rather difficult to award the prize. The following points are to be considered: scholarship, deportment, attitude, school spirit, and general conduct. Of course attendance is a vital part to be considered. This gift will be presented to the lucky student class night, Friday, May 22.

BOWEN-HILL TO DEBATE QUESTION

Bowen and Hill Will Argue Question Concerning Scriptures

A public debate at the courthouse in Clanton will be held next Monday night, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. The question to be argued is: Resolved that the Scriptures teach that all the wicked shall be destroyed.

The affirmatve side will be represented by W. L. Bowen. The negative side will be handled by Rev. J. C. Hill. It will be a public discussion and we are asked to state that seats will be free and no collection will be taken.

In a statement given out Tuesday concerning the debate, Rev. Hill said: "I consider this matter of great importance to every Christian and all who love and appreciate the Bible and believe it as a whole. I have never thought much of debates between denominations, and I would rot enter into such a debate but here is a company of people who belong to nothing, and who make bold to say that all of our denominations are organizations of the devil, and all the ministers are satan's representatives. They are selling their literature by the rankest kind of deceit.

"Therefore, knowing them as I do, and knowing the rottenness of their literature, I have consented to this debate in order that the people of this county might know the truth. I hope the public will come and hear the discussion."

MAN MOVED INTO CULP SCHOOLHOUSE

Trustees of Culp School came to Superintendent Lawrence Tuesday night with a very unusual problem concerning their school. They reported that a man by the name of Chapman had gone to the schoolhouse, moved out all the desks and school equipment, and had taken up his abode in the schoolhouse.

Early Wednesday morning Mr. Lawrence went to investigate and found Mr. Chapman and his family very comfortably quartered in the school building. When requested by the superintendent to vacate the building, Mr. Chapman readily agreed to do so, stating that he had moved into the schoolhouse only for a while until he could secure a permanent place for his family to live.

VERBENA PHYSICIAN FINED IN DRUG CASE

Montgomery.—Dr. John D. Eiland, of Verbena, Saturday had until Tuesday to raise $1,000 to pay a fine of that amount imposed upon him by Federal Judge C. B. Kennamer for violating the anti-narcotic laws.

In addition to the fine, Judge Kennamer revoked the physician's narcotic license.

Vast Nitrate Fields Once Floor of Ocean

Entire Region Now Barren Desert High Above Sea Level

Piece by piece, scientific discoveries have been put together to reveal the story of one of the great mysteries of nature, the origin of the nitrate fields in South America.

According to geological history, the vast, barren desert of Northern Chile in which the nitrate deposits are found was once the bottom of the Pacific Ocean. Millions of years—no one knows the number—have probably passed since Nature buried this treasure in that desolate plateau thousands of feet above the Pacific.

Authorities who have studied the deposits believe that, either as a result of a sudden upheaval or the gradual rising of the continent, great bodies of waters from the Pacific were completely enclosed by rising land. A beating sun, pouring down upon the inland lakes in this new region, gradually dried up the salt water, destroying plant and animal life. Then followed slow oxidation which, with other natural processes, produced almost by magic an entirely new substance—Chilean nitrate of soda, as it is called today. The nitrate, with other minerals, is now found in beds in an area covering 75,000 square miles, where it has been baked and seasoned for centuries.

It is generally thought that the natural origin of Chilean nitrate accounts for its unusual record of service to farmers of the world. It contains, besides nitrogen, a number of other important elements—potassium, calcium, magnesium, iodine, and boron. All of these are essential for the growth and health of plants. It is because of the presence of these elements that Chilean nitrate is frequently called "nitrogen plus." It is more than a source of nitrogen.

The commercial exploitation of the nitrate deposits commenced in 1830. The fertilizer has been used ever since, and it is now recognized as the oldest of the commercial fertilizing materials. In this country about three quarters of a million tons are used annually. According to conservative estimates, the supply is adequate to meet the need of the world for several centuries, even if the rate of consumption is materially increased.

Idyotick Simtoms— and what of it!

"Let the women do the work" has been a Russian custom, and now that government has started a campaign to increase the female workers on their collective farms. Come on Amazons.

The first man to register at the Southern Baptist Convention in Birmingham this week was Rev. J.C. Owen, of Alburquerque, New Mexico. He came a long way to be the first to arrive.

The Alabama Senate has formed a group in opposition to any increase in taxation. Twenty-one of the solons have signed a pledge to that effect; the House is threatening to adopt a similar stand. Economy may prevail on Goat Hill after all.

Claude G. Bowers says that "Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic governor of New York, will be the next president of the United States." He adds that "The only thing that can defeat the Democratic party in 1932 is the party itself." They might enlist a little help if needs be.

Judge Kennamer is making himself appreciated—or at least recognized—in the United States court of Montgomery. It seems that he and District Attorney Reynolds have set out to do some real spring cleaning among those who think lightly upon the federal statutes.

Representative Jones of Covington County thinks that a lop of 20 per cent from the State's pay roll would be expedient. Maybe if this were done a raise in taxation would take a back seat for a while and probably forever.

"Recount thus far has 'Slashed' 232 off Bankhead's 50,000 lead," says a dispatch from Washington. The Senate sub-committee found this many errors in Heflin's favor in 25 of the 44 boxes in Jackson County.

"Injury and unhygenic living ard the cause of cancer," says the Radiological Society of North America. Cancer cells, they say, are defense cells so numerous and so active that they run wild. Cells, hold your head.

Paramount sound news will be made of the centennial celebration at the University of Alabama which begins this week. Governor Miller will deliver the graduating address to 350 seniors Thursday.

Governor Hardaman of Georgia offers to give 100 acres of land to anyone who will cultivate same. We believe this would be an attraction to farmers in Chilton County. Our farmers are trying to clear up all the woodland in the county this year and put it to use.

FEDERAL FORREST LOANS SOUGHT FOR LANDOWNERS

Montgomery, Ala., May 11.—Federal forest loans may be sought for Alabama woodland owners as a result of a conference between officials of the Alabama Timber Growers' Association and the State Commission of Forestry, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, State Forester. It is pointed out that forestry, as one of the most important of land uses to which a very large proportion of the rural population is committed, receives comparatively little assistance from Federal sources as compared with agriculture, although the nation as a whole benefits enormously from its development. Timber growers further advance the argument that there is a much longer period elapsing between the starting of a forestral project and the time when returns begin to come in; meanwhile the carrying charges in the way of interest, taxes, and maintenance costs continue on what for the time being is a dead investment.

Alabama foresters and timber growers generally believe that it is possible to formulate a forest loan law, somewhat analogous to the present farm loan acts, providing for moderate loans upon woodlands that are being developed for timber growing, with a low rate of interest and sound provisions for repayment which will be absolutely safe for the government and equitable both to the latter and to the landowner. It is believed that the United States Forest Service could easily set up the necessary machinery for carrying out a forest loan policy, and should be the agency through which the Government would deal with the timber growers. Tentative plans for the introduction in Congress of a forest loan bill are now being drawn.

The public debt of the United States is now about $130 per capita, and most of us wish that our private debt was the same amount.

Says he Washington Post: "There's one thing to be said for America's insurgents. They haven't ever boasted that heads will roll when they come into power." Maybe not, but the voices will continue to roll in the same old way.

Poor Sleep Due To Gas In Upper Bowel

Poor sleep is caused by gas pressing heart and other organs. You can't get rid of this by just doctoring the stomach because most of the gas is in the UPPER bowel.

The simple German remedy, Adlerika, reaches BOTH upper and lower bowel, washing out poisons which cause gas, nervousness, bad sleep. Get Adlerika today; by tomorrow you feel the wonderful effect. You will say the day you read this was a lucky day for you.—Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton.

THE TWO GEORGE WASHINGTON REGIMENTS

It will surprise most Americans to learn that in their regular army of today there are two regiments which have come down intact from their organization during the lifetime of George Washington. According to the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, both these regiments were formed undobutedly with Washington's advice and counsel, and the establishment of one of them must have had his official signature as first president of the United States.

What is now the Third United States Infantry was formed in 1784 as a Pennsylvania regiment, authorized by an act of the Continental Congress on June 7, 1784, and designated as "the Regiment of Infantry." This was six months or more after Washington's formal resignation as commander in chief of the armies. But during this subsequent presidency his hand may have left its imprint on the destiny of the regiment, in its official redesignations in 1789 and 1776, when it became the First Infantry. Afterward in its history it went through other re-designations, but it still was the same organization.

As the Third Infantry in the United States Army of today, it is estimated at Fort Snelling in Minnesota, between Minneapolis and St. Paul. And are its officers proud of the ancient history of their outfit? The word "Yes" can hardly be expressed with sufficient emphasis for an answer. As a regiment of the United States Army is entitled to decorate its flagstaff with a silver band for every battle in which it fought, the staff of the Third Infantry must be thickly plated with them, for the list of its battle honors tells of a story of participation in nearly all the heaviest fighting of our history.

It figured in the War of 1812; in Florida in 1814. It was distinctly present at Lunday's Lane. Its record includes service in the early Indian Wars in New Mexico. During the Mexican War it fought at Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, and Chapultepec. Its fighting in the Civil War began with the first Bull Run, and included Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, and Appomatox. During the Spanish War it distinguished itself at Santiago.

What is now the First Regiment of Infantry in the present United States Army was authorized by the new Congress of the United States in 1791, under Washington's presidency, and has another long list of battle honors to its credit ni the official army register. Its glories were chiefly acquired in early wars with the Indians.

Not an officer, not a man of these regiments but looks with justifiable pride, now and then, at its silver-banded staff.

ANDREW JACKSON HOWARD

On April 9th, 1931, the spirit of Andrew J. Howard took its flight very suddenly to that undiscovered country from whose bounds no traveler returns.

Andrew was a son of T. N. and Annie Howard. He was born September 5, 1900. On December 25, 1918, he was married to Miss Vallie Norris, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Norris, of the Corinth community. To this union was born three children; Lawrence, Aubry, and Ruth.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his family, his father and mother; four brothers, O. L., J. W., and Adolphus, of Verbena, and T. L. of Jordan Dam; also four sisters, Mrs. J. M. Mims, Mrs. T. J. Mims, and Misses Anna Belle and Edna Howard, all of Verbena.

Truly a good man nas gone to his reward.

Andrew was a very consistant member of the Missionary Baptist Church. He was also a member of the W. O. W. and the Improved Order of Red Men, but not in good standing at the time of his death, on account of both lodges going under in Verbena. Having known this man from childhood, and having been associated with him socially as well as in business, I feel that I can truthfully say without fear of successful contradiction, he was a man who stood four-square for a principle.

He was a one hundred per cent American citizen, and as such believed in his church, the free public school, and the general welfare of his community. He was a kind husband and a loving father.

To those of his immediate relatives and friends who are most heart-stricken at the loss we have all sustained we have nothing of this world's consolation to offer. We can only deeply, sincerely, and most affectionately sympathize with them in their afflictive bereavement, and point them to the infinite father who looks down with compassion on the fatherless and widows in the hour of their desolation. He will fold the arms of His love and protection around those who put their trust and confidence in Him. May heaven's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved family.—J. C. Meroney.

The Passing of Time

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"In all the actions that a man performs," an ancient writer says, "some part of his life passeth. We die with doing that for which only our sliding life was granted. Nay, though we do nothing. Time keeps his constant pace, and flies as fast in idleness as in employment. Whether we play, or labor, or sleep, or dream, or study, the Sunne posteth and the sand runnes."

It was a custom mother had when we were ready as children to say our prayers before going to bed at night to ask us what we had done during the day that was worth doing. It was a searching question and one which often taxed our minds to find a satisfactory answer.

The years are passing just as the days did in childhood, and so quickly are they going that they seem little more than brief days, and I ask myself as they pass, as you may ask yourself, "What am I doing with them?"

What have I done during the year just passed that was really worth doing, and what have you done? And what are we going to do with the present year and those which come after it, however many there may be given to us? Shall we work harder, live more intelligently, make better use of the opportunities which come to us? The more we enjoy life, the more ominous it seems that it is passing so quickly, so inevitably.

The saddest thing about it all is that I see so many young people unmoved by this passing of time. I called Harold yesterday at noon. He was still in bed asleep and the day half gone. William stands on the street corner whittling a little stick and smoking, ogling the girls as they go by, and there are lessons unlearned and books unread and tasks unperformed, and all the time the "Sunne posteth and the sand runnes."

How One Woman Lost 102 Lbs. of Fat

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks, I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am 23 years old and I look at least 5 years younger now than I did when I was fat. I have a picture of myself before and after, so if you want to see them let me know.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 weeks. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but it was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa., Oct. 31, 1930.

The Modern Safe Way—Right Way to Lose Fat

Just take a half teaspoonful of Gruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

You can hasten the reducing action of Kruschen by going laghter on potatoes, pastry and fatty meats.

Unlike other Salts, Kruschen doesn't reduce by rushing food through your system. Rather it's an ideal blend of 6 reparate mineral salts which help every gland, nerve and body organ to function properly.

Women everywhere are overjoyed with this marvelous reducing treatment. Frequently pound by pound of surplus fat leaves and soon you possess that trim, slender figure you've always craved.

An 85c bottle of Kruschen (lasts 4 weeks) is sold by leading druggists the world over—So start this SAFE method to lose ugly fat TODAY—Alred Drug Company, Clanton, Ala.

"Oh!" said the landlady, getting on her dignity at once. "I suppose you are going to ask me to have the poor thing destroyed?"

"No," replied the boarder calmly enough; "I was only going to suggest that you have him tuned."—Answers.

A RESOLUTION

The following resolutions on the death of Mrs. Bessie Harris were adopted by the Faithful Workers Sunday School Class of the Clanton Baptist Church:

Whereas, on April 18, 1931, God removed from our midst Mrs. Bessie Harris, faithful and beloved member of the Faithful Workers Sunday School Class of the Clanton Baptist Church, therefore be it resolved. First, that we extend our deep sympathy to the bereaved family, and especially to the husband, children, and mother, and rejoice that "though she be absent from the body, yet is she present with the Lord."

Second, that we cherish her memory; influence and example that we may be inspired to a greater devotion and larger service; that we may attain "unto the measure of the stature of Christ."—Mrs. Watts Moore, Mrs. H. T. Pipes.

Power Co. Tax 11 Per Cent of Income

State Inquiry Reveals That One Concern Pays Nearly Fourth Utility Levy

Montgomery, Ala., May 11.—The joint legislative committee investigating electric utility rates and valuations was told yesterday by H. T. Knight, chief clerk of the State Tax Commission, that Alabama Power Company paid out in taxes in 1930 nearly 11 cents out of every dollar taken in.

Knight said that Alabama Power Company paid 23.94 per cent of the taxes paid by all the electric, telephone, telegraph, railroad, water and other utility companies in the state and that its assessment was 23.70 per cent of the assessment of all such utilities in 1930.

The total state, county, city and school taxes paid by Alabama Power Company in 1930, Knight said, was $1,902,747.82, federal taxes not included. This was 10.76 per cent of every dollar paid the Power Company by the electric consumers of Alabama, he said.

In figures submitted to the Committee, Knight pointed out that Alabama Power Company has Paid 22.41 per cent of all sums paid into the educational trust fund since its creation in 1927.

The Power Company's assessment is 4.52 per cent of the entire property assessment of the state, Knight testified, the ad valorem taxes paid by the Power Company in 1930 being 4.48 per cent of all ad valorem taxes paid in the state.

Concluding his testimony, KKnight submitted a tabulation showing the increase in the assessment of various classes of property in 1930 over 1924 as follows:

Real estate increase, 23.33 per cent; personal property, 5.61 per cent; motor vehicles, 16.20 per cent; public utilities, 32.28 per cent.

WOMAN CAPTURES S. C. COTTON PRIZE

Mrs. C. H. Mathis of Blackville, South Carolina, won first prize of $750.00 in the State-Wide 5-Acre Cotton Contest in 1930 by producing 5,250 pounds of lint cotton on five acres.

The seed, labor, rent, and fertilizer used in growing the crop cost a total of $357.18. The crop was sold for $886.85. The five acres made a net profit of $529.67, or $105.93 per acre. Coker's Seed No. 5 was used. At planting time 1,200 pounds per acre of a 10-3-3 fertilizer was applied. The cotton was side-dressed with 320 pounds Chilean nitrate of soda per acre in three applications.

Mrs. Mathis' performance is additional evidence that profits are made by increasing the acre yield through the use of good seed, fertilizer, and proper cultivation.

POTPOURRI

The Goat-Sucker

The bird known as the "goat-sucker" doesn't suck goats at all. In early times people thought they did because they were always seen at twilight near goat herds. Observation, however, established that this bird lived on moths and insects and found them near the ground in the vicinity of herds. They are about fifteen inches tall.

RUDDICK FAMILY REUNION

Celebrations may come and celebrations may go, but seldom, if ever, are such celebration held in one day as there was held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Ruddick on last Sunday. Being Mothers Day, it was only fitting that their children grandchildren, great grandchildren and friends should gather together to pay tribute to so lovely a mother as Mrs. Ruddick.

The children present were, Mrs. Alice Milam, Riderwood; Mrs. Ella Martin, Lisman; U. T. Ruddick, Birmingham; W. C. Ruddick, Cordova; Mrs. Clemie Osborne, Selma; and W. L. Ruddick Stanton.

Four generations were present, Mr. and Mrs. Ruddick, Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Milam, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wiley and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stone. There were about 20 grand children as well as about 13 great grandchildren there to pay homage to one of the greatest grandmothers that a child could have. Do not fancy we exaggerate. I got this from them. No doubt this meeting of loved ones was a most enjoyable occasion, since it brought back so many pleasant memories of childhood days. Fancy can paint no more gran picture of other days than that of a family of grown-ups together, relating incidents of those good old days when they were much younger than they are now. There have been sad, anxious hours, as father and mother watched over the children, as only a father and mother can. Then too, there were those happy days such as can be found only in well regulated homes. Recitation of the incidents that made up the daily home life of the Ruddicks is more attractive than pages from the most remarkable histories. Listen as Walter tells of the pranks he played on Bill, and to Bill tell how he got him back for it. And do you see Mr. and Mrs. Ruddick over there? Aren't they laughing as the incidents are being related. They no doubt can recall and relate better than any of those, the incidents that took place.

Next comes the glories of heaven, no doubt. And thus was spent a delightful Mothers Day.

But aside from this there was occasion for thinking of other days, for it is to be recalled that in far away Ireland, 77 years ago, on the 9th of the month, a little Irishman was born. So there is good reason for so much merry making, celebrating the birthday of what seemed to the children, the greatest man that ever came out of dear old Ireland.

Brother Ruddick's father died in the Crimean war in 1854. Immediately young William set out for America. His seventeeth birthday was spent on the ocean. He landed in New York, May 11, 1871, a stranger in a strange land. The death of a relative caused an uncle to go to Memphis, Tenn., taking with him this stranger. After spending some eight or ten months there, he landed in Alabama in March 1872, where he has resided continuously since.

Brother Ruddick was married to Miss Lucy Alice Smitherman on the 8th of May 1873, by the Rev. James Allen of Jemison. So there is one more reason why there was so much rejoicing on this day, the fifty-eigth wedding anniversary of mother and dad.

Mrs. Ruddick was born 76 years ago two miles above Randolph, in Bibb County. All of us are proud of our mother, but when we can boast of having one 76 years old, it is a double cause for rejoicing.

In October 1872 Bro. Ruddick professed forth in the father of all men and was baptised into the Baptist church, remaining there as a consistent Christian until this good day, as it is evidenced by the following:

Was ordained in Randolph as a baptist minister fifty two years ago last October. Rev. I. M. Hicks, H. E. Longerier and T. J. Elam were present at the ordaination. He has been pastor of 27 churches in Chilton Autauga, Dallas, Bibb and Perry counties. He has not missed but 2 sessions of the association during 47 years. He was clerk of the Unity Association 31 years and Moderator for four years.

Brother Ruddick has preached to thousands; baptized, married and buried hundreds of persons. Among those whom he baptized, we find the following who have gone out into the world to carry on promptness by that force that has carried Bro. Ruddick so far: Dr. J. O. Williams, who is pastor of the 4th Ave., Baptist church of Louisville, Ky., Rev. Grady Williams of Clanton, Rev. Luther Gaines, pastor of the Brent Baptist church and Rev. Cecil Perry, who pastors a church in either Va., or Md. From a Christian standpoint, Bro. Ruddick has an enviable record.

And this is not all. Bro. Ruddick was made a Mason 55 years ago this month, in the Randolph lodge No. 258. Leaving there he became a charter member of Stanton lodge No. 473, and was its worshipful Master for forty of its forty-four years of existence He has as a keepsake his grandfather's sword, which was used in the 85th infantry in the English army. This sword, which was used forty-four years in the Stanton lodge, is in good state of preservation despite these many years of service. Bro. Ruddick has very many keepsakes, among which are photogrophs of six generations, one being taken in Scotland many years ago. We noticed particularly that this one is very distinct even though it was taken a long time ago.

From the above recital one might get the idea that Bro. Ruddick has been the principal character of the drama of married life. May we rid your minds of such, for while he made history and came to the front, so it seems, there was ever present, that little soul mate of his, sharing the privation, toils and hardships as well as the glories of it all. When he rejoiced she rejoiced, when he sorrowed so did she, and as husband and wife in the most strict interpretations they have trod together thus far the pathway of very useful lives.

Tho growing old in years they are still young in spirit, and still cling to the beauties of life, doing all they can to carry on as in the days of yore. And now will join us in wishing for them all the joys they have earned by the life they have lived.

Ten children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Ruddick. All grew to maturity, but three have since died. There are 36 grand children 27 great grandchildren. Their friends are limited by their acquaintances.

There was about 60 present, including children grandchildren great grandchildren, husbands of the wives and a few visitors.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

The closing entertainment of the Thorsby Institute Lyceum Course for the season of 1930-31 last Friday night in which "The Bergman Players" presented "New Brooms" was a worthy finish for a series of entertainment sponsored by Thorsby Institute.

The acting was of a high order the speaking very clear and the whole company of six people were evidently masters of the art of dramatization. They presented a clean, wholesome story, which was heartily enjoyed by the entire audience.

Mrs. Flora Campbell (colored) widow of the late Si Campbell, died at her home in Thorsby last Monday night, after a lingering illness with cancer. Mrs. Campbell was known as an industrious and intelligent woman, a conspicious leader of the people of her race in Thorsby and vicinity in civic, religious and educational affairs.

A report from J. Monroe Smith, manager of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck growers Association Tuesday morning revealed 68 carloads of the strawberies, averaging 315 crates of 24 quarts each, had been gathered and shipped to date. At an average price for all sold up to that time, which excluded Mondays picking of 13 carloads.

This one days picking, four thousand and ninety five crates and a little more than ninety thousand cups. Although the capacity of pickers varies greatly, as for instance on Monday, Mrs. W. H. Raybon picked 125 cups and her daughter picked 136 a fair average would be about 50 cups per day. This would require about 1,800 pickers for the berries actually gathered that day. Then there must be a lot of people to prepare the crates and pack the berries in them, load and haul them to Thorsby, inspect and grade them, load and fasten them in cars to prevent them from jarring loose in transit.

As for quality none can be better. We bought a few cups of especially selected berries which did not take but 30 to fill the cup.

We know of no crop which in good season provides so much money for so many men women and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Howard and daughter, Ella, and Miss Ruth Nix, drove to Columbiana Sunday afternoon.

Grady Popwell has had the misfortune to break his arm while cranking a car.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Mayfield and daughter, Jane of Selma, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan.

Miss Naeomi Turnquist of Selma spent the week end with home folks.

Misses Eva Lee Rowe, Odell Rowe, Janie Kelley and Francis P. Pate spent Sunday with Miss Edna Raybon.

Little Dion Raybon of Birmingham is spending the week with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Raybon.

There will be preaching morning and evening at the Congregational church Sunday.

Mr. N. Laurell of Birmingham, who bought the J. P. Sorenson place spent the week end with is son in Thorsby. His wife moved here last Tuesday and Mr. Laurell will spend week ends with her until his school duties for the year are over, when he will come here to spend the summer.

Mr. H. B. Colley of Prattville is visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gray for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gray spent Sunday with Mrs. Gray's mother in Prattville.

Miss Thoroman, music teacher at Thorsby Institute, will present her pupils in a recital to be given at 7:45 p.m. Saturday, May 16 in the Institute auditorium. Everyone is invited. No admission is charged.

Miss Thoroman entertained the Thorsby Institute trio, consisting of Katheryn Foss, Lois Thompson and Fred Boyd at dinner, Saturday night at the new Exchange Hotel, Clanton.

Students are being registered at the Thorsby Institute for the coming year. Any prospecting students may register by seeing Mr. Maddox, registrar.

The play, "Two Days to Marry" will be given at the public school auditorium on Friday night, May 22, 1931. It is being given in Circle No. 2's favor and the proceeds will go for the benefit of the Baptist church. The prices are 15 and 25 cents. Don't forget the date, everybody come.

The Baptist social will be at the home of Mrs. T. W. Robinson Thursday afternoon of this week, everybody invited.

The Y. W. A. will meet with Miss Lois Thompson Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. G. F. Harper, Mrs. Clyde Sims, Mrs. Nels Peterson, Miss Edna Raybon and Miss Katheryn Lewis spent Saturday in Montgomery shopping.

Mr. Clyde Sims is slowly improving after spedning 7 weeks in South Highland Infirmary.

False Economy Would Cut Big Slice Off Cotton Profits

It is costly to omit nitrogen on cotton, as shown by this field on the farm of A. G. Neville, Rossville, Tenn. Plot at left which received 250 lbs. Chilean nitrate per acre—50 lbs. at planting, and 200 lbs. as side dressing—produced 1230 lbs. of seed cotton. Plot at right without nitrogen made 312 lbs.

Omission of fertilizer as a step toward economy would cost cotton farmers about a third of a bale per acre, according to a summary of a large number of farm tests reported recently by E. C. Westbrook, cotton and tobacco specialist of the Georgia State College of Agriculture.

Instead of representing economy, the cutting out of fertilizer this year would likely make the cost of a pound of cotton so high that it would be impossible to show a profit with prices at their present low level.

In Georgia tests in which no fertilizer was used the yield was 313 pounds seed cotton per acre. Where fertilizer was used the yield was increased from 360 to 898 pounds. The average increase was better than 500 pounds per acre. Figuring seed cotton at 4 cents per pound (which brings lint to 9 cents), but valuing the fertilizer at a cost of $5.00 to $10.00 a ton above present prices, the increase was worth a clear profit that ranged from $9.90 to $17.92 per acre.

Professor Westbrook's analysis shows that farmers can count on nearly $7 extra per acre by side-dressing with 100 to 150 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda after chopping. If farmers this year reduce the amount of fertilizer customarily used at planting, it is all the more important, he says, that they side-dress with quick-acting nitrogen.

WEST CHILTON

Having plenty of rain. Everybody busy. These beautiful May days call for extra effort all along the line.

Not much complaining in West Chilton, like we hear from other places. Why Complain? Or place the blame on some one else? When this depression is world wide. If we will not listen to reason and live too fast, of course, then, more severe measures are needed to make us halt. Where would we have gone if the depression had not come?

Still the farmer is getting a deluge of free advice, telling him to live at home. Where else can he live?

A congregation larger than usual gathered at Macedonia Sunday for preaching, singing and Mothers Day. Many visitors were there. Rev. and Mrs. Freeman of Randolph, Ira Ward of Hamburg, Dr. Kinkaid of Bessemer, Dr. Nix of Maplesville, Mr. Eddie Atchison of Clanton, Stanley Hayes and Ben Glass of Maplesville, Joe Malone of Selma, and others too numerous to mention.

Ross Waldrop attended the Memorial Service at Providence Sunday.

Olan Crumpton is reported sick with pneumonia.

Several relatives of Green and Marion Cofer from Siluria and Georgia were visiting their brothers, the Messrs. Cofer, here Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Dyer is conducting a teachers training class at Union Springs church.

We notice that Hoyt Freeman, road overseer in Precinct 14, has done some fine bridge work on mail route number 3 from Jemison.

Prospects for a fruit crop is good in this part.

The brief address of Miss Hazel Cofer at the beginning of service at Macedonia was nice and well delivered.

Our local political leaders should beware of anything in the way of internal strife. But seek harmony, be self-sacrificing, and continually working for peace and good will. Noble is he that esteems the great cause superior to individuals. Beware of factions.

Factionalism is dangerous in both church and state. Selfishness and greed are destructive. Self-sacrifice is noble. There is something good in all. Look for the good instead of evil. Let light, and more light, shine out.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and good neighbors for their kindness and help during the illness of my dear wife, and while she was in the hospital. And thank God she is home and slowly improving. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and every one is our prayer.—J. W. Ingram and wife.

The cotton cooperative marketing associations of the southern states are handling this year little more than two million bales of the 1930 crop. This is approximately twice as much as they handled of the 1929 crop. The Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association is handling 188,278 bales, Alabama being fourth in pooling the 1930 crop. Texas was first with 615,0000 bales; Georgia second with 231,000; and Oklahoma third with 213,000.

IMPORTANT

TAX NOTICE

The law authorizing taxpayers to withhold paying taxes until August 1st, has been declared unconstitutional; therefore the law remains as it has always been.

All State and County taxes that have not already been paid are now delinquent, and unless same are paid at once, the property will be advertised for sale just as soon as the legal arrangements can be made. Attend to this matter now without fail if you wish to avoid further costs to you.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Julius Rosenwald

Peddling wasn't as profitable as the ten-year-old boy thought it ought to be. The wares he had to offer didn't seem to appeal particularly to the busy housewives of Springfield, Ill. Older and more experienced salesmen had called on them before the lad appeared. Those who needed such wares as Julius Rosenwald had to offer generally seemed to be stocked up with them. Not encouraging, to be sure.

But the youngster wasn't discouraged. He knew there was a brisk market for him as a door to door salesman if he could hit on wares that were somewhat out of the ordinary. He put away the staple articles of the trade and stocked up on chromos. He did a land office business with them.

The boy, who later built up the mail order business of Sears, Roebuck & Company, got his first lessons as a salesman at the age of ten. He learned then that there was always a market if you had goods people really wanted or could use.

Springfield was the place of his birth. He was born in 1866 in a house not far from the old home of Abraham Lincoln. His father was in the clothing business so the boy seems to have come by his ability as a salesman naturally enough.

Even before he turned to selling goods to the thrifty housewives of the Illinois city he had earned money. He got five cents an hour for pumping a church organ when he was just about able to perform the task.

While he attended public schools he earned money as a newsboy as well as a salesman of chromos. He sold pamphlet programs when the Lincoln monument was dedicated in Springfield. He earned $2.25 that day and had the added pleasure of getting a close up of President Grant, the great hero of the Civil war. The general was the first man he ever saw wearing kid gloves.

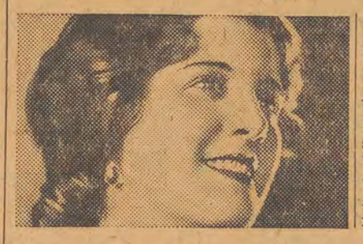
He was a busy and thrifty youngster. He had a chance to work as a clerk in a fancy goods store during his vacation when he was fifteen years old. Even at that age he was known as a good salesman. Otherwise he would not have had such an opportunity.

He saved $25 of his first earnings in the store and used it to buy his mother a tea set as a gift for the twentieth anniversary of her wedding, much to her joy and to the great surprise of his brother and two sisters. He was already a man in the eyes of the latter.

That year he went to New York to work as a clerk in the store of his uncles. They thought the youngster was deserving of a chance in the big city. He lived frugally in the metropolis, developed his natural ability as a salesman and saved his money. New York, even in the early eighties, had many fascinations and time wasting diversions for young men from the country who thought more of pleasure than of business.

The youngster from the West was interested in little other than business. He passed up any excessive recreation for the serious task of learning his job thoroughly and putting by his money. He wanted to establish his own business. Even in those days it took real money and good credit to open a store of your own.

After six years as a worker in the establishment of his uncles he decided he had enough money and sufficient experience to take the plunge. He was twenty-one when he opened his own clothing store. He made money with his business for four years. But he was looking for bigger worlds to conquer. He had his eyes open for opportunity.



He heard of a clothing manufacturer who couldn't fill his orders for summer weight goods because he was unable to meet the demand. The young merchant decided that any business, where the demand was greater than the supply, was an excellent one with which to tie up. He moved to Chicago to put his money and his energies in the manufacture of clothes.

His business prospered from the outset. R. W. Sears, pioneer in the mail order business and president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, was one of the young manufacturer's best customers. Sears, watching the newcomer to the clothes making business, was deeply impressed by his direct methods and business acumen. He found the young man to be a person of few words but mighty quick on the trigger when it came to making decisions.

The Rosenwald concern did so well that when its directing genius was offered a chance by Sears to buy a half interest in the mail order house for $70,000 he was able to finance the deal. That was in 1895. The next year he became Vice President Rosenwald. He was made president of the company when Sears retired in 1908. Now the business is worth millions of dollars and the boy who sold chromos at the age of ten is devoting his vast fortune to philanthropy.

Skimming the CREAM!

THE OLD RELIABLE L&N (LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R.)

The fundamental soundness of America's great rail transportation system is being threatened by the unregulated, unfairly-taxed competition of buses and trucks operating for hire over public highways.

The seriousness of this on the country's stability is emphasized by the fact that the United States railroads are valued at 26 billion dollars—employ 1⅓ million men and women, purchase 1½ billion dollars worth of equipment, materials and supplies, and pay 400 million dollars in taxes every year. The public owns nearly 21 billion dollars worth of railroad securities, distributed among one million shareholders and a similar number of bondholders. Life insurance companies, educational institutions, and thousands of trust estates hold heavy investments in these securities.

The railroads are not fighting any form of transportation. They are simply asking for fairness, to the end that buses, trucks, and other forms of transportation shall be operated under equal tax and regulatory conditions.

Consider one point: the railroads must transport all forms of freight offered by shippers, while the truck lines are permitted to "skim the cream"—take what they want and what is profitable and pass on to the railroads the less-profitable traffic.

The Railroads Must Earn To Spend

The problem which confronts the railroads today is your problem. Their impairment will be your loss. The railroads built this Nation—they must continue to be the backbone of its transportation system. They cannot do this unless they are fairly regulated, fairly taxed and liberally patronized and unless they are permitted to operate on a basis that gives them equal opportunity with their competitors.

Additional facts concerning the inequalities under which the railroads are now operating have been put into a little booklet by this Railroad, a copy of which will be gladly sent to anyone addressing the general offices of the Company at Louisville, Ky.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Surveys reveal that little more than one-quarter of the national income of the American people is spent for food and that the outlay for automobiles is almost as much, which means that automobiles and food account for the expenditure of approximately 50 per cent of the national income.

American people are low in per capita consumption of cheese. Germans and Englishmen eat twice as much cheese as American people eat, while people of Holland and France eat three times as much, and Switzerland consumes five times as much per capita. It is said that advertising and more effective selling methods will increase consumption in this country.

SCOTT REUNION

It seems that Mothers Day, the 10 of May, was well observed by the children of the late James A. Scott, who has been deceased for several years. The children congregated at the home of Mr. George Scott near Billingsley. They met to observe their annual reunion, or to honor their mother and celebrate their grandmother Scott's 78th birthday. A number of presents were presented to her, which she seemed to appreciate very much. Before her marriage she was the daughter of Preacher Billingsley. She was married to James A. Scott many years ago.

To this union was born 13 children, of which 10 are still living. The children present were Mr. Johnson Scott and family of Clanton Route; Mr. John Scott and family of Maplesville Route; Mr. Henry Scott and family of Clanton Route; Mr. Ernest Scott and family of Maplesville Route; Mr. Jake Scott and family of Maplesville Route; Mr. Charlie Scott and family of Prattville; Mr. Joe Wallace and family of East Tallassee; Mr. John Mims and family of Billingsley Route; Mr. George Scott and wife of Billingsley Route; Mr. Green Mims and family of Clanton Route; Mrs. Frank Scott and children of Clanton Route.

Grandchildren present were Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Scott, Mrs. Mae Manning, Mrs. Jim Owens, Miss Era Scott, Cora Scott, Zora Scott, Arnold Scott, Elma Scott, J. C. Scott, Maurice Scott, Ethel Scott, Arthur Scott, Marvin Scott, Odell Scott, Irene Scott, Ida Mae Scott, Rostron Scott, Reddie Scott, O. T. Visitors were Mr. Fletcher Lembrick and family of Pleasant Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Foshee of Thorsby, Mr. Tom Williams of New Cedron, and a number of others.

Dinner was spread in picnic form. Prayer was offered by Mr. Fletcher Lembrick. As the sun began sinking in the far west the children all returned to their homes, hoping to spend many more birthdays like that with mother and grandmother.

POULTRY

OVER HEATING CHICKS

There is going to be a lot of late hatched chicks brooded this year. There will be lots of trouble with late hatched chicks. We are going to blame everything and everybody for this trouble. Probably the most common cause of this trouble is going to be over-heating.

When we had poorly constructed brooder houses and brooder stoves that were by no means perfected, chilling was an important cause of brooder troubles. But with better houses, good stoves and especially with late season brooding, we will have to watch over-heating far more than chilling.

For late spring and early summer brooding 90 degrees at the edge of the hover is warm enough for the first week. Each week after the first lower the temperature 5 degrees until 70 degrees is reached. This will mean that after chicks are five weeks old they will need heat only at night and during cold, rainy days. If they are taught to roost by this time there is no need for any heat in a well constructed brooder house after the 6th week.

Over-heating causes the chicks to have low vitality and poor resistance to disease. During the first two week over-heated chicks will develop bowel trouble. After that period coccidiosis is liable to get into the flock of low vitality chicks.

"Make hatched chicks "tough" and there will be no more trouble raising them than with early hatched chicks.

Lesson for May 17

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:29-48.

GOLDEN TEXT—These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to the King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Supremacy of Jesus.

This event is frequently designated as the "triumphal entry" which is somewhat misleading. While it was his official entry into Jerusalem, it was far from being a triumphal entry. In fulfillment of prophecy the Messiah officially presented himself to the Jewish nation. It seems that back of the cry "Hosanna" was taking form the awful word "crucify." It is possible that the word "crucify" was uttered by some of the same persons who had cried "Hosanna." Though they were utterly blind to the fact, God was about to carry out his plan of Hosanna which means "save now" through the crucifixion of his son.

I. The Preparation (vv. 29-34).

1. Sending the disciples for the ass (vv. 29-30).

He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly the Lord knows all our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (Zech. 9: 9, Cf. Matt. 21: 4, 5).

Some five hundred years before, Zechariah had predicted this event. Christ's entry into Jerusalem was an exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand the as yet unfulfilled prophecies. Since the predictions of his first coming were literally fulfilled, we can expect the second to be literally fulfilled also. The first is established beyond a doubt. The second we should as heartily believe. The prediction of Zechariah 14: 3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9: 9.

3. Obedience of the disciples (vv. 32-34).

The request may have seemed strange and even unreasonable, yet they fully obeyed. The true disciple will render glad obedience to the Lord, no matter how strange his commands may seem. Obedience to that only which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. May we prove that we are really his disciples by obeying him.

II. The Entry of the King (vv. 35-38).

1. The disciples set Jesus upon the ass (v. 35).

This act of putting the garments upon the ass and setting Jesus upon it showed that they recognized him as their king (II Kings 9:13).

2. Acclaimed as king by the disciples (vv. 36-38).

Some spread their garments in the way, others perhaps having no garments to spare cut down branches of trees and strewed them in his way. This, no doubt, was just as acceptable to him. They praised God for all the mighty works which they had seen.

III. The Critical Pharisees (vv. 39, 40).

Although swept along by the demonstrations of the multitude, the Pharisees deemed it prudent to ask the Lord to rebuke the disciples, as such behaviour might be interpreted by the Roman government as an insurrection. To their demand Jesus replied that such homage was not only fitting but necessary. He declared that if the multitude were silent, the very stones would cry out.

IV.—The King Rejected (vv. 41-44).

Christ knew what awaited him in Jerusalem. Though surrounded by loyal hearts, he knew that the rulers of the nation had no heart for him. His coming trial and death loomed before him so that he wept over Jerusalem. He knew what awful days awaited it and that loyal hearts would gladly welcome him if they only knew. He showed them that their inability to see him as their King and Saviour would result in bringing upon them the destruction of their city.

V. The King Taking Possession of His Own House (vv. 45-48).

Upon entering the city he rebuked the rulers for allowing the house of God to become degraded by carrying on traffic therein for gain. The cleansing of the temple only increased their hatred and opposition to him. The chief priests and scribes even sought his destruction.

Letter from J. D. Bean Concerning Poor Home

Editor Union-Banner:

There appeared in The Chilton County News on May 7th, an article by W. T. Hand, of Jemison, Alabama, which was relative to the county poor house, and as I am the keeper of the poor house, I think in justice to myself and to the county as a whole, that this article should be answered, and some facts be given to the people.

I do not know Mr. Hand's purpose in writing this article other than about one year ago he came to the poor house and asked me to show him around the place, which I did, and Mr. Hand stated there that he was very much surprised at the way the poor of the county were being treated, and that they were being treated much better than he expected to find. He came back on two or three occasions, and in the meantime I learned that he was causing quite a bit of dissension and trouble and was criticizing to the inmates, and was causing trouble in general among them. The information I received from the inmates at the poor house and the people outside.

Upon one occasion when Mr. Hand came there I approached him concerning this and told him what I was doing, and it resulted in a more or less personal difficulty between Mr. Hand and myself. Mr. Hand has never been back to the poor house since; and I might say here that Mr. Hand has never seen a single meal served at the poor house.

The next thing I knew was when three investigators from the Governor's office, as I understand, came to the poor house and stayed some two or three days and left. The next thing I knew Mr. Davis and a man came out of the State Inspector's office, Dr. Andrews, and stayed about five days; and I might say that neither of them have ever filed any report against the poor house, and that no report of anything wrong was filed with the commissioners court, and so far as I have ever learned or that was ever filed, no criticism was made by them of the poor house.

I might state also that the Grand Jury in March of this year made no criticism against the poor house, but on the contrary commended the conduct of the poor house, and several members of the Grand Jury told me personally while making this investigation that they were well pleased with conditions, and that they did not see how it was handled and kept as clean and nice as it was.

I might also state that at various times, and immediately after Mr. Hand was there, the county commissioners made a thorough investigation in the absence of Mr. Bean, and found the conditions to be properly handled and had no criticism to make.

Mr. Hand mentions in his letter of selling the poor to the lowest bidder, and in reply I would like to state that he is either ignorant of the fact or else has wilfully misstated the situation, for the commissioners court does not award the contract to the lowest bidder and this has never been the practice.

I would like to state here that Mr. Hand often goes to see Oliver Smith, who once had the poor house and who has been prejudiced against most every one of the keepers since he was keeper, and Mr. Smith is personally friendly with me, and these two have seen fit to stir up all trouble possible at the poor house.

I would like also to take this opportunity to invite any citizen at any time to visit the poor house and to investigate the clothing, the food and general surroundings, and I am sure that he will be convinced that these poor people are being treated and cared for in a manner far above the average person of the county, and without exception in a far better condition than they were ever accustomed to. The county has just erected a new building which is modern and cleanly kept, with provision for fresh air and sunshine, and is properly screened, and with every provision made for the comfort of these old people. I do not ask you to take my word but simply invite you to come and see for yourself.

I think any citizen has a right to criticize the poor house, if sincerely made, and I think any citizen has the right to see and know the conditions of the poor, and I blame no man for criticizing the conditions but on the other hand, I think when a man of W. T. Hand's type, and his past record, attempts to harm me in criticizing the poor house for things that he knows are absolutely untrue, that I fear are injustice to the county and to myself, that I should also have a right to give my views. It has been the practice of W. T. Hand for the past ten years to stir up strife and trouble wherever possible, and through personal grievances, and it is well known by the people that he has been left some money, and has nothing to do but to cause trouble and dissension wherever he could.

I believe though I am truthful in saying that during all of this time he has failed in every point he has attempted. Mr. Hand was the one who secured the state officials to investigate the poor house, and now because they would not perjure themselves to give a false report he has turned against them. It is clear that Mr. Hand is not seeking the truth, but is seeking to harm and hurt some one for his own personal grudge.

I think that the people of the county by this time know Mr. Hand, but I deemed it my duty to protect Chilton County from the slurs thrown at it by Tom Hand, when in fact and truth his criticism is wholly unfounded, as shown by the various investigations made.

I invite you to come and see for yourself and let you be the judge as to the conditions, and as to Tom Hand.—J. D. Bean.

THE FARM BUREAU RACKET

The proposed bill in the Legislature of Alabama to restrict the activity of county agents and prevent them from helping the farmers in matters of cooperative buying has stirred up the hottest controversy of the year.

Proponents of the bill say it is all right for county agents to help the farmers in cooperative selling; but they must not help the farmers in cooperative buying. Farmers have come to recognize what has long been known to the wisest business men, that the buying end of their business is important.

The successful business man saves money in his purchases of goods and materials just as religiously as he seeks to make money in his selling. In fact the making of money in selling depends in a great measure on the saving of money in buying.

If the farmer has a right to cooperate, combine, and otherwise manipulate his selling to advantage, why is it not just as legitimate that he also manage the buying end of his business to his best advantage?

Of course, the business man has rights. His is the privilege to make a living by selling goods. But has the merchant the right to demand that the farmer cease to buy seeds, fertilizer, etc., in a cooperative way? Where is the dead line that sparates the rights of the farmer as against the rights of the merchant?

Whatever be the arguments one way or the other, we believe it will be a sad day for agriculture in Alabama if the county agents are denied the privilege of aiding the farmers in cooperative buying and selling. Agriculture has made great progress in recent years through the combined efforts of farmers by means of the Farm Bureau and the Extension Service. Our legislatures had better go slow with this business of granting the restrictions that are demanded in the bill now before them.

DAVE EDDINGTON ELECTED

The Alabama delegation to the International Convention of Kiwanis at Miami last week succeeded in securing the election of Dave Edington, of Mobile, as a member of the International Board of Trustees.

The boys from Alabama went to the Convention with a determination to put Mr. Edington over for that important place, and when the final vote was counted the result was greeted with much jubilation.

Dave Edington is one of the outstanding members of Kiwanis in Alabama. He has served in every official capacity with the Mobile Club, and also has served as Governor of the Alabama District. He is sure to be one of the outstanding members of the International Board of Trustees.

Among the other reasons for spring optimism is the fact that Congress will not meet until December.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Probably never before in the history of the country have so many programs been offered for the spending of the public money. The list has doubtless been increased by the depression and the desire of legislators, national, state and local, to do something to relieve the situation or at least to appeal to the voters back home. Although a great many of these more or less socialistic ideas were advanced in the national Congress the tendency of state legislatures and local government bodies to spend the public money unscientifically has been even greater.

It might be well therefore to pause for a moment and study the situation. According to a statement issued recently by the National Industrial Conference Board, local government in the United States now accounts for 54 per cent of the combined gross expenditures of federal, state and local governments, and the total is mounting steadily every year. It is to be remembered, too, that these local governments are closest to the mass of the people and must get their revenues for the most part by direct taxation of the public. They have no indirect taxation to fall back on as has the federal government. And as the report mentioned points out this local expenditure amounted in 1928 to 6,813 millions of dollars and the total is mounting from year to year.

Although federal expenditures have been rising for the past two or three years they do not increase as fast as local and state expenditures. Of course a considerable part of the money expended locally goes for public education and another part for highway construction. Educational facilities we must have and they ought to be improved constantly. A good part of the highway construction payment is now provided for by gasoline taxes, and yet the costs of local government continue to mount steadily year after year. Already the tax burden has become almost unbearable and comprises the chief reason why the farmers need relief. Just what may happen if the present tendency keeps up for another decade is not pleasant to contemplate.

Of course the remedy so far as the local units of government are concerned, remains with the people of these communities themselves. Most of the money is spent for service and improvement within the community, and so long as the burdened taxpayers do not make an effort to see that the public money is wisely expended, they will continue to suffer. Economy at Washington will not solve this problem. The national government does not get its money from the municipal and county tax budgets.

Certain it is, of course, that we want good roads, good schools, good hospitals and charitable insitutions. But this is no time for social and political experiments. It is true that we are in the midst of a depression, but it is very doubtful whether many of the untried remedies, through government aid, will help as much as they will hurt. The road out of the morass will come through individual effort, not through government ownership or guardianship. So instead of putting our national, state and local governments further into business, and eliminating many of the chief sources of public revenue, under the pretence that we are helping the dear public, let us rather give business a chance to work out its own salvation, and direct our efforts to seeing that the local public money is spent carefully and wisely. That will help a lot more eventually than week end, experimental trips into the jungles of socialism.

THE WHY OF BATTLESHIPS

The State Department is to be commended for its refusal to consider the reduction in the size of individual battleships. As it points out, this question was settled at the Washington and London conferences. For powers which adhered to these treaties to start a clamor at this time for altering the size of battleships is not, to use the British phrase, quiet "cricket."

There is nothing magical about the American belief in battleships. Failing naval bases, it is essential to have large vessels which can hold the sea for long periods. It so happens that the last war taught the British that for hem ligher vessels were the more desirable because of the for repelling submarine attack from the European continent. Needless to say, this is a factor which does not apply to the United States.

Even with battleship design at its highest level of effectiveness, it is vain to imagine that battleships can ever make adequate substitutes for well located naval bases. This statement would hold even if, as was recently reported, battleships could be designed to go around the world without refueling. Naval bases, of course, do extend the cruising radius of ships, but the ability of a ship to go to a distant point and return is not the only factor in question. It is also true that where the distance from a base is short fewer ships are necessary to be on station at a given point. Bases not only enable you to go to a place, but they also make it possible for you to maintain your forces there in substantial numbers.

What Admiral Hilary P. Jones calls the "survival factor" also comes into play. If a ship is damaged when there is a base close at hand there is a good chance of saving her. After the Battle of Jutland, for example, both the British and the Germans saved a numbers of badly damaged ships because in both cases bases were close at hand. But a badly damaged ship which has to travel several thousand miles before it can reach a place of repair will probably sink, either because of leaks or enemy action. Nor should it be forgotten that in times of peace conveniently situated bases are of great assistance to commerce.

It is therefore plain that ships can never be adequate substitutes for bases. Ship design involves a compromise among the three factors of speed, protection and gun power. Increases in any one of these factors is made at the expense of the other two. Large ships capable of bringing substantial fire power to bear at distant points furnish as good an alternative to naval base advantages as can be secured. Clearly the State Department is right in brushing aside the campaign aganist these large vessels. And the desirability of increasing the number of our bases as an aid both to our ships of war and to our ships of commerce remains strong and inescapable.—New York Herald Tribune.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

The Sweeper has had a seizure of laziness for the past week and we have done almost nothing but watch it rain. Got nearly all of our cinders wet and it was so much trouble to sweep them around looking for the clinkers with which to fill up this column, that we have decided to let someone else do our musing for us this week.

We ran across a little eulogy on the southern delta negro a little while back and for the amusement of our readers we are going to give you a few excerpts from it. Credit for this very illuminating narrative is from the pen of Mr. S. H. Davis, of Indianola, Miss. It read in part:

"He can lie down beneath the scorching rays of a noonday sun and sleep the sleep of the seven sleepers of old without suffering any evil effects from it whatever; or he can weather the fiercest wintergale, clad only in a pair of cotton overalls and a blue jumper. He can also wear an overcoat to a Fourth of July celebration, or a pair of linen pants and an alpaca coat to a Christmas tree and be perfectly comfortable.

"And, strange as it may seem, anybody's clothes will fit him, and look nice on him. . . There is nothing else like the negro under the sun. He sees all things, hears all things, believes all things, and has implicit faith in everything he sees or hears and stands ready at all times to step aboard of anything that comes along, from a mule to a flying machine.

"Wireless telegraphy is nothing new to him; he has used it for ages; every negro's mouth is a transmitter and every ear a receiver. If anything of importance happens on a plantation tonight, every negro for forty miles around, will know it by morning. If you ever arrive in a delta town on the train on Sunday and the whole colored population is not at the depot to meet you, do not get off the train, for you may know that of a surety some catastrophe has just struck the town.

"Saturday is his special day by custom, and common consent, and if you have any business to attend to in a delta town on Saturday, attend to it early and get off of the streets before you get hurt. A negro cannot see you Saturday, unless you owe him something, and if you get in his way he is liable to step on you, sit down on you, or back you up against a brick wall and smother you to death. He does not usually do these things, or any of these through any evil design, as many sometimes suppose, but he simply cannot help it if you get in his way, for he is busy and cannot look out for you. Saturday is his "rations" and "news exchange" day, and in addition to having all those things on his mind, he has to shake hands with every other negro woman he meets. You had better take out an accident policy or get off the streets Saturday.

" . . . whenever a negro tires of country life he moves to town, acquires a charcoal bucket and a tailor's goose, forms an alliance with some white man's cook and with his living thus assured, opens a cleaning and pressing establishment. He then gets out Monday morning and gathers in the Sunday clothes of the white clerks of the town, and after wearing them himself every night during the week, he gets up Saturday morning and treats them to a gasoline bath, flattens them out with a red hot iron and rushes them home to their owners, so that they might wear them Sunday, collects $1.05 for his services in their hebalf and goes on his way rejoicing. But should there be any special occasion in town on Saturday night which he wishes to attend he holds back the best suit that he happens to have on hand and wears it to that and carries it home Sunday morning, if he happens to wake up in time; otherwise the owner can lay in bed over Sunday and he will bring it back sometime the following Monday.

"If perchance his fancy does not run to cleaning clothes, he gets himself a gasoline stove and other paraphernalia wherewith to defeat the vagrant statute, and sets up a lunch counter, where he serves all such as care to come his way, irrespective of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, with hamburgers, hot catfish and beef sausage, and some sweet spirits of fermenti on the side. But should neither of the vocations appeal to him he usually opens a colored barber shop with a pool room and crap table in the rear.

"Every delta town also has its full quota of negro women, who, like the lily, toil not, neither do they spin, yet the Queen of Sheba, in all her glory was never clad like unto one of them.

Surely the negro is fearfully and wonderfully made, and his ways are past finding out."

If you are worrying about the immense quantities of wheat the Farm Board brought up and is holding in stroage, consider Canada's surplus of nearly 400,000,000 bushels. Two years ago a big wheat pool was formed to hold up the price. Last year the pool bought a lot of $1.50 wheat, which it still holds, and the price at Winnipeg now is as low as 48 and 50 cents, which is approximately 25 cents below the Chicago price. We don't have a monopoly of the world's troubles. expected to follow shortly after by naming the location and date for the holding of the Democratic national convention. In a few weeks from that date, if indeed not sooner, the preliminary work for selection of national delegations for the two national conventions will be in order. In much less than a year hence we will be deep in the preliminaries of the national campaign. —Cappers.

WHAT IS WRONG WITH THE OIL INDUSTRY

Production of oil in the United States doubled between the years 1914 and 1922, and again doubled between 1922 and 1929. There are now some 325,000 producing oil wells.

This indicates what is wrong with the oil industry. The evolution of the "gasoline age"—an evolution which restricted itself to a comparatively few years—called for unprecedented progress and activity on the industry's part. Wells were drilled on a wholesale scale, refining processes were improved, a gigantic marketing system was developed. And the industry managed, on short notice, to keep the public supplied with high-quality oil products at a reasonable price.

Then demand ceased increasing, and during 1930 it was less than in 1929. Great surplus stocks of oil were built up, and they had to either be disposed of, stored, or wasted. Production could not be curtailed as rapidly as consumption fell off.

Now it is hoped that proration and unitization of oil fields may save the industry from disruption, and prevent waste of our oil resources. Excessive production does no one good, and the public eventually pays. The oil industry's efforts to adjust supply and demand are in the interest of sound industrial conditions.

NO CANCELLATION

We are hearing a great deal nowadays about the cancellation of the debt owed us by the allies of the World War. A great many well meaning persons are telling us that if we cancel these debts the prosperity of the world will be disturbed. We learn that officials at Washington are a bit dubious as to this and do not clearly see just how the cancellation of these debts would restore universal prosperity. Indeed, those who favor cancellation seem to have only hazy ideas as to how it would help. Certainly it would be of no great assistance to the United States. We already have a big deficit and the foregoing of the payments on the European debt would increase the deficit. And eventually of course the American taxpayers would have to make it all up.

It is generally admitted that among the things causing depression in Europe are the Russian dumping menace, the high trade barriers between the various countries, and the secret diplomacy which is going to rounds and in which various groups of nations are seeking to get an advantage over other groups. It is a little hard to see how debt cancellation would effect any of these issues.

In summing up the argument against debt cancellation the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel recently well said:

"Surely cancellation would have no effect whatever on the conflict between capital and labor in England, such as is now paralyzing the coal and textile industries; it would no help a particle in the rationalizing of either industry or government in that country. It would not in the least reduce the tension between Italy and France, or the hatred and fear of France and Germany. If it gave Germany any relief whatever, it could not alter the impairments which the vicious Versailles Treaty imposed upon her.

"All that cancellation could do would be to force about 5,000,000 American taxpayers to stand good for the $11,000,000,000 which Europe owes to Americans. It would mean a debt of long standing, some part of which would have to be paid by a generation which had nothing whatever to do with the war or its expense. Europe started the war. We didn't. If Europe did not count the cost, that's too bad for Europe. But we can't see how we Americans have any reason to expect our children to be burdened on account of Europeans' lust for power."

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Hello World. (Appologies to Sie Hayes and Old Man Henderson). I am glad to be back on the corner with you again, after ten days in the great state of Florida. I had a wonderful time. If I should try to tell you all about what I saw, I would not have time to talk about anything but Florida for the next year or two.

On the way down to Miami, Mell Martin and I were together in his car. We took our own sweet time, stopped when we wanted to stop, and traveled when we wanted to travel. We took in things all along the route. Leaving Clanton Friday morning, we spent the first night in Lake City. On to Jacksonville the next morning, and there is where we began to see things.

From Jacksonville on down to Miami we took the whole of Saturday and Sunday to cover the distance. All of the way we drove along fine paved roads, many miles of which runs along the rim of the Atlantic Ocean. This was a great thrill, you know, to two hill billies.

At St. Augustine we stopped a few hours and visited the places of most interest in the oldest city in the United States. Among these interesting places was the old Spanish Fort, which was built by the Spaniards about the year 1563. The place is now the property of the United States Government, and is preserved as a show place.

The Fountain of Youth, discovered by Ponce de Leon, is one of the popular places in St. Augustine. We had a drink of water from the famous fountain, but I couldn't tell that it made me feel any younger.

Mell said he believed the people of St. Augustine are advocates of the doctrine of close communion. One may surely think it is true, judging from the compactness with which the city is built. The streets in the old part of the city are just wide enough to drive an automobile through. You can almost shake hands across the streets from the second story windows.

Being very much interested in the subject of fishing, I naturally saw many places where I wanted to stop and try my luck. But I had gone off without even a single fish hook. I guess it was well that I did, for if I had stopped and fished at every place that attracted me, I guess it would have taken me a month to make the trip which we covered in ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Lande and Cohen Stapp left Clanton Sunday morning and drove into Miami Monday at noon. Mell and I got with them soon after they arrived, and all together we proceeded to take in the Kiwanis Convention, which had started off to business Monday morning. We of course enjoyed the sessions of the convention very much. One must attend an international convention of Kiwanis in order to get the full appreciation of what it is all about.

The city of Miami showed the 4,000 Kiwanis visitors a hallelujah time. Every hour in which we were not busy with Kiwanis business, there was some place to go, something to amuse the visitors. Transportation for Kiwanians to the different places of interest was free. Automobiles, busses, street cars, all were available at any time.

Somebody has reported in Clanton that Stapp and I did not sleep any at all while we were in Miami. Certainly not. We could have stayed at home and slept. We went to Miami to see things. And you take my word for it, kind friend, there is quite as much to be seen in Miami at night as there is in day time. Ask Stapp, if you don't believe me.

Mrs. Lande had a delightful time. The ladies clubs of the city provided entertainment every day for wives of visiting Kiwanians. They were carried to the beaches and show places every day. When Mell, Cohen and I were leaving for home Friday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Lande were leaving on a trip to Cuba for three days. They expected to get back to Clanton Thursday of this week.

The whole story of the city of Miami can be told by saying that it is a playground, pure and simple. It was built for people to enjoy and have a good time. There is nothing there that produces any of the material things of life. No industries, mills, factories. Only hotels, parks, playhouses, plazas, piers, pavillions, and what not. All of it is for entertainment. You can have a big time in Miami, if you happen to have the means with which to pay your way. That is the way it looks to me, although I did not have sufficient change to enable me to cut loose and take it all in.

I suppose you expect me to tell you that I went fishing while I was there. Indeed I did. Stapp and I spent last Thursday on a fishing boat down among the Florida Keys. It was the most delightful day of the whole trip to me. Catching fish is not a problem down there. The only way to keep from catching them is to keep from going fishing. Stapp got blistered from the sun, and I got a good Florida tanning.

While Mell and I were at St. Augustine, I found the solution for the much agitated question of praying for rain. When we went to the alligator farm in which there are over six thousand of the reptiles, the whole alligator population was in an uproar. They were groaning and moaning with a hair raising tremor The keeper told us they were praying for rain. In a few minutes the rain came, and when the first drops began to fall, every alligator was suddenly as still as death. I thought of the dry times when farmers pray for rain. I have never seen a farmer pray for rain and get it. Maybe we should get us some alligators to do our praying.

Passing through northern Florida in the neighborhood of Quincy, Havana, and Tallahassee, we saw the great tobacco plantations. Culture of tobacco as they do it is interesting. The fields are entirely closed in on the sides and overhead with a tent of something like cheese cloth This keeps the insects out, and also mellows the sun rays so that the tobacco will be of a light color. Every tobacco farm has many immense barns in which the stalks are placed to cure after cutting. Growing tobacco is expensive, but the product sells for a big price. Generally speaking, the producers of tobacco in Florida are doing well with their venture.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS HARVEST BIG CROP OF OATS

Auburn, Ala., May 11.—One of the best oat crops in the history of Alabama is now being harvested. Early in May mowers and binders began clicking in the oat fields in the Gulf Coast section of the state and their activities are moving northward as the crop matures with the season.

Reports indicate that the yield per acre is above the average and many of the county agents report a substantial increase in acreage.

The crop is being harvested and turned into feed at a time when the feed supply is low and farmers are needing it. Some are mowing and saving as hay, while others are using binders and shocking it to be fed in bundles.

And the county egents are starting now to stimulate planting oats next fall. Farmers who are harvesting this spring realize that they are an excellent feed crop and that they are able to produce two good crops offeed on the same land in one year by following oats with either soy beans or cow peas.

In producing oats Alabama has two handicaps. One is inadequate machinery for planting and harvesting, and the other is the possibility that a severe freeze will kill them. To overcome the machinery handicap, it is being suggested that farmers cooperate in buying machinery for planting and harvesting. The possibility of a severe freeze should not prevent planting because such freezes are exceptional. If, however, a freeze occurs the farmer who has planted oats in the fall loses only his seed and a little work. He can either plant the land to another crop in the spring or to some other crop.

FARM WOMEN EARN MONEY FOR SELVES

Auburn, Ala., May 11.—In Alabama thousands of farm women have developed and are now operating little businesses of their own. They are producing and selling different products, as revealed by the annual reports of home demonstration extension workers in the state.

These reports show that during 1930 club women and girls produced and sold poultry and eggs for $427,000. Thirty thousand families in 55 of the 67 counties of the state participated in the sales. The county farm and home demonstration agents and the state and county farm bureaus assisted in the selling.

Curb market sales during the year brought almost as much as was received from poultry and eggs. Total curb market sales in Alabama from December 1, 1929, to December 1, 1930, amounted to $413,039.71. This money was received by 1,135 farm families. It was an increase of $11,723.60 over the previous year.

Many other examples were mentioned by Miss Helen Johnston, state agent, Auburn, in her annual report. For example, 907 of the 13,218 girls in 4-H clubs sold vegetables from their gardens for $5,026.38. Others report the sale of garden products, canned products, and handicraft for $5,061.07.

Other products made and sold during the year were pine needle baskets, tufted bedspreads, bath mats, kimonas, pine needle brooms and trays, handkerchiefs, handbags, sewing bags, feather fans, wool comforts, baby clothes, gloves, purses, bill folds, and other leather articles.

In 1930 bauxite was taken from mines in Barbour and in Henry Counties, Alabama. Shipments from these mines were 33 per cent less than in 1929, of which 79 per cent was shipped for use in the chemical industry and the remainder in the abrasive industry.

4-H CLUB WINNERS FOR 1931 NAMED

Auburn, Ala., May 11.—The four boys and girls who will represent Alabama at the National 4-H club camp in Washington, June 17 to 23, have been named by Thomas A. Sims and Miss Bess Fleming, state club leaders for the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. They are Elmer Young of Moulton, Lawrence County; Chas. Walker, Jr., of York, Sumter County; Mary Louise Smilie of Grady, Montgomery County; and Ruth Glasgow of Spruce Pine, Franklin County.

These boys and girls were declared the winner of the blue ribbon prize offered to 4-H club boys and girls of Alabama each year. They will go to Washington as guests of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, accompanied by Mr. Sims and Miss Fleming. In Washington they will be with the four champions of each of the other states.

Attendance at this camp is a goal to which energetic and ambitious farm boys and girls enrolled in 4-H club work look forward from year to year. It is the banner 4-H gathering of the year and boys and girls consider themselves exceedingly fortunate to attend.

The Alabama winners, like those in other states, achieved this high honor by giving their best and doing their best in 4-H club work. They started years ago and have stuck to their projects year after year. In addition they have been active as club officers, thereby influencing and assisting others.

Elmer Young began in 1927; Charles Walker began in 1926; Miss Smilie began work seven years ago, and Miss Glasgow started six years ago. They worked under the direction of their county farm and home agents.

STORRS WARNS FARMERS TO BEWARE OF BAD SEEDS

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, Saturday issued a statement warning Alabama farmers against buying and planting bad cane seed and velvet beans.

Warning farmers to beware of the kind of cane seed they purchase, Commissioner Storrs said: "Cane seed are being placed on the market by a certain concern whose seed are specifically marked: 'Forage Cane,' amber type, or 'Forage Cane,' orange type. Many farmers will buy these cane seed for surghum and lose their crop, never knowing what they are doing. The forage type of cane seed is not suitable for syrup and does not yield sap for sorghum."

Commissioner Storrs also urged farmers to "be careful what you pay for velvet beans and be sure to find out how much they germinate. Good seed will show 90 per cent germination."

THE REAL NEWS INVOLVED IN FIGHT ON FARM BUREAU

The history of organization and progress toward effectiveness of the federation of laboring men for a living wage, a square deal, and better conditions of life, is one of a record and strife with organized exploiters of labor and oppressive task masters. Witness the records of all trade unions now members of the American Federation of Labor.

The farmer, in his effort to protect himself socially and economically by organization, cooperation, and group trading is no exception. Formerly farm organizations have been disrupted and finally destroyed by petty politicians who having maneuvered their way in, turned the energies of the organization from economic to political fields.

The latest effort of American farmers to build up a protective league through the agency of Farm Bureau has been guided safely away from the fatal whirl pool of politics but attack has come from other angles.

Almost coincident with establishment of farm bureaus there was established propaganda organizations financed by "big business' which long had exploited agriculture without stint and into practical serfdom to nullify the efficiency of and destroy confidence of the farmer in his leaders and in his organization.

The attack of this character in Alabama came a few days ago when an "indignation meeting" was called to meet in Montgomery.

Those who sponsored the "meeting" promised to uncover so much of sin and crime on the part of farm leaders, and to show them up in such light that a speedy end for the farmers organizations was freely predicted.

There is a fatal peculiarity about these attempts to kill the farm bureau that gives them away. It is only necessary to look and see who are the Moses and Aarons who would lead the farmers away from the deadly effects of their "own folly" in order to get a clear vision of the "nigger in the woodpile."

This latest move to "help" the farmer, we are told, was instigated and chiefly sponsored by one, Mr. T. J. Kidd, of Birmingham. Mr. Kidd is part owner and controller of some oil mills in Alabama. He is a member of the cotton seed oil mill association which more than once has been investigated by the government for sharp practices for the depression of the price of cotton.

It is said that Mr. Kidd placed a number of phone calls and wrote many letters attempting to get merchants over the state to meet him in Montgomery and assist in the effort to destroy the farm bureau.

Then there is one Mr. L. Sevier of Birmingham who was prominent in this move at attempted destruction. It is said that Mr. Sevier is connected with large industrial enterprises in the Birmingham district, that he is listed as a "capitalist" and that in all things pertaining to questions at issue between the corporations and the people as regard special privileges and tax exemptions for the farmer, he is always found an active lobbyist and fighter on the side of corporations.

Then, there is Mr. Ed Pettus, corporation lawyer, lobbyist, for the big interest and black belt politicians. He was there to help discredit the farm bureau and bring about its destruction. Mr. Pettus was attorney for the oil mill trust when it was under government fire and utilized his legal training to help the mills get by in their program of buying farmers' seed at below value.

All in all it is reliably stated that about 100 people came to Mr. Sevier's and Mr. Pettus's meeting. Most of these were merchants who came at the earnest personal solicitation of Mr. Kidd and his agents and close friends. Many of these since their return have expressed themselves as being thoroughly disgusted and sorry that they permitted themselves, unwittingly, to be made cat's paws to drag these gentlemen's hot chestnuts out of the fire.

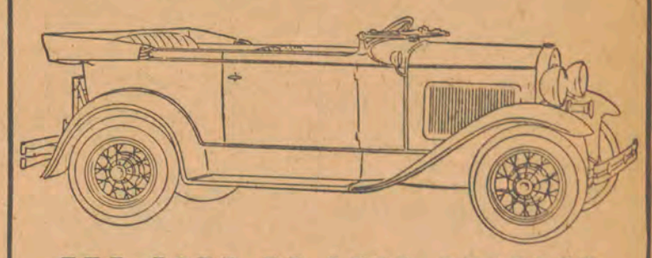
FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE



Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call from our midst unto himself our beloved and faithful sister, Bessie Belle Harr's, therefore be it resolved by the Julia Beauchamp Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star of Alabama:

First, That our order has sustained an irreparable loss in influence and beauty in life and spirit in the departure of the deceased.

Second, That we miss her presence her wise counsel, and her spirit of devotion to the higher virtues of our order.

Third, That we humbly submit to His will and love, trusting in Him whose wisdom never makes a mistake.

Fourth, Be it resolved that we extend to the family our deepest sympathy; and that a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes and that a copy be sent to the family as an expression of our love for her and them.—J. Z. Mims, Mrs. P. T. Hinkle, Lular Arant, Committee.

The ladies of Circle I of the W. M. U. of the Baptist church here, gave a shower Monday afternoon to Mrs. D. D. Mathis, who is leaving for her new home in Birmingham. Mr. Mathis, a railroad man, has recently been transferred, hence the moving of his family. Mrs. Mathis was an ardent church and Circle worker here, and her going away will be keenly felt by the ladies of the town.

Dr. Joe Johnson and Miss Sophia Mullins of Chattanooga, Tenn., were on a visit to relatives and friends in Clanton for the week end.

THE WALNUT CREEK SINGING

A number of the singers of this section met last Sunday afternoon at Walnut Creek and enjoyed some very good singing. Mothers Day services and preaching were held in the morning, and dinner was served on the ground at noon.

About 1:30 o'clock Prof. W. M. Devaughn was chosen chairman, and a committee was appointed to arrange the program. Something around fifteen directors were called on during the afternoon. Visitors were Prof. and Mrs. Hull and Red Harden from Rockford. These three, together with Mr. Archie Devaughn, sung several quartets which were very much enjoyed.

The singers will meet in an all day affair at Refuge next Sunday. Everybody bring dinner and come have a good time.

RUTH ELIZABETH JONES

Ruth Elizabeth Jones, age 17 years, died at her home in Clanton about four o'clock last Sunday afternoon. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Jones.

Little Ruth had been a cripple all her life, never being able to walk and run and play. But she was always bright, cheerful, and happy. By her kindly and patient disposition she won friends every day of her life. She went to day school and Sunday school, and found great satisfaction in associatiing with her little friends, all of whom loved her and cared for here wherever she went.

Mrs. Amzi Gowan of Brewton spent the week end with relatives and friends in Clanton. She was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. W. I. Mullins and sister, Mrs. J. Watts Moore, Wednesday.

THOUGHT ARMON WAGONER WAS A POSSUM

Dock Thornton and Armon Wagoner were hailed into Mayor's Court Monday morning for fighting.

During the course of the trial it was brought out that Dock had stopped up a stove flue in the house where Armon lived.

When the mayor asked Dock why he stopped up the flue, he said he thought he would smoke Armon out.

Catfish told Armon he guessed Dock thought he was a possum or rabbit or something.

Each was fined $1.00 and cost, and they went on their way—rejoicing, I suppose.

OUR COUNTY AGENT

Our County Agent—

Is simply our hired man, yet to hear some folks talk one would think he is our boss.

Is not a migician, he cannot, by waving a wand, raise the price of corn.

Does not claim to know it all.

Has no cure-all for farm ills.

Is always on the job.

Cannot make any farmer prosperous overnight.

Cannot help if you do not give him a chance.

Does not come on the farm to tell you what to do, but to discuss your problems.

Wears a collar and tie, because it is standard equipment. How would he look in overalls, hickory shirt and brogand shoes?

Has an orderly, well-arranged office where the farmers can meet and discuss their problems.

Welcomes sincere criticism.

Is a human being. After doing his best he does not like to be kicked.

Hauls his moving picture machine about over the country, showing us interesting pictures of farm life.

Promotes boys' and girls' clubs, and thus keeps them interested in farming. This alone is worth what he costs us.

Has to have a salary, else how could he live?

Cannot give lectures that will keep the weeds down, or the fences up.

Believes in a better agriculture.

DOLLAR BRINGS BACK $4.33 IN FARM TESTS

An investment of one dollar in quick-acting nitrogen brought back $4.33 to nearly 4,000 Southern farmers who conducted demonstrations with the principal crops during the last eight years.

Besides revealing the deficiency of nitrogen in Southern soils, the results of the demonstrations show that the use of quick-acting nitrogen is one of the most profitable investments that can be made on the farm. The nitrogen fertilizer used in all the demonstrations was Chilean nitrate of soda.

According to the summary, a dollar's worth of nitrate used for cotton returned on the average $4.78; for corn, $3.37; oats, $3.24; wheat, $2.94; sugar cane, $4.16; and tobacco, $12.83.

The demonstrations were conducted under widely varying conditions as regards soil and climate. In every case the fertilizer application and the harvesting of the crop were checked by county agents or vocational teachers.

PITTS CALLS FOR PUBLIC MEETING

For Considering Bills For Election of Supt. and Board of Education

Representatives Percy M. Pitts requests the people of Chilton County to come to a mass meeting at the courthouse next Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, to consider two bills which he has introduced in the legislature of Alabama. One of the bills provides for the election of the County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County by vote of the people. The other provides for election of members of the County Board of Education by districts of the county.

In calling the mass meeting, Representative Pitts makes the following statement to the people of Chilton County:

"As your representative in the legislature, and according to my promise to the people of Chilton County, I have introduced two local bills affecting the election of the County Board of Education, and the other providing for election of the County Superintendent of Education by vote of the people. I am thoroughly convinced that a majority of the people of Chilton County, regardless of their political faith, are in favor of these two measures. These two bills have been passed with a favorable report by the Committee on Education of Representatives, and are now on the calendar for passage in the House.

"These measures are non-political, and both, in my judgment, will better the educational system of Chilton County in many ways. I have the endorsement of many leading Democrats and Republicans of Chilton County for these bills. They will go to the Senate next week after being passed in the House of Representatives.

"Senator Duncan possibly is not aware of the great demand our people are making for these changes in our educational system, and therefore, I desire the citizens of the county to come to a mass meeting at the court house next Saturday afternoon, May 23, at two o'clock, to express their attitude regarding these two bills.

"It is my desire to represent the entire people of Chilton County, regardless of their political faith, and to enact such local legislation as will best serve and please the majority of the people. Knowing Senator Duncan as I do, it is my judgment that he feels the same way.

"As your Representative, I will greatly appreciate your meeting with me at the court house next Saturday to discuss these local measures and any other legislative matter affecting our county and state."

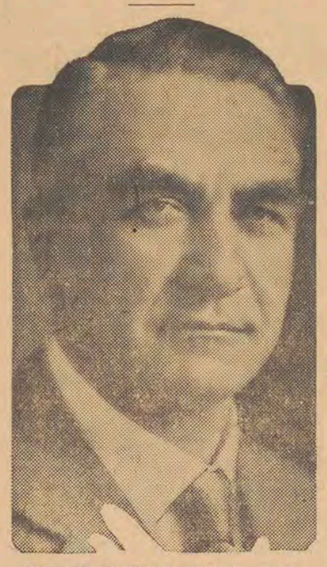
There is a strong sentiment in Chilton County in favor of the bills which Mr. Pitts mentions, and it is assured that there will be a great gathering on next Saturday to give endorsement to the efforts Mr. Pitts is making for the passage of the bills.

CONFEDERATE REUNION

The forty-first reunion of the Confederate Veterans will be held at Montgomery June 2-5. This will probably be the last general reunion. It will be seventy years since the Confederacy was born at Montgomery and Jefferson Davis inaugurated President.

The tottering steps of the aged heroes will have marched to the precipice of time when they assemble at Montgomry in June.

No such preparation has ever before been made for the care and comfort of the veterans. No such welcome has ever before been extended as will await those who come to Montgomery to witness the last grand stand of the South's old heroes as they lay down their arms and surrender only to that great conqueror—time.



The railroads, by offering a one-cent fare, have made it possible for every one to attend the reunion. It is the last opportunity of the South to pay tribute to her heroes.

Montgomery opens her doors and our people open their hearts to those who will join us in doing honor to the men who wore the gray.

The grand parade to be held Friday, June 5th, will have in its ranks representatives from every section of the South. The people of Montgomery invite the people of your community to be with us on this occasion.—F. J. Crampton, chairman.

Mrs. Woodson, of Tennessee, spent a few days with her son, R. D. Woodson, at Lay Dam.

THE MAN WHO WRITES SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS EVERY WEEK

REV. P. B. FITZWATER. D. D.

The most widely read newspaper writer in this country is not a short story writer. He is not an editorial writer, nor a columnist, nor an essayist, nor a "personal guidance" specialist. He is a minister of the Gospel.

He is Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D., the man who prepares the International Sunday School Lesson which appears rigularly in this newspaper. For the International Sunday School Lesson, based upon the Bible, the "best seller" of all books in history, appears in more American newspapers than any other single newspaper feature that has ever been printed, and is read by more American newspaper readers than any other feature. More than that, as the name "international" implies, these lessons are printed in other languages and used in all parts of the world as aids to the study of the Bible.

Doctor Fitzwater, who is one of the foremost Bible students in the country, and whose name is known to millions through his exposition of the Bible in these Sunday School lessons, is a native of West Virginia where he was born in 1871. After being graduated from Bridgewater College in Virginia, he continued in special studies at that institution for more than a year, then became a teacher and principal in the public schools. In 1898 he became a student at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. Next he entered the Xenia Theological Seminary, and after being graduated in 1905, became dean of the Bible department of Manchester College in Indiana.

Doctor Fitzwater continued at Manchester until 1911. In the meantime he was ordained into the ministry and Muskingum College conferred the degree of D. D. upon him in 1909. After taking post-graduate work in Princeton University and the Princeton Theological Seminary, he returned to the Moody Bible Institute as a member of the faculty, where he has been since 1913. He was dean of the evening school of the institute from 1923 to 1926 and dean of both day and evening schools from 1926 to 1929. Since the latter year he has been director of the general course at the institute.

Doctor Fitzwater is the author of several books of Bible study, including "God's Code of Morals" and "The Church and Modern Problems," and it has been noted that his writings clearly reflect the wisdom of the broad student, combined with the affability of the Christian man. Although affiliated with the Presbyterian church, he is heartily interdenominational in his views.

Great authority and ability are combined in the preparation of these lessons, and the publishers of this newspaper feels confident that we could give our readers no more worthwhile feature than this one, which provides the basis for discussion of the weekly Sunday School lesson among the people of this community.

ACTUAL CHICKEN WITH FOUR LEGS BROUGHT IN

One often hears of one kind of freak or another, and this is very common now-a-days with chickens. However, we have heard of more freaks than we have actually seen.

Mr. W. J. Best of Clanton Route 7, accompanied by our "Friend Bill," brought a really four-legged chicken in our office Monday. It was a Black Minorca, hatched by Mr. Best in his incubator, and lived to be one week old. This chicken really had four legs, and was exceptionally pert, they said.

Friends of Matt Ware will be glad to know that he has returned from Birmingham, where he underwent an operation several days ago. He will be able to return to his place of business in a short while.

T. O. REESE WILL PREACH IN ALABAMA THIS SUMMER

Recent communication from Rev. T. O. Reese of Perry, Fla., says that he will be in Alabama in meetings most of the summer.

Rev. Reese is a power in the ministerial and evangelistic field, and the churches in Alabama that procure his services will be fortunate. He has been in Florida pastoring the First Baptist Church of Perry for four years, and says: "After studying here and actually meeting the problems of the pastor, I feel that I can be of greater help to pastor and church than when I was in the field of evangelism before."

REV. DEWEY HUETT WILL PREACH AT FRIENDSHIP

TRACTOR DRIVER DEAD IN WRECK

Member of Selma Road Crew Is Victim of Highway Accident

Clifton Culp, tractor driver for the road crew on the Selma highway, was fatally injured in an auto accident late last week while driving his machine on the road just north of Riderville, Ala.

Mrs. Daugherty, wife of a prominent Selma physician is said to have been driving the car which dealt the fatal blow to Culp when her machine ran over the drag which was behind the tractor, mounting the rear of the machine and driving the steering post through Culp's chest. Mrs. Daugherty's machine was not very badly injured and it is said that after getting it extricated from the tractor that she carried Culp to a Selma hospital, where he died of the injuries.

Mrs. Daugherty and her companion, Miss Leila Patterson, both of whom were en route to Selma from Birmingham, received minor injuries.

Information gathered by a representative of this paper is to the effect that a car driven by Miss Lucy Parnell, of Maplesville, is said to have been ahead of Mrs. Daugherty and passed the tractor and drag in such a manner as to obscure same from the vision of Mrs. Daugherty. The road was extremely dusty at the place of the accident, and it is presumed that the dust raised by the Parnell car was the direct cause of the Daugherty car colliding with the drag and tractor.

Mr. Culp was the son of a Mr. Culp who resides on the farm of Dr. Harvey M. Nix near Maplesville. Besides his parents and some brothers and sisters, he leaves a young wife to mourn his death.

LION SKIN FROM ARIZONA

One day last week Dr. V. J. Gragg received from J. B. Jones, of Globe, Arizona, the skin of a large mountain lion, which was killed in the mountains near the city of Globe.

Mr. Jones, a native of Chilton County, was here for about a month last summer. He promised Dr. Gragg he would send him a lion skin the first opportunity.

Dr. Gragg plans to have the skin made into a rug so he can keep it in good condition, and in memory of his friend, "Bart."

ERROR IN COURT ANNOUNCEMENT

The Banner's linotype operator looked cross-eyed at the copy last week and made the first case on the court docket read wrong. It should have been: "Willie Pilgreen, fraudulent check," instead of "Homer Ratliff, fraudulent charge." The Union-Banner begs the pardon of the parties concerned.

STAPP APPEALS TO FARM FOLKS

County Agent Calls Attention To Importance of Working Together

The meeting in Montgomery last week was a big demonstration of the farmers being able to present claims for their rights. As was stated by Mr. Duncan, director of extension work, it was very pathetic that such a meeting had to be held as the result of a few interests of the state.

A little survey last week made by a committee of farmers revealed that more than seventy merchants and professional men of this county who were called on opposed the bill curbing the activities of county agents and farm organization, while only seven or eight merchants and professional men called on favored the passing of the bill.

I think every man has the right to speak and act his convictions. That doesn't mean that he is always in the right. We all make mistakes; do and say things we should not, and that we are sorry for later.

I have always been an advocate of the Golden Rule and not of the rule of gold. I have always contended that we are dependent upon each other and that the closer we can work together the more we can and will accomplish.

The point I wish to make here is that I trust that the activities of a few individual merchants over the state trying to pass the Hodges-Kidd-Pettus Bill will in no way cause any feeling of ill will on the part of the farmers toward the mass of merchants and professional men and vice versa.

We need good merchants, lawyers, doctors, farmers, and in fact good men in all vocations of life.

It has always been my policy to try to create a better understanding and more brotherly feeling between the man on the farm and the man in town.

I trust that in Chilton County and all over the state, we can forget the past and look forward into the future with all interests working together for the best of all.—C. E. Stapp.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PUPILS WIN PRIZES IN ART CONTEST

In an art contest held at Selma recently, pupils from the grammar school here won some valuable prizes as well as honorable mention for the work done in art since January 1st this year. Mildred Easterling, 11 year old daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. D D. Easterling, and student in the 6th grade, won a $5 gold piece for the school for saying 37 famous artists and their nationality in the short period of 55 seconds. This was 3 seconds less than anyone else said them in. This little girl won this contest over the pupils of six other schools.

Nell Rockett, of the 4th grade, also won first prize for her school and second prize for all schools participating, in drawing. There were 85 children in the contest. Nell won with drawing of a picture of Niagara Falls. She has been taking art only four months. The prizes in all for the grammar school were won by Nell Rockett, 1st; Jane Pitts, 2nd; and Jane Roberts 3rd. Blue red and white ribbons respectively represnted their achievements.

Miss Frances O'Neal has returned to her home at Columbia, since the close of school at Lay Dam.

CHILTON'S SUPERINTENDENT IS HONORED BY SCHOOL JOURNAL

Buford Lawrence

In its issue for May, 1931, The Alabama School Journal carried a picture and write-up of Prof. B. Lawrence, superintendent of education of Chilton County. The Journal had the following to say about him:

"Mr. Lawrence, superintendent of the schools of Chilton County, is a native of Tennessee, and received his early school training in one of the mountain schools of that state. Upon completing his secondary-school work he studied one year at the State Normal School at Jacksonville, and in 1916 entered Howard College, from which institution he was graduated in 1921. While in college he majored in history and education.

Beginning his teaching experience in a one-teacher school in Chilton County in 1914, Mr. Lawrence steadily advanced in his profession until he became principal of the high school at Jemison. From that position he was promoted to the county superintendency.

For a number of years the teachers of Chilton County, under Mr. Lawrence's leadership, have reported a hundred per cent membership in the Alabama Education Association.

CLINIC FOR CRIPPLE CHILDREN IN CLANTON, FRIDAY, JUNE 5

Through the work of the Alabama Crippled Children's Society and the County Welfare Department, another free clinic for cripple people will be held in Clanton on June 5th. This society has made it possible for every child in the State of Alabama to be within 50 miles of a free clinic where he may go each year for a free examination for any crippled or deformed condition of his limbs or body. Clanton was slected two years ago as a probable center and has had two very successful clinics and is preparing for its third.

Clanton and 50 miles radius is fortunate in again having Dr. John D. Sherrill, of Birmingham, one of the best known orthopedic specialists in Alabama and the South, to give these free examinations and diagnoses. As for the past two years, the clinic will be held at the Baptist Church and will open at 9 o'clock, and it is hoped that everyone knowing of any cripple will make a great effort to notify them of this clinic and make an effort to see that they come.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HAVE PICNIC AND FISH FRY

Tomorrow, Friday, May 22, the ex-soldiers of Chilton County, with their wives and families, will have a picnic and fish fry at a delightful place on the river above Lay Dam. The occasion has been sponsored by the Chilton County Post of the American Legion, and all world war veterans are expected to come and bring their families.

A special invitation is also extended to all Confederate veterans of Chilton County to attend as honor guests.

According to Post Commander, Joe Calloway, the party is expected to begin about ten o'clock in the morning, and continue until any time in the afternoon that the crowd may want to come home.

Everybody is expected to carry a basket lunch, which will be supplemented with plenty of fried fish which is being arranged by a committee of the Legion. A lot of cakes and pies will be furnished by the women of the Legion Auxiliary.

The place where the picnic is to be held is easy to get to in a car. Take the left hand road at the entrance to Lay Dam reservation, and follow the road to the water near the Rolifee Bates place.

Robert Evans was fined $1.00 for smoking a cigarette in Judge Smoot's court room. Some of the boys asked Robert if it was a special brand of Egyptian cigarettes.

SOLD 1,200 HEAD OF CABBAGE

Robert Shaver, of Enterprise, came to Clanton Tuesday morning, bringing 70 pounds of English peas from the farm of J. H. Moore. He sold them very readily.

Mr. Shaver also gave a report on the cabbage crop that was grown by J. H. Moore and S. B. Williams. He stated that the total of 1,200 heads were carried by truck to Birmingham and sold. While the price was not very high, according to Mr. Shaver, the cabbage were disposed of at a profit.

MAN IN THE MOON

LOOKS OVER ALL
OVERLOOKS NONE

Tune In—

Here we are, folks, all ready with a brand new "col-yum." Read that head all over again, will you, and remember I expect at least to TRY to do just that—Look over all and overlook none. You'll very probably halt long enough right here to remark that that will be covering lots of territory. Yet, it ought not to prove so hard, considering that I'm 'way up here all by my lonesome where I can get a full view of the whole works. Lots of times, maybe, I'll see things in shadowy places and won't mention them, because—oh, well, you've heard that old adage about "The less said about some things, the better off we all are." One thing, sure—I'll be seeing the top side of things all the time, and if you don't believe that's the best side to look at, just ask any strawberry packer. More than apt he'll tell you that's generally the case. So much for that to begin with and get all started off right.

Arguing About The Bible—

Did you ever listen to people arguing about the Bible and politics? Now, there could be some little excuse for arguing politics, because, after all, that generally simmers down to matters of opinion, any way, but Bible arguments are just plain foolishness. The Bible is your road map to Heaven. You can depend on it to lead you right, too, if you follow it to the letter. It's just as easy to understand, too, and any time you hear some gink say: "Well, I believe the Bible but I don't understand it all," just put him down this way—he don't want to understand OR believe it all. Gets under his hide a bit, maybe. If you were to make preparation for a trip of some distance, you wouldn't think of starting without a road map. All right. Another thing you wouldn't think of doing would be to turn off on every cross road, pig trail and alley you saw. No, sir! You'd follow that map just as true as you could. The road map would take you right where you wanted to go. You'd know it would, and would follow it without question, even if it WAS made by human hands and laid out at human direction. Then why will the same people, at times, take the Bible, their "road map to Heaven," and beginning at the very first briar-patch trail, and lose track generally when all they have to do is just stick to the pavement? Maybe it isn't all pavement. But at any rate it is plainly marked—fully as plain as any other road map. Give your Bible as much consideration as you do your road map and it will lead you as unerringly to the destination for which it was laid out. If it is foolish to doubt that your Rand-McNally road map is correct, how much more foolish is it to doubt your Bible map? There is no argument—nothing to argue about.

The Great Awakening—

Farmers are getting their eyes open a bit. I looked down on Cramton Bowl in Montgomery one day last week for confirmation of this. Time was when a little crowd of so-called representatives would gather at the capitol and saddle the tillers of the soil with most anything they wanted to put on them, but that isn't being done any more. Mr. Farmer doesn't sit quietly by and let such be put on him. Instead, he gets his brother farmers together and the whole bunch of them meet with the powers that be and let them know their wishes while the issue is still in reach of them. Take it from me—those farmers piled into Montgomery to see that the Craft Bill was defeated. They saw in it something they didn't like, and lost no time in letting it be known. Did they get results? Oh boy—and how! A little fun to that view, too. Those fellows were used to getting their mid-day meal about twelve o'clock; they didn't break their session until after 3:00 p. m.; and then, what a land office business the red snapper and hot bread and coffee vendors did for the next hour or so. Eat? Never saw anything to compare with it.

O. K. In Its Place—

Ever since prohibition has been a fact instead of fancy, a certain element has contended that it is a failure. A check-up will show that, for the most part, this element is wet. One would naturally gather from this fact that the strong drink boys wouldn't care for our prohibition law being in force, yet, invariably, wets look forward to the time when there will be an easing off in the terms of this law, or, better still, a complete repeal of it. Why? If it isn't a success it can't be hurting them, and if it isn't hurting them, why do they gripe? One preacher has this to say of liquor: "I have heard it said many times that 'liquor is all right in its place.' I believe that, too—and am doing all I can to put it in its place. Its place is in hell."

Bidding Adieu—

I must be busy about my own affairs. Just ripped my pants as my sky buggy slid by a star. See—I have my troubles, too.—Man in the Moon.

The "Best Seller" of All Time

Among all the books which have ever been rated as "best sellers" there is one which is supreme. That is the Bible. And more newspapers in this country print a feature based upon this book than any other single feature that has ever been offered to the American newspaper reading public. That is the International Sunday School Lesson, prepared by the Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D.D., of the Moody Bible Institute, which appears regularly in this newspaper. Readers, young and old, will find these lessons interesting, instructive and helpful. Read them and tell your friends about them!

Collins Chapel Community

(Fifty Years Ago)

THE ROBINSON FAMILY

After a skip of a week or two, we again take up the stories of Collins Chapel Community fifty years ago. For this week the Robinson family is the subject of our sketch, which is furnished by a person who was born and reared in the Collins Chapel community, and is familiar with the interesting history of the families which lived there fifty years ago.

Aunt Polly Robinson was one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Collins Chapel community fifty years ago. The writer does not know the name of her husband, as he died more than fifty years ago. Aunt Polly reared a family of three girls and two boys. Nancy Robinson was married to a man named Dyson. She died near Mineral Springs a few years ago.

Fanny Robinson was the wife of a Mr. Bevils. They reared three children, two girls and one boy. All are married and out of Chilton County, and the writer does not know where they live.

Lizzie Robinson was the wife of Henry Smith. They lived in the northern part of Chilton County, and reared a large family. Two or three of the boys are still in this county. Harley Smith lives in Stumps Hills.

Ben Robinson, a son of Aunt Polly, moved from Mineral Springs community to Texas in 1896. He died in Texas some years ago. He reared a large family, and three of his sons are yet in Chilton County. One of the sons of Ben Robinson is Henry E. Robinson, who runs a store at Collins Chapel School house. Archie lives at Thorsby. Jack lives at Jemison.

Charley Robinson, the last of the family of Aunt Polly, lived and died in the Mineral Springs community. He reared a large family, and so far as the writer knows, only one of them, Tom Robinson, near Jemison, remains in Chilton County.

Tom Robinson (T. J.) was of another family of Robinsons. He was a resident of Collins Chapel fifty years ago. His father was Mordecai Robinson, who was Probate Judge of Baker County until the year 1874. Baker County then became Chilton County, and Mordecai Robinson was succeeded in the office of Probate Judge by H. J. Callen. The wife of Tom Robinson was a daughter of John Collins. They reared a family of three girls and seven boys.

Lucy Robinson is now Mrs. John Campbell, and lives in the Union Grove community.

Lovenia Robinson was first married to Will Retherford. After his death she became the wife of Robert Knox. She died some years ago.

Barbarba Robinson was the wife of a Mr. Roper. She yet lives on the old Robinson home place.

Wilson Robinson, the oldest son, now lives in Shelby County, but still owns a home in the Collins Chapel community.

John Robinson lives in the Mineral Springs community. Jim died when a young man. Mardis lives in Shelby County, near Calera. George died when just a boy.

P. G. (Posey) is a farmer in the Mineral Springs community.

Tom Robinson, the last son of this family, is well known over Chilton County. He has done a great deal of concrete work in various cemeteries. He now lives at his home in Collins Chapel community.

Rev. S. J. Ezell went to Columbiana last Sunday and preached the commencement sermon at the closing of the Shelby County High School.

Betty Jean, the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong, was carried to Memorial Hospital in Montgomery for an appendicitis operation last Saturday. Mr. Armstrong went to see her Monday night and reported Tuesday morning that she is recovering very satisfactorily.

Federal expenses for next year, it is estimated, will be 300 million dollars less than for the year ending June 30th. Perhaps county and city government officials, who appreciate present conditions and are faithful to their trust, will make similar reductions in their budgets.

A letter from Kin Vinson to The Union-Banner states that he is now working for the Jordan Chevrolet Company, at Sandersville, Ga.

Mr and Mrs. Lucien Duncan and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt spent the past weed end on a visit to Lousville, Augusta, and Millidgeville, Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. Renfroe Mullins and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Mullins motored to Montevallo last Sunday.

Mrs. Bud Alred, who underwent a surgical operation in Montgomery last week, is reported to be getting along fine. Her many friends are anxious for her prompt restoration to good health.

Mr. and Mrs. John Creagh of Selma were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Faulkenberry Sunday.

Charlie Wyatt of Titus was in Clanton on business last Saturday.

THE SINGING AT REFUGE SUNDAY WAS BIG SUCCESS

One of the best singings of this season was held at Refuge church last Sunday, May 17th. It was an all day affair, and there were people present from both far and near.

The house was called to order by the chairman, O. R. Robinson, at 10 o'clock. An arrangements committee was appointed consisting of T. N. Minor, S. L. Baker, and R. E. Powell. Before noon the directors were: Marion Easterling, Jasper Oaks, S. V. Miller. At 11:20 o'clock a sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. G. G. Williams. It was a wonderful message from this true man of God. At 12 o'clock a bountiful dinner was served, the recess lasting until 1:30 o'clock.

The house was called back to order by the chairman, and directors for the afternoon were: J. E. Miner, W. M. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, Archie Devaughn, J. B. Hammond, I. D. Huett, T. E. Wyatt, A. H. Glasscock, Akins Collins, E. L. Glasscock, Enoch Traywick, J. R. Robinson, O. L. Devaughn, J. W. Clackler, M. Lockhart. The service was closed with prayer by Rev. M. Lockhart. Pianists were: Lillie Mae Weldon, Mrs. Annie Robinson, Marion Easterling, O. A. Boswell, C. H. Robinson, C. L. Hull and J. B. Hammonds.

All departed for their homes feeling that they had spent a good day and hoping that they might be permitted to meet again next year in the same good spirit that has been prevalent in the past.—O. R. Robinson, chairman, T. N. Miner, secretary.

NEWS OF LAWLEY

The Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. here are making wonderful progress. We are so proud of the fact that 108 were present last Sunday; but many more could attend. We have a wide-awake pastor, Rev. J. W. Dean, of Blocton, who is doing a great work here at Rehobeth Church.

The W. M. S. met last Saturday afternoon and organized the Y. W. A., R. A., G. A., and Sunbeam band, with five Y. W. A.'s, nine R. A.'s, nine Sunbeams, and twelve G. A.'s. This is a very good beginning. We hope to have more in the near future.

Some seem to think that we are over doing the work, but Christians have only to reflect that missions is a life process and that to render the most efficient service we must be constantly in training. We must train the child in the way he should go. Missions means saving souls, bringing the lost world to Christ. Some seem to think that helping the poor is all that is needed, but if we are obedient to the command of Christ we must send the Gospel to the lost. Come bring all the children on the first Saturday afternoon. The W. M. S. and the young people will meet at the same time, making it possible for many to attend who could not otherwise do so. Give the president, Mrs. Perry Hicks, your sympathy and hearty cooperation.

Miss Della Barnes attended the Southern Baptist Convention last week, and reported having enjoyed it immensely.

The many friends of Mr. H. T. Head will be glad to know that he is now able to sit up again.

Mrs. Julia Smith of Columbus, Georgia, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. H. T. Head, has returned home.

Miss Clara Poor of Birmingham is now visiting her brother, Mr. Jesse Poor. Clara has many friends here who are glad to welcome her back to Lawley.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheb Holley have moved back here from Tuscaloosa. We are so glad to have them back with us again.

Mr. Floyd Maness and son of Texas are visiting his mother, Mrs. Emma Maness.

Mr. and Mrs. Lige Gore and family, Misses Ollie and Josie Lawrence of Jemison, visited their grand mother, Mrs. Mollie McGee, Sunday.

Mrs. Rufus Gentry is still very sick here. We wish for her recovery. She is suffering from cancer.

Miss Alvis Hicks is visiting relatives in Centreville this week. We miss her in B. Y. P. U. work and hope she doesn't stay very long.

Marcus Polk, Jr., has accepted a position in Anniston, and will move there in the near future.

Reese Mullins is expected home today from the University of Alabama.

Mesdames Watt Moore and John Deramus have returned from Brewton, where they visited Mrs. Amzi Gowan.

Walter Darnell has returned to Salt Lake City, after a visit to his sister, Mrs. J. B. Atkinson.

The original Rexall One-cent Sale is on this week, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at Upchurch's.

J. E. MULLINS

On May 14, 1931, the dear spirit of J. E. Mullins took its flight suddenly to that undiscovered country from whose bounds no traveler returns. Mr. Mullins, at the time of his death, was 81 years, 1 month, and 14 days old. He was born and reared mostly in Chilton County. He was a members of the church over 60 years, and lived a Christian life; and was loved by all who knew him, both young and old.

Uncle Erve, as all called him, has been feeble for some time, but everybody was shocked to hear of his death so sudden. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, Mrs. Susan Mullins, and 4 children, Mrs. Annie Green, of Tuscaloosa; Mrs. Alice Cardwell, of Lawley; Mrs. Epsie Green, of Wetumpka; Mr. Arthur Mullins, of Lawley. Twenty-six grand children, twenty-four great grand children and a host of relatives and friends. One half brother, Mr. Bill Mullins of Clanton, and 2 halfs sisters of Clanton, also survive him.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. E. H. Littlejohn. He was laid to rest in Rehobeth cemetery.

Weep not, dear loved ones, for he was ready to go. May God's richest blessings rest on each and every one, and be ready when that day comes to meet meet him in yonder home.

COUNTY BRIEFS

Joe Earle Gowan and Mose Simpson went to Kosciusko, Miss., last Sunday and brought back Dr. Gowan's mother and sister, Mrs. R. E. Dickens, of Beaumont, who will spend several days here visiting the Gowan family. Mose was so pleased with the appearance of things in Mississippi that he has already asked Dr. Gowan to let him carry the visitors back home when they get ready to go.

Dr. Dubose of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton Monday. He has just returned from a visit to his son in Nashville, Tennessee.

Maryland Woman Happy Now--- Loses 55 Lbs.

Edith J. Marriott, of Baltimore, Md., writes: "Last winter I weighed 200 pounds and was very much ashamed. I bought a bottle of Kruschen Salts which gave such wonderful results I bought more. After 4 bottles I weigh 145 pounds and all my friends say, 'How slender you've gotten—how did you do it?' I say only 4 words—thanks to Kruschen Salts."

A generous bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at Alred Drug Company, or any drug store in America—take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—that will help Kruschen take off your fat.

Take Kruschen every morning—it's the little daily dose that does it—if not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

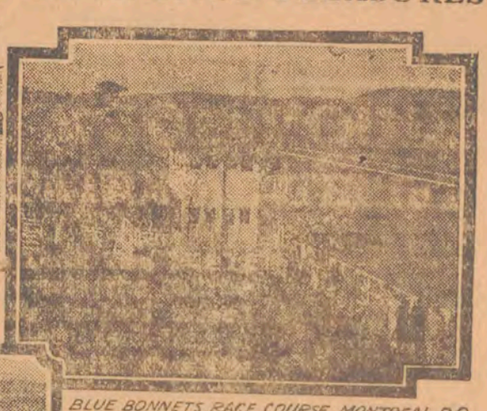
BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

We were called to order by our superintendent at 10 o'clock Sunday morning for Sunday school, with 64 present. We are going to grade our school soon, and also we are going to take a religious census of our people who could come to Sunday school. We hope that it will help us in our Sunday school work, for we need all the help we can get, so come on friends, and let's work together for the Lord. We sure did have good services Sunday and Sunday night. Our pastor, Rev. W. P. Lowery, is an able minister. He told us fathers and mothers how we ought to rear our children for God, and also told the boys and girls how they ought to obey their parents.

Oh, if we could only raise our children to accept Jesus as their Saviour, and live and work for Him, all of them, what a happy place we would have to live in. So let's work and pray and live such lives as the Lord would have us live, so we can lead our children to Jesus.



We baptised Brother Robert Wright at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Don't forget Sunday school next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Come and bring someone with you.

MORAL ECHOES

By D. W. Haskew

Many years ago I drove up to a country home, and one of the fat hens of the barnyard lifted her head and saw that the preacher had come. She fainted and never recovered. At another farm home I stopped over for the night, and a young fryer, seeing me get out of my buggy, ran with all speed and jumped into a well. Last week I was visiting in the Isabella community, and while at the home of Mr. De Shazo, a young broiler went and hanged himself. It just naturally seems that chickens are afraid of preachers, and well might they be.

Schools are closing this week, and our teachers are returning to their homes for the summer. For nine months they have been working with and for the young life of Chilton County. They have held high standards for our emulation, and they have left many an inspiring thought for our uplift. How many of you thought to go to the teacher of your child and express to him or her the gratitude that you are due? Of course the teacher was drawing a salary, but that teacher was laboring for more than the money promised. It may be that some one will read this who has done nothing all the school year but fume and fuss about the way the teachers were doing things. It is never too late to repent. Wash out your soul, rid it of all bitter thoughts, and now play the part of a noble spirit and go to those teachers, and tell them how much you appreciate their efforts in behalf of those whom you love. Send the teachers home with music in their souls, because you said—"Thank You."

In the Sunday School lesson last Sunday we studied about the little donkey that was tied to a post just outside of the walls of Jerusalem. Jesus wanted that little mule, and he sent two of his disciples after him. They were untying the donkey when the owner came out and asked why they did this. They said: "The Master has need of him." That was all right. As I go up and down our streets, up and down our highways, I find many mossy backed mules tied out, many young donkeys tied out, and I try my best to untie them and bring them to the Master, but you know, these old mules refuse to leave their posts. Some of them seem so set to their posts until they had rather have their heads pulled off, rather than to go to church, rather than come to the Master. How I do wish that I could go and untie all the tied up human donkeys in Chilton County, and bring them to my Lord. The Master has need of you, and why not come on to your place of service and duty?

I saw a boy run in from school and in high he shoved right through to the dinning room safe. He opened the door and looked in. Before him were bread sticks, fried meat, boiled cabbage, sweet potatoes, butter milk and baked beans. His countenance changed when he saw there was no cake in the cupboard. His mother said: "Help yourself son." Then a snarl came from his voice as he said: "I do not want any of that old stuff. I want cake." The most of us are just like that boy. We have plenty to wear, planty to eat and a thousand other things that should make us happy and contented, but we are not contented. We want cake. We think that we are having an awful time because we cannot have a fine home, a fine car, plenty of gas, lots of fine clothes, a big checking account and things like that. We snarl "I do not want the common things—I want cake." We may hate to do it, but we have got to come down to peas, corn bread and bacon, before these hard times are going to leave us. The most of the hard time howls is nothing more than all of us bawling for cake.

In passing along the highway I saw a man as he followed his mule. I do not know what the old dumb brute did to enrage the man with the lines, but all at once he seemed to fly into a rage, and he started to snatching the mule, beating him and tangling him up in the harness. The poor old speechless thing flinched and dodged until finally he fell broadside in the furrow. My soul went into a rage against the beating of the innocent brute, and I wanted to leave my car and go to that frightened animal and put my arms around his neck, and pat him gently on his shoulder saying: "Never mind, old fellow, be quiet and let's try to understand each other." Some people have a mania for beating brutes. They kick and cuff the dog around. They slam and slash the milk cow, the mother of the growing children in the home. They beat the mules and horses until whelps come out upon their injured hide. It is awful to be more brutish than a brute.

There is a mocking bird that has its home back of the parsonage, and its little form is all athrill with life and music. Last week when it was cold, gloomy and rainy, this little bird would sit on the tallest limb and shout its joy into the dismal air. As I listened to that little bundle of music as it sang and rejoiced in the gloom and the rain, it occured to me "why should I mope and feel blue when things do not go to suit me?" "Why do we not learn a lesson from the birds and sing when it is raining?" The darker the night, the harder the way, we should not forget to sing. It took a Paul and Silas to sing at the midnight hour while their feet were bound in the stocks.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Folks must be joking when they refer to the good old days. Without going back to pioneer times many can recall something about them.

We used kerosene lamps which were dirty and required refilling. Now we touch a button. We kept a team of horses in a smelly stable and fed them three times a day besides acting as groom. Now we spring the self-starter and away we go on a tireless steed. We split kindling and split wood and carried coal, an endless job. Now in many cases the heating plant is automatic. And the cooking arrangements are well-night perfect.

Women spent much time making dresses and hats and then they often looked dowdy. Now the stores provide both much more cheaply and much metter in every way. Same way with women's clothing of all kinds. Foods, tinned, bottled and packed, are better and more sanitary than in the old days of home preparing.

Because of great progress our physical well-being has been improved. Our mental appetites can more easily be appeased. There is something wrong in the outlook of any person who seems to hunger for the good old days. As the boy on the corner said: "That's the balony."—Toledo Blade.

SOME AMERICAN OBSERVATIONS

By Jay Taylor

Mr. Castle, Undersecretary of State, makes the sensible observation that it is better for the peace of the world to stand up bravely for our rights than weakly to surrender them.

The population of India has increased to 351 million. The United States, having a larger area and greater natural resources, can probably double its population during the next 100 years without becoming overcrowded.

Referring to some of our so-called peace societies with their European inspired propaganda, Senator Moses addressing the Annual Convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Washington said:

"Here in this city will be found the headquarters of more than one organization whose purpose it is to render the United States wholly defenseless except from the panoply which virtue provides. The officers of those organizations are as alert as they are fanatical, as plausible as they are impudent, and far more effective than either their cause or their number warrants. It is true that they assume to speak for many thousands, and it is probably true that those thousands will be found upon their membership rolls."

"But I believe that no inconsiderable number of these thousands can be shown to have been beguiled into membership by an appeal in the sacred name of peace, a peace which all the thinking world holds as an ideal, but a peace which probably cannot be even measureably attained until human nature has undergone complete transformation."

"For these sincere and misguided thousands I can find no severity of criticism; but for those persons who make their living through contributions accepted from those who as I believe are seduced by false pretenses, for those impudent spokesmen who haunt the committee rooms of Congress and who inundate the desks of senators and representatives with stimulated telegrams, letters and petitions I can find no words sufficient to express my abhorrence of them and their methods."

Mr. Raskob says the depression is ended and that the big problem is to find a way to guard against the next one. One good idea along this line will be to refrain from buying 'em on margin.

THE CINDER PILE

(By The Sweeper)

We had been hearing quite a lot about the Anti-Co-operative bill which the Gentleman from Mobile was sponsoring in the State Senate, which was to prohibit our county agents from assisting the farmers in marketing their products, so when we began to see all the population of the northern part of the state headed for Montgomery last Thursday morning, why we just stood our little old broom over in the corner, jined in the procession and went down to see the fun.

Boy, there were farmers there from every nook and corner of the State and they came in any kind of conveyance that would get them there. Never saw such a gang of plowboys together before. Believe us, when the farmers get all riled up, thy certainly can show their opponents where to get off. It is not often that the farmers of the country will really and truly get together and stand up for their rights as an organized force, but they certainly came to the front last Thursday.

We imagine that those legislators felt somewhat like a person who has inadvertently disturbed a large hornet's nest, with no visible means of escape from the enraged insects. However, there was one avenue of escape in this case and it was certainly amusing to see just how quickly those fellows scrambled for that hole.

We imagine that the Senate committee could read the handwriting on the wall in this case without the aid of any interpretor whatever. They were fearful of the sting of the political hornet, which is the ballot, and such a bunch of mad farmers as were in Montgomery Thursday certainly could swing an election most any old time.

It has been the custom in the past for the fellows whom the people elect and send down to Montgomery as their representatives to ignore the real wishes of the masses and enact a flock of laws favorable to the corporations and trusts and which usually work an additional hardship on the poor country fellow and "one-hoss" farmer who already has more burden than he can bear. But in this instance it would seem that 15,000 of these country plow-boys had the desired effect for the bill was reported out of the committee as indefinitely postponed by a vote of 10 to 1.

It would be well for the city of Montgomery to do a little something towards getting a better auditorium if they intend to let the law-makers sir up many such crowds as were there last Thursday. The results were almost catastrophic. The city's auditorium almost collapsed before the police could clear the huge crowd from the building after the walls and gallery began to crumble. However, the thoughtfulness of the authorities in handling the crowd under such circumstances and danger without allowing a stampede is to be commended. The situation was most admirably handled.

While we were letting Mr. Davis of Indianola, Miss., tell you about the Creator's masterpiece, the negro last week, and aside from our little trip down to Montgomery with the farmers, we have been sweeping cinders like the very dickens trying to get our corner in ship-shape so that we may have time to attend some of the plays and commencement exercises of the various high schools of the county this week and next.

From what we have been able to learn, there is going to be some very fine speakers on the programs of the schools and we certainly want to hear some of them at least. This is an occasion which every person in the county should be vitally interested in. It is a very happy one for those who are to graduate and also for those who have been looking forward to the vacation and a cessation of studies for a while.

Remember we have referred in these columns before to our little chicken business which we are running on the side. Well each day we become firmly convinced that these feathered creatures really have an intuition. This fact was brought out a few days ago when the Methodist preacher arrived at the chicken yards of the writer for a short visit. We are certain that in some manner the fondness for chickens and especially the fried variety for which Methodist ministers are famous, must have been communicated to the chicken world. Why, you ask? Well, sir, the preacher hadn't been present but a short time until one of the broilers of the flock obligingly stuck its head in a crack of the fence and hung itself. We have no idea as to how that chicken knew the preacher was there, but he evidently did!

In the future we expect to try to keep the visits of the preacher a secret from our chickens.

Guess we'll be sweeping along now. The Sweeper.

Railroad transportation is admittedly essential to the public welfare, protection and economic development. National prosperity and safety depends on it. Railway transportation ranks second only to agriculture as an industry in this country and naturally has a material effect on the prosperity of this nation, not only because of the large purchases of material, supplies and equipment made annually, but also because of the importance of adequate and efficient transportation to American industry.

Looking at the transportation question from a purely patriotic and practical standpoint alone, is it in the public interest to weaken the ability of the railroads to function efficiently and economically because of failure to permit the roads to continue to compete on a fair basis with the other agencies of transportation that are now unregulated?

Col. Taylor is right in urging federal coordination and regulation of all agencies of common carrier transportation.

WASTE OF A BILLION

Bureaucracy is costing the country approximately a billion dollars a year more than would be required for the same functions under an efficient organization, according to Lawrence Sullivan, Washington correspondent, writing in the current number of Atlantic Monthly. Illustrating the trend, he points out that from 1901 to 1929 no less than 492 independent administrative and legislative agencies were created. There is apparently a constant speeding up in this direction. As long ago as 1912 Woodrow Wilson said: "The history of liberty is a history of the limitation of governmental power, not the increase of it. When we resist, therefore, the concentration of power, we are resisting the process of death, because concentration of power is what always precedes the destruction of human liberties."

As evidence of the situation that has come to prevail, the writer states that the captain of an American ship coming into an American port is required to deal with thirteen federal officials operating in seven different departments before he may land his passngers and cargo.

While leaders in public life, of the past and present, are a unit in condemning this trend toward bureaucracy and in warning the people against it, it seems almost hopeless to expect that any substantial headway will be made toward checking it. The reason, as Mr. Sullivan explains, is that "whenever a specific plan for reorganization is presented in Congress, there immediately leap to arms the original sponsors of every useless bureau and every dead function marked for the grave. Personal, political or sectional interests enlist anywhere from one to a hundred defenders in Congress for every bureau, office, agency, experiment station and research laboratory. Indeed, inquiry discloses that every R. F. D. route has its little bloc of defenders, who will make certain that Star Route No. 33,817 never should be motorized before Star Route No. 17,641. In these circumstances, any measure to redistribute the administrative functions of the government induces as much legislative logrolling as a congressional reapportionment or a rivers and harbors bill."

The waste of a billion is only a part of the story, and not the most serious part. The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Pastor Carter Here Sunday

The visit of Rev. P. G. Carter to Clanton last Saturday and Sunday was an occasion of much pleasure to him and the many friends who greeted him so warmly. For the first time since he was pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church nine years ago, Rev. Carter had an opportunity Sunday to preach from the pulpit of the church. He is now located at Nicholasville, Ky., as pastor of the Baptist Church. During last week he was attending the Southern Baptist Convention at Birmingham. He came down to Clanton Saturday morning and had a great time during the day shaking hands and talking with old friends. Brother Carter, since leaving Clanton, has gotten married, and very proudly boasts of a fine boy nearly three years old.

Visiting Preacher From Florida

Another visiting preacher in Clanton Sunday was Rev. Lambert, from Haines City, Florida. He, with his wife, returning home from the Southern Baptist Convention, stopped in Clanton for the church worship hour. They were at the Baptist Church. It was a strange coincidence that Mr. and Mrs. Lambert were intimate associates with Rev. P. G. Carter at the Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. They did not even know that Carter was in Clanton until they arrived at the church. Mr. Lambert also knew Renfro Mullins at Howard College, and during his pastorate in Florida he became acquainted with Miss Hattie Jones some years ago, when she was teaching music there. The Lamberts were very happy to meet Miss Hattie's mother while here. Rev. Lambert is a brother of Prof. J. S. Lambert, of the State Department of Education.

Many Alabama Folks in Florida

Meeting Rev. Lambert reminded me again of the great number of Alabama people in Florida. On my recent trip to Miami, at every place I stopped I found somebody from Alabama. In Miami I ran across one of the Bell boys. Many of us can remember when the Bell farm occupied almost the whole territory which is now that part of Clanton south of Second Avenue and east of the Highway. The old Bell home was where the Chilton County High School is now located. The big trees on the school grounds are all that is left of the Bell place.

Don't Fail to See Silver Springs

Everybody who has ever been to Florida will tell you when you go there, don't fail to see Silver Springs. We saw it. It baffles description. If I could find words suitable to describe the beauties one beholds when looking through the glass bottom boats, I would not be writing The Man on the Corner. All I can do is to follow the custom of all who have been there, and say to you: If you ever go to Florida, don't fail to see Silver Springs, the greatest natural wonder of its kind in the world, I am sure.

Fishing at Panama City

J. W. McEathern, of Hill Grocery Company, returned Sunday night from a fishing trip with a party of friends at Panama City, Florida. He came back overflowing with joy. I mean the kind of joy that a fellow feels when he lands a big cavalla that weighs twenty-odd pounds. I hope to have a fishing trip to Panama City in November when we go to the Alabama District Kiwanis Convention at Dothan. Dr. Keyton has promised to take Stapp and me fishing down there, and W. M. Polk has expressed himself as being interested in joining the party.

Poor House Argument Again

Again we see the Chilton County poor house brought into the forum of public discussion. If the inmates of the poor house were being treated so badly, one would think surely our grand juries could get at the matter in some way provided by law. Every grand jury investigates that institution to see if the people housed there are being properly cared for. Then, too, the State prison inspector has jurisdiction in the matter. Investigations have been made from that source. I fear that the heated personal discussions about the matter will have an unsatisfactory ending.

Dr. Will Wilson Visitor Here

Dr. Will S. Wilson (It was Sucker Wilson back in the days when we were boys) of Fairfield, was a visitor to Clanton a few days last week. He was accompanied by his wife. For several years Dr. Wilson has been head of the dental department of the T. C. I. hospital at Fairfield. He is president of the Alabama Dental Association. This is his home, where he was born and reared. His father was Uncle Bill Wilson. Everybody in Clanton is proud of Will Wilson, and truly glad of the success that has come to him in his chosen profession.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Lieut. Col. Brainerd Taylor, in charge of the motor transport branch of the U. S. Army, testified recently before the Interstate Commerce Commission in connection with hearings on the question of coordination of motor and rail transportation and said:

"Whatever is done in the way of federal coordination and regulation, should be done with national defense in view. Our arterial railway system is the backbone of our national and international commerce and of our national defense and all other forms of transport are for us but extensions and auxiliary services, none of which should be permitted in any way, shape or manner to weaken or retard the development of a national system of arterial railways. The present trend wherein railroad organization appears to be forced in competition to develop motor transportation in coordination with their own railroad operations should not be stopped, but rather encouraged."

In the thirty years prior to 1920, statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission show that there was an average annual increase of more than six per cent in the volume of freight traffic handled by the railroads, but in the ten year period from 1920 to 1930, there was an average annual decrease of less than one per cent. For passenger traffic, the average annual increase in the thirty year period was five per cent, but for the ten year period, an actual loss of 5.2 per cent was shown.

Contributing factors to the decline in traffic handled by the railroads have been the increased use of common carrier motor vehicles, inland waterways, coastwise tonnage through the Panama Canal, pipe lines, and high power electric lines.

At the recent hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroads asked that they be given an equal opportunity to compete with other forms of transportation and that there be proper and appropriate regulation of such competitors for the purpose of stabilizing transportation service and securing effective coordination.

Craft Bill Swamped As Huge Crowed Packs Crampton Bowl At Committee Hearing May 14

Approximately 15,000 Farmers of State Appear Before Senate Agricultural Committee to Protest Passage of Bill

Committee Postpones Bill Indefinitely By Vote of 10 to 1 After Hearing Arguments

"Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage." Mat. 22:9.

(By Guy H. de Shazo)

It was not exactly a marriage to which they had been bidden, but rather to a meeting which would, if successful in its undertaking, prevent their economic death. The county agents and vocational agricultural teachers of the State must have followed the Bible story of the marriage feast in rounding up that multitude of farmers who made the trek to Montgomery on last Thursday to meet with the agricultural committee of the State Senate to protest the passing of the Craft Bill.

From the early hours of the morning until nearly noon, the highways leading into the capital city were thronged with cars, trucks, wagons and buggies bringing farmers of the State to the battle ground, on which they were to fight for their cooperative markets and the assistance of their county agents and vocational teachers. Some farmers who lived in the nearby communities to Montgomery were seen walking to the meeting. The cars and trucks were filled to overflowing, numbers making the trip from the fartherest points standing up in trucks. Others were seen sitting on common chairs and even one truck was seen by the writer which had requisitioned the pews from some country church for the trip. They did not all take time to put on their Sunday best, but merrily loaded on as the conveyance came along in whatever they happened to be wearing at the time. A number of the farmers who made the trip brought their wives and daughters along, some of them of course representing the interests of the farm women and the Home Demonstration clubs, but a goodly number also coming for the express purpose of seeing the "sights" of the state capital.

It was amusing to a certain extent to stand on the Square and watch the country people try to locate the traffic signals and to observe the expression on the faces of the traffic officers as these people blithely rolled along through the Square unmindful of the lights or the officer's whistle. The writer overheard one man from Cullman County tell the officer that if he got hard boiled, they would get hard with him. This is a sample of the spirit in which the farmers went to the meeting. Early in the morning the entire surface of Goat Hill was wrapped up and the rotunda of the capitol building was a seething mass of country folks. Various estimates of the crowd has been made all the way from seven thousand to twenty thousand. We believe that 15,000 would be a conservative estimate of the number.

It became apparent early that the committee rooms of the capitol building would not begin to hold the crowd and arrangements were made to hold the hearing at the City Auditorium. Shortly after the speaking was under way, it was noticed that the walls and gallery was crumbling and it became necessary to remove the crowds from the building. This was done quietly by the police and attendants without mishap, owing to the fact that very few people knew the real reason for the move.

From the City Auditorium the huge gathering moved to Crampton Bowl where loud speakers were rigged up and the hearing was continued there.

The gathering of farmers in Montgomery last Thursday broke all precedent for such gatherings. There was possibly never such a crowd of farmers in the capital city at any one time before in the history of the city. And it is certain that never before has there been such a widespread demonstration of feeling before a legislative committee as was presented to the agricultural committee of the Senate at this time. Heretofore when the lawmakers got up some bill detrimental to the farmers of the State only a mild protest would be entered against the bill by a few of the outstanding farmers of the State—and maybe a weak effort to defeat the same on the part of the weekly press. This time however, the lawmakers certainly stirred up a hornet's nest when they undertook to cut out the farmers marketing organizations "hell broke loose in Georgia," to use an old saw.

Senator Craft of Mobile, who sponsored the bill before the committee was the first to speak. He was followed by E. W. Pettus of Selma, who was counsel for the proponents of the bill. Both speakers were hissed and hooted at by the crowd to such an extent that they had to wait several minutes at times before they could continue. Outstanding speakers for the opposition were Dr. Bradford Knapp and Prof. L. N. Duncan, of Auburn. Both these speakers waxed eloquent in condemning the measure as "uncalled for, undesirable and entirely out of place." Secretary Deal of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation also spoke condemning the bill.

Prof. L. N. Duncan took especial pains to lambast Ed Pettus and his stand for the bill. And to use the words of one of the crowd which the writer overheard, Prof Duncan certainly pulled Ed's tail feathers out and sent him home feeling considerably less than he thought he was. The writer has seen Mr. Pettus on numerous occasions and heard him make a number of speeches for different causes and this is our first time to see him when he looked like he had been whipped.

It is hard to conjecture what would have been the outcome had the committee not voted on the question out in the open and while the crowd was there. Had they refused to vote at that time and waited till a later date and a closed session for their vote, there would have been no stopping that gang had they decided to do things in a rough way. Fortunately, however, a reasonable quietude was prevalent and when the vote of the committee was announced by Mr. Powell the very air reverbrated with shouts of joy from the throug.

Standing on the plaza of the Capitol after the meeting had adjourned such expressions as these were heard: "Boy, we sure showed them something this time. "Wonder how those smart boys feel by now." And "I'll bet it will be some time before they try anything like this again."

Aside from the fact that the day proved one of much importance to the farmers of the State and was a decided success, it also provided the occasion for a number of the country people of the State to see the capitol city and other things of interest which they had never seen before and probably never would have but for this occasion. The lady who looks after the "First White House of the Confederacy" told the writer she had talked and explained to more people that day than ever before. And alas and alack, there were people in that happy throng of farmers who will never see the city of Montgomery again.

All in all, it was the greatest demonstration the writer has ever seen, and was made up of the most intelligent looking bunch of people we have ever seen gathered together in any huge gathering. One Montgomerian was overheard to say that he did not believe that all those fellows were plow-boys—they looked too intelligent. Well some of these city folks will persist in thinking the farmers are a bunch of numskulls, but we are content to let them think what they will so long as we can get 15,000 together to fight for their own welfare—maybe we are not really as dumb as we may look.

WEST CHILTON

Everything is very quiet in West Chilton.

Olan Crumpton is recovering from a case of pneumonia.

Mrs. Belle Hubbard was reported on the sick list last week.

Marion Cofer attended singing at Mars Hill Sunday afternoon.

For the benefit of some far away Banner readers we wish to say that information has reached us of the death of Mr. Erven Mullins of Lawley last week. He has a number of relatives in Chilton.

Mr. H. H. Armstrong's car collided with a car driven by a man from Calera at Union Grove Church yard Sunday afternoon, but fortunately no one was hurt.

It looks as if the cotton crop will be very much reduced. As a large acreage is being plowed up and planted over. The late cool weather has been destructive to the cotton plant.

A number of our people attended the singing Sunday at Mineral Springs. They were delighted with their visit. They speak in glowing terms of the fine singing and fine free dinner. A great crowd was there. Everyone seemed to enjoy the occasion. Uncle John Hayes was right in the midst of it, genial as ever. Prof. W. L. Sanders presided. Many directors were on hand, among them being Hon. A. A. Jackson, the Shirley sisters, T. C. Jackson from Sylacauga, and many others.

At eleven o'clock Rev. Homer Carroll delivered a most interesting and impressive sermon on "Forgiveness." It was delivered with great earnestness and solemnity, and was characterized with marked loyalty to the Cross. It was a message of deep spirituality.

Late in the afternoon a quartett, Vaughn composition, "Don't Grieve Your Mother," was rendered.

So we say it was a great day for Mineral Springs.

Boy Scouts Re-Organized

We are pleased to be able to announce that efforts to re-organize a troop of Boy Scouts in Thorsby have proved successful, with Thorsby Institute as sponsor, by which its board of trustees have appointed Mr. S. E. Norton to represent them in scout matters.

A troop committee, consisting of Rev. J. E. Each, chairman, J. Monroe Smith, secretary, A. N. Laurell, J. L. Mixon, and S. E. Norton has been elected. V. H. Sutlive, H. R. Maddox and Clyde King, the three men on Thorsby Institute faculty, the first as scoutmaster and the other two as assistant scoutmasters, have been secured as leaders, and nine boys have enrolled as scouts. All have paid in the required fee and an application for a charter has been sent to headquarters, and will probably arrive within a few days.

The organization has been granted the use of the store room in the Masonic building for their meetings, pending an opportunity to rent it for other purposes.

Mr. Sutlive as scoutmaster, has informed us that he expects to arrange to take the boys out for a night in the open on Friday night of this week, which will probably terminate direct supervision of the troop by himself and the assistant scoutmasters, for a time not yet definitely fixed. However, this does not mean that they will have to depend on themselves for leadership. It will be the business of the troop committee to attend to that during the absence of the scoutmaster and his assisants, and all have cheerfully accepted service as needed.

We deem it right and proper at this point to explain the aims and objects of this organization, now 21 years old and embracing about four million enthusiastic members, banded together under oath, which reads as follows, before he becomes a scout, a boy must promise: "On my honor, I will do my best, first, to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the scout law; second, to help other people at all times; third, to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

How well this is observed is illustrated by a recent country-wide survey of jails, and not one prisoner was found who had ever been a scout.

The scout law is such that in the observance of it, boys are trained in the things that make for good citizenship. Although the organization is chartered by act of Congress, and is governed with military discipline, it is in no sense militaristic. While it insists on moral conduct by its members, it is thoroughly undenominational. Having enrolled as members boys and men of all religious sects.

We have not space here to tell all the good things it does for the youth of our land, but one thing is sure, it gets such a grip on boys that when they grow to manhood they want to stay with it, as big brothers to the boys with whom they come in contact.

The regular monthly social of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby, due to be held on Thursday, May 28, will not be held at that time, because of the community dinner, sponsored by the Ladies Guild, on the following day in connection with commencement day exercises of Thorsby Institute.

All friends of the Institute please remember the community dinner on the campus. Come with well filled baskets and prepared to have a good time. Ice cream will be sold on the grounds. The dinner will be served following the exercises in the auditorium.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

George F. Baker

Uncle John could sit on his porch and take it easy while the other farmers were hard at work. He lived well and enjoyed himself. His nephew wondered how a man could have all the necessities of life, and some of the luxuries, without having to work. Being of an inquiring mind he asked for the answer to such a puzzle. He was told that his uncle had an income from his savings and was able to live on the interest of his money.

That was how George F. Baker got his first lesson in thrift and in the value of saving and investing. He was visiting his grandparents in Dedham, Mass., where he spent much of his vacations as a boy, when he learned the lesson that was to help make him one of the world's leading bankers and enable him to amass a tremendous fortune.

George F. Baker was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1840. His father was a merchant, who at one time had a shoe business in New York city. The older Baker didn't enjoy buying and selling. He became a reporter under Horace Greeley on the New York Tribune. He specialized in politics. He became a Washington correspondent for his paper, later holding numerous political positions.

His son was eight years old when the family moved to Brooklyn. Young George went to school in Williamsburg, but spent much time with his grandparents in Massachusetts. The country air agreed with him. He thrived on it and became a sturdy and robust youngster.

It was at Dedham that he laid the foundation for the strong constitution that has enabled him to be active for so many years. There also, through the example of his uncle, he learned the lesson in finance that helped him in laying the foundation for his great fortune. He earned his first money, during a vacation at Dedham, by gathering cranberries left under the bushes by the pickers.

He carried the berries to the barn in pails, dumped them in a sleigh, that was stored until the coming of the New England winter, and when it was full and all the berries salvaged, he sold the batch for $7. That was good money for a boy in those days before the Civil war. Young Baker didn't waste it on candy or entertainment. With the example of his uncle in mind he saved it.

The youthful financier finished his education at Seward university at Florida, N. Y., when he was sixteen years old. His first job was in a small Albany bank. His father, whose interest in politics had gained him an election to the state legislature, was secretary to Gov. Myron H. Clark at the time.

The youngster worked hard learning the rudiments of the banking business, but he had time to enjoy himself after the fashion of the youth of the period. He drove his own horse and buggy. He got his exercise by rowing on the upper Hudson.

Sculling was a great sport on the river at Albany and Troy in those days. There were good boat clubs and good oarsmen. Young Baker was one of the best. He was skilled enough to win a sculling championship of the upper Hudson. He was also active in church and lecture work.

He was badly injured in a railroad accident in 1859. For a time it was thought one of his legs would have to be amputated. He recovered and served as secretary and assistant military secretary to Gov. Edwin D. Morgan, who was chief executive of the state at the outbreak of the Civil war.

Before this he had worked as a clerk in the state banking department. His pay there was only $500 a year, but he managed to save $100 of his first year's salary. His father was in Washington at secretary to William H. Seward and young Baker returned to the banking department when Governor Morgan retired from office.

He was known as the best informed clerk there. His knowledge soon gave him an opportunity to enter the banking business for himself. He became interested in the plan of Secretary of the Treasury Chase to sell bonds through banks and to form banks which could pledge bonds themselves for the circulation of currency up to 90 per cent of their value.

He talked the proposition over with John Thompson, a New York financier, and in 1863 they launched the First National bank with a capital of $200,000. Thompson offered the young banker all the stock he wanted and promised to carry it for him. But George Baker, at the time, didn't believe in borrowing money. Some misguided friend, apparently, had warned him against being a borrower.

So he used only his own savings to buy stock. His nest egg permitted him to buy thirty shares. He also became a teller and before long the cashier of the bank. He prospered and later borrowed the money with which to get control of the institution which he was destined to make one of the strongest financial concerns in the world.

POPPY SALE TO BE HERE

Event Will Be In Charge of Ladies of American Legion Auxiliary Saturday, May 30

The little red memorial popies which disabled World War veterans have been making through the winter and spring, will be sold in Clanton on Saturday, May 23, Mrs. Percy Pitts, president of Chilton County Legion Auxiliary, announced today. A complete organization which will give everyone in the city an opportunity to buy and wear a poppy in memory of the World War dead is being developed by the unit under the leadership of Mrs. Joe Calloway, chairman of the poppy committee. A larger sale of the memorial flowers than ever before is anticipated by the unit.

"The purpose of the sale is twofold," Mrs. Pitts explained. "First, to honor the war dead by wearing the poppy which grows on the fields of France and Flanders, where they fell, and second, to aid the living victims of the war, the disabled veterans, their families and the families of the dead. Every penny of the money which the people of Clanton pay for their poppies will go to the relief of war sufferers, the bulk of it to needy veterans and families right here in Chilton County.

"Saturday, May 23, the Saturday before Memorial Day, will see the whole nation wearing the memorial poppy," Mrs. Pitts continued. "Poppy sales conducted by 7,200 auxiliary units will cover practically every city and town in the country. More than 10,000,000 Americans are expected to pay tribute to the World War dead and help the war's living victims back to health and happiness through buying and wearing a poppy on that day."

HEFLIN WINS IN ARGUMENT FOR VOTE RECOUNT

Order Issued To Examine Every Ballot In State; Foundation Laid To Declare Election Void

Washington.—ExSenator J. Thomas Heflin has won his argument that all the ballot boxes in Alabama's senatorial election of 1930 should be investigated in his fight to prevent the seating of John H. Bankhead.

Orders have been issued to Supervisor Harrison W. Smith, in charge of the preliminary examination of ballots from 10 selected counties, to continue the investigation through the state's 57 other counties.

The instructions were issued by Chairman Hastings, of the Senate subcommittee, in charge of the Heflin-Bankhead contest.

Complete Examination Tuesday

Smith expects to complete the examination of the first 10 counties Tuesday. He will then take up the remainder in alphabetical order, starting with Autauga.

The decision to go through with the investigation is predicated on disclosures of alleged fraud and irregularities in the boxes already received. It means that the committee has overruled Bankhead's demurer to the Heflin contest. Bankhead called the charges too vague to justify investigation.

The counties already examined are St. Clair, Shelby, Mobile, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, Tallapoosa, Walker, Jackson, Colbert, and Crenshaw. Ballot boxes from two others, Houston and Bibb, were also opened, but the ballots and been burned.

Believed Sanctioned

Hastings' order for the recount to continue is believed to have been sanctioned by his Republican colleagues on the contest committee, Watson, of Indiana, and Moses, of New Hampshire. The Democratic members, George, of Georgia, and Bratton, of New Mexico, are in their home states and it is not known whether they acquiesced.

The committee's approval of the Heflin charges is foundation for the presumption that if the remaining 57 counties yield similar evidence, the committee will report against Bankhead's claim to a seat.

Under Alabama law, if the election is voided the governor is compelled to call a special election "forthwith" to fill the vacancy. Pending this election, he might appoint some one to the seat.

In the recount of Walker County, home of Bankhead, it was found Monday that in 21 precincts, open drawers from filing cases had been used as boxes, as well as one oven taken from a gas stove.—Birmingham Post.

Editor Union-Banner:

You have a great little paper. I have been confined in the hospital for the past three months with a broken leg, and I have learned to look forward to the paper with great eagerness.

If we had more papers of your kind and not the mud slinging type, the press would be a much greater assett, and not so near a liability. Respectfully yours, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Norris.

NOTICE TO IRISH POTATO GROWERS

If you want help in marketing your Irish potatoes this season and will be ready to dig within the next ten days, let me know your acreage and estimated yields.—C. E. Stapp.

MAD DOGS

City officials of Clanton have taken prompt and definite steps to prevent what might be an "epidemic" of mad dogs here following the rampage of a certain dog last week. Many dogs here are said to have been bitten by the dog that later proved to be rabid.

At the council meeting Tuesday night a resolution was passed instructing the city police officials to notify those who have dogs that they will be required to keep their dogs up for 90 days.

Persons who may object to this resolution, and failing to comply with the same will be dealt with by the town under the State law relative to permitting rabid dogs to run at large.

City Clerk, C. H. Pipes, requests anyone who may know of a dog that was bitten by a mad dog or suspected of being bitten, to notify his office at once so that proper steps may be taken to have such dogs taken up and confined.

This is important and should be observed by every citizen.

POWER COMPANY ASSESSED HIGH TAX HEAD SAYS

Contributed 34.01 Per Cent of Taxes Paid Into Educational Trust Fund

Montgomery, Ala., May 18.—Alabama Power Company is assessed at a higher rate than other utilities, persons and non-utility corporations, Henry T. Knight, chief clerk of the State Tax Commission, testified today before the joint legislative committee investigating electric utilities.

Knight said that Alabama Power Company is assessed for taxes at 46.81 per cent of the value of the company's taxable property and assets. This compared, he said, with an assesment of 45 per cent for other utilities in the state and 33 per cent for property generally over the state. Utility assessments, he pointed out, are at a higher rate than any other class of property with the possible exception of some banks.

The Power Company pays more taxes than any other corporation in the state, Knight testified. It contributed 34.01 per cent of the taxes paid into the educational trust fund in 1930. This, he added, was the largest single payment into this fund created by the Legislature in 1927.
